May Expand Next Season

10 Teams For Junior 'A'

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Hanley, business manager of the Ontario Hockey Association, said Monday applications for franchises are now on file from London, Ont. and Windsor, indicating the OHA Junior A Series may expand to 10 teams from eight next season.

Hanley added that there have been rumors that Quebec City and Chatham are also anxious to join the circuit. Teams already in the league are from Toronto, Montreal, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Oshawa, Hamilton and Kitchener.

Construction of a new arena at London has stimulated interest throughout western Ontario to such an extent that the city's hockey club, an affiliate of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, has posted a $1,500 bond with its application.

Ebby Bishop, manager of the new arena, said he felt there was no doubt junior A hockey would be welcomed in London. "Our national (a former OHA team) averaged 3,600 fans for 20 league games at home this season," he said, "and during the playoffs series against St. Thomas we packed an average of 9,500 fans in for three games."

William Baski, a lawyer and a member of the OHA executive, forwarded Windsor's application to the OHA on behalf of a group which has been spearheading Windsor Bulldogs in the International Hockey League.

"There seems to be a trend now among the NHL clubs to sponsor two teams in the junior league, so we're hoping for an affiliation with Detroit Red Wings," Baski explained. "If this isn't possible we are counting on Detroit management to give us permission to seek another sponsor."

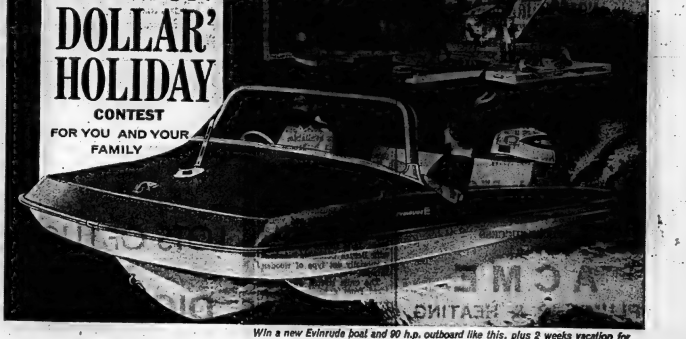
This permission is necessary because of Windsor's inclusion in the 50-mile radius protecting Detroit's territorial rights. The Red Wings now operate Hamilton Red Wings as their Junior A farm club.

The applications will be dealt with at a meeting of the OHA Junior A council following the May 15 deadline.

Wellington Bows To Stouffville In Overtime

WELLINGTON (Special) — Stouffville scored a goal late in the first overtime period to shade Wellington 6-5 here last night in an OHA Junior "D" finals game.

The clubs were deadlocked 5-5 at the end of regulation time and Stouffville bagged the winner in the ninth minute of overtime.



Stouffville leads the best-of-five timbre series one game to none. The clubs play in Stouffville tomorrow (Wednesday) night and return here for an eight o'clock game Friday night.

Last night's game was a replay of the series opener. Stouffville also won that tilt by a single goal but the visitors held a Wellington protest and reduced the series from a best-of-seven to a best-of-five.

The Wellington team consists of the same players who captured the OMHA Juvenile "D" championship for the second consecutive year last Saturday night.

Wellington Midgets, trailing their best-of-three "D" title series 1-0, play their second game in Belmont on Saturday of this week.

Dickens' Motel Ultra-Modern in Comfort, Cosiness

That, in a capsule, describes the beautiful new $100,000 11-unit motel recently opened by Jack Dickens.

You will find it nestling Highway 401 at Interchange 90 at the Wallbridge Road.

Mr. Dickens has left nothing undone to ensure the travelling public of the utmost in restful quiet comfort.

Known as the "Dickens Motel," the handsome hostelry has five "single" and six "double" units. The decor and furnishings are the alpha and omega of selection and class.

Noise-wise the motel units guarantee guest isolation. The partitions are built of double-brick air-spaced sandstone. The "party" next door is practically non-existent.

Mr. Dickens, part designer of his motel, chose soft relaxing colors for the decor carefully avoiding flamboyant and garish shades.

Mr. Dickens believes the travelling public, whether pausing en route to destinations, or on vacation, desires cosiness and comfort in overnight or longer relaxation.

These, the Dickens Motel has to the last degree, in a combination of modernistic ideas garnered from careful study of several plans.

COSINESS, COMFORT

Cosiness and comfort are epitomized in the handsome 13 by 18 units. The sound-proof rooms are done in two soft tones of beige. Merging into these colors are the British Columbia redwood bay windows.

In a yet softer tone of beige are the wall-to-wall broadlooms. Modern aluminum self-locking doors swing shut softly behind you. They are screen-equipped for summer. The beds are the low continental style. Coverlets are of a wine color. Low comfortable chairs are of matching and contrasting shades.

Guaranteeing the utmost in coolness in summer and warmth when desired are the double, stripped windows.

And you don't have to worry the office if heat is needed. That is taken care of automatically.

For the Dickens Motel is completely "electric". Pushbutton control regulates the heat. A "cold" unit uncoupled for any length of time can be made guest-comfortable within four minutes. By this system heat can be maintained at any degree.

Telephones controlled by a special two-trunkline office switchboard are in every unit. Tucked away in a corner on special walbrack are 1004 17-inch television sets. Six-channel reception is available.

And there is bathroom elegance in every unit.

There is a gleaming tub and combination shower for guest comfort in settings of charcoal, blue and green and white tile.

An adjoining compartment washroom is finished in glistening flecked arborite and white.

The motel is constructed of the double-brick beige sandstone. It is roofed for coolness with British Columbia "shake" a specially cut type of wooden shingle.

The units stretch away eastward from a handsome tower which in time will be illuminated. Directly under the tower is the office and a handsome apartment in which Mr. and Mrs. Dickens reside.

The apartment is designed and constructed so that if future circumstances warrant, it can be converted into a modern dining room.

Food facilities at the moment call for breakfasts served to guests with coffee and light snacks available at all hours.

CLEAR COOL WATER

The motel water, clear and icy cool comes from a newly-drilled well on the property. Water is made available by a special pump submerged fifty feet below the water surface of the seventy-foot well. A special electric device "softens" the water for bathing comfort.

The Dickens Motel occupies a prominent location on a 12-acre property acquired by Mr. Dickens a few years ago. It is constructed in a manner which permits expansion by additional units. If and when, Mr. Dickens says, these will be of different construction and design.

There is a broad frontage between the motel and Highway 401. This in time will be sodded and terraced with the possibility of a duck pond and play area for children being included.

Nine clear acres extend to the eastward of the motel. Mr Dickens has no immediate plans for this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickens will staff the motel which will be open the year round. Additional staff will be added in the summer months when the tourist traffic takes to the highways.

NEED NEW HOMES

Norway's housing director estimates the country will need about 1,250,000 new dwelling units by 1970.

White Minister's Death Touches Off Street Riot

Car, Store Windows In Cleveland Smashed

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland faced its second racial crisis in less than three months today in the wake of a civil rights demonstration that left a Presbyterian minister dead and touched off an all-night wave of rioting and violence.

Civil rights leaders, whose demonstration was halted construction Tuesday at a school site, launched another demonstration at noon today at the board of education's office.

Rev. Bruce W. Klunder, 27-year-old white minister, was crushed to death under a bulldozer during the demonstration at the school site in a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Fifteen other persons, 10 of them policemen, were injured. Car and store windows were smashed. Police arrested 26 persons, including four juveniles, arrested during the night and accused of throwing rocks.

Police and civil rights leaders appealed without success to the crowds which swelled to more than 3,000, to disperse.

POLICE CHARGE

Time and again during the early evening, police with long lines of mounted police charged into groups that gathered to hurl insults and missiles, sending demonstrators scurrying behind buildings along Lakeview Terrace.

It wasn't until early today that police reported the area calm.

Mayor Ralph S. Locher, who attends the Church of the Covenant where Mr. Klunder was assistant minister, said the city would use injunctions and powers to block further demonstrations at school construction sites.

Civil rights leaders, on the other hand, called for greater militancy in speeches at a rally at Cory Methodist Church Tuesday night. Miss Ruth Turner, executive secretary of the Cleveland chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality, told the rally plans would be made for a school boycott.

A few hours before he threw himself into the path of the bulldozer, Mr. Klunder had told another minister he was prepared to risk his life for civil rights.

WAS IN CROWD

Mr. Klunder, at about 150 demonstrators and spectators on the scene when the demonstration began, had marched along Lakeview Road to keep demonstrators out of the construction site, but four persons threw

Mounting Tension In House

By RONALD LEREL

OTTAWA (CP) — The stalemate in Parliament over spending estimates entered its third week today with no immediate end in sight.

Mounting tension burst Tuesday in a rare spat between the leaders of the Senate and the Commons.

The Commons spent a lively hour inconclusive—hour debating whether the Senate should be abolished, or reformed. The rest of the time was spent plodding through the final spending estimates for the fiscal year that ended March 31.

The Senate, meanwhile, decided to adjourn for 13 days since it has no work to do. Senators blasted their idiosyncrats the Commons, which has not passed a single item of the government's legislative program since the session opened Feb. 18.

The Senators served notice they will return to Parliament Hill Monday at 20 if there is a break in the Commons legislative log jam.

The Commons business has made little progress since it opened a wide-ranging debate on supplementary spending estimates for 1963-64 Wednesday, March 25, and continued it over 10 straight sitting days. The projected 11th day Easter recess went by the wayside in the process.

HOUSE TENSE

The tense atmosphere in Parliament was reminiscent of similar days before the dissolution before the 1962 and 1963 general elections, when the party roles were reversed. Then it was the first anniversary of the election, which put the Liberals in office.

Tuesday's outburst between New Democrat MP for Winnipeg North Centre and former labor minister Mr. Church was to be works with his private member's bill to abolish the Senate. Mr. Knowles, elected representatives of the people are qualified to pass laws in a democracy. Senators appointed for life by the prime minister of the day now could somehow improve government programs without being accountable to anyone.

Shouts of "old people's home" and a stream of other interjections punctuated the debate, watched from the public galleries by many amused senators.

Mr. Knowles asked for unanimous consent to resume the debate during the next private members' hour Thursday, but several Liberal MPs objected. This means his bill fails to the bottom of a long list and is unlikely to come up again this session.

THOMPSON COMPLAINS

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said he rose to except for a few independents, senators are either Liberal or Conservatives.

The Senate was "a pasture for political warhorses of old-line parties who have outlived their usefulness and have been put out to pasture."

The institution itself was not at fault; the fault lay in the type of appointments made by Liberal and Conservative prime ministers.

Mr. Thompson suggested that leading figures in the Social Credit, CCF-NDP and Union National provincial governments of the past should have been named to the Senate.

John Turner (Conservative) for holding up a loan to the bankrupt unemployment insurance fund last Friday.

(The Senate approved an appropriation bill providing payments to the UIC loan Monday after senators complained that the government had withdrawn the rubber-stamp Commons bills in a rush.)

Both Mr. Turner and Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) urged reform of the Senate rather than outright abolition. Both argued that representation by the provincial governments fair representation for the Maritime provinces in the Commons, regardless of population trends.

CLAIMS IT'S STUNT

Mr. Lambert said Mr. Knowles bill was just legislation and a publicity stunt, born of

Alabama Governor Receives Big Wisconsin Primary Vote

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Alabama Governor George C. Wallace, who said he would "shake the eye teeth" of both parties' leaders if he attracted more than 25,000 Wisconsin votes in his campaign against the civil rights bill, won 10 times that many in Tuesday's presidential primary.

But Wisconsin Governor John W. Reynolds, who headed a "favorite son" delegation as the personal choice of President Johnson, won all of the state's 30 Democratic national convention votes. And in the process, Reynolds topped the late president John F. Kennedy's record for the most votes ever won by a Democrat in the state's preferential primary.

The southern segregationist's triumphant assertion that winning nearly 35 per cent of the total vote cast in the traditionally progressive state constituted a "moral and psychological victory" was not challenged by the Republican party.

"It just goes to show what we've known all along," Republicans said. "The people have decided people in the north as well as in the south."

Returns with 3,232 of John W. Byrnes was the Republican "favorite son" whose candidacy was backed by Republican party leaders free of serious contenders.

With 3,249 of the state's 3,552 voting districts reported, the vote was: Reynolds, 453,066; Wallace, 346,375; Byrnes 267,632.

In a state which has not produced a majority for a democratic presidential nominee since the election of Harry S Truman in 1948, the casting of more than 70 per cent of the vote in the Reynolds-Wallace fight showed that thousands of Republicans had chosen to take advantage of the open primary to make their marks on the other party's ballot. In Wisconsin, voters are not committed by party.

Tuesday night Wallace told supporters at his Milwaukee headquarters that their showing was a victory over administration Democrats "and they know it."

"This so - called civil rights bill is not in the interest of anybody," he declared, and thanked some 200 persons crowded into the tiny headquarters for their effort "to break up centralized government."

"You had this opportunity and you took advantage of it," he said.

Wallace, who was cheered, jeered and thumped once on the head by a picket sign during his campaign, added that "there will always be a warm place in my heart for Wisconsin." He will take his campaign into the Maryland and Indiana primaries next Tuesday.

Reynolds, who speculated earlier that Wallace might attract as much as 100,000 votes with "bigots and fanatics"—and said such a total would be "a catastrophe"—found solace in his own record total.

Plane Bounces Into Swamp, 40 Injured But None Killed

NEW YORK (AP)—A jet airliner carrying 136 passengers and a crew of nine bounced into a swamp and crashed open while trying to land at Kennedy International Airport Tuesday night.

At least 40 persons were treated for injuries ranging from minor cuts and bruises to dislocated and broken bones. Police said 15 of the more seriously hurt were taken to hospitals. One male passenger was treated for a heart attack.

The Boeing 707, a Pan American World Airways flight from San Juan, Puerto Rico, overran the landing strip when it touched down on the runway and plowed into a marshy field.

There was no fire. Foam was spread to reduce that possibility.

The crew helped passengers into two life rafts, but some stepped from the plane directly into about two feet of mud and water.

A Pan American official declined to speculate whether the plane had overshot its landing or couldn't stop after landing because of the wet, slick runway.

The jet came to rest about 1,000 feet from the end of the runway and about 100 feet from Rockaway Boulevard in Queens.

A wire fence separating the airport was cut by police at that point to allow passengers to reach dry ground.

Most passengers got out of the plane via escape hatches.

The fuselage snapped about 75 feet from the rear end, with the disjointed end bent at a 15-degree angle.

650 Turks Stand Pat In Cyprus

By HAL McCLURE

NICOSIA (AP) — The commander of 650 Turkish soldiers isolated in a wedge of land north of this Cyprus capital says his men are staying put unless ordered out by the Turkish government.

"We are on duty in Cyprus," said Col. Hasnan Saglam. "And as the government gives us order to us we will move. But we are staying here now."

Meanwhile, Turkish - Cypriots, continuing their criticism of the UN peace force on Cyprus, assailed the commander, Indian Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani saying he are "disappointed."

The Turkish army contingent is the latest storm centre on the island.

The Greek - Cypriot government of President Archbishop Makarios has declared the force illegal and ordered it to withdraw all its facilities under treaty.

This would include duty-free import of food, gasoline, cigarettes and alcohol, plus housing facilities for 650 soldiers. The troops also have had freedom of movement on the island and have been fighting erupted three months ago.

Turkey has told Greece any attack on the Turkish contingent would be considered an act of aggression.

GUARANTEES TREATY

The latest row came last week when Makarios unilaterally abrogated the 1960 treaty of alliance with Greece and Turkey, which authorizes the stationing of 950 Greek troops on the island.

Both contingents took up defensive positions outside their regular encampments last December during the battle of Nicosia. Greek troops since have returned to their base but the Turks remain entrenched in a position along the Kyrenia mountain road in Turkish-held territory.

Makarios has said if Turkish troops do not withdraw from the island he will take the matter to the UN Security Council.

Turkish Prime Minister Ismet Inonu has countered that Makarios' abrogation of the treaty was unconstitutional and the constitution and is therefore unacceptable.

Underlining the gravity of the situation, Makarios will fly to Athens later this week for talks with Premier Constantine Karamanlis and, according to Greek-Cypriot press reports, with the former Greek underground leader, George Grivas.

UNEASY CALM HOLDS

A campaign to bring Grivas back to Cyprus to fight against the Turks has been gaining momentum here.

Elsewhere on the island, calm prevailed today and there were no reports of shooting during the night.

A cease-fire still is being observed in western Cyprus, where fighting erupted last weekend.

Turkish - Cypriots in their daily bulletin issued by the Ministry of Vice-President Dr. Fazil Kuchuk, the Turkish leader, claimed that 12 Turks and Moslems did nothing to prevent such incidents as the gunning down of four Turks by Greek-Cypriots Tuesday night. Two Turks were killed and one wounded. The fourth man is missing.

Govt. Under Strong Pressure To Withdraw Exemptions

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is under strong pressure from the Tories to withdraw its proposed exemption of Time and Reader's Digest from the measures aimed at preventing Canadian periodicals, informants said Tuesday.

It is understood that government supporters as well as opposition members will publicly urge the government to drop the exemptions.

The two publications, which have Canadian editions prepared partly in this country, were specifically exempted from the proposal to protect Canadian periodicals, introduced last month and still before the Commons.

The resolution proposing the protection and including the Time and Reader's Digest exemption was placed before the House of Commons March 31. Since then, the exemption has been under fire from a number of Canadian publications.

One source said the government is said to be looking for a politically face-saving way of withdrawing the proposed exemptions. There is also said to be possibility of a free vote on them.

There are two parts to the government's proposal to protect Canadian publishers:

One denies deductibility from corporation income for the expense of advertisements placed after Dec. 31 in non-Canadian periodicals and primarily directed to the Canadian market.

The other prohibits the importation of special issues of foreign periodicals carrying advertising directed to the Canadian market which does not appear in other issues of the same publication in its originating country.

A Canadian periodical is defined as one which has its editorial type set in Canada, is wholly printed in Canada and is edited in this country by Canadian residents.

Such periodicals include those published at regular intervals of not more than six days and less than 13 weeks and described as distinct publications or as supplements to a newspaper.

Race Horses Disappear in Heavy Fog

TORONTO (CP)—"There they go" cried track announcer Paul Hanover as the horses went into the first turn—and he was right.

They disappeared in the fog that moved over Greenwood Raceway Tuesday night as the eighth race started.

But Hanover kept the spectators informed of the horses' progress as patrol judges reported by telephone from their perches overlooking the course.

Doctmor, driven by Harley Mosher, who celebrated his 60th birthday Monday, became visible at about the half mile and went on to win the race.

Russia Plans Free Trade With Backward Lands

Will Wipe Out Tariffs To Aid Poor Nations

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia told the world trade committee today it will abolish all tariffs on imports from underdeveloped countries as of Jan. 1, 1965.

The Soviet delegate, Viktor Spandarjan, made the announcement in the committee on expansion of international trade at the world trade conference.

Russia will also increase its purchase of primary products, semi-manufactured and manufactured goods in the developing countries as of Jan. 1, 1965.

Bomb Scare Delays Departure

CP from AP-Reuters

AMSTERDAM—A bomb scare delayed the departure for Paris today of Princess Irene, who has virtually broken with her country because of her love for a pretender to the Spanish throne.

Nothing suspicious was found aboard the KLM airliner the princess was taking, and she left 63 minutes late.

An anonymous caller telephoned KLM, the Royal Dutch Airline, that "you should investigate the plane" that the princess, second daughter of Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, was taking.

" KLM officials assumed the caller meant a bomb was aboard the plane, a regularly scheduled airliner. They removed the other 53 passengers and all mail and cargo from the plane and made a thorough search. The princess had not boarded the plane.

IS FIRST SUCH DELAY

It was the first time in Holland that a plane carrying royalty was delayed because of a security warning.

Irene's engagement to the Spanish pretender has aroused adverse feelings in The Netherlands because of Spain's brutal occupation of the country in the 16th century.

Some Dutch protestants also have been angered by Irene's conversion to her fiance's Roman Catholic faith. The Dutch royal family have been members of the Dutch reformed faith for centuries.

Tuesday the princess announced she would be married outside The Netherlands. She explained that she would join her future husband at once in his political capital of Madrid. Spanish throne and wished to avoid any political difficulties for her mother. She has renounced her right to succession to the Dutch throne, for which she was second in line.

Shortly after Irene's plane left, the government information service announced she would return to The Netherlands for a few days after a visit to Prince Carlos' family.

Witnessed Baby Torn Apart By Accused

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man who was stationed in Germany during the Second World War said Tuesday he saw an SS officer (Nazi) pound, now on trial in Frankfurt, tear a baby apart with his hands.

Stephen Kuzmar, 33, was in a camp at Mauthausen, Austria, where Gerard Kudak, 57, was a sergeant of the guards. Kudak is accused of driving Jewish children to their deaths in Auschwitz gas chambers.

Mr. Kramer, now a taxi driver, is a native of Buckpest. He was picked up in the street in 1944 when he was 13 and was in several camps until liberated in May, 1945.

He said in an interview that 20 to 30 women at a time were forced to work at a factory kept for the guards at the Mauthausen camp.

One prisoner, a beautiful, dark Hungarian woman, about 22 to 24 and who was carrying a baby, put up a fight when they attempted to lead her away. He said he went to the bawdy house, he said.

"Kudak snatched away the woman's baby and ripped it from of at least 300 people tore the child apart with his hands," Mr. Kramer said.

The German consulate here has asked Mr. Kramer to write a statement of his experiences for transmission to the war crimes court.

TAKES DESK JOB

MOSCOW (AP) — Yuri Gagarin, the world's first spaceman has been given a desk job. He was announced Tuesday by the official military newspaper Red Star which said Gagarin will take up duties as stated "cosmonauts desk." Also on the desk will be cosmonauts Adrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich and Valery Bykovsky.

Provincial Nationalism Threat To Canada's Economy Is Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial nationalism is creeping into and threatening the future of Canada's economy, A. T. Brodeur, president of the Canadian Importers' Association, charged.

He told the association's annual meeting that the practice of governments favoring manufacturers within their own borders at the expense of other Canadians is a cancer that must be halted.

"The countries of Europe, with far fewer populations, are breaking down barriers between themselves," Mr. Brodeur said.

"Let us not take the backward step of cutting our nation into its component parts by erecting artificial provincial walls, through this very harmful form of discrimination in buying policies."

Text of Mr. Brodeur's speech was given the press before delivery.

Mr. Brodeur said he knows what he is talking about in discussing provincial barriers since he comes from Quebec. But he said delegates from other provinces should not feel self-righteous "because I believe every provincial government is guilty in varying degrees of practising discrimination in favor of local products at the expense of products from another province."

"This situation is deplorable and cannot be tolerated and do everything in our power to have it stopped regardless of our provincial habitat."

He said such policies are being supported "by local industries which should be protected or subsidized to exist."

"Extend these policies to their possible extremes and you have an efficient industry established 10 plants across Canada, each one so small that they are no longer efficient or economical production in buying policies is reduced to nothing.

"This situation, if allowed to expand and erode, can only result in a chaotic situation among our more broadminded and aggressive manufacturers —the exporters."

It was "ludicrous" to try to restrict our activities within provincial borders in this age.

Belgian Government Makes Plans To Put Striking Doctors in Army

CP from AP-Reuters

BRUSSELS — The Belgian government today made ready plans to put striking doctors into the army if their eight-day walkout continues much longer.

Informants said Premier Theo Lefevre was not anxious to conscript the 12,000 strikers but believed he must plan for such an eventuality in the national interest.

Most of the younger doctors hold commissions in the army reserve.

Asked what the doctors would do in such an event, Dr. Andre Wynen, one of the leaders of the strike, said: "We have our plans but we are keeping our strategy secret."

The country's 10,000 doctors and 2,000 dentists went on strike April 1 against legislation changing the state health insurance plan to limit their fees and open their medical treatment records to government inspectors. The insurance fund has a $20,000,000 deficit.

For the last week hospitals throughout the country have been "staffed" only by patients tended by skeleton medical crews.

At Brugge, the doctors decided to resume house calls. But in other urban areas, doctors still refused to make such visits.

The strikers are participating in an unofficial civil disobedience, which serious cases are taken to hospitals for treatment. They're maintained no one's life was endangered.

But they also threatened to discontinue the system if doctors were victimized or if hospitality against them increased. Some physicians reported receiving anonymous threats. Others said their homes had been smeared with tar and paint.

CNR Gross Revenue Is Record

OTTAWA (CP) — The CNR collected a record $800,000,000 in gross revenues last year on its biggest business year since it was established in 1923.

The money came into the coffers of the publicly-owned company from its operations on the railway and highway, as well as in hotels and telecommunications.

In his annual report to Parliament, CNR President Donald Gordon hailed 1963 as an "exceptional" year for the company, citing higher gross sales, greater work load, better efficiency and tightly-reined expenses.

But he confessed that much of this isn't apparent in the final "top-page financial result —a deficit of $43,013,517 for 1963.

This loss, disclosed last month by the government in its final supplementary spending estimates for the 1963-64 fiscal year, compares with the 1962 deficit of $49,918,456.

It was the seventh consecutive annual deficit for the railway system.

The railway had a net income of $21,190,774 on its over-all operations, but debt charges pushed it into the red ink.

Mr. Gordon blamed the interest burden for the CNR's deficit.

The CNR president made another plea for a capital revision to relieve the railway of the "crushing burden of debt charges which make the annual profit and loss account-such an inaccurate reflection of management and employee efficiency."

He contended that the CNR's objectives of providing an efficient and economic transportation system can be fulfilled more satisfactorily "if the accounts are placed on a basis that will reflect the true story of current operations, so that the annual results do not mask qualification and explanation in respect of the past."

Acquisition of the CNR's debt is said to be one of the main goals of Mr. Gordon before he leaves the $75,000-a-year job he head of the CNR sometime in 1965—a date he himself set when the government reappointed him last October.

Central Jail for 4 Counties Not Reality in Near Future County Councillors Told

Although the move is favored by the Ontario Department of Reform Institutions, a new central jail for the Four Counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, is not expected to become a reality in the near future.

This was indicated at the April session of Hastings county council yesterday following the report of a special committee named to consider the central jail project.

As chairman of the committee, Sidney Reeve, Gerald Irvine, said county representatives had attended a meeting at Kingston which was addressed by Hon. Allan Grossman.

He said the Department minister greatly favored the central jail idea, noting that all but three of the 37 jails in the province were over 100 years old. This led to antiquated facilities, overcrowding, lack of adequate segregation, lack of work facilities and lack of treatment and classification facilities.

WOULD COST $2,000,000

Cost of a central jail to serve the four counties was estimated at approximately $2,000,000 and said that a provincial capital grant would apply on this amount.

He felt that the new facilities could be provided without a great deal of difference in cost as compared with operation of the present individual jails.

Reeve Irvine said the decision at the meeting was that the department would bring in a proposal regarding total estimated costs, together with facilities proposed. No further word however has been received from the department.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC

Last year's warden Charles Long agreed the matter would take a lot of study before any action could be taken.

Warden Tom Burnside said his impression was that the other municipalities were not too enthusiastic. He doubted that there would be any move at present.

Reeve Fred Beckett of Rawdon township suggested that with the heavy capital costs for hospital addition facing the county, he could not see how Hastings could take the added cost of a central jail.

Y's Activities

While the March winds blew, Y.M.C.A. girl members took swimming instruction, perfecting and then passing the five stages of each card in the intermediate level of swimming. Those who have successfully passed such cards are as follows:

Card 1 — Anne Mawdsley, Gail Fargey.

Card 2 — Donna Kirkman, Judy Read.

Card 3 — Pamela Smith, Shelia Wallace, Sherrie Graham.

Card 4 — Vicki Johns, Donna Doyle, Pamela Thorne, Carol Hill.

These girls have worked hard and deserve the crests that go along with the cards that they have received.

Veteran's Club Of Huntingdon Unique Group

After the termination of World War II, the Huntingdon Veteran's Club came into being with Norrie Thomallson as president and Bob Reid as secretary - treasurer. Reg Hagerman was the originator and founder of this unique club, the second only of its kind in Canada at that time. The other organization is located in the Niagara peninsula.

The object of the club is to raise money for needy veterans of both World Wars. Money was accumulated by the sponsoring dances and card parties in the Ivanhoe town hall and approximately $2,000 has been given to charitable organizations, veterans, and other worthwhile community endeavors throughout the years.

Meetings are held once a month during the autumn and winter months at the homes of the veterans, at the initial installation of the club, meetings were held in the town hall, but found it more convenient to meet in the members' homes.

Counsel Madge Martin has been instrumental in serving a number of delectable dinners for the club at various times. She herself was a member of the armed forces.

MANY HIGHLIGHTS

Gratitude is also extended to Jessie French who has served faithfully in the dry canteen during dance nights and to Mollie Haggerty, who dedicated her time and talent as pianist before the time of paid orchestras.

This year there were a number of highlights in the club. A dinner was held at the home of Madge Martin and a surprise token of appreciation for first world war veterans to commemorate Verna Yorke and Vincent Ridge sponsored by Comrade Bill Reynolds at the home of Harry and Pearl Lovibond on April 3.

President for a number of years, Don McFadden and his wife Pat were at the head table. Grace was sung and Harry Lovibond proposed a toast to the Queen. After the report, Don McFadden proposed a toast to the veterans of World War I and all first war veterans responded with well chosen words.

Second World War veterans added their tributes to the president and the remainder of the evening was spent in memory chit-chat and playing cards.

Those present at the meeting were Don and Pat McFadden, Will and Jessie French, Reg. and Mollie Haggerty, Charley and Tilly Martin, Eric and Edith Omerod, Leo Covey, Madge Martin, Ross Peekers, Tommy Swift, Arthur Hagerman, Bill Reynolds, Harry and Pearl Lovibond, and Bart McFadden Jr., the only non-veteran member. Veteran Bert Post, who is in hospital, was unable to attend.

Local History Outlined In New Weekly Feature

This week, and coming weeks, a series of articles will be published in the Thursday editions of The Ontario Intelligencer under "Our Architectural Heritage", covering a period of 80 years of our city's history of houses from 1800 to 1880.

Following are four reasons why the issue of articles have been submitted by the Belleville Branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada and the Hastings County Historical Society.

1. To satisfy the curiosity about our old buildings sparked by the book "The Ancestral Roof" which has become a local best-seller, but which almost completely ignored Hastings County.

2. To correct the misconceptions and legends which have arisen about every run-down structure in town, by presenting well researched articles checked for accuracy by historical and architectural detail by experts from the Community Planning Association and the Historical Society.

3. To assist the efforts of local organizations to promote tourism by cataloguing and pointing out local buildings of historical interest to visitors.

4. To satisfy the public interest in history inspired by nation-wide preparations for our Centennial in 1967.

C.G.A.'s OFFER $250.00 TO GRADE 13 STUDENT

Mr. Stewart S. Hoard C.G.A., Chairman of the Belleville Chapter of the Certified General Accountants Association, announced today that it would conduct two one-hour examinations in English and Mathematics on the morning of Saturday, April 25, 1964.

Entrance to these competitive examinations is free to all Grade 13 students. The top student will receive an award of $250.00. In addition to this Provincial Award, a local award of $50.00 will go to the top area student.

These two subjects of prime importance to Accountants were chosen because a student who can both calculate and communicate has excellent grounding for any vocation.

Mr. Stewart Hoard said, "We Certified General Accountants hope these awards will assist deserving students".

EUGENE HAROLD MOYNES
Port Hope

Eugene Harold Moynes, of 39 King Street, Port Hope, Ont., died suddenly in that town on Tuesday. He was in his 58th year.

Born in Oak Hill he was the son of Mrs. Ida Elizabeth and the late Earl Maynes. He had lived in Port Hope for the past two years, previous to that at Hastings, Ont.

He was employed by the Ontario Hydro as a meter and transformer station for that company at Port Hope. He was a member of the Port Hope United Church, and of Hastings Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 633.

Surviving besides his mother, are his wife, the former Jean Hutchison; daughter Valerie, two years, and two sons, Garry, four years, and Robbie, two years.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. William (Helen) Brohm, of Peterborough, and four brothers: Gordon of Trenton, Bernard of Bancroft, and Elgin and Malcolm, both of Belleville.

Funeral service will be held from the chapel of the Grant Funeral Home, 68 North Front Street.

EDWARD CLARENCE BELL
R. R. 1, Corbyville

In his 26th year, Edward Clarence (Ed) Bell died suddenly at his home, R. R. 1, Corbyville, on Thurlow township's fourth concession, last night.

He was an electrician, currently employed by contractors at the Dupont Plant, Kingston. Born in Marmora, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bell, also of this city, he had lived in Belleville and Marmora before moving to Thurlow a year ago.

He is survived by his wife, Frances Yvonne Curlette, son Mark, 19 months and three-months-old Brian, of the home, and two brothers, Donald, Belleville, and Gordon of Prescott.

Resting at the Cole Bros. Funeral Home. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere.

CLEVELAND B. CLAPP
Cousin of Park Michigan

Cleveland B. Clapp, 70, of 4034 Sun Avenue, Comstock Park, Michigan, died Thursday in Blodgett Memorial Hospital of injuries sustained in an auto collision on March 27.

Born in Thurlow township, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Clapp. Mr. Clapp went to Michigan State 60 years ago. He was a member Comstock Park Congregational Church.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Lena Pulver of Prince Edward county; two daughters: Mrs. Howard Aurs (Phyllis) of Cedar Springs, Michigan, and Mrs. David Bonser (Hazel) of Spencer, Iowa; four sons, Oscar of Coopersville, Michigan, Gerald of Comstock Park, Lloyd of Corpus Cristi, Texas, and Merle of Austin, Texas; one sister, Mrs. George Bean of Belleville, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Doriadell Clapp, Belleville; 22 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Saturday from the Van Strien Alman Mortuary, with Dr. Ralph J. Watt officiating. Burial was in Englishville cemetery, Michigan.

Lease Renewal For Shire Hall To Be Studied

Hastings county council has no other foreseeable use for the old country registry office building on Church Street but it will further consider a request of the county historical society before another year lease is given the county museum.

The present lease runs out in 1965 and a renewal of the five-year lease would extend to 1971.

In making the request for a lease renewal, the county historical society noted this would allow carrying out of needed repairs, including new electric wiring for the building.

"I don't know of any other use for the building at the moment", stated Warden Tom Burnside as he asked that the matter be further considered, "but a further five-year lease would extend into 1971".

Councillors accepted an invitation to visit the county museum this (Wednesday) afternoon when they will be shown pictures and other museum pieces relating to early life in the county.

Members Attend Meeting of Navy League

TRENTON — Members of the RCSCC Trent attended the annual meeting for the Ontario Division of the Navy League of Canada in Toronto last weekend.

At a dinner meeting Friday evening Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton was presented with his honorary certificate for loyal and outstanding service to the Trenton branch of the League. Since the Mayor was unable to be present because of pressing civic responsibilities Miss Marjorie Goddard received the award on his behalf.

The League expressed appreciation to Vice Admiral E. R. Mainguy OBE, CD, RCN (R) for his service as president of the Ontario division. Word that he and Mrs. Mainguy will be leaving soon to take up residence on the west coast was received with regret.

An announcement that Capt. F. R. Rose, RCN(R) had been appointed the League's new president followed.

Friday afternoon the League's provincial women's division gathered at the University Women's Club when 20 Auxiliaries were represented and annual reports were heard and elections held.

When the awards were handed out the general proficiency honor for the province's women's division went to Sudbury RCSCC Admiral Mountbatten. Mrs. A. Mountbatten Kingston was elected vice president for eastern division.

Those attending from the Trenton auxiliary were: Mrs. Vera Milligan, Mrs. Jean Paro and Mrs. Ann Mountbatten. Lieut. G. M. Paro represented the RCSCC Trent.

IN MEMORIAM

SPOTTING — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away April 8, 1962.
Though fair and handsome he was not vain
But was a man to whom we could look up
Of God we know he is loved so much
His memory is dear to us
With wisdom and kindness he was blessed
God has him in His keeping
We have Him in our memory
—Always remembered,
Pearl, Don and Patsy.

BARNHART — In loving memory of Jason M. Barnhart our dear father who passed away April 8, 1962.
We cannot count the years we've missed you
But we count them by our aching hearts
For the days you've been gone
Are very hard to find.
Sadly missed by his daughter Florence and son Robert, Conrad and David and grandchildren.

BARRIAGE — In loving memory of our dear brother, James Barriage, who passed away April 8th, 1960.
What we would give if we could say
Hello Jim, in the same old way,
To hear his voice, see his smile,
To sit with him and chat awhile,
To have him here a brother dear
Cherish him with care,
But you never know the heartache
Till you
Lose his sweet chair.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by his sister Jane Bonnerworker, brother-in-law Kenneth, niece-in-law Rose and nephew Jack.

ALFORD — In loving memory of our dear sister Ida (Colleen) who passed away April 8, 1961.
Sweet smile, never a frown,
Always a hand when one was down
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by her husband Jack.

ALFORD — In loving memory of our dear wife Ida (Colleen) who passed away April 8, 1961.
Always a smile, never a frown,
Always a hand when one was down
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by her husband Jack.

BARNHART — In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away April 8, 1962.
Looking back with memories,
Upon the days we've had,
We bless the hours we had with you,
And
And leave the rest with God.
Lovingly remembered by wife Lillian.

BARNHART — In loving memory of my dear father Jason M. Barnhart who passed away April 8, 1962.
Dear God forgive a silent tear,
A farewell with our Dad was here,
There are others, yes, by the dozen,
But he was ours, we loved him so,
Dear Dad, life's a memory,
To our father in heaven above,
Tho' he left us with heart aches,
And give him all our love.
Sadly remembered by his daughter Marie and son-in-law Ray and grandson Chuck.

JONES — In ever loving memory of our dear father, Arthur, who passed away April 8th, 1963.
Gone from our home, gone from our sight,
Away from sorrow, care and pain,
May your rest be peace, dear father,
Until we meet again.
Ever remembered by daughter Grace and son-in-law Jim.

Strike Averted As Agreement Is Reached

TRENTON — Agreement reached after a conciliation meeting has averted a strike by Trenton Public Utilities employees. This meeting, rescheduled for April 1st, had been postponed until the meeting of yesterday. This morning, P.U.C. members and members of Local 2065 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, had agreed on a satisfactory wage agreement brought down from the conciliation meeting.

The last modification in the proposals provided that instead of the six cents per hour retroactive pay, for hours worked from Sept. 1st to April 1st, employees will receive a flat $100 in addition to the six cents per hour.

Included in the two-year agreement are clauses covering the bargaining unit, overtime, shift differential payments, standby and call-out pay and named holidays.

Seaway Now Open for Navigation

MONTREAL (CP)—The westbound freighter Totem Star entered the St. Lambert lock at 8 a.m. today, marking the start of the 1964 season of the St. Lawrence Seaway in history.

The 12,326-ton ship, registered in Nassau and commanded by Capt. C. Barney, will sail on to Duluth, Minn.

Four other vessels have taken positions behind the Totem Star and 23 ships are lined up at the Iroquois lock near Prescott waiting for the locks to open at the other end of the inland waterway.

The seaway has opened near the middle of April in the past. This season it was to open April 10 because of the unusually mild winter. But the opening date was further advanced today.

$40,735 Operating Surplus Good News for Councillors

Hastings County ended the year 1963 with an operating surplus of $40,735 and now has an accumulated surplus of approximately $60,000.

This was the cheering news heard by councillors Tuesday afternoon prior to the ward heads going into caucus to consider estimates for the 1964 tax year.

The April session of council will see the county militrate set for the year while it will also adopt to county equalization to apply for next year.

Last year's county expenditures totalled $1,231,128 members of council were told.

The above figures were given to council by the auditor in presenting his report for last years' county operation. The auditor's yrinted report for council distribution has however not yet been received from the printer

ASSESSMENT INCREASES

County Assessor Cecil Geen told council that the total county assessment was $21,856,633, an increase of $600,834 over the year previous despite the loss of about $300,000 in assessment in Sidney township as result of annexation by Trenton.

The assessment value of farm and waste land in the county is 35 per cent of the total or $11,132,961, residential, 36 per cent or $11,501,065; professional industrial and commercial, 25 per cent, or $7,947,464, and vacation 4 per cent or $1,275,145.

Assessment figures showed a decrease in five municipalities but with the exception of the village of Deloro the decreases were very small.

At Deloro industrial buildings continue to be demolished resulting in the loss of assessment.

POPULATION DOWN

The population of the county was given as 62,510, a drop of approximately 400 from 1962. This drop resulted mainly from annexation of a portion of Sidney township by the town of Trenton.

Various properties assessment makes for a big share of the total in several of the northern townships. In Hungerford township vaction assessment (mainly cottages) amounts to 43 per cent of the municipality's total while in Bangor the ratio is 45.3 per cent.

In Sidney the percentage is 40.7 in Wallaston, 29.8 per cent in Tudor and Cashel 26.3 percent.

The equalized assessment for the various county municipalities as recommended by the county assessor for 1965 is as follows:

Sidney	5,575,000.
Thurlow	6,327,100.
Tyendinaga	2,120,700.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment

(Note - Another of a series of the history of the regiment which will receive its new regimental color here May 17th with the Hon. Earl Rowe, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario officiating at the ceremony).

By 1937 the regiment had attained a status of well nigh peak of militia efficiency.

In 1936 it won first place and the Challenge Cup in the Canadian Infantry Championship competition for M. D. 3 for non-central located units. The regiment also won the C.I.F. signal competition for all units in Military District Number 3.

On March 20th, 1937 Lieut. Colonel E. A. Adams relinquished command and was succeeded by Lieut. Colonel J. G. Donnan. Captains E. T. Naylor and James Imrie were promoted to the rank of major.

The same year the unit participated at full strength in Picton to commemorate the coronation of His Majesty King George VIth.

Two members of the regiment Lieut. Reg. Abraham and the late Lieut. Cecil Duffy had proceeded overseas for the coronation. CSM Duffy by popular vote was named as official representative of the unit.

In 1939 the regiment again paraded at full strength in Kingston to pay honor to the King and Queen during their visit there.

On September 10, 1939, the Canadian government declared a state of war existed between Canada and Germany in support of the Dominion to the Empire.

Immediately following certain permanent force units were mobilized for essential guard duty.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, chafing under the bit, was forgotten so as we thought at the time," Col. Donnan wrote in his memoirs.

"Our angry enquiries were thrown at M.D. 3, and at NDHQ in Ottawa, and the answer was always the same, 'Keep your shirts on—your time is coming'."

Came the big day at last and Lieut.-Col. Sherman Young, commanding officer, was ordered to submit a slate of officers and recruit to war establishment to form a unit of the First Canadian Division.

Headquarters was set up at Picton. Recruiting centres were established from Deseronto to Bowmanville and from Picton to Napanee.

FLOCKED TO COLORS

The future "plowboys" flocked to the colors. By the very short time the regiment had recruited some 800 all ranks.

Training was carried out at the Fair Grounds, Picton until Christmas, 1939, when the regiment was ordered to proceed overseas.

Picton was left in two trains for Halifax, the port of embarkation and sailed for overseas on the September 23rd on the troopship "Ormonde."

The regimental depot at Picton remained under command of Major E. T. Naylor with Major G. T. Walmsley, adjutant, and Major C. F. Hepburn, quartermaster.

Also at the depot were 250 NCO's, clerks and other ranks who remained in a recruiting capacity. As a result large numbers of all ranks were recruited and fed into reinforcement units overseas.

In passing it might be noted that if it were not for the untiring efforts and energy of a regimental scouting party, a noble stag would now be the regimental mascot instead of the "Indian."

While in Picton the regiment had considered the possibility of adopting a mascot. Its official badge was a stag and a party of scouts from Bancroft was detailed to capture one.

The scouts, a majority species and let go a barrage of ".303" fire. The bullets practically "deafened" the noble animal, so they decided to eat the meat — and abandon the mascot idea.

Then one day someone pointed out a lonely Red Man who stood guard atop a Picton canning factory.

He seemed to represent the spirit the regiment hoped to unfold, "Calm, Brave, Steadfast and True," so "acquired and adopted as the mascot and became a symbol or fetish. They called him "Little Chief."

He was given a rank and number and his spirit so impressed the officers who stood guard at the second battalion headquarters in the armories here . . . G.H.C.

Municipal Board Disallows Minimum Lot Sizes Bylaw

Ontario Municipal Board officials yesterday disallowed a proposed Belleville bylaw to establish minimum lot sizes for buildings other that single family houses in the old part of the city. The proposed bylaw was opposed, during the hearing in City Council Chamber yesterday, by lawyer Gerald Joyce and Donald Whalen, and by lawyer G. R. Cameron. Speaking in favor of the bylaw was city solicitor E. Guss Porter and planning director F. J. Beavis.

Under a bylaw passed during 1954, the area restrictions within the old part of the city apply to single family detached houses, which cannot be built on a lot with less than 40 feet of street frontage.

The proposed bylaw would have retained this provision, but would have set minimum limits of 50 feet of frontage for two-to-three-family housing and 80 feet for three-to-more-family housing, where such housing is permitted by zoning regulations. Other permitted uses of land were to be restricted to minimum frontages of 55 feet. Present uses of land would not have been affected by the bylaw.

MISUNDERSTANDINGS

Misunderstandings were the basis of the objections raised to the proposed bylaw. Mr. Whalen presented a letter to the board from the Y.M.C.A. requirement that single family detached dwellings in "P" zoned areas would require 50 feet of frontage, while the same house in a "R" zone would require only 40 feet of frontage. His argument collapsed when the Y.M.C.A. decided to move to Bridge Street, said Mr. Beavis decided there was no such requirement in the zoning bylaw.

The same decision removed one of realtor Gerald Joyce's objections. Builders Charles Lambert and Maurice Rollins, sitting in on the hearing, did not present their arguments after this point was settled.

Realtor Gerald Joyce, however, raised a point out that the proposed by-law made no provision for six-plex developments. More than one dozen six-plexes have been built in Belleville during the past two years, he said, most of them in park-like layouts, including several savings, which could not have been built under the proposed by-law.

Mr. Joyce illustrated his point with a description of one such six-plex development, in which he has a personal interest. "The development," he said, "includes five buildings on two acres of land—but with only 200 feet of street frontage. "He suggested that regulations should consider lot area as well as lot frontage in establishing required lot sizes.

Verbally disapproving the proposed by-law, D. Jamieson and J. V. Lisdale of the OMB, agreed with Mr. Joyce that lot area as well as frontage should be considered and commented that the proposed by-law, in the form proposed, did not make its meaning clear. They also commented that large frontages might not be required in commercial areas.

Written confirmation of the decision will be sent the city later, by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Kiwanians Told Port Contributes To Economy

"Talking to you is like bringing coals to Newcastle as far as Belleville's harbor commission long before we were in Toronto," said John Bell, deputy property manager of the Toronto Harbor Commission, as he addressed a regular dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club here on Tuesday.

Mr. Bell told them "you did not go through a day that you do not use something that has been imported by ship." He said a port contributes to the economy of an area, in describing the purpose and functions of a port.

The speaker said that in 1962-63 he was contributed to the economy of Toronto for every tonnage of general cargo which passed through the Toronto port. He continued that last year the city collected $2,500,000 in taxes from the area dollars in taxes from the area tributary to the port's jurisdiction.

DESCRIBES EQUIPMENT

Mr. Ridley described some of the machinery equipment used in a port which he said offered more facilities than most of the seaway ports. He stated that "Canadian ports were equal of and superior to the facilities offered by the American seaboard and gulf ports."

Mr. Dridley stated that the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway contributed to the increase of Great Lakes vessels during the seaway's 225-day season.

In closing the speaker outlined the many facilities offered the Toronto port.

The speaker was introduced by vice-president B. Bradley and thanked on behalf of the members by Kiwanian J. Allan.

Sales and Ad Club to Hear Real Caouette

The stormy petrel of Canadian politics will speak in Belleville two weeks from now.

Real Caouette, leader of the Ralliement Creditiste, will address the Belleville Sales and Ad Club and its next regular monthly meeting April 21.

Club program chairman, Don Boyle, said today Mr. Caouette has confirmed his attendance as guest speaker at the dinner in Columbus Hall.

Bata Company Offers Site For Technology Institute

The Trenton - Belleville area will be "high on the list" as a site for construction of an institute of technology, when the Ontario Dept. of Education decides to expand its program beyond the program already committed.

This was told to Hastings county council members this morning by Norman Rabel, reeve of Frankford, chairman of a special committee appointed to investigate the possibility of such a school in this area.

Mr. Rabel reported on meetings which his committee had with Department of Education officials in February of this year.

A high department official was quoted as being very sympathetic to this area as a location for such a school, and Mr. Rabel said that the premiers interest on the part of municipal and industrial officials, together with the fact that a number of land would be available for a site would improve the position of this area in competing with other municipalities.

Mr. Rabel said that the Bata Shoe Company of Trenton, Canada Bata, was prepared to donate land in the Batawa area as a site for the proposed school.

Mr. Rabel said that approximately 17 other municipalities, including Belleville and Kingston, had made representations to have vocational centres established in their localities.

Sidney Reeve Gerald Irvine, who with Warden Burnside, is a member of the special committee, said, however, that no consideration of the committee was to get approval for a school "in the area" to locate on some 50 acres on the exact site.

He said he felt the department "would back us up" in the choice of this area as a location for a technical high school might induce the location of more industry in the area.

Mr. Rabel said his committee had accomplished all that was possible under the circumstances and was hopeful of convincing the Department of Education that this area should be first on the list when additional technological schools were constructed.

Hastings county may be called on to provide up to $100,000 this year for its share of preliminary work and fees in connection with construction of the new $7,000,000 extension to Belleville General Hospital.

Marmora Reeve, William A. Shannon, chairman of a special county hospital committee, today told county council that hopes were that actual contracts for the new extension would be entered into before the year is out, and that up to $500,000 could be expended this year.

This amount about $200,000 might be paid out of hospital reserves, with $200,000 to be provided by the county and $100,000 as the county's share.

The county of Hastings as part owner of the hospital is obligated to pay 35 per cent of overall construction costs not covered by government grants or other moneys.

Mr. Shannon said hospital building plans were nearly ready for close to completion and it was hoped that detailed drawings would start at an early date.

Included in the terms of reference for the hospital committee is discussion as to whether or not voluntary gifts and donations might be obtained to assist in equipping the new building, and if so, to suggest ways and means by which these might become available.

WANTS HATE BAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress urged the government Tuesday to enact legislation that would stamp out "hate propaganda" of the type that incites violence against racial or ethnic groups. It also called for legislation that would require the authors, publishers, distributors and printers of any printed matter sent through the mail to identify themselves clearly in print.

County Supports Protest Against Rail Shutdowns North of Maynooth Area

The Canadian National Railways will make application at the Board of Transport for abandonment of 28 miles of track running north from Maynooth to the hamlet of Wallace.

And similar applications are expected for the two lines now running from Ormsby Junction and from Detior to Bessemer.

Hastings county councillors meeting today through a letter of protest from the village of Bancroft objecting to the proposed abandonment of the Maynooth line.

County council will lend its support to the Bancroft area to have the line north of Maynooth continued.

Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine told council that abandonment of the railway line south of Maynooth would have an adverse effect on the North Hastings area as in many instances it would make shipment of pulp wood more difficult.

FEARS ISOLATION

Mr. McAlpine said if the line north of Maynooth was allowed to be abandoned, rumor was that many of the mills up there would be a further application to abandon the CNR line north of Marmora.

"This would completely isolate the Bancroft area from railway service," he said.

There was considerable discussion on the matter with several councillors claiming farmers depended to a large extent on the railway for shipment of pulpwood.

Others however felt differently about the matter and would that trucks to a large extent had captured the pulp transportation business from the north end of the county.

In fact, it was pointed out, certain pulp wood buying mills at Trenton required that delivries of pulp be made by trucks.

ALL WENT BY TRUCK

Reason for this was that truck deliveries were not only more economical but eliminated the necessity of double handling as would be the case if shipped by railway.

Reeve Verse McMurray said that 25,000 cords of pulpwood were shipped out of the Gilmour area last year and all of it went by truck, while the same was true of the largest percentage of lumber.

"We are helping to pay for the maintenance of a railway we do not use," he said. "Would not be fair that in your own business?"

Mr. McMurray felt that more could be accomplished by a county committee sitting down with railway officials to discuss what services might be available to the railways.

Reeve McAlpine said the Bancroft protest was aimed solely at delaying abandonment of the Maynooth line, which he said would eventually take place.

"It was only by having railway services available that new industry might be attracted to the area," he said.

Architectural Conservancy Committee Comes Into Being

At the regular monthly meeting of the Historical Society an Architectural Conservancy Committee was officially formed. It will start to make an inventory of buildings in the city and county that are worth preserving. Whole streets or districts may in some cases be recommended for preservation; but in other cases it will be single buildings that is the important feature.

The inventory list is needed before particular preservation projects can be wisely planned. The list must represent authoritative opinion to gain legislative support.

An enthusiastic committee has been gradually forming and is already at work. Chairman is Mr. F. S. Salmon, and members so far are M. P. Wiegand, M. F. Bowers, Mrs. G. D. Williamson, Mrs. Gordon Bell and Mrs. Boyce.

The inventory should classify buildings as worth preserving (a) because they are architecturally excellent (they need not be old), (b) because they represent a certain type, or (c) because they have historical associations.

The inventory should specify the buildings must be preserved intact...which could be modernized in part without destroying their value, and those which may be demolished but should be recorded.

Mr. Salmon stressed the importance of a well-informed public. "It is best," he said, "that in all the homes be kept, as by sympathetic and knowledgeable owners on its original site. Demolition only for reconstruction has a limited value."

MUST FIND USE

A use must be found for any building preserved.

A new series of historical walking tours will commence this Tuesday, April 12. After seeing a few slides at the Museum at 2 p.m. the group will go to Victoria Hall for footlights; up Catherine St. to Yeomans, Charwin St. to, on the route, and Highland Ave. The group will stop for coffee at Moodie Cottage, then return up Bridge and Catherine St. about 4 p.m.

On April 9, 16, and 23 at the Library at 7.30 will be shown a series of films based on Lewis Mumford's book, "The City in History". These are sponsored by the CPAC, but should be of interest to the public. Mr. Mumford's book, should Jane Jacobs' book, condensed in the April Reader's Digest.

The Architectural Conservancy Committee would appreciate hearing from special and all concerning the buildings of Hastings County, existing or demolished, plans, descriptions, reminiscences, photographs, pieces of woodwork or fragments of stone or plaster all are useful.

Particularly wanted are pattern, drawings, or builders' books, that the local builders got their ideas from. Designs from. Whether as a loan or a gift to the Museum this material will be kept safe and exhibition to be shown in May, and will contribute greatly to the better understanding of the architecture that remains.

Will Revise Budget

A special meeting of Belleville city council has been called Thursday afternoon to receive the auditor's report for 1963, and to consider budget estimates for 1964.

Council will convene at 2.00 p.m. to receive the auditor's report, following which it will go into caucus to consider estimates for the current year.

Mayor Jack R. Ellis said today he expected there would be a full session before he had last year's estimates before they were brought into council for approval at the regular meeting of council on Monday evening.

This Bill Should Pass

Private bills generally get short shrift in the House of Commons. Many of them deserve just that. A better fate is essential for a bill introduced by Robert Temple, M.P. for Hastings South. This bill would provide for an automatic commutation of a death sentence where a court of appeal is not unanimous in confirming the conviction.

"The principle underlying this bill is so sensible and so just that the bill, even though it is privately presented, should command the support of the House and be passed into law," comments the Toronto Globe and Mail. To this we can only add that if some members prevent it its passing for some strange reason, the bill ought to be adopted by the Government, which Mr. Temple supports, and thus assured of fuller consideration than that accorded private bills. There can be little doubt but that it will recommend itself to the great majority of members of all parties.

As the situation is today, a man on trial for his life cannot be convicted unless all twelve jurors agree. Yet, while requiring this unanimity amongst men who are not expert in law or evidence, we now permit a man to go to the gallows in cases where an expert disagrees with the conviction. A bare majority is all that is required to uphold a conviction, and a death sentence, when the case goes to a higher court and is considered by the judges of a provincial appeal court or the Supreme Court of Canada. All Mr. Temple asks in his bill is that in cases where the judges of the appeal court are not unanimous in upholding the conviction, the sentence shall be commuted and the accused shall not be hanged. If a judge's doubts are not valid grounds for a commutation of sentence, what would be? The Globe and Mail was on solid grounds when it termed Mr. Temple's bill "eminently reasonable."

A Great Soldier Dies

The death of General Douglas MacArthur will awake many memories in those over thirty.

He was not just another Second Great War military leader, but the man who determined the pattern for the war against the Japanese.

The war in the European theatre was planned by many minds, English and Russian as well as American, and U.S. influence originated to a large degree in Washington. General Eisenhower, although supreme commander for the invasion of Europe, played a much different role from that of MacArthur in the Pacific, at least in the public's eye.

MacArthur was a flamboyant character, a military man with an actor's eye for the picturesque and a keen sense of the value of publicity which would have done justice to a Madison Avenue executive. He not only commanded the forces in the field, but in the Pacific he played much the same role as did Churchill in the war in Europe, combining stubbornness and determination with just the touch of arrogance necessary to lift the hearts of his comrades in the dark days of continual defeats.

Whether rightly or wrongly, the public always considered that MacArthur set the pattern for the strategy followed, even on the seas where Admirals Nimitz and Halsey managed to give the hard-pressed Americans their first sweet taste of victories over the Japanese.

MacArthur's island-hoping tactics, in retrospect, may appear no more than ordinary common-sense, but at the time there were those who had misgivings about carrying the war ever closer to the foe's home base while leaving behind entrenched garrisons of the enemy on many scattered islands.

When victory came, MacArthur displayed another facet of his character in his conduct of the occupation of Japan. An Indian source has described him as one of the few great generals who also proved himself a great administrator, but it was more than mere efficiency which won the Japanese co-operation in the transformation of their country from a military dictatorship under the Son of Heaven to a modern democracy. He won the trust of his defeated enemies.

To MacArthur's great credit, he resisted efforts to drag him into politics, beyond speaking at Republican presidential nomination conventions. His picture remained untarnished. Died of a soldier magnanimous in victory and stubbornly unyielding in defeat. He was one of the men who saved the world twenty years ago.

Letter to the Editor

Need Tribune of People

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.
Re: Ombudsman — Tribune of the people.
Questions directed to me in a recent legal lecture series at the Y.M.C.A. concerning the function and possible place in our particular system of justice of an Ombudsman, prompt me once again to seek your indulgence in the matter of a letter to the editor.

In the Scandinavian states — Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden, — the Ombudsman is an officer directly appointed by the legislature whose duty it is to receive complaints from citizens who feel that they have been unjustly treated by any governmental body or official and to investigate the same, with wide powers of access to otherwise protected or secret information and with varying powers of redress. The essential weapon of the Ombudsman, of course is publicity, the effect of which in a democracy is normally a strong deterrent upon arrogance, bias, ignorance or simple error.

Such an officer has existed in Sweden since the year 1809.

Our sister Dominion of New Zealand created the Ombudsman in October, 1962.

This is a question concerning the relative power positions of the citizen and the state -- who is to effect the balance and how for whose benefit and how.

It is today common knowledge that our governments are continuing to create quasi administrative and quasi judicial tribunals, usually called into being to expedite the correction of some social or economic complaint.

At the present time there are estimated to be as many as 60 different tribunals, or such boards, commissions or tribunals.

Their personnel and power and area of activity are set forth in their enabling statutes, but in a large number of cases they bear remarkable similarities in that they are staffed by personnel holding office at the pleasure of the government of the day, they are required in no way to give reasons for the decisions, they lay down whatever procedure to them seems good, and only in rare cases may their decisions be reviewed by a regular court of justice.

Such holds a deaf frequently with the vital economic interests of the citizen. They can and they do both make and break men's livelihoods. They are staffed with human beings who can and must occasionally be wrong, who can and must share something of the prejudices of class, wealth, birth, religion, supreme commander for the invasion of Europe, played a much different role from that of MacArthur in the Pacific, at least in the public's eye.

Secondly we should be able to anticipate a better job from our legislators and to read legislation and not to spend their time listening to complaints of constituents and endeavoring to obtain relief for them from these same bodies. This occupies a tremendous amount of time of the normal elected member. That is his proper job in the present state in addition to his legislative function. It is submitted that the quality of both would be improved immensely.

The legislators might even have time to begin reforming the vast and excessive wild growth upon the luxuriant orchards of legislation which we now support.

The statutes of Ontario contain vast numbers of ancient laws which should be thoroughly reviewed and where necessary pensioned off or buried.

The legislator at the present time has little opportunity to consider legislation. He is too busy fighting government agencies and boards for his constituents.

In closing, may I suggest that we forget about filing the bills to this suggested important office—the word Ombudsman is difficult for us to pronounce and conveys nothing to us—by reference to the classical function of the tribunes of the people in Rome, namely to protect them from the despotism of the Senate and the Consuls.

May I respectfully suggest that a suitable name might be "The Tribune of the People."

The vast growing power of the State, its increasing daily involvement in our activities and the proliferation of governmental tribunals, all point in the right direction.

Kenneth G. M. Ross.

Immigrant from Italy with little command of English. A biased investigator of the Workmen's Compensation Board who doesn't like Italians or immigrants, in a secret report suggests that you are malingering and the Board turns you down. You never see the report. You can't cross-examine the investigator. You don't even know why you were refused benefits. You consult your lawyer and he must tell you that that is the end of the road and that the courts are powerless to interfere, see when you bring him an affidavit sworn by your doctor that you have a real injury! This is now the law and can be paralleled in hundreds of instances in many administrative tribunals.

• • • • •

I am not concerned here with the legitimacy of the function of these tribunals which is an entirely separate consideration, but with the manner of their function and their vast and growing power, over the freedom of the individual.

It is to be hoped that a public now thoroughly aroused by this recent attempt to introduce police state legislation into this Province, during a session which, that the disease, may now demand a thorough review of the laws of this Province and indeed all relevant Dominion legislation.

It is submitted that the electorate should insist to their elected representatives upon the enactment of legislation which will up an office similar to that of Ombudsman and further re-establishing the traditional function of the Supreme Court of Ontario to perform its ancient and honorable function in the review of all quasi judicial and administrative bodies, persons and offices to see that at least the parties concerned have a fair hearing, that a proper judgment is given and that the evidence may reasonably be regarded as supporting the decision made.

This adage should be called to mind today in our province. Out of good motives, to meet recognized needs, we are in fact today creating a series of governmental and bureaucratic tranhumeists. Before they devour our few remaining freedoms—while we can still identify the monsters—let us then intelligently to perform their proper function—that is to say,

Certainly two immediate benefits may be anticipated. The first and the important one of these is the definite deterrent effect upon those who would be petty tyrants, those holding petty bureaucratic offices and right down to the level of municipal investigators, inspectors, licensers, etc., etc. The pettier the official, the bigger the tyrant.

Secondly we should be able to anticipate a better job from our legislators and to read legislation and not to spend their time listening to complaints of constituents and endeavoring to obtain relief for them from these same bodies. This occupies a tremendous amount of time of the normal elected member. That is his proper job in the present state in addition to his legislative function. It is submitted that the quality of both would be improved immensely.

The legislators might even have time to begin reforming the vast and excessive wild growth upon the luxuriant orchards of legislation which we now support.

The statutes of Ontario contain vast numbers of ancient laws which should be thoroughly reviewed and where necessary pensioned off or buried.

The legislator at the present time has little opportunity to consider legislation. He is too busy fighting government agencies and boards for his constituents.

In closing, may I suggest that we forget about filing the bills to this suggested important office—the word Ombudsman is difficult for us to pronounce and conveys nothing to us—by reference to the classical function of the tribunes of the people in Rome, namely to protect them from the despotism of the Senate and the Consuls.

May I respectfully suggest that a suitable name might be "The Tribune of the People."

The vast growing power of the State, its increasing daily involvement in our activities and the proliferation of governmental tribunals, all point in the right direction.

Kenneth G. M. Ross.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 8th, 1944.

Local music lovers attending the band concert in Bridge Street United Church, Sunday evening were unanimous in their commendation of the performance of the Belleville Municipal Band members, who staged the concert under the auspices of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Aided by an appropriate setting with accessories perfect, it was asserted the band band had never staged a finer performance.

Bridge Street United Church ladies' Chorus under the direction of Miss Leona Riggs was heard in two numbers rendered vocal numbers, "Ave Maria," and "Song of Liberty." Other special features of the concert were a cornet duet by Ronald Moorman and Cyril Smith and two piano numbers by Billy Grant and Gordon Post, playing the marimba and xylophone with band playing part light accompaniment.

Thirteen babies were born at the Belleville General Hospital during Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday there were twins and two single births. On Sunday there were twins and seven single births.

A very happy Sunday was spent by a large group of service men and women at the Y.M.C.A. under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club and another weekend was made much better for the young folks away from their homes in continuance of the "Y" Open House program. A delicious tea was served by the Kinsmen's ladies at five p.m. after an afternoon of small games and social activity.

Miss Patricia Poulter of Wooler is spending the Easter vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wooton of Catherine St. North.

Miss Betty Young, younger boys in connection with Bridge Street Church met at the church, corner of Bridge Street east, Tuesday evening and organized an Explorers Club. The following officers were elected: Wesley Semple, counsellor; Arthur Griffin, chief explorer; Douglas Leitch, sub-chief explorer; Douglas Robins, secretary; Dick Bonter, treasurer; George Stobie, No. 1 explorer. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Semple delighted the boys by serving refreshments in abundance.

Miss Edna Wheeler has returned home from Toronto where she spent two weeks with friends.

W. A. C. Wetr, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, and Mrs. Weir, left yesterday after spending two months in Nassau and Florida.

Baseball is here again. Yesterday afternoon saw the first game of the season here when the Juniors of the high school, "IA" and "IB" met in a fast but one-sided game, the former team winning by a score of six to one. Rose pitched a good game for the winners. The following composed the teams. "IA" — F. Rose, W. Rose, C. A. Jones, Cherry, C. McCuaig, M. Brant, P. O'Neil, and R. Houston. "IB" — F. Brodbeck, Redner, A. Neilmeyer, W. Deshane, Holmes and D. Donaldson. The umpire 'Piggy' Green handled the game well.

Strictly Personal

Not Always Expedient to 'Go by Book'

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the phrases the people interested in semantics are fond of repeating is this: "The map is not the territory." What this means is that the verbal and intellectual "maps" we often rely on do not represent reality.

I thought of this last week at the airport in Milwaukee. I was among a group passengers on our way from Chicago to Madison when our plane was grounded at Milwaukee for mechanical trouble.

We trooped to the desk of the airline and asked how long it would take us to our destination. One of the passengers, looking down the corridor, heard an announcement that a plane was about to take off for Madison.

He rushed back to inform the manager of our airline, and asked that we be transferred to it. "There can't be a plane leaving now," said the manager, "I looked at my schedule book, and it was due to leave here an hour ago."

"But did you inquire at the other airline?" asked the passenger. "They're only fifty feet down the corridor." "No, I did not," admitted the manager. "I went by the book."

Here we have classic (and literal) example of taking the map for the territory was reality for them. George Patton in his memoirs, "War As I Knew It," published after the Allied invasion of Europe, says:

"I visited the troops near Coutances," wrote Patton, "and found an armored division standing on a road, while its Headquarters, separated behind an adjacent wood, was deeply engrossed in the study of maps.

"I asked why they had not crossed the river. They told me they were making a study of it to find a suitable place where they could find a place where it could be forded. I asked what effort they had made to locate a ford, and was informed that they were studying the map for it.

"I then told them I had just waded across it, and it was not over two feet deep, and that the only defense I knew about any one machine gun which had fired very inaccurately at me . . . and asked them why in hell they had not gone down to the river personally. They missed the lesson and from then on were a very great division."

The point I want to make of this lesson. We "go by the book," while the reality before us sometimes contradicts the book. It was the wrong number, as he would have found if he had ever opened a horse's mouth and looked in.

Low-Cholesterol Diet A Diet Low in Animal Fat

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Has it been established whether eggs should not be eaten by a person on a low-cholesterol diet? — Mrs. S.

This cholesterol business is important, but it has to be considered in reasonable fashion.

Let me put it this way. In driving a car, we know that in many cases "speed kills" Just going slow doesn't necessarily mean safety. Many accidents are caused by the "safe" driver who self-righteously dawdles along at 15 miles an hour on an expressway designed for 60 miles an hour. Poking along is dangerous, too.

Well, that's how it is with cholesterol. Everybody has cholesterol in the blood. It is a useful, necessary material. (It is a fatty one.)

If you didn't have enough you would be in sad shape.

But if you have too much, that may be bad, too.

That's one part of the story.

Now another. You can't get all your cholesterol from cholesterol in your food. Your body manufactures cholesterol from other foods you eat. Rabbits, for example, eat vegetables, which are low in cholesterol. Yet their bodies take the grass, lettuce, carrots and so on and create cholesterol.

So now, how about eggs? They are high in cholesterol. So, at any rate, the yolks are. Yet only a small proportion of this cholesterol is absorbed by the body.

What you should worry about is your complete diet. If you are gaining weight, or if you are overweight and not losing, you ought to be worried about it — especially if you have a high blood cholesterol.

Spaghetti, or candy, or soft drinks, or peanut butter sandwiches or many other foods may not contain much cholesterol, but if you eat more of any kind of food than you need, the result will be high fat content in your system. Your body will convert some of this to cholesterol.

In short, I think it would be a good idea if people forgot all about cholesterol — if, that is, everybody would pay honest attention to total weight.

You can't eat enough of anything to get fat without having too much cholesterol as a result if you ate one of the people who has to control the cholesterol level.

A "low-cholesterol diet" is essentially a diet low in animal fat, and low in total calories. Trying to find "low cholesterol foods" doesn't do you a bit of good if you eat too much of them.

Eat eggs, drink milk, eat butter, and don't worry about cholesterol, provided you aren't overweight.

But if you are overweight, don't blame it on eggs or any other kind of food. Blame it on eating too much.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to eat the skin of an apple? Or to cook apples with the peeling on? Most of them probably were sprayed. — H. D.

Cooked or not it is safe to eat the skins except for special cases, such as when a person with an irritable colon who finds the roughness bothersome. As a rule, anything in a raw vegetables should always be washed before using, but that is all the precaution that is necessary.

Opening Shot Of New Program Is Success

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — An unmanned Project Gemini capsule rocketed into orbit today, scoring a resounding success for the United States on the opening shot of its second man-in-space program.

The flight marked a major milestone in the program and bolstered hopes that the first team of two Gemini astronauts will ride side by side into orbit late this year.

A second, more sophisticated unmanned shot scheduled in the summer will be a determining factor in reaching that goal.

The 29 U.S. astronauts and many key space officials observed today's critical firing.

A powerful Titan II rocket which, until today, was fired only in military weapons' tests, provided the thrust to hurl the two-seat spacecraft into orbit. It blasted away from its launching pad after a perfect count-down, at 11 a.m. on the 430,000 pounds of thrust generated by its first-stage engine and pitched over gradually on a southeast heading.

Its hypergolic fuels emitted a rose-colored glow at hot gases, instead of the tail of bright flame characteristic of most rockets.

You see it in the Red Brand beef steaks and hearty rib roasts that have the wasteful fat and bone trimmed away. You see it in the rich colour of the freshly ground beef that's not loaded with "drink-away" fat. You'll see it where it counts—in the meat you serve your family—in your budget too!

The EAT in the MEAT that A&P promises, starts long before you see it, however. It begins with A&P selections only from Canada's Federally inspected packers. They know "Super-Right's" strict quality standards for beef, pork, lamb, veal and poultry. And our buyers know that if every pound can't be guaranteed—it's not "Super-Right" quality.

The EAT in the MEAT comes only from constant care. That's why A&P maintains its own staff of experts—and under their watchful eye passes every pound of meat destined for your family. The care of "Super-Right" meat continues right up to the minute your purchase is made. You can count on "the eat in Super-Right meat" —and on A&P's money saving prices—because we care about YOU.

The EAT in the MEAT is guaranteed at A&P. The meat we sell must satisfy your family completely or your money will be refunded. All persons in your A&P meat department know this—and they are as determined as we to offer the best meat selection in town.

6th Sidney

6th SIDNEY — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rosh and children, of Stirling, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clare and boys, Thurlow, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wright, Ricky and Susan, Stirling, spent Sunday with Mrs. Morley Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sine and Mrs. Earl Sine, Detroit, who brought their mother, Mrs. Carrie Sine, home to be buried beside her husband, Mr. Dean Sine in Frankford (who predeceased her in 1913) remained for a few days and visited many old friends.

Unionvale 4-H Club girls held three successful days during Easter week with their headquarters in Scott's United Church hall with their leaders, Mrs. M. Sine and Mrs. M. Grills. Miss E. Spouse, home economist, visited them one day at their work. The project "Sleeping Garments" has been pretty well completed — about two more evening meetings should complete the project.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson Sine, Mostics and Elaine called on Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cherry, Belleville, on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Defoe, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Faul and Mr. and Mrs. Cayman Frost visited over the weekend in Newark, New Jersey, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McFaul.

For Summer - Gently Gliding Line
Curved by Ardanti

PRINTED PATTERN
M280 SIZES 8-18

An Ardanti Original

SUMMER'S MOST ELEGANT SHAPE IS GENTLY GLIDING, building up from a fitted waist to the climax of a cowl that buttons on or off. The fit of Printed Pattern M280 is fabulous thanks to seams that travel at angles in front and back. Note too, the way the bodice line continues into the cap sleeves. Choose a fabric with a firm hand — linen, shantung, heavy cotton, heavy spun or silk and worsted. This is one of those versatile dresses you can wear day or evening — an asset to any wardrobe.

Printed Pattern M280 is available in Misses' Size 8, 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send ONE DOLLAR for Printed Pattern M280 to THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, 60 FRONT STREET WEST, TORONTO 1, Pattern Department. Please print plainly your NAME, ADDRESS with STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Ontario residents add 3c sales tax.

Next Week — Watch for a Prominent Designer Pattern: A Radiant Original.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

THE STATUS THING

Does anyone read Thoreau nowadays? Books like many things go out of fashion, and we seldom see Thoreau quoted. But he said many things that are as timely today as they were in his day.

Thoreau was the man who went to live alone at Walden Pond, near Concord, Mass., a spot which is still a shrine to many of the American literati. There he reduced living to its simplest essentials.

He lived the life of a nonconformist and a rebel against society. Probably if Thoreau were alive today he would be written off as a crackpot or an oddball that the authorities should take care of.

His cry of "Simplify! Simplify!" sounds a little strange today in the race for possessions, prestige and status, where a man is judged, not by his worth as a man but for the size of his bank account, the car he drives and the address of his house. And by man I do not exclude women who are probably the ones who make their mates conscious of how he rates in the crowd they associate with or hope to associate with.

Snobbery takes many forms, but probably the best developed in our society is the one between the haves and the have-nots.

It is a little sad to see the most scrumable Social scientists that puts people into the hands of money lenders for years to enable them to keep up with their neighbors, or keep a step ahead of them. Most of their lives they spend competing for a place in society that, even if they reach it, they find to be an empty place, shallow, false and not worth the effort. We all like to live in comfort with the best that we can afford, it is when we can't afford things but still have them, that Thoreau's "simplify" sounds like good advice.

Somehow we have accepted the assumption that equates possessions with worth. If we stop to analyze this we must put things in their proper prospective, and realize that a person's value is not a matter of dollars and cents but of character, integrity, honesty of purpose, concern for others as well as himself, respect for himself and others.

FOR THE BIRDS

Every Canadian is glad to see the robins back in the spring, and I think this applies even to anyone with Scottish ancestry such as the terrier, Kiltie.

Sometimes though Kiltie has misgivings about robins. There is a real hooky one who comes every year to his place.

This robin is determined to build its nest under the dock that is pulled up on shore for the year, and not yet moved into the water. Of all places to build a nest this is probably the most hazardous as any prowling cat could walk up the braces underneath and eat the nesting mother or the young if they were allowed to hatch out.

Since it is just a matter of a month or so from the time of the robin's arrival until the dock is put in the water, the nest is pulled down each time it is started. But does this discourage this robin? On the contrary. With stupid determination it starts all over again, not realizing that its nest would be under water if left there.

This has been going on for a number of years but still that robin makes the same futile effort.

Another photo this robin has is the shiny hub caps of a car. It can see its reflection in the chrome, and it attacks it with neurotic frenzy until it is almost exhausted. Kiltie often watches as the silly bird flies at the wheel, then turns and hops away, looks back and again spreads its wings in a fighting stance and takes on the image in the hub cap again. Finally the hub caps get little peck marks on them and had to be covered to protect not only the robin but the chrome.

Yes, Kiltie has decided this robin is definitely a mixed-up bird.

Messengers Enjoy Scenic Travelogue

RAWDON — Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Church hall was the scene of a pleasant social evening sponsored by the Messenger group and their leaders Mrs. Raymond McConnell, Mrs. Clarence Scott and Mrs. Frank Spencer.

Approximately 30 adults and 30 messengers were in attendance. The children presented the program with Janet Scott as chairlady. Carolyn Merrick was pianist for the two Easter hymns. Brenda Campbell welcomed the adults. Judy McAdam and Linda Potts sang with Sally McAdam as accompanist. Brenda Campbell and Lorraine Jeffs rendered a piano duet. Jim Scott read an inspirational poem and Bonnie Williams rendered a piano solo. Carolyn Merrick and Nancy Johnson favored with a piano duet and Kenneth Coach contributed accordion music.

SCENIC VIEWS

Gordon Hoard introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne of Seymour circuit. He first told of a few of his experiences when he visited the Holy Land; also Italy, Egypt and Israel. He gave an interesting travelogue with movies beginning at Malton Airport and thence to Copenhagen, Denmark and a trip by boat through various countries. The scenes showed both modernes and primeval fountains, native costumes, date palm trees, rural scenes in Syria, refugee camps, modern automobiles and ancient modes of travel by horse and donkey, ruins of cathedrals, monasteries, bridges and other architectural buildings. The story of Palestine took the group to Damascus, Bethany, Jericho, the Dead Sea, Casarea, and Jaffa. All scenes gave a glimpse of the Bible stories.

Judy McAdam voiced thanks for the message and for the privilege to view these worthwhile pictures and Janet Spencer made the presentation of a small gift.

The recipient voiced thanks and praised the girls and boys for their fine program. Rev. W. G. Fletcher and Mrs. Raymond McConnell each expressed thanks.

The girls of the group served sandwiches, cookies and cake while the leaders served the beverages.

STUDY AIRPORT FEES

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hellyer (Georgetown) is a written Commons reply Monday that the matter of charges to be levied on private aircraft for use of facilities by the taxpayer is under continuing study. However, the fees applied to private aircraft landing fees with a three-per-cent tax on gasoline is not under immediate consideration.

WEDDINGS

COONEY—WICKENS

MINTO — A pretty spring wedding was solemnized in Salem United Church on Saturday, March 28, at twelve-thirty when Judith Eileen, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Wickens, became the bride of Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cooney of Stirling.

Easter lilies adorned the church and Rev. Mr. Fletcher of Stirling, assisted by Mr. I. Munroe of Salem Church, were the officiating clergymen. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Doug Faires of Stirling, and the soloist was Mrs. Ed Colden.

Given in marriage by her father the bride looked lovely in a street length gown of white nylon tricot over rayon taffeta with a trimming of brocade embroidery. Her shoulder length veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a cascade of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ed Geen of Tweed, sister of the bride, wore a knee length dress of blue rayon chiffon over taffeta with the waist bloused. Her headdress was a little white veil held with a flower. She wore white gloves and carried bouquet of sprayed blue 'mums to match her dress. The bridesmaid, Miss Joy Cooney, sister of the bridegroom, was attired in a pink knee length dress identical to the matron of honor and carried a bouquet of sprayed pink 'mums.

Junior bridesmaids Miss Cathy Wickens, sister of the bride, and Miss Barbara Jackson, were yellow nylon over taffeta dresses with dainty little white headdresses, white gloves and carried yellow and white 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Norman Cooney and the ushers were Mr. Ron Cooney and Mr. Bob Wickens.

Following the wedding ceremony Mr. I. Munroe on behalf of Salem congregation presented Mr. and Mrs. Cooney with a Bible.

The reception was held in the church hall with approximately 70 guests present. The U.C.W. ladies catered. The bride's mother received, wearing an aqua boucle suit dress with beige and brown accessories and a bronze corsage. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in a navy suit with navy and white accessories and a pink corsage.

The bride's table was decorated with pink and white streamers and candles, centred over taffeta with the waist bloused. Her headdress was a little white veil held with a flower. She wore white gloves and carried bouquet of sprayed blue 'mums to match her dress. Following the reception the guests were invited to the home of the bride where the gifts were displayed.

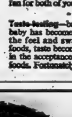
For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls the bride chose a pink two-piece ensemble with white accessories.

On their return the young couple will reside on their farm home at Sina.

Bringing Up Baby



HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GEIBER, MOTHER OF 9.

Frequent question that comes to the warm and wonderful Tot letters I get from mothers:

"Are you real, or just a makebelieve person? Well, I'm a very much alive, proud mother of five, and a seventeen-year-old grandson, too. We're a close and happy family and down to the last one of us, we think babies are the most wonderful things that can happen to people.

Mealtime menus: I loved feeding time with all my children. (And I still do when I feed my adorable grandchildren.) Somehow that's the time when we've had closest communication with your baby. Feeding time also gives you a welcome "breather" from the normal hectics of the day. Here's my member: if you're relaxed, baby will relax, and feeding will be more fun for both of you.

Taste-testing—baby style. Once baby has become accustomed to the feel and swallow of solid foods, (and becomes a big fan!) in the acceptance or rejection of foods. Fortunately Gerber makes so many good-tasting varieties of baby foods (over 30) you have plenty of alternates with equally nutritive values to choose from. In Gerber's strained food categories you will find enough variety to keep any baby happy—and well-nourished. For the more variety you offer baby, the more foods he will learn to like . . . the smoother home he'll show in his manner.

A change of taste is important when cereal is concerned, too. Try cutting Gerber Rice Cereal, Barley Cereal, Oatmeal Cereal, and Proteen Cereal when you help keep baby interested in the all-important baby basic. And why are these special cereals so important, from the nutritional standpoint, at this stage? Because they provide those extra calories and iron that are important 3½-minutes, Ps, Ps and niacin. All contribute to your baby's future well-being. Write Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

Mrs. Eva Weller will be "at home" to relatives, friends and neighbors at the home of her son Everett (Bus) Weller, Carrying Place, on Sunday, April 12th in honor of her 104th birthday from 2 to 7 p.m.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Franklin, 16 Cedar Street, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn Anne, to Mr. William Campbell McNeil of Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McNeil of Glasgow, Scotland, the wedding to take place Saturday, May 2nd in Memorial Chapel, Albert College, at 3.00 p.m.

Mrs. O. Hales graciously entertained the executive of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, in her home Tuesday evening, to plan a Maytime luncheon bridge.

Mrs. Herbert McCabe, 102 Chatham Street, left today for Calgary to be with her daughter (Jean) Mrs. Jack Buttin, who is undergoing major surgery. She was accompanied to Toronto by her daughters, Mrs. Max Maguire, Stirling, and Mrs. Charles Ford, 8 Second St., Belleville.

A.O.T.S. MEN'S CLUB

RAWDON — Rawdon charge A.O.T.S. Men's Club convened at Wellman's Orange hall on Thursday evening with 14 members and two guests in attendance. All enjoyed a pot-luck supper. Robert H. Hoard presided and Robert Merrick led the devotional period. William Heath gave the fellowship report and Gerald Taylor provided several musical selections on the piano.

Craig Watson conducted the business period.

Ralph Jeffs introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Frank Lancaster at the Income Tax Department, Belleville. He gave an informative message on this subject and answered many questions. Hugh Lyons voiced thanks for the address and Rev. W. G. Fletcher closed the meeting.

PRICES RAISED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's two daily newspapers have announced price increases, to 40 cents a week from 35 cents, for home delivery. The Tribune's increase is effective this week, that of the Free Press next week. Single-copy price of Saturday editions of both papers goes to 15 cents from 10 cents April 11, while weekday copies remain at 10 cents.

Woman Trying To Record Birds

VICTORIA (CP)—No, that's not a DEW - line worker out there on Radcliffe Lane working on a 40-inch parabolic reflector.

It's Grace Bell, and she is trying to record for posterity the song of a sparrow.

As a matter of fact, that particular sparrow has been giving Mrs. Bell a bit of a rough time lately. She's been out there early every morning for weeks trying to catch the sound of the song sparrow.

Dressed in woollen sweater, mitts and rubber boots and carrying 20 pounds of tape recorder, binoculars, stool and a bag of tools, she creeps up to the spot and sets up her parabolic reflector.

Slipping on her earphones, she finds the birds' songs don't let the B.C. Hydro (bus) rumble by this way, at least not just now.

Mrs. Bell is constantly recording bird songs, and sounds —and occasionally a bug or two — that birds eat.

Is there a difference between the sound of a local bird and the sound of a bird from somewhere else?

"You would never recognize the Townsend Warbler from Miracle Beach as the same Townsend from Oak Bay."

On top of that, each bird sings a slightly different tune at various stages of its life. Each mating, nesting and migrating season calls for a special song. And Mrs. Bell is out there trying to capture it on tape.

DEVELOPED FLOORING

British inventor Frederick W. Ilon developed a tough linoleum flooring in the early 1860s from oxidized linseed oil combined with resin and cork flour.

U.C.W. Meetings

SPRINGBROOK U.C.W.

The Easter meeting of the United Church Women was held Thursday evening in Springbrook Church hall with 30 ladies present. The president Mrs. Murney Mason opened the meeting and extended a warm welcome to all.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. H. Munsby, Mrs. H. Pilling, Mrs. R. Reid and Mrs. G. Williams using as their theme, "Marked With a Cross". Mrs. Hiram Mumby gave the topic on Easter using as her own theme, "The Resurrection and God's Love," followed by an abstract of "The Last Will and Testament of our Savior." She emphasized the true and deeper meaning of Easter linking it with Christmas and the importance of these two great holidays which are celebrated because of One, because of Christ. She stressed the deep importance of the Easter season when Christians seek closer communion with God and the Risen Lord. She challenged all to believe and keep their faith in God at Easter and throughout the year and suggested how pleasing it would be to God if everyone would make every Sunday an Easter Sunday. Churches would prosper, attendance would be better and how gratifying it would be to the ministry who prepares and gives God's message.

The secretary Mrs. Lorne Bailey read the minutes and correspondence. Mrs. Delbert Flieschaker, chairman of the social functions committee gave a report of the activities planned for the coming year. A motion was passed to send a donation to the Stirling Music Festival of Sacred Praise. The Rylstone, Stanwood U.C.W. and Gospel Hall ladies are invited to join with Springbrook U.C.W. ladies in May and June for Bible study and some films will be shown. A reading was given by Mrs. George Williams.

Refreshments and a short social period brought the meeting to a close.

LUTHERAN CHURCH WOMEN

The Holy Trinity Lutheran Church Women met immediately after the mid-week Lenten service Wednesday, Mrs. Norman Sloss, the president, brought the meeting to order with prayer.

The minutes were read by Mrs. C. Rolof, and the treasurer's report by Mrs. E. Brickert, after which all other committees gave their reports.

Pastor H. Lindeman gave reports concerning Lutheran World Relief. He also inquired about the possibility of having the ladies cater at the next annual Canadian convention.

The Christian action committee is starting a clothing drive for Canadian Lutheran World Relief. Donations of used clothing are to be left at the home of Mrs. W. Calbury, 197 Wright Ave., or at the church. A baby layette was completed.

Mrs. H. Sine, organist of Holy Trinity, was a welcomed visitor, also Mrs. Rose. Mrs. M. Wodzak, Mrs. L. Fever, Mrs. H. Bock, Mrs. R. Kraft, Mrs. Jouvra and Mrs. H. Lindeman will be attending the Eastern District Lutheran Church Women convention on April 23, at Eganville.

Mrs. Richard Kraft and Mrs. Carl Rolof prepared and served lunch.

HAPPY REPRIEVE — Mrs. Elizabeth McGarvie and daughter Joyce, 18, have been granted a 30-day extension of visitors' permit two days before they were scheduled to return to Scotland. Immigration officials in Winnipeg had told them arrangements to stay at the Vancouver home of Mrs. McGarvie's son, Hugh, were unsatisfactory. The extension came after another son, William, in Stittsville, Ont., assumed full responsibility for his mother. (CP Photo)

Cola Mousse: A Low-Low-Calorie Dessert For Determined Dieters

by Mary Moore

There are two people in my family with strong wills who are determined to be slim for spring.

Encouraging good - resolution - makers is one of my joys so I became infected with resolutions and hunted for the cure.

Borrowing heavily from the magical preparations on the store shelves I have concocted a creamy mousse which will bring satisfaction to reducers with persecution complexes.

COLA MOUSSE
(low-low-calorie)

4 teaspoons plain gelatine
¼ cup cold water
one 10-oz. can diet cola
½ package (¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon) dessert topping mix
¼ cup cold water
½ teaspoon vanilla
diet pack fruits (optional — see below)

Soak the gelatine in the cold water for 5 minutes. Stand it over boiling water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Turn diet cola from can or bottle into bowl and slowly add gelatine liquid. (This firms up a lot but quickly subsides.) Chill until softly congealed. Meanwhile beat the dessert topping mix with the ¼ cup cold water and vanilla until it is stiff as it will get. This takes about 10 minutes on high speed. Then while beating slowly add the softly congealed jelly and beat until blended. Pile into 8 stemmed glasses and chill.

Notes: I served this four different ways: 1) I sliced one ripe banana very thin and just before piling into the glasses folded in the slices. 2) I drained the juice from cans of diet pack cherries, Mandarin oranges and apricots. Since from doing the experiments on this low-calorie dessert I had plenty of them to taste, I topped them with these various drained low - calorie fruits and they all passed the taste tests made by me and the dieting members of my family. They were pretty and satisfying too.

Dinner Menu

Sparkling Orange Juice; Baked Stuffed Flank Steak (see Tuesday); Boiled Potatoes in Parsley White Sauce; Buttered New Cabbage; Custard with Glazed Fruit (see Monday); Coffee.

LUNCHEON SALAD PLATE

A picture salad plate which reducers could enjoy with a clear conscience could be made if you turned Cola Mousse into 6 individual moulds. When set unmould each on centre of lettuce - lined tea plate. On each side arrange a crescent of diet pineapple and top them with diet Mandarin orange sections. Between the pineapple crescents, at each end tuck a soft jumbo prune stuffed with bright orange cream cheese.

Photograph Not All That's Between Mom and Daughter

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother never tires of telling me how beautiful and popular she was in her youth. She keeps a large photograph of herself (in a low-cut gown) right on the TV set. Everyone who comes into the house is hit in the face with that picture. She and dad have been married 18 years and this was her engagement picture so you can guess how old she is.

When I told my mother I thought she should remove the picture she accused me of being jealous. Maybe I am, but I still think she is wrong. What do you think? — UGLY DUCKLING.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR FRIEND — I think the problem between you and your mother goes much deeper than that picture on the TV set. Even if she removes the picture (which she should have done years ago) the real problem remains.

I hope your school has a guidance counsellor with whom you can discuss your real feelings. When you understand why your mother attaches so much importance to a 17-year-old photograph you will not be so resentful.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been saving a few dollars every week from the grocery and household money. This has been going on for over three years.

I kept the money in a sugar bowl on the top shelf of the cupboard. Last week I took the money down to count it. I put the roll of bills on the stove for just a minute, not realizing the coffee pot was on the back burner. I turned my back for two seconds and the bills caught on fire.

I poured a glass of water over the bills and saved part of them. Please tell me what to do now. — WATER AND ASHES.

DEAR W AND A — I can't tell from your letter how badly burned the bills are. If more than half of a bill is intact, any bank will give you full value.

So, Lady, take the money to the nearest bank, which is what you should have done with it in the first place. Sugar bowls are for sugar.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last night I got the shock of my life. I have been married (happily, I thought) for 17 years. After dinner my husband said, "Well, you have used me for a meal ticket long enough. The kids are all in school now and you have no excuse for sitting around home. I want you to go to work."

Ann, I am 37 years old and have no special training. We are not in debt. I keep the house in good order, I cook and bake and enjoy being at home. I don't want to go to work. The fact is, I'd hate it. Our three children like to have me here when they come home from school, and I want to be here.

Am I selfish as my husband says? He has made me feel terribly guilty. Tell me if you believe I should go to work to please him. — L.S.M.

DEAR L.S.M. — I think your husband is going through the change of life. Some men (as well as women) undergo personality alterations when they hit middle age.

Suggest that he see a doctor. In the meantime forget about going to work. A woman who is raising three children and keeping house is pulling her share of the load. She doesn't need to bring in a pay cheque to be considered as equal partner in the marriage.

And you can tell him I said so.

NOISE CONTROL TIPS FOR SUBURBIA

What a welcome relief to be able to open the windows wide and let the fresh, sweet spring air permeate the house.

Too bad, though, that it's not possible to screen out some of the noise at the same time.

During the winter months, the sounds of the children next door playing cowboys and Indians was muffled by closed windows, drawn draperies and, in some sections, a kindly insulation of six inches of snow. But now that the windows are unveiled and the snow melted, it sounds like they're playing posse right in the living room.

Eventually, once the ear gets reaccustomed to the constant sound of children at play and the ordinary traffic in the area, it becomes routine and tends to fade into the background. After a while, you're hardly aware of the noise at all as you go about your regular household duties.

But there are certain noises that do jar the senses, especially when they come first thing in the morning, before you're barely awake or in the evening hours when you're trying to relax with family or friends on the front porch or in the back yard.

THOUGHTLESS NEIGHBOR

Unfortunately, it's precisely at the hours of six in the morning or six at night that a thoughtless neighbor will elect to rev up his power lawn mower and have a go at the greenery. The disturbing effect it has on the neighborhood is completely disregarded as he rides herd on any sliver of grass that is more than an inch tall. If he were at all sensitive about the comfort of others, he'd let the job wait until Saturday afternoon, when the noise wouldn't be as irritating and would blend in with the sound of other mowers being used at the same time.

It's usually at the quietest hours of the morning and evening that someone else will start tinkering with the motor of a car and noisily race it into tune. And, for some mysterious reason, it's only when the neighborhood has settled down to sleep, or merely to relax, that some callous critter will decide to cut wood with a buzz saw or build a better dog house with much loud hammering and sawing.

Routine noises are taken for granted and one learns to live with them once the ear gets readjusted to open-window living. Lots of jobs, though, and the noise that they circulate, while admittedly necessary, still could be done at a time when they won't grate so harshly on the neighborhood nerves. So when it comes to high - decibel chores around the house, be courteous and try to get them done at high noon when the effect on the neighborhood isn't as shattering. "Quiet, Please," is the rule to observe at sun-up and sun-down when others, understandably, are apt to be more sensitive.

Ignore Unfair Father Try Loving Your Mother

DEAR DORIS — Ever since I can remember my father and I have quarrelled. Now that I am older I try harder to get along with him, many times ignoring it when he deliberately tries to needle me into an argument.

My sister who is two years younger than I is never bluntly told that she is "no d—d good for anything" as I have often been told for no real reason. When she and I have an argument she is always right in Dad's opinion, even if she is wrong.

Whenever there is any work for one of us to do I am the one who has to do it. If I ask that she help once in a while, I am told "She is so much younger than you!" (She is two years younger.)

DORIS CLARK

But I never went to a dance until I was 16, while she was allowed to go to that same one with me at 14. I was not allowed to stay up after eight o'clock at night until I was 14. She was 13 then but stayed up too.

I am not jealous of my sister or any member of my family. I just want to be treated equally. — OLDEST GIRL.

DEAR OLDEST GIRL — Just because people get married and have children, there is no built-in assurance that they will make fairminded parents. Many could learn, but won't. And some think it's a sign of weakness to seek expert help in the most important job they'll ever do — raising their boys and girls.

The firstborn has a spot of her own: not an enviable one, at times. She it may be who fights the battle for teen-age rights; who smooths the path for little sister or brother. More may be expected of her than of the others (your father's error).

Or she may be loved and spoiled and looked up to. There are books about the influence your spot in the family has on your personality; and you can see why.

Give up on your father now. He'll come round, when you no longer need him. And, according to the rest of your letter, your mother is a living doll. Enjoy her and the others.

To PSYCHOLOGY STUDENT — Heredity or environment—which? Psychologists differ as to which has the more important influence on young personalities. To my mind environment has the edge, when it comes to the shaping of character, although there are definite potentials for growth, and special talents, with which we are born.

The Experts Say

Male Fashion Changes Are Slow as a Glacier

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — In the men's fashion field, where the pace of a fashion represents a revolution, it is not always easy to spot a revolution. Miss Paul Hobberlin, owner of an established Toronto men's wear store, says current fashions actually take men a few shy steps from their habitual protective coloring in the direction of glamor.

The most daring element, perhaps, is iridescence in suit fabrics. It ranges from a mildly lustrous finish on wool through synthetics and blends to the unmistakable sheen of silk.

Mr. Hobberlin says it looks luxurious but, aware of the conservative nature of the beast he clothes, advises caution in its use. He says a man who feels self-conscious in any high style should shun it.

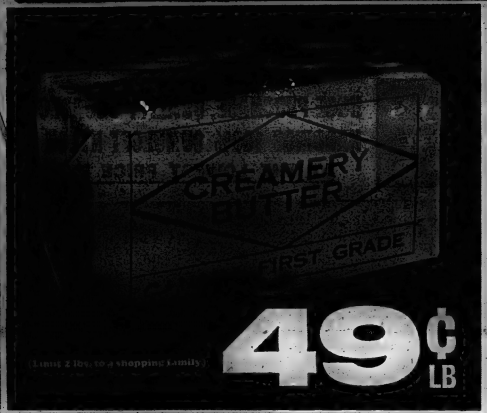
"There are places where you can break away from the norm provided you can do it and not attract attention. If you can do it and pass it off, it's good style. If not, you shouldn't try it."

TESTS REACTIONS

He wears new styles, to test reactions, but admits that because it is his business he can go further with them and feel at ease than many men could. He says wheat, a golden yellow, is being chosen for wear for hot weather because it is flattering with a tan. In varying shades, it is solid or worn in mixtures with other colors.

The continuing popularity of slender trousers is another male concession to glamor. They are not the tight pants of the high school boy, but plastless, cuffless, slender - legged trousers. Mr. Hobberlin theorizes that men wear them on the fall and slim and think the trousers look sexy, in spite of the fact that they tighten and wrinkle at knees and hips. The men are giving up a little bit of comfort for appearance. It's unusual," he says mildly.

Small touches are building flattery into jackets. They are slightly flitted in front, slightly squared at the shoulders. "Unless you are still in school a completely natural shoulder makes you look pear-shaped," Mr. Hobberlin says. Matching vests, incidentally, are definitely back to stay for a while.



Sports jackets are taking on a trace of decoration. They are being made with a small pleat behind the arm. "For years the sports jacket could only be told from the suit jacket because it had a bolder pattern. It has been so long since fancy backs have been in style, it's logical to assume it is time for a change."

At the other extreme, dress clothes are being sold in increasing numbers, some even in gold or wine silk. Mr. Hobberlin says women are encouraging it. They want their men as dressed up as they are.

He confirms that women help make the final judgment on a man's clothes 75 per cent of the time. He thinks it is because men acknowledge their fashion-trained sense of style and color.

Swathed neck to ankle in a suit, a man will see the suit, not himself in it. He will be content with a near-mate in a color combination. A woman, Mr. Hobberlin says, will not.

Traffic Signals To Be Surveyed By Department

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford Municipal Council held their regular meeting on Monday evening.

Two delegations presented their case to Council, the Campbellford High School Board and Campbellford Public School Board.

No resolutions are being sent this year to the Mayors and Reeves organization which meets in Sudbury in June. Clerk E. Ibey reported the Department of Transport will make a full survey and report regarding traffic signals in the town which are not operating quite correctly.

It was agreed that Road Superintendent W. Blake attend a school in Toronto for road superintendents May 5, 6th.

The E.M.O. for United Counties invited representatives from Council to attend a meeting in the United Counties Building in Cobourg on Thursday, April 23. Chairman's office committee were especially urged to attend.

The resignation of Don Fee from the fire department was accepted to be effective April 1st.

Correspondence was read from the Ontario Water Resources regarding water mains and sewers in some areas of the town. The Water Resources recommended that the work on the water mains be approved but sewage work application be withheld until sanitary condition be approved and sewage properly taken care of.

T OF C MAKES REQUEST

A request from the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce by Mr. D. Maybee stated the Chamber of Commerce would recommend stores be open six days a week with Friday night until nine and requested council to write Liquor Control Board to co-operate in this respect which Council agreed to do.

In respect to low rental housing it was stated 57 applicants had sent in post cards, 53 persons had been interviewed. Some with salaries in excess of $4000 were automatically not eligible, some who owned their own homes, Mayor Tanner stated were also ineligible leaving approximately 30, some of whom were senior citizens. In the correspondence read by clerk E. Ibey, Central Mortgage and housing gave approval for 16 family units and four senior citizens.

Twelve of the family units to be three bedroom and four to be four bedroom. It was agreed by Council to hold the Federal Provincial Housing project over until next meeting.

In regard to some discussion with private property owner re boundary the clerk was advised to request the town solicitor to contact the Lands and Forests Department to take necessary steps to get boundary established.

School Budget Up $50,880 Over Last Year

CAMPBELLFORD — The representatives of Campbellford High School Board presented their annual budget to Campbellford Municipal Council at the regular meeting of Council on Monday evening.

Maintenance expenditures for the school this year are budgeted at $250,290.32, an increase over 1963 of $50,880.62. Some of the increase Mr. A. Buchanan, chairman, stated was due to the revision of salary schedule, the annual increments to the teachers and the hiring of two extra teachers, one to teach music and the other to teach commercial. The average salary in Campbellford High School is $7,170, as compared with Mayor Tanner stated, to Madoc $6,100, Marmora $6,900 and Tweed $6,500.

11 RESIGNATIONS

From the staff of 26 teachers there were this year 11 resignations. Councillor Sharp questioned why the school lost so many teachers and asked if the Board the average loss per school across the country was 50% annually.

The hiring of a co-ordinator was also questioned by Councillor Sharp. He wanted his duties defined. Some of his duties were designated as doing type duplicating for teachers, supervising the three caretakers, supervision of lunch periods, attendance recorder for truant officer.

SIZE INCREASED

As the size of the school has been increased by one-third, instructional supply budget had of necessity increased. More supplies were needed for shop work and science laboratories, also for home economics, art and music. The increase this year for this department is $11,725.00.

The salaries of the two secretaries were jointly $5,000 per year, one slightly larger than the other.

Plant operation and maintenance cost reached an all-time high of $52,700. The 1963 estimate was $22,870, this year's estimate more than double. Some of this increase is due to hiring of an extra caretaker and cafeteria salaries and expenses. Transportation remained similar to last year.

The budget of $15,000 for capital outlay created some discussion and some surprise. This part of the budget included the purchase of typewriters, adding machines, filing cabinets, a walk-in refrigerator $1,295, Slinger sewing machines $800, the moving of two temporary buildings to the back and placing them on a permanent base $1,200, renovation of the old part of the school $3,000, improvement of newly-acquired land and old land used for the last few years as a community baseball diamond, which now has to seek another site.

The levy for maintenance of the three municipalities is Campbellford $74,877.31 ; Seymour township $58,004.86 ; Percy township $38,004.84 to make a total of $171,887.03 for maintenance. The levy for debentures for Campbellford $32,219.72, for Seymour two, $17,967.10, for Percy $11,453.18, making a total debenture levy of $52,520.00. This makes a total levy including maintenance and debenture of $224,089.53, the Campbellford portion being increased by $14,251.79.

CP MAN IN CYPRUS — Gerard Alarie, 26-year-old native of St. Boniface, Man., will cover activities of Canadian troops in Cyprus for Canadian daily newspapers. The bilingual reporter has been a member of the Canadian Press French-language staff in Montreal since last June and previously worked on newspapers in Montreal. a fit of pique by the New Democratic Senator O'Leary's action last Friday.

Mr. Knowles read a 1942 quotation attributed to Senator O'Leary, who then was editor of the Ottawa Journal and now was also quoted:

"A senatorship isn't a job . . . it's a title. Also it's a blessing, a stroke of good fate; something like drawing a royal straight flush in the biggest pot of the evening, or winning the Calcutta sweep.

"That's why we think it wrong to think of a senatorship as a job; and wrong to think of the Senate as a place where people are supposed to work. Pensions aren't given for work."

Senator O'Leary was appointed to the upper chamber by then prime minister Diefenbaker Sept. 24, 1962.

At the end of Tuesday's sitting, Government House Leader Favreau said sarcastically that he hopes the "too short" estimates debate will end today.

Frank Howard (NDP Skeena) said MPs including himself have abused the rules and procedure by straying from the topic under debate. Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) said the electorate is dissatisfied with the haphazard way Parliament operates.

CONTINUES NEUTRALITY

VIENNA (AP)—The Romanian Communist party newspaper Scinteia, in publishing a speech by Premier Khrushchev, left out parts dealing with the Soviet-Chinese feud. This was regarded here as another indication that Romania was attempting to continue—at least temporarily—its policy of neutrality between Moscow and Peking.

Report Sellers May Survive Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Specialists attending British actor Peter Sellers agree that his condition is critical but that he may survive Monday's heart attack.

A medical bulletin issued by Cedars of Lebanon Hospital during the night indicates that physicians plan further use of a pacemaker device during a 48-hour "crisis period."

This device sends electrical impulses to the heart in an effort to restore a rhythmic beat.

The 38-year-old entertainer rallied sufficiently Tuesday for his doctors to express cautious optimism about his chances of survival. Earlier, his condition had deteriorated markedly.

Attached to Sellers' body, in addition to the pacemaker device, is a cardiac monitoring system to record heartbeat, respiration, blood pressure and other data. He also received anti-coagulants.

Britt Ekland, 21, the blonde Swedish actress Sellers married less than two months ago, is close to her husband's bedside at all times.

Richard Lydekker, the actor's agent, said Sellers is under sedation but lucid at times.

"He is in incredibly good spirits," Shepherd said.

Double Talk
How Nice Guys Cover up Innermost Thoughts

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you brushed up on your double-talk lately?

Double-talk, it will be recalled, is the art of saying one thing while thinking another. This enables one to speak in a socially appropriate manner while simultaneously keeping his mind independent and free.

For the beginner, here are a few examples of double-talk with their literal translations in parentheses.

"I don't know what I'd do without you." (But I'd sure like to give it a try.)

"Yes, sir, I recommend the corned beef highly. As a matter of fact, I had it myself before coming on duty." (That explains why I've got these gas pains right now.)

"Oh, it isn't a great wine, really, but my wife and I are rather amused by its youthful bouquet of exuberance." (Besides, it only cost $1.98 for a gallon jug.)

I'LL TREASURE IT

"Receiving this company 25-year pin, how humbly you feel! more humbly grateful than words can say. I'll always treasure it." (This always has been a cheap outfit. I know a lot of firms that give a guy a gold watch after 25 years.)

"Mind you, I'm just talking out loud—off the top of my head so to speak." (I don't know what the devil this whole thing is about.)

"As his teacher, Mrs. Smythe, I can assure you that your little boy is not backward — despite his low marks." (He's just downright dumb like his mother.)

"It sounds like a great idea, chief. You're a real genius." (But how come you didn't like it last year, when I suggested it to you myself?)

"No, Henry, I'm not really a cold career girl at heart. All I want is a little home I can make cozy for someone I love." (And some chump like you, buddy boy, to pay the bills.)

A BIT ROCKY

"I think I'll leave a bit early this afternoon, Miss Brittle. Feeling a bit rocky. It must have been something I ate at lunch." (When will I ever learn not to order that third martini?)

"He's in an important conference right now. May I take the message?" (Then I can fly it out to him on the golf course by messenger pigeon.)

"What do you mean I'm one ear—out the other.)

Says Smoking Not Proven Cancer's Cause

MONTREAL (CP) — John M. Keith, president of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, said today cigarette smoking still has not proved to be the cause of cancer, heart disease or other diseases with which it has been associated.

But, he told the company's annual meeting, "despite this lack of proof, cigarette smoking has been indicted."

"The indictment has been so over - simplified that, for all practical purposes, independent scientific research on the problem has come to a standstill in Canada," Mr. Keith said, "although a great amount of research is going forward in other countries, particularly the United States and United Kingdom.

"Despite the millions of words which have been written and the numerous statistical studies which have been made, the fact still remains that cigarette smoking has not been proven experimentally to be the cause of lung cancer, heart disease or other diseases with which it has been associated."

wasn't listening - you, dear. I heard every word you said." (In one ear—out the other.)

Public Schools To Cost More In Coming Year

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford Public School Board presented their annual budget to the Campbellford Municipal Council on Monday evening.

The representative, Mr. C. Johnston, was commended by council for presenting such a well-planned concise budget and also for keeping costs at a minimum. The budget showed an increase of $16,200 over last year. There are on staff in the two schools, two principals, 19 full-time teachers, two half-time, one teacher three half days. The average salary $4,465; attendance at Bridge Street School 435 at Kent School 178.

There are 86 pupils from Seymour township which pay 8% of maintenance costs.

As Bridge Street School is about seventy-five years old, Mr. Johnston stated he felt they would be forced to make some buildings change in the not too distant future.

Prime Minister Favors October As Election Date

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Early or late? The pressure was mounting today on Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home to name the general election date.

The prime minister is expected to see the Queen today amid speculation that he has decided to call an October general election.

Authoritative sources said, however, no public statement is likely today.

After taking soundings from all available cabinet ministers Tuesday — and letting it be widely known that he was doing so—the prime minister was expected to reach his long-awaited decision before the end of the week.

Factors that may delay public announcement of the date are Thursday's Greater London council election and the April 14 budget. A major swing to or away from the Conservatives in the London elections may well tip the balance in the prime minister's mind.

FALL OUT FAVORED

Opinion inside the Tory party appears to be hardening in favor of an October poll on the grounds that the government has nothing to lose by waiting. Earlier betting favored June.

July, August and September are usually ruled out in Britain because of the number of voters absent on holidays. The government's mandate runs out in early November.

Tory pressure pressing for a fall election argues that Labor's campaign now has been running full tilt for the last six months and the longer the delay, the more chance of straining Socialist resources.

Douglas - Home himself has often indicated that more time is needed for his six-month-old administration to make its program clear to the country.

One argument against October is that Britain's election will coincide with the American presidential election. Many party officials would prefer to have the issue settled here before the American contest is over.

PRESS FOR JUNE

A group of young cabinet ministers, among them Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling, are believed to be still pushing for June.

Maudling's budget is expected to contain few surprises, the economy is blooming with summer health and the unemployment situation has greatly improved.

Experts think Maudling, at any rate, would like to go to the country before any autumnal clouds darken the financial horizon.

Yet another item to be taken into account is the government's unfinished business—particularly the controversial price-fixing bill which still faces bitter opposition from some Conservative backbenchers.

The government is determined to drag the bill through the thicket of proposed amendments before the summer recess.

It is just possible that Douglas-Home may decide to retain the prime minister's tactical element of surprise and hope to catch Labor off balance.

But the mood of the country this week was probably one of boredom and irritation with the continual "June or October" guessing game.

Gore

THE GORE — The members of Centre United Church joined the Victoria congregation for the Easter service with the Rev. R. Irwin in charge. The senior choir under the leadership of Mrs. W. Faulkner and the junior choir with Mrs. H. Townsend as leader contributed much to the service with their Easter anthems. The beautiful flowers which decorated the church spoke their own message of Resurrection.

Many Students Writing Exams To Qualify in Power Squadron

PICTON (Staff) — All over the Dominion of Canada this past week, men and women are trying the written examinations in order to qualify for membership in the Canadian Power Squadron. The women, unfortunately, can never become members of the squadron, only associate members, but nevertheless a great number of the "weaker sex" have tried, and passed the intricate examinations of the CPS.

Like everything else connected with the CPS, they have an excellent method of not only writing the exam, but in the marking.

Each student is given a series of sheets, in book like form, which he is given as much time as needed to complete. Each question has a number opposite, designating how many points for the correct answer. In order to pass, a student must have 80.

Another oddity is the method of marking the papers. When a student hands in the completed paper, it is given a code number and mailed to a member of the CPS anywhere in the Dominion, it is examined, and the marks totalled, and all any student will ever know is that he passed or failed. They never will know just what percentage they received.

There is no such thing as luck in these examinations. You either know the subject, or you don't. A tribute to the excellency of the instructors is that only a very small percentage of those trying, fail.

NO HONORARY MEMBERS

There is no such thing as an Honorary Member of the CPS. Anytime you see the CPS flag flying from the mast of a vessel, you can be sure that the pilot of this vessel has passed his tests successfully and should know what he is doing. There is just no other way he can get this coveted Squadron Flag.

It is indeed unfortunate that some members of the CPS do not always remember what they have learned, but then there is usually one bad apple in a barrel. The CPS do a lot of police work among their members, and if a member is seen displaying a flag, rank disregard for the rules of safety afloat, he is reprimanded by his Commander.

All that now remains for those who have written the exams is to sit down and chew their fingernails down to the second knuckle awaiting the results of their tests, which should come along quietly. Then they will be presented with their certificate and be invited to join any of the hundreds of Canadian Power Squadrons that now cover Canada from coast to coast.

Happy sailing.

NAVAL MAN DIES

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)—Alfred E. Luckey, who built more than 1,000 ships and boats during a career that started in 1908, died Tuesday. Luckey, a naval architect, retired three years ago from the Luckey Marine Construction Company which he founded. The company is one of the major U.S. builders of custom designed boats and small ships.

Will Improve Phone Service In Two Centres

PICTON (Staff) — On April 19th important advances in telephone service will be made in the exchange at Wellington and in the new exchange at Bloomfield.

At that time, dial service will replace the present manual system in Wellington and the growing nature of the Bloomfield area will be identified by the establishment of its own exchange. Both these communities will then be joined by Picton to provide one local calling area for the greater majority of Bell subscribers in the County of Prince Edward.

To commemorate these events it is planned to have individual Inaugural ceremonies in both places. At Bloomfield on April 15th and at Wellington on April 16th.

As usual when subscribers must use the dial phones, there will be the normal amount of confusion, and some people will get wrong numbers, but perseverance and a good hard "pointing finger" are the main ingredients to get used to the new dial phones.

POLICE TO HOLD DANCE

The tenth annual spring dance of the Ontario Provincial Police of District 9 is taking place at the Picton Armouries on Friday, May 1. This is the first time the dances has been held in Picton, Belleville having been the locale in former years.

District 9 encompasses the Counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, and Frontenac. The Commodores orchestra will provide music. Admission is by advance ticket sale only, which can be procured from any Ontario Provincial Police Officer.

themselves under the wheels of a cement truck entering the project. Police pulled them out and carted them away.

The minister joined a group that raced through back yards to get around police lines and enter near the rear of the project.

The bulldozer driver, John White, 31, told police he saw three persons throw themselves down in front of me. There were two girls and a man.

"I kept my shovel up because I didn't want to hit anybody in it," White said. "The shovel was hanging over those people so I backed up. I didn't know another man was lying behind me.

"I backed up all the way over him, and that was the first I knew I had run over anybody" The tread of the bulldozer passed over the minister's shoulders.

Police cleared White of responsibility in the deaths.

Cannot Increase Exports Without Accepting Imports

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will have to recognize that it can't step up its exports without a corresponding increase in imports, Murray Corlett, counsel for the Canadian Importers' Association, said today.

He told the association's one-day annual meeting that no one can object to Canada's policy of trying to export more commodities, but such a policy should be regarded in its proper perspective.

"There must be a limit beyond which we cannot succeed, if, at the same time as we endeavour to stimulate our commodity exports we try by other means to limit or reduce our commodity imports," he said.

"The real trouble lies in the fact that other countries are trying to do the same thing at the same time."

His remarks were taken from a text given the press before delivery.

EXPRESSES CONCERN

In a wide-ranging address, Mr. Corlett, an Ottawa lawyer, also:

—Expressed concern that the legislation setting up the new federal department of industry gives it unnecessary powers which could be used "to embark upon some highly nationalist scheme" to the detriment of Canada's importers;

—Said the real problem of Canada's deficit in its balance of payments is not caused by commodity trading, since Canadians exported $484,000,000 worth of goods more than they imported last year, but rather by such transactions as tourist and travel expenditures, interest and dividend payments and freight and shipping costs;

—Criticized the Canadian government for playing with words in defending its retention of the automatic dumping duty;

—Charged Canada's actions in helping emerging countries by buying more from them have fallen short of "our generous statements of intent";

—Called for specific legislation to assist industries and workers in meeting the effects of liberalizing international trade;

—Said a more liberal interpretation of existing customs laws is needed if Canada is to play its full role at the trade talks opening in Geneva next month under the General agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

IS OUT OF STEP

Mr. Corlett said Canada is out of step with the rest of the trading world in holding on to its anti-dumping legislation. Such a law might have been needed 60 years ago when it was introduced but Canada had matured enough since then "to bring our dumping law into conformity with that of other countries and present-day international standards."

"I cannot understand why the Canadian government has been so reluctant to bring our dumping duty laws into conformity with those of other countries which already apply the GATT principles.

"Would Canada not be better off if it did that in a gracious and business like way on its own initiative, rather than be pushed into taking action along these lines at Geneva during the next year?"

On trading with emerging countries, Mr. Corlett said Canada's general policy statements have been "quite liberal and generous in their outlook."

IN ACTION?

"The question is whether we in Canada have translated these fine statements of policy into effective action . . . for instance, we are restraining exports of cotton textiles to Canada from such countries as Taiwan, Portugal, Israel and Hong Kong."

He also criticized the Canadian government for valuing cotton goods from Communist China for duty purposes on the same basis as similar products from the United States. Values from more comparable countries such as Japan or Hong Kong should be used.

He said the government should publicize its rulings on tariffs and duties more widely. He cited the case of an importer who paid a higher duty than necessary for three years on a class of imported goods because a ministerial order changing the basis of evaluating the goods was not publicized.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS

The value of petroleum products imported into Australia during 1963 was $252,752,000 and exports were worth $54,650,000.

Attorney-General Kennedy Taking Time Out of Busy Life to Speak in Canada

WASHINGTON (CP)—Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy says that if destiny brings him to the teaching profession, he hopes he may be able to lecture at Canadian universities as well as those in the United States.

The 38-year-old brother of the late president John F. Kennedy adds that he still hasn't made up his mind what he will do when he leaves his present appointment next November.

There is speculation that he is quietly seeking the vice-presidency, but he made no mention of this. His main thoughts were about his brother's relations with Canadians about his own future, possibly in some teaching capacity.

"I would like to teach government affairs to undergraduates—if that is where destiny brings me. If that should come to pass, I would be glad to appear at Canadian universities as well as those in this country."

It was another crowded day for the youthful, vigorous attorney-general before he could find time for a brief interview Tuesday night. Civil rights delegations from Hawaii and Florida were waiting in the reception room; Kennedy's own staff officers were pressing for privacy and peace; six telephones were ringing; office intercommunication sets were buzzing.

HAS MANY REQUESTS

Kennedy was much in demand. Edwin Guthman, his chief press aide, estimated the attorney-general now gets up to 100 requests a week to make speeches and public appearances. Most of these are turned down. Kennedy just hasn't the time.

Nevertheless, the attorney-general will take time next week for a rare flight to Canada where he will speak April 14 at the Canadian Press annual dinner in Toronto.

This trip, he indicated, will be his personal expression of gratitude to the Canadian people for the deep sympathy they displayed when his brother was assassinated last November.

"I'm keeping this call not only because of the close relations between our two governments, but because of the close relations between president Kennedy . . . and the people of Canada—that's what I want to say.

"You will remember that Canadian universities bestowed honors on him; that he had made a number of visits there and that he felt very close to Canada. It was in my summer home at Hyannis Port where my brother met with your prime minister, Mr. Pearson, in May last year."

This will be the attorney-general's first major speech in Canada, though he first met his wife, Ethel, on a Christmas skiing jaunt at Mont Tremblant, Que., in 1944, he never had found time to make an extended tour of Canada.

FATHER OF EIGHT

Now the father of eight children—five boys and three girls —his time is taken up with family duties and official responsibilities which include supervising the FBI and the battle against crime; combines and trusts.

Kennedy is a magnet for children and teen-agers. Wherever he goes, he invites many of them into his office for short talks on government and politics.

"I like children and they like me," he said. "Probably, it is because I depict youth in government. I have many children of my own."

But he believes youth needs direction.

Youth has "to be given more direction, not only in this country but in the others. There can be a great potential utilization of its imagination and energy, but without direction, this talent and energy are not fully utilized except during times of war."

Peacetime youth needs assistance to make proper use of its ability—and I think the peace corps is an example of what can be done.

"Certainly, there is accomplish and that is why I believe there was such strong feeling for my brother in many parts of the world. Not only for people in this country but those in others, he epitomized the ideals the things people wanted to see accomplished.

"He symbolized idealism. He was in many ways the president of the young people—all at the same time. It is the spirit of his idealism that I treasure; that I want to see remembered."

Canadian Group Fails to Match 'Love's Labor'

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Two big theatrical openings in London, one of them a new play by Samuel Beckett, steal the critical spotlight today from Canada's Stratford production of Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme at the Chichester Festival Theatre.

Only three national dailies sent critics in the Moliere comedy Tuesday night. Their reactions are somewhat mixed, in contrast with the unanimously rave notices bestowed on the Ontario company's first production Monday of Love's Labor's Lost.

Clive Barnes, critic of The Daily Express, is the most enthusiastic of the three.

"Stylish and dazzling, the Canadians . . . provided fine comedy." He said Moliere's barbed wit and satire provided "a perfect springboard for the polished inter-play these Canadians obviously excel at."

He had a good word, too, for Jean Gascon's production, saying the French-Canadian director gave the social comedy "a Gallic touch as proud as a plume and as light as a souffle."

NOTES DELICACY

Christopher Driver of the Manchester Guardian says the "delicacy" of the play's opening scene aroused expectations which were "not quite fulfilled."

Driver is generally impressed by Douglas Rain's performance as the social climber Jourdain, and says William Hutt's playing of Dorante "provides a welcome touch of suavity to the evening."

But on the whole he feels Gascon has given the actors their heads, with the result of "too much romp, too little style."

The Daily Telegraph critic Eric Shorter says most of the players seemed "curiously slack." He selects several "well-judged performances," including Helen Burns' sourdough Madame Nicole and Martha Henry as Dorimene.

A late-blooming but enthusiastic review of Monday's production comes in The Financial Times from Alan Dent, a critic of repute.

"An good an all-round performance of Love's Labor's Lost as I have ever seen," says Dent, singling out John Colicos' Berowne and Martha Henry's Rosaline as fine performances of rewarding parts.

"The Canadian company . . . takes the platform stage with the grace and assurance that come from long practice in such conditions."

"Never knows when he's licked!"

COMMIT SUICIDE

LONDON (CP)—A leading article in the British Medical Journal says that on average one doctor in Britain kills himself each month. It says that six per cent of all doctors deaths under the age of 65 are from suicide.

MINISTER KILLED IN DEMONSTRATION

The body of the Rev. Bruce W. Klunder, run over by the dirt unloader in the background, lies at the site at an elementary school under construction at Cleveland, Ohio. A policeman (right) is going for him. He was killed when the tractor backed over him. He and other Civil Rights demonstrators came to protest further construction of the school in a predominantly Negro area.

Traders Describe Outburst Of Stock Market Activity As Frantic and Frenzied

By IAN MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frenetic, frantic and frenzied. That's how traders describe the current wild outburst of activity on Canadian stock markets.

Major indexes have soared to record levels and the current daily turnover of about 8,000,000 shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange is nearly quadruple that of last fall.

Much of the volume comes from low-priced uptrial and speculative stocks, an indication that the small investor is coming in under the spell of a rising market and is taking an active part. Previously, institutional buying had been a major factor on the market.

Where is this leading and when will it end? This is the question nobody seems able to answer.

RISK STEADY

The New York stock market has been rising steadily for nearly two years despite its discounting the slump following the Cuban crisis—and is well over the magic 800-mark on the Dow Jones industrial average.

The Canadian boom generally has matched the New York market, except for a crisis last summer when Finance Minister Gordon's first budget threw a curve at the market, followed by the announcement of the proposed 15% equalization tax on the purchase of foreign securities by American citizens.

Mr. Gordon withdrew his proposal after a radical amendment discouraging foreign investment in Canada but the proposed U.S. tax had the same effect and has cut the flow of investment funds from south of the border to a trickle.

However, Canadians have proved themselves well able to support their own markets.

Brokers had been talking of a "massive amount of capital" poised ready to enter the market. This money, mainly from industry, Canadian life insurance companies and other major financial institutions, appeared to be taken up and then left by the withdrawal of U.S. capital.

FUNDED FROM OVERSEAS

A further investment source which brokers are eyeing is the United Kingdom and Europe.

Inflation in Europe and the possibility of a Labor government in Britain has resulted in recent signs of a reawakening interest in Northern American security markets.

Two years ago the general feeling in Europe was unfavorable to Canada. Now this is changing, observers say. One security salesman in Paris said last fall there was a "strongly favorable" reaction towards Canada following the announcement of the wheat deal with the Soviet Union, mirroring an overall strengthening in the Canadian economy.

And investors appear encouraged by the prospects for Canada's economy, with the promise of heavy capital investment for several years.

I. D. Sinclair, a vice-president of the CNR, said in an address in Toronto in March the combined expenditure on such projects as the Columbia, Peace River and Fraser River power developments, iron ore developments at Wabush and Ireland are at Pine Point and the 1967 world's fair in Montreal is estimated at $3,000,000,000—equivalent to the completion of a St. Lawrence Seaway in each of the next seven years.

READY TO GROW

Most of the major pulp and paper and steel companies have announced expansion projects for this year, as have pipeline companies. And within the next couple of years, a number of other firms will be investing in new equipment.

Brokers are at record levels for the fourth year, confounding the two-year cycle theory, and record increases in the price of and damaged for metals—copper, for example—have placed the spotlight on Canada's mining industry.

"Our economy looks in good shape given projection for two years into the future," said Gordon Peterson of the Toronto brokerage firm of A. E. Osler Co. Ltd.

Mr. Peturason said he expects to see a better correction on the market in the next month or so "it will probably be offset by a further push."

A spokesman for the Montreal Stock Exchange does not foresee a "boom" but a "lasting month," and when the advance stops it will likely to be consolidation before a further increase," he said, pointing to backing suppliers by increased corporate profits.

Another analyst, however, said he was becoming wary of the continued rise in prices and was advising clients to buy blue-chip stocks — "if things turn bad, they can turn bad with a vengeance," he said.

Brokers also pointed to new contract negotiations between major companies and unions due this year as a cause for some concern.

But when and where the boom will end is anyone's guess.

A spokesman for the Montreal brokerage firm of Kippen and Co. said he could not compare the current market price to any other period and the general economic swing is the biggest ever in peacetime.

As one observer commented, hang on to your hats on the way up, but be prepared to jump if necessary.

LIZARD DRAGONS

Komodo dragons—they probably number less than 1,000—are the largest living lizards, growing to ten feet long and weighing up to 300 pounds.

Bed Shortage May Be Solved By New Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Dymond says he will propose a plan when the legislature resumes its session Tuesday, April 14, that will help solve Ontario's hospital bed shortage.

The scheme, expected to make available some form of increased grants to hard-pressed hospitals, was discussed in cabinet Tuesday.

A minister who attended the three-hour meeting said the plan "will be a good one."

In an interview, Dr. Dymond said he altered his original plan after he became convinced the federal government was not disposed to increase its grants to hospitals.

Dr. Dymond spoke with federal Health Minister LaMarsh last week in Quebec City. He returned convinced there was little chance the federal government was going to give hospitals any more money.

He said the new plan would apply across the province rather than to one specific area.

"No new legislation will be needed," he said.

Rusk Advises Western Europe To Close Ranks

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk said Tuesday that Western Europe, menaced by "many more missiles than are aimed at the United States," should close ranks in support of collective action against Communist threats and aggression.

He said new patterns of action are needed to deal with a wide range of trouble spots from Viet Nam to Cuba.

In a major speech on U.S. NATO policy, Rusk indicated the Johnson administration will work with those allies who are willing to co-operate on specific problems, and simply by-pass those who refuse to help.

He did not mention France in this respect, but the United States and France are split over several issues. On trade with Cuba, and the Communist bloc generally, the United States and Britain also disagree.

ALLIES

Rusk sharply reminded the European allies that they still have a "common danger" from Soviet ground and nuclear forces are still arrayed against Europe.

The Soviet Union, he said, has several hundred missiles aimed at Europe.

Authoritative estimates put Soviet intermediate and medium range missiles at a total of 300, most or all of which are believed to be aimed at targets in Western Europe. The range varies from 600 to 2,100 miles. Soviet intercontinental missiles with a range over 2,500 miles are estimated at more than 100 whereas the U.S. is reported to have 670 operational. Of seaborne missiles the Soviet Union is estimated to have 100 whereas the Western Allies have 192 in place on shipboard.

DEADLY DRAGON

The sharp, saw-edged teeth of the Komodo dragon — world's largest lizard—are a goal in half with a single snap.

Marine Union Trustees May Appear Before Committee To Explain Their Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister MacEachen told the Commons Tuesday he will consider asking the marine union trustees to appear before a Commons committee to explain their policies for cleaning up labor lawlessness on the Great Lakes.

He said he would be "glad" to consider the idea, advanced by NDP Democratic Party Leader Douglas.

Mr. Douglas said the trustees could appear before the Commons industrial relations committee to explain their policies and to hear the views of MPs.

The proposal was made as the Commons turned for the second day to the so-called "peace pact" made by the three-man board of directors of Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America.

Mr. Douglas asked whether under the new arrangement the do-nothing injunction of SIU members will be continued. He also asked whether the trustees plan to bring marine unions under the terms of the Canada Labor Code.

INDICATED POSITION

Mr. MacEachen said the trustees had indicated their position in their report submitted to Parliament. However, he promised to ask the trustees for further details.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker again referred to the trustees' plan to allow Leonard J. McLaughlin, SIU executive vice-president, to ascend to the union presidency soon.

He asked whether Mr. McLaughlin was one of 15 defendants charged with conspiracy in connection with last October's walkout of SIU members in protest against the trusteeship. He questioned whether a man with "his qualifications" should be allowed to become SIU president.

Mr. MacEachen said the courts should be allowed to make a finding before anyone is deemed guilty.

Mr. Diefenbaker said references to Mr. McLaughlin in the report of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris on labor troubles on the Great Lakes were disparaging.

Mitchell Sharp, who set up the Norris inquiry when he was Conservative labor minister, asked whether the trustees were using the hiring hall system established by the SIU to place seamen in shipping jobs.

Mr. MacEachen said the trustees had planned a representative in each SIU hiring hall to ensure that "proper procedure" was followed.

He agreed to find out from the trustees what method is being used in the hiring halls.

Legal Aid Lawyers Should Be Paid by Govt., Says Brief

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Legal aid applicants should be free to choose their lawyers and the lawyers themselves should be paid for their services, possibly by the provincial government, the Essex County Law Association recommended Tuesday.

A committee composed of seven members of the legislature and the Law Society of Upper Canada, and headed by W. B. Common, Q.C., deputy attorney-general, is drawing up a legal aid system in Ontario. It started a two-day session here Tuesday.

A brief prepared by the legal aid committee of the Essex County Law Association listed the following "deficiencies" in the present plan:

1. The client approach to legal aid prevents the establishment of a personal and confidential relationship between solicitor and client;

2. The client has no freedom of choice as to the way we are to represent him;

3. The heavy load of legal aid work assigned "and anticipated prevents detailed consideration of difficult questions and may encourage a tendency to superficial treatment;

4. Some applicants dislike legal aid on the grounds it is obviously charity; others abuse it because it is free;

5. Equal distribution of the work load among lawyers doesn't always ensure the full-test of special talents.

For these reasons, explained Reginald Burnell, chairman of the legal aid committee, it is apparent a new approach is required, but not at the expense of the present plan.

Mr. Burnell said the local committee feels the citizen at large and the legal profession should bear the cost of encouraging legal aid. Fees would be paid by the provincial government out of general tax revenues and amount to a percentage of the normal fees the lawyer would charge.

Mr. Burnell told the committee lawyers were opposed to a public defender on the grounds it would be a government office which could bring politics into the picture.

"We felt it might lend itself to an influence that shouldn't be present between a solicitor and client," he said. "The same, and possibly a better service, could be done in the way we recommend."

Questioned by Mr. Common, he said he believed most legal agencies were aware legal aid was available. A clinic is held every Wednesday evening for law library with one lawyer and one law student in attendance.

Mr. Burnell added—marital problems were often brought to the clinic and counselling could be done in most cases. About 90 per cent of the cases, he said, involved deserted wives.

Bombing of Yemeni Fortress Damages U. K.'s Reputation

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain's lapse into fighter-plane diplomacy to level a mud-walled Yemeni fortress Easter Saturday has predictably displeased nobody except possibly the Queen of Bedlam.

But what of the Queen of Bedlam? One answer comes from the liberal-minded London Observer. "This autocratic ruler of one of the 14 states that make up the British-protected south Arabian federation, the newspaper says, is "Britain's most demanding ally."

Equally vocal is President Johnson or Chancellor Erhard get British military action on their behalf in the forum of the United Nations charter and before the normal resources of peace-making have been exhausted" asks the paper in an editorial.

The newspaper's severe tone echoes a large segment of published opinion in Britain about the government's decision to launch an RAF reprisal attack on the fortress close to the federation's borders.

CLAIMS DISCOUNTED

While British observers tend to discount Yemeni claims that 25 people—including women and children—were killed in the attack, they are hard pressed to find justification for an action that was bound to damage Britain's fragile reputation as a reformed colonial power.

Just what was the point, ask the critics, in hardening Afro-Asian opinion against Britain by presenting the Arab world with a perfect anti-Western rallying cry and precipitating an embarrassing United Nations Security Council debate?

"This is a heavy debit balance—so heavy that it is impossible to understand how the cabinet could ever have come to such a decision," says the Sunday Times.

The cabinet reached its decision because of pressure from military and political authorities in Britain's Aden base—and only after considerable disagreement.

The argument runs that Britain was obliged by treaties to defend the five attacks on federation territory by Yemeni aircraft in recent months. Moreover, the "delicate nature" of the confidence of the federation's rulers in order to protect Aden —the bastion of British influence in British Middle East oil interests.

Countering this argument, the critics say Aden will have to go sooner or later and the best way to prepare for British withdrawal is to bring the UN into southern Arabia as soon as possible.

There is some suggestion that this moderate position was urged by British Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler when the cabinet made its decision about Easter.

However it appears he was persuaded to favor a stronger response by Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys and Defence Minister Peter Thorneycroft.

Ultimately, the decision to strike lay with Prime Minister Douglas-Home but he took it with the knowledge that the United States wasn't particularly happy about the possible reaction.

Britain may justify him but meanwhile his critics are worried that in using a sledgehammer to crack a nut, may have wrenched Britain's Middle East arm out of joint.

Manitoba May Crack Down On Unscrupulous Salesmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manitoba may become the second province to crack down on unscrupulous salesmen carrying this year's sessions of provincial legislatures.

Saul Cherniack (NDP) — St. John's) Tuesday asked the Manitoba government consumer affairs department to protect consumers from "misleading and deceptive sales methods."

The Ontario government introduced a bill last month to ground fly-by-night operators in the used-car field.

Mr. Cherniack said that while organizations such as the Better Business Bureau do "very effective work," such groups are limited in scope and have with out enforcement powers.

He said the proposed government department could investigate various types of sales contracts, bargains, door-to-door sales methods and warranty finance charges imposed on "unwary people."

Debate on the resolution was adjourned.

Another resolution, proposed by Morris Gray (NDP — Inkster), that federal old age pensions be increased to $100 a month by Canada's centennial in 1967, was defeated in the legislature 41-7 with the liberal opposition supporting the government.

Automatic Screw Machines Make Carl Ray Own Master

By ANDY TURNBULL

Housed in a shack in a back yard on Station St., two automatic screw machines make Carl Ray his own boss. Working on a contract basis for most of the major firms in the district, Mr. Ray is as nearly independent as anyone else in the modern world, and he has more fun in most in his position. He likes his job, and he works to suit himself. He calls his business Domora Jobbers.

The automatic screw machines are mechanical wonders. Costing about $10,000 each, they can turn out almost anything round or threaded in their size range, at the rate of up to 750 an hour. Once set up for a particular job, the machines will spew out the parts so long as they have the material. Setting the machines up, however, is a job for an expert. Mr. Ray can operate his business because he is one of very few such experts between Toronto and Montreal.

SET UP DIFFICULT

First problem in setting up for a new job is designing the "cam" which controls the machines. Cut from one-quarter-inch steel plate, this "cam" is an oval-round shape that revolves, like a wheel, on an axle within the machine. Rollers mounted on levers follow the contours of the cam and, as they go up and down, actuate controls for the different functions performed by the machines. Designing the cam for a new part calls for up to six hours of brain work before Mr. Ray scribes the design on the boiler plate and sends it out — usually to Morch Manufacturing Ltd. — to be cut.

When the finished cam is returned to Domora Jobbers, Mr. Ray spends three to four hours setting up a machine for the required job, then begins production. A machine is never started for less than a thousand parts and most orders run into the hundreds of thousands, so the machine may run a week or a month or more with no more attention than normal maintenance and fresh supplies of materials. The material, usually bar stock and almost always supplied by the customer, is fed at the rate of about three bars an hour.

The finished or nearly finished parts roll from the machines to bins, and are collected for finishing, sorting or inspection by part-time and casual employees. Mr. Ray is the firm's only full time worker. He does work full time, too—his working day starts at seven in the morning, and he keeps the machines working ten hours a day.

LEARNED TRADE HERE

Married and the father of three daughters, Mr. Ray learned his trade with Stewart Warner, in Belleville, before the war. Since then he has worked in most Ontario industrial centres, but it was in Georgetown, where he worked for a small jobbing firm, that he got the idea of setting up on his own. He came to Belleville in 1946 after his employer in Georgetown went bankrupt, and worked during the next four years for several local firms. About fifteen years ago, with a partner whom he later bought out and with a 1919 model manual screw machine, he opened Domora Jobbers.

The original machine lasted several years and earned the down payments on the two automatics the firm owns now, but it hasn't worked for more than ten years now. Too old to work accurately, it sits at the back of his shop, worth only its value as scrap. Hundreds of dollars worth of cutting tools for the machine are rusting, meanwhile, in a tool chest beside it. They are still good, but not adaptable to modern machines. Two men have considered buying the four-ton monster and one even paid for it . . . but he never came back to pick it up.

The shop today is a fascinating place. The two automatic machines are usually clanking and clattering; Mr. Ray will be designing a cam or setting a machine up if one of the machines is idle . . . unless it happens to be a Friday. "Automatic men," (machinists who run automatic machines), "are the most superstitious men in Canada today," he says. "I wouldn't set a machine up on Friday if the devil himself asked me to". If a machine finishes a job Thursday night or Friday, it stays idle until Saturday.

Working at a bench at the back of a shop, a helper (often Mr. Ray's nephew, Sidney Grigg), may be sorting or inspecting parts, or doing an assembly or finishing job, working on a piecework basis.

GETS VISITORS

Near the door to one side of the shop, a packing case may be serving as a card table for a group of pensioners who drop in most afternoons, to play cribbage. Employees of other firms drop in for a smoke or a chat on the way home from work. If Mr. Ray wants to join the card game or stop work when his friends come in, there's no one to object. He doesn't even mind himself taking time off, because the two automatic screw machines keep going anyway.

Business is good, for screw machine operators now, because the exchange rate on the U.S. dollar has suddenly packed up the price of U.S.-made screws. Mr. Ray could, he says, keep another machine busy with the business he has available. He could run the extra machine himself, but he is reluctant to buy another. He's got an ideal arrangement now, he figures, and expansion promises as many troubles as benefits. "Start expanding," he commeots, "and first thing you know, you're rich. Then you've really got troubles."

I.A.P.A.

F. C. Ethier of Stewart Warner was one of the panelists at a "Small Firm Safety" discussion at the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's safety conference in Toronto, yesterday and today. With Mr. Ethier on the panel were representatives of King Paving and Materials Ltd., Oakville, Boyd-Crane Manufacturing Ltd., Weston, and Barber-Greene Canada Ltd. in Don Mills.

Dr. Gary Cormack, director of the Day Care Mental Clinic in Cobourg will be the speaker at the I.A.P.A. Belleville-Trenton supervisory dinner to be held in Picton April 14. Peggy Kerr, division secretary, is handling details from the office in Belleville.

PAN PROPERTIES LTD.

Formed to buy, sell and develop industrial properties in Belleville, the one-month-old firm of Pan Properties Ltd. is already considering plans for an industrial plaza. Site of the plaza has not yet been settled but most likely location is up near highways 37 and 401. Pan Properties already has about 100 acres up there, bounded by Highway 401 on the north and Highway 37 on the west. Adam Street, the new industrial development road, goes right through Pan's land and the property includes about one-half mile of frontage on Highway 401. The land was acquired from the Department of Highways, Leo Hamilton and Charles Farm.

The firm plans to build and lease facilities for any valid industrial or commercial purpose, according to spokesman Alex Tobe, and hopes to work in cooperation with the city's industrial Commission.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

With a fine inaugural year of achievement behind him George O'Brien takes over another term as president of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

Mr. O'Brien, to quote one of his directors, did an outstanding job last year and was the unanimous choice of the board for a second term of office.

GEORGE O'BRIEN

Membership, paying tribute to efficiency through experience, named a highly recommendable board of directors at the recent annual meeting of the club.

Those include Everett S. Fairman vice-president, and directors Gordon H. Trill, Don Stanton, David Duffy, Donald Lamb and R. C. Michaud.

An important change in the club directorate this year is a new secretary-treasurer. For eight years Ray Lemmon served faithfully and efficiently in this capacity. This year, due to pressure of business, Mr. Lemmon tendered his resignation, reluctantly accepted by the board.

Succeeding him is Mr. C. G. MacDonald who will act in a new capacity of secretary-manager. Mr. MacDonald, who resides at 35 Lambert Drive, is a retired officer of the RCAF and assumed his duties as of April 1st.

Mr. MacDonald who has 27 years' service with the RCAF, retired with the rank of squadron leader. Besides his secretarial duties he will assist President O'Brien and the directors in club matters.

If optimism and planning are judged criteria, the Country Club is headed for one of the best, if not the best, seasons since its organization.

Membership, an important phase in any organization's existence, received a tremendous boost last season thanks to the outstanding efforts of membership chairman Don Stanton and his committee. Mr. Stanton will again assume leadership in this department and expects to swell the ranks of both senior and junior divisions.

Mrs. Vera Fairman has been named chairman of the ladies' division of the club, succeeding Mrs. Ena Corke, whose efforts were reflected in the achievements of the distaff side last season.

Mrs. Fairman comes adequately equipped for her new position, having served on committees and in general for the club over a number of years.

George Baims, the popular club professional, has had his staff at work readying the course for some time.

The greens have already been fertilized and some 400 trees will be planted this season. These are Carolina poplar, and maple. They will be planted in such locations as to serve as golf hazards as well as for decorative purposes.

The course wintered exceptionally well and is in more or less excellent shape, says President O'Brien.

He is highly optimistic for the coming season. "Things at present look exceptionally well," he said, "and we anticipate an even better year than that of 1963."

Mr. O'Brien is another link in the strong chain of presidents that have worked through the years to bring the Country Club to its present fine status among district counterparts.

Each in turn has picked up the torch of progress, so to speak, and each has contributed in no small measure to the successful annual operations.

The fixture cards now off the press indicate another outstanding sequence of events for the 1964 season.

So with President O'Brien once again at the helm of the good ship "Country Club" and Mrs. Fairman guiding the destinies of the distaff division, and both backed by efficient committees, all indications point to what should be a record year of operation.

Referee Did Not Hear Abel

KITCHENER (CP) — Referee Frank Udvari of Kitchener said Tuesday he did not hear Detroit Red Wing coach Sid Abel hurl insults at him from the bench during Sunday's Stanley Cup semi-final game between the Wings and Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago. Hawks won 3-2.

Abel and the Wings claim Chicago's Ken Wharram tied the game with a goal scored early in the third period after Udvari had blown his whistle.

Abel said he hurled insults at Udvari for the rest of the game but Udvari denied hearing them.

"I never heard a word Abel said. I wasn't near the Detroit bench and if I had heard him, I would have had to give Detroit a bench penalty. The only guy I gave a misconduct to at the time was Larry Jeffrey and that was for pushing me."

Udvari said he realized his decision to allow the goal would cause ill feeling by one team or the other and he wasn't surprised by the reaction.

"Some may think I was a little too lenient, "but I felt at the time I used good judgment and I still do."

Deadly Wings Shoot Down Hawks 7-2

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

DETROIT (CP) — Jolly Jack Adams peeped out over his spectacles as Detroit Red Wings walked to their dressing room Tuesday and said: "There's a team with a hell of a lot of pride."

The man who started Detroit's dynasty as one of big-league hockey's great powers back in 1936 had just watched the Wings demolish Chicago Black Hawks 7-2 at Olympia Stadium to square the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final at three games apiece. There was a trace of melancholy in his voice.

He had spent more than a quarter of a century as manager and coach of the Wings until he quit—his gossip is he was fired—a couple of years ago. He had watched the game from the press box.

Now, the series goes to a climactic finale at Chicago Thursday with the winner to meet either Toronto Maple Leafs or Montreal Canadiens for the $40 trophy Lord Stanley presented in 1893 and a bundle of cash.

The Wings went into the game deadly, cruel and calculating after dropping a disputed 3-2 decision to the Hawks in Chicago Sunday that cost coach Sid Abel a $500 fine for uncomplimentary remarks he directed at referee Frank Udvari. Detroit had to win or pack it up for the season and the players gave their coach a thumping vote of confidence with their victory, the most decisive of the series.

ADAMS APPLAUDS

That's what Adams referred to when he stood up and partially applauded the club he had masterminded to seven cup championships. The Wings, powered by the three-goal performance of Norm Ullman, a shifty centre Adams signed nine years ago, rammed it down the throats of the Hawks.

The indestructible Gordie Howe, another Adams protege, Parker MacDonald, Andre Pronovost and Bruce MacGregor completed the rout.

The big three of Chicago's all-senal figured in the Hawk scoring. Ken Wharram, a 30-goal man during the National Hockey League season, and Stan Mikita, the league scoring champion, got the goals. Each also gained an assist along with Bobby Hull, the bomber who has been bag-tied most of the series by his check, Mr. Howe.

Wings did everything but run the Hawks right back to the Windy City. They skated to a 1-1 first-period saw-off, let it at the end of the second when Hawk goaltkeeper Glenn Hall relieved queasie of nausea and then played their yannigans most of the final stanza.

Wings didn't have to be fired up for this one. They were still scorching over Udvari's call that allowed Hawks the game-tying third-period goal at Chicago Sunday. Hawks went on to win it 3-2 and Abel blew his stack for public consumption.

CAMPBELL TAKES NOTE

President Clarence Campbell of the NHL took notice of Abel's charges of "a steal" that Udvari didn't have "a gut left" and that he "blew" the call, and slapped him with the fine.

Abel was informed of Campbells decision a few hours before the face-off and he "found the time" to let his players know about it before they skated out for the pre-game warmup.

Campbell noted in his prepared statement that "those statements constitute one of the most serious accusations that can or ever have been made against any NHL official." But the Wings, who lawed Udvari out of Chicago, apparently weren't in an agreeable mood.

They had a couple of days at their Toledo, Ohio, hideaway to work up a load of steam and they belched it out almost from the moment that referee Art Skov dropped the puck. Their defencemen parked themselves at centre ice; the forwards roamed inside the Chicago blue line and the Hawks, off balance and disorganized, found themselves cheek to jowl with a bunch of redskins.

ABEL IS PROUD

"I'm proud of the way they fought back after that business at Chicago Sunday," said a relaxed and smiling Abel after the game. He added that he had "no comment" to make on Campbell's statement after reading it to the players in the pre - game talk, "but they showed me their feelings by the game out there tonight."

Abel declared he still stands "by my words that the referee erred on that call in Chicago."

Now, it's the Hawks again before those uninhibited Chicago Stadium fans. And the referee is Udvari, a man who has to be on the hottest seat in hockey.

Hall will be in the nets for that one. And facing him will be Terry Sawchuk, who now has gone undefeated in 16 games with the Hawks on Detroit ice.

NORM ULMAN — HAT TRICKS HIS SPECIALTY

'Would Say It Again'

Everything Fine ($500) Says Abel

TORONTO (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says the incident with Detroit Red Wings coach Sid Abel is "now a closed book. Unless, of course, someone opens it again."

Tuesday night Campbell fined Abel $500 for statements he made following Sunday's game which the Red Wings lost in Chicago, to the Black Hawks 3-2.

The second Chicago goal, which tied the game at 2-2, was hotly disputed by Abel and the Red Wing players.

In his statement, Campbell said it is quite permissible to criticize an official for an alleged error in judgment or observation in the discharge of his duties. But no one can question an officials' integrity.

Campbell said he telephoned Abel Tuesday before he imposed the fine to check just what the Red Wing coach said.

DIDN'T DENY IT

"He didn't deny anything. In fact he said he was willing to repeat everything he said to Udvari, but it would take quite a while. I found it appropriate to level this fine."

Toronto Maple Leafs coach Punch Imlach, who, along with Chicago coach Billy Reay were fined following a wild brawl in Toronto Dec. 7, said he wanted a rebate.

"I got fined twice as much as Abel for saying half as much. So I want a rebate."

Campbell said the two cases were entirely different.

"The $1,000 fines were more of a shock treatment. I fined Imlach and Reay for what I thought was intimidation and retaliation. And it apparently worked.

"And no player in the league has come off the bench to take part in a fight since."

Here is the text of Campbell's statement:

Following the fifth playoff game played at Chicago Stadium on Sunday, April 5, coach Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings made a series of statements to reporters and others under circumstances that were clearly intended for general publication.

He vigorously impugned the integrity and courage of referee Frank Udvari who had been in charge of the game. The expressions used by coach Abel in his criticism included: 'greatest steal in 30 years,' 'gutless,' 'choked up' and these were repeated several times.

On the following day, coach Abel reaffirmed for publication both the language used and the validity of his criticism of the official. Coach Abel readily admits having made the statements.

It is quite permissible to criticize an official for an alleged error in judgment or observation in the discharge of his duties but these statements constitute one of the most serious accusations that can or ever has been made against any NHL official.

The fact that they were repeated the next day shows clearly that they were not made in the heated aftermath of the game. They were clearly in violation of the league's bylaws on these facts. I consider that a fine of $500 against coach Abel is appropriate and it is so ordered.

Masters Golf Tournament

Palmer, Nicklaus Favored

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "I'd like to come up to the last round Sunday with Nicklaus and me 20 shots in front of the field," a relaxed and confident Arnold Palmer said Tuesday. "Just Jack and me."

Instead of being bugged by Nicklaus' massive shadow, golf's greatest money winner insisted he found a challenge in a personal duel Tuesday with the young giant from Columbus, Ohio.

"It pumps me up," Palmer said.

The two come to grips again Thursday in the 28th Masters golf tournament, co-favored in a strong international field of 90. Nicklaus, 24, is the defending champion. Palmer, is seeking his fourth Masters title in six years.

They squared off in a friendly practice preview Tuesday over the par 3 course prior to a tuneup over the 6,980-yard Augusta National course, where the year's first major competition will be contested Thursday through April 12.

The course was reopened shortly before noon after being closed 24 hours because of torrential rains There was a stampede for the first tee.

Prospects for favorable weather for the big spring golf spectacle were dim.

"Under normal, fast conditions, there are 20 or 30 men who might win here," said the 34-year-old Gene Sarazen, who has played in all but two of the 28 past Masters. "With this rainfall, it can be cut to four or five."

One of those chosen may not be Gary Player of South Africa, 1961 winner. He turned up with an inflamed throat that may ruin his hopes. If not knock him out of the tournament.

Petes Junior Stars Honored

PETERBOROUGH (CP)— Jim Paterson, a native of Fergus, Ont., Tuesday was selected most valuable player of the Peterborough Junior A hockey club.

Paterson, who scored 33 goals and had 39 assists for 72 points, was selected by a vote of the fans over the season, and received an engraved wrist-watch. He also won the Ushers Trophy for most goals and the Banks Trophy for most points. John Vandeberg of Sault Ste Marie, Ont., second year defenceman with the club, won the President's Trophy for the player best combining scholastic and hockey ability.

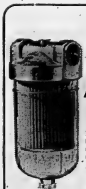
Arranges Novel Bowling Tournament



K. 'KING' PINN

Rising to the challenge of an out-of-town friend, Mr. Pinn spurred his Bowling League to take a 800-mile jaunt to meet the challengers in a tournament.

To keep enthusiasm high—and expenses low — Pinn chose a Canadian National Group Travel Plan and chartered a private coach for the trip. "The group's really looking forward to 'owning' a roomy, air-conditioned ON coach! It's certainly the ideal way for a gang to travel. For example, 50 of my teammates travelling in our own coach, save as much as 33⅓ — you can't beat that!" Pinn and his pals can also charter a sleeping car for long distance group travel. If the team is smaller, 10 or more, "King" takes advantage of all the rock-bottom Red 'Bargain' Days — and uses GNT's Party Fare Plan for up to 20% discount. 'King' says, "It's become such a habit now, I wouldn't travel to the corner drugstore without consulting my friends at Canadian National."

Leafs, Luck Beat Habs 3-0

—Bower Top Star

By DAVE BETTS

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs proved the validity Tuesday night of the hockey axiom that the harder you work, the luckier you get.

Although they dominated the play in their 3-0 win over Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, they had help from the horseshoes on all of their goals and old mother luck was wearing a blue and white uniform all night.

The convincing win tied the series 3-3 and buoyed Leaf spirits for the deciding game in Montreal Thursday.

The lucky — and laboring — Leafs scored twice because they lost control of the puck and once because it bounced back to them off a linesman.

Don McKenney scored the winner halfway through the second period when he lifted in his own rebound after a drive by Allan Stanley. Bob Baun added the second a few minutes later when he lost control on a breakaway and the puck slid between Charlie Hodge's pads, and Andy Bathgate scored in the third period after the puck bounced away from Bob Pulford and landed on his stick.

LEAFS OUTSKATE HABS

They outskated the younger and lighter Canadiens, checked harder, passed more accurately and threw up a lighter, defensive wall.

Goalie Johnny Bower, who was in hockey gear before some of the Canadiens were measured for long trousers, credits a new style of play for his shutout.

"Tonight I was coming out to the corner of the crease to cut down the angles," he explained after the game as he struggled out of his long underwear. "Before, I was sitting back and getting careless."

Bower was referring to Saturday's game in Montreal when the Canadiens beat him 4-2 and last Thursday's game here when Toronto won 5-3 but Bower looked unimpressive in the nets.

"I corrected a bad habit and it made a big difference. When I come out to the edge of the crease, the defencemen don't have to back up so far and screen me. It saved a goal tonight when (John) Ferguson hit the post in the first period. I cut down the angle on him and he had nothing to shoot at.

"A guy can get careless standing back against the crossbar."

There was nothing careless Thursday night about his 23 saves, many of them hot ones from close in.

SHOT HIT LINESMAN

McKenney was set up for his third goal of the series when a blueline drive by Stanley hit linesman George Hayes and bopped back on the defenceman's stick. Stanley zoomed a few ons that Hodge blocked and the puck bounced to McKenney.

"It all happened so fast, I don't exactly remember," Mc-Kenney said later. "But I think I had two chances at it. The first one hit Hodge and lifted the rebound over him."

Baun, who was the game's defensive star and bowled over Canadiens like tenpins in the centre-ice area, will be remembered more for scoring the most improbably goal of the series.

PLAY MUCH CLEANER

The violence of former games seemed to have dissipated, and referee Frank Udvari called only 16 minor penalties, divided evenly.

Hints of mayhem appeared simultaneously with the arrival on the ice of Eddie Shack, who was not used until late in the third period. Almost immediately he tangled with Jim Roberts and both were penalized.

He returned to the ice barely long enough to dampen his blades when Ferguson charged him. Shack started to retaliate and won another two minutes with the flunkeeper.

Quote of the evening came from Leaf manager - coach Punch Imlach who was asked why he inserted aggressive Shack late in the game.

"Because," said Imlach, "when I'm ahead by three goals I want my best men out there."

Toronto's win Thursday, coupled with a 7-2 victory by Detroit Red Wings over Chicago Black Hawks, pushed both semi-final series to a seventh game for the first time in history.

The Canadiens may have to play the deciding game without three of their regulars. Ralph Backstrom was added to the injury list Tuesday night when he suffered a severe charleyhorse thanks to Stanley. Gilles Tremblay is out for the season with a broken ankle and captain Jean Beliveau is still a doubtful starter because of damaged knee ligaments.

Imlach said he will use the same lineup Thursday, including right wingers Gerry Ehman, American Hockey League scoring leader, who was added to the roster Tuesday.

"I won tonight," said Imlach, who always uses the first person singular when referring to the Leafs, "so why should I change the lineup? You don't scratch a winning horse. Ehman fitted in well. He almost scored a goal."

Toronto centre Red Kelly appeared in his 134th playoff game, breaking the record set by retired Maurice Richard of Montreal.

Denies Part In Minor Squabble

TORONTO (CP) — George Smith, president of the Toronto Don Mills Civitan Club, said in a prepared statement Tuesday that a recent incident involving local boys who were taking part in Peewee hockey tournament has been exaggerated out of all proportion.

"In the interests of hockey for the good of the boys, we would welcome the opportunity to review the Goderich publicity and decisions with any responsible group who would care to go into the matter fully," the statement said.

The incident occurred Thursday during the week-long 15th annual Young Canada peewee hockey tournament at Goderich in a game between Don Mills and Toronto Scarborough.

A mixup was reported to have broken out after the game which Scarborough won 4-1. Referee - in - chief Stan Stokes said his tie torn off. The tournament committee later barred Don Mills which was sponsored by the Civitan Club from future tournaments.

In his prepared statement Tuesday, Smith said:

"Differences in rules and their interpretation between the Toronto Hockey League and the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, both as to the eligibility of a player and as to delayed penalties, led to some confusion. This misunderstanding and confusion will almost inevitably lead to difficulties in any sport, particularly in the heat of tournament play.

"Furthermore, our inquiry and resulting findings settle to our satisfaction that neither Jack Rinbow, the coach, nor the team, nor the hockey committee members, nor, indeed, any of its officials, had any part in any incidents which were alleged in press and radio statements to have happened."

Barons Claw Bears 7-1 In Opener

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons trounced Hershey Bears 7-1 Tuesday night in the opening game of their American Hockey League best-of-five Calder Cup semi-final series.

The two teams will meet here again Thursday and then move to Hershey for the third game Saturday.

Cleveland's Jim Mikol scored the only goal in the first period and goals by Ray Kinasewich and Fred Glover made it 3-0 early in the second period before Hershey got on the scoreboard on Bob Leiter's goal. Before the period was over, Ray Brunel made it 4-1.

The Barons continued the rout in the third period when Joe Dmura scored and then Guy Rousseau hit twice within a little more than a minute.

Glover, the Barons' playing coach, suffered a slight muscle pull in the left thigh with five minutes of the third period gone and was sidelined for the remainder of the game.

Because Cleveland does not have a spare forward, defenceman Jim Holdaway played left wing, with Mikol moving over to Glover's spot.

Baun's goal was his seventh in the playoffs. He scored six goals and two assists in the two quarter-finals against Rochester.

In The Dressing Rooms

TORONTO (CP) — Leonard (Red) Kelly, Toronto Maple Leafs' veteran forward, set a National Hockey League record for total playoff games played Tuesday night, and he says his club's 3-0 victory over Montreal Canadiens was the list of most thrilling games.

It was Kelly's 134th Stanley Cup appearance, breaking the record previously held by Maurice Richard of the Canadiens, and the hockey-playing MP put it right up with the greatest.

"It has to rate because of its importance. It kept us in the series. Actually nearly every game in Stanley Cup play is important to a player."

As far as Leafs were concerned it was a defensive contest, from goalie Johnny Bower out.

Bower, before the game, said he wanted to play in this one in the worst way.

"I finally got a break, the past couple of games they were going against me. Tonight in the first period (John) Ferguson hit the post and the puck stayed out. I came out to meet him and cut down the angle, but it was a break.

"The defence, especially Bobby Baun, played well. They were staying well in front of me which meant I didn't have many screened shots and, boy, they make a difference."

DIDN'T KNOW IT

Baun, who scored Leafs' second goal, admitted he didn't know how the puck went into the net.

"I had the puck on my stick and I pulled the defence to it, jumped on to my skates, then rolled off. Then I don't know how it went in.

"All I heard is the crowd cheering. I thought maybe someone had followed up and knocked it in. It sure was a surprise. But a pleasant one."

Toronto coach Punch Imlach, naturally happy with the outcome of the game, said he will likely stay with the same lineup for Thursday night's seventh contest in Montreal.

Habs's coach Toe Blake was quite angry with his club's performance.

"What can I say. You saw it. They got three goals and we didn't get one. We had a few chances, but didn't play well enough to win.

"I said when the series started it was going to be tough. I also said we would win the final game."

Montreal goalie Charlie Hodge said he booked on Baun's goal.

"I took my eye off the puck. I thought he was going to shoot and went out to block it. I lost the puck when I went down and didn't see it go in."

Lead 2-1 Woodstock Shades Alouettes

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Woodstock Athletics took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup eastern semi-finals with a 6-5 win over Rouyn-Noranda Alouettes Tuesday.

The Alouettes tied the score with two quick goals at the start of the third period but Woodstock came back with two goals to Noranda's one late in the period.

Rio Caron scored the winning goal with three minutes and 32 seconds remaining. Gerry Striagie, Jack McIntyre, Ron Caduro, Ron Mason and Art Sullivan were Woodstock's other scorers.

Only 950 fans were on hand for the game.

Windsor Bulldogs, fighting off elimination in their best-of-seven International Hockey League semi - final with Fort Wayne Komets carry the fight to home ground tonight for the sixth game.

Komets took a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday by blanking the Bulldogs 3-0 and forcing Windsor against the wall.

In the other semi-final, Port Huron Flags defeated Toledo Blades 4-2 Tuesday night to even their series 2-2. The Flags travel to Toledo for the fifth game tonight.

Eddie Long, John Goodwin and Len Thornson counted as the Komets stopped Windsor. An altercation at the end of the third period resulted in a misconduct penalty to Windsor goaltender Wayne Rutledge and four majors—two to each club.

Jean Therrien, Gerry Moore, Bob McCammon and Ken Saunders each got one goal as the Flags defeated Toledo. Don Westbrook and Moe Benoit counted for the Blades.

PARLIAMENTARY AIR — Ken Chantler, professional since 1928 at the exclusive Montreal Racket Club, looks at portraits of former presidents of the 129-year-old club. The institution is the oldest of 30 around the world still devoted to rackets, forerunner of today's more common squash rackets. The portraits, the oldest of which is dated 1894, give the athletic club a parliamentary air. (CP Photo)

Sport Snapshots

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — The framed portraits of bearded men on age-musty walls give the place a parliamentary air that conceals its dedication to a strenuous sport.

"This is a real old room," said Ken Chantler, standing on tip-toe to peer at a tarnished name plate. "This is the oldest picture. No—wait a minute—here's one older."

The oldest portrait, dated 1894, showed a serious gentleman with a bushy black beard and the name plate said Andrew A. Allen. He was the first president of the 129-year-old Montreal Racket Club.

Allen's portrait and those of his successors down the years hang in the sombre-hued billiards room of the club's two-storey quarters on Concord Street.

Concord is like a back alley. You can easily miss it if you walk too fast along uptown Bleury Street.

The yellow stucco building with miniature bay windows jutting from under the eaves, like the portrait gallery, may not suggest athletic endeavor. But they do fit the club's historical, unique personality and the exclusiveness of its membership.

OLDEST CLUB

The Montreal Racket Club is oldest of 30 around the world which maintain allegiance to the 200-year-old English game, forerunner of the more common squash rackets.

The Montreal club is the only one in Canada with a rackets court, a cement-lined room about twice the dimensions of the normal wooden-walled squash court.

Rackets is an expensive game compared to squash, hence the exclusiveness of the Montreal club's membership.

Known now as a rich man's game, rackets had humole origins. It originated in 18th-century debtors prison in England, where inmates fought boredom by batting a ball around the high prison walls.

Despite the fact that proficiency at rackets originally indicated a shady, jailbird past, the game flourished with a boost from schoolboys who took it up at Harrow.

Imported to Canada, the Montreal court was built in 1825 by British officers. Although cracks on one wall testify to its age, the court is still serviceable.

PASTIME COSTLY

To build a comparable court today would cost about $300,000, says Chantler, the Montreal club's professional since he was lured to Canada after winning the British junior professional championship in 1928 at the age of 17.

A racket costs $10 and, says Chantler, "it is nothing to break four rackets in a single game."

The ball, traditionally cloth strips wound with a binding of twine and kid leather about an inch in diameter, also is an expensively perishable plaything compared to the sturdy rubber squash ball.

A sportswriter once said of the Montreal Racket Club: "The club has 250 members and every one of them is a millionaire."

It was only a slight exaggeration.

"You have to be a person of means to play the game," Chantler concedes, adding that there hasn't been a member posted for being in arrears since 1947. "This is one reason why we don't produce more top-notch players.

"A man here doesn't usually start playing until he's got his business running and can afford it. Some don't start until they're 30, which is really too late."

START YOUNGER

Chantler, winner of the North American championship three times, points out that the United States has seven courts to Canada's one and in Britain players start younger at schools and colleges.

To fight costs, even the affluent Montreal club has taken economy measures. It has been stringing its own imported rackets and uses adhesive tape in place of kid to replace ball coverings.

A threat has appeared on another front: The city needs space for the new Avenue du Kennedy along one side of the club.

Chantler says the project would mean lopping seven feet off the court. "We could possibly give them three feet, but even would finish us." An appeal board is considering the issue.

Despite problems there is no sign among members of waning interest in the game that matches still are held against a ball that caroms wildly around the court.

"There's a terrific thrill whacking that ball," Chantler says. "It's the same kind of thrill a golfer gets when he makes a good long drive down the fairway."

ONLY THE MEMORIES — Bob Granger, 68, and living on his pension in a single room over Alberni, B.C., barber shop, has no pictures, clippings or mementoes, just the memories of when he coached Percy Williams to two gold medals at the 1928 Olympic Games in Amsterdam. The old-time coach, living alone with his dog Old Yeller, last saw Williams several years ago, although Williams lives in Vancouver, just a few hours from Alberni. (CP Photo)

British Pull Out From Union

LONDON (AP) — The British Boxing Board of Control said Tuesday it is withdrawing from the European Boxing Union, controlling body of European prize-fighting.

At the same time J. Onslow Fane, president of both bodies, said he is giving up the EBU presidency after 16 years.

Fane indicated that the main reasons for Britain's withdrawal is that national federations interested principally in amateur boxing influenced the EBU and had brought about the adoption of the amateur weight scale for professionals. The amateur weight limits for most classes are higher than those set by the World Boxing Association.

SIGN TACKLES

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders today announced the signing of two veteran tackles for the 1964 western football conference season. Reg Whitehouse, a Canadian, will be in his 13th year with the club. Import Al Benedek played the Roughriders in 1958 from Syracuse University.

Will Play Junior A Rd. Robin

MONTREAL (CP) — Three teams, Summerside, P.E.I., Ottawa Montagnards and Montreal NDG Monarchs, open a week-long double round robin series here Friday to select a challenger for Memorial Cup play.

Mickey McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, said the tournament is an experiment.

"We're trying this in hopes of solving some of our playoff problems," he said. "We always run into travelling and time problems and maybe the tournament is the answer."

The winner will go against the Ontario champion in the Eastern Canada finals for the right to challenge the West for national junior hockey honors. Memorial Cup finals will be played in the East this year.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)— Twelve teams from Mexico, Canada and the United States are entered in the 11th annual Women's Basketball Association international tournament Thursday through Saturday at Bridgeport, Conn. Defending champions are the Philadelphia Maids. The tournament is played under international rules.

POSITION REVERSED

KANSAS CITY (CP) — Joe Foss, commissioner of the American Football League, said Tuesday the New York club which was bankrupt in 1962 now leads the AFL in season ticket sales. Foss told a luncheon kicking off Kansas City Chiefs' ticket drive New York has sold over 10,000 season tickets so far. Kansas City is close to 10,000, with a goal of 20,000.

READY FOR FIGHT

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Angelo Peralta opened up with a vicious body attack in a two-round boxing workout that brought smiles to the faces of his handlers Tuesday. "He's ready," said Charley Johnston, his American manager. The 28-year-old South American meets light - heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano in a 15-round bout here Friday night.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Milwaukee Braves, who strangle their opponents, and San Francisco Giants, who club them to death, are emerging as the most formidable killers of baseball's spring training season.

Both clubs took a day off from their exhibition schedule Tuesday and the statisticians had a chance to catch up with their awesome exploits.

With a week to go until opening day, the Giants were three games clear of the nearest opposition with 31 victories in 36 starts, followed by the Braves at 15-5. Minnesota Twins, the top American League club, were no better than sixth in the overall standings with an 11-9 mark.

The Giants boasted a lineup in which only Jose Pagan, their slick-fielding shortstop, was batting under .300. Orlando Cepeda at .438 and Willie Mays at .411 were leading the parade with Willie McCovey and rookies Jesus Alou and Jim Hart all hitting more than .350.

The Braves haven't been overpowering at the plate. But with the kind of pitching they've been throwing at the opposition, fence - busting heroics haven't been necessary. No fewer than four members of their mound staff have averaged under two earned runs a game.

SPAHN MAY START

Evergreen Warren Spahn, barely two weeks away from his 44th birthday, will probably win the opening-day assignment on the strength of his 1.80 mark and a rootie-going performance last time out. Even more effective are two youngsters, Denny Lemaster at 1.23 and Bob Sadowski at 1.12.

The Milwaukee bullpen is in good hands too. Bobby Tiefenauer, a 24-year-old refugee from the minors, has given up only one earned run in 11 innings, spread over four appearances.

Cincinnati's Jim Maloney, a 23-game winner last year, covered his pitching deficiencies over an eight-ing stint Tuesday by hitting singles as the Reds downed Philadelphia Phillies 6-4. Harry Bright's two-run double in the seventh gave New York Yankees 4-3 victory in their rubber game with Los Angeles Dodgers.

New York Mets' five-run rally in the ninth inning fell short as they lost 8-5 to Kansas City Athletics and Bob Allison's bases-loaded single in the ninth gave Minnesota Twins a 4-3 edge over Washington Senators.

Despite six perfect innings from Vernon Law, Pittsburgh Pirates yielded an unearned run in the 10th inning and lost 3-2 to St. Louis Cardinals. Mickey Lolich went all the way scattering nine hits and striking out 11 as Detroit Tigers whipped Houston Colts 4-1.

Four unearned runs gave Chicago Cubs a 4-2 decision over Boston Red Sox. Los Angeles Angels shaded Cleveland Indians 3-2 and Chicago White Sox downed Baltimore Orioles 3-1.

FIRE FEARED

Liston-Clay Fight Will Be Shown Sat. on ABC Show

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television is going to show the controversial Liston - Clay fight. ABC will present it next Saturday afternoon on its Wide World of Sports show.

The film of the six - round heavyweight championship bout last Feb. 25 was made for showing in motion picture theatres. It is not, however, the blow-by-blow tape of the battle seen by paying customers on a closed-circuit telecast of the fight.

CBS news raided the NBC news department and hired Martin Agronsky, the Washington-based reporter who has been seen most often interviewing political figures on the Today Show.

CBS said Agronsky would appear regularly as reporter and news analyst and also would be used by CBS Reports.

CBS Reports plans a two-part series on French President Charles de Gaulle, the first to be shown April 29 and the second a week later.

Recommended Tonight:

CBS Reports, 7:30-8:30 EST, columnist Walter Lippman is interviewed by Eric Sevareid on the state of the world.

Social Hostess Paid $25,000 Yearly Salary

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A redhaired divorcee testified in federal bankruptcy court Monday that she was on the personal payroll of bankrupt vegetable oil king Anthony DeAngelis as a social hostess at a salary of $25,000 a year.

Mrs. Lillian Pascarelli of Tenafly, N.J., was called to testify before federal Bankruptcy Referee William H. Tallyn after DeAngelis refused to testify about his personal assets.

Mrs. Pascarelli said she had been employed by DeAngelis for three, to four years, until the bankruptcy of his Allied Crude Vegetable Oil Refining Corporation.

She said her duties with DeAngelis were to help entertain wives of businessmen with whom he had dealings in sales of oils and fats. She said that she made five to seven trips to Europe with him in the course of that business, always to Spain.

The collapse of the Allied corporation, of which DeAngelis was president, has touched off a multi-million-dollar vegetable oil scandal and been followed by the bankruptcy of a number of other firms.

Public Land To Cost Metro $10,200,000

TORONTO (CP)—The Metropolitan Toronto government will be hit with a $10,200,000 bill for 40 to 60 acres of public land it thought it was going to get for almost nothing, Metro authorities said Monday.

It will cause a sharp increase in the cost of the Gardiner Expressway, being constructed on the land and along the Toronto water front, and require Metro to apply to the Ontario Municipal Board for authority to spend more money on the road project.

The land was originally expected to be donated is owned by the Toronto harbor commissioners and the City of Toronto.

Metro Road Commissioner George Grant said a report is made to metro council in 1954, estimating the cost of acquiring right-of-way for the project, did not include the value of publicly-owned lands and it was assumed they would be donated to the project.

He said the estimated cost of construction of the expressway now has risen to $103,500,000 from the $95,000,000 predicted in 1958.

Say Dispatcher Is Using Bad Language

LONDON (AP) — Television viewers complained today that a sorrowful girl named Edna and her taxi-driving boy friends are interrupting their programs with too sexy, two-way radio conversations.

"I don't know who this Edna is," said Mrs. Antony White, 39. "But she must be having a high old time. The language is unrepeatable."

Edna apparently is a dispatcher for a taxi company in the nearby town of Harlow. The company uses two-way radio communications between headquarters and the cabs, and Edna's traffic is spilling over into the BBC's frequencies.

"I was so shocked by the torrent of bad language that I tried to find this Edna," said Mrs. White's husband. "No local taxi firm would admit to employing anyone called Edna."

George Cummings, owner of one of Harlow's six taxi firms, said the name was trying to locate Edna — "the language they use is foul and it's giving the taxi drivers of Harlow a bad name."

AT THE BELLE — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in a romantic scene from 20th Century-Fox's DeLuxe Color spectacle, "Cleopatra", which also stars Rex Harrison, opening Tomorrow, Thursday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE PARK — Tom Tryon in the title role and Romy Schneider are among the stars of Otto Preminger's "The Cardinal." 6 academy award nominations and now at the Park Theatre and held over for its second week in Panavision and Technicolor. Based on the Henry Morton Robinson best-seller, "The Cardinal" cast also includes Carol Lynley, Jill Haworth, Raf Vallone, Josef Meinard, Burgess Meredith, Ossie Davis, John Saxon, Dorothy Gish, Tullio Carminati, Maggie McNamara, Bill Hayes, Cecil Kellaway, John Huston as Cardinal Glennon and Bobby (Morse) and his Adore-Belles, tonight, Thursday and Friday. One showing only at 8.15 p.m. Saturday Three Showings — 2.00, 5.00 and 8.15 p.m.

Eddie Fisher on Comeback Trail and Working Hard

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Two broken marriages have put Eddie Fisher into the floodtide of publicity, so much publicity that the public was losing track of the fact that he continues to work as a singer.

To overcome that situation, Fisher is on the comeback trail —running hard.

"I work hard at singing now," he says. "Before, I didn't. I didn't come up the hard way. I was lucky. I went up the ladder without too many hard knocks. I used to just go through the motions. Now I go through the emotions."

Fisher's activities have been overshadowed by the fantastic amount of attention focused on the romance and marriage of his second wife, Elizabeth Taylor, and actor Richard Burton. But this, he says, doesn't bother him.

He's going ahead with career plans as though Burton and Liz do not exist.

MARRIED DEBBIE

Eddie, now 35, burst on the singing scene in 1950 at 22. His rich tenor-baritone voice quickly flooded American homes. He had his own radio and television shows.

Then in 1955, bachelor Fisher married actress Debbie Reynolds in an ideal Hollywood love match. They had two children. The ideal match ended when he comforted Miss Taylor, who was widowed when Mike Todd was killed in a plane crash.

Fisher and Miss Taylor married in 1959. In 1962, she began working with Burton with whom she co-starred in Cleopatra in 1962.

Fisher remained silent, but finally announced it was all over between him and Miss Taylor.

SECOND CHANCE

"I've been through a couple of lives," he says. "I've been given a second chance. I think I'm on the right track now, and I'm going to try to stay on it."

Fisher is busy with business as well as singing. He has his own recording company, plans to perform in television specials and movies. He also plans a concert tour in nightclubs and auditoriums.

Will he marry again?

"My inclination is to remain a bachelor," he confesses. "By striking out twice, I've learned I can't see myself married in the foreseeable future. Anything can happen, but I don't think marriage will. I'm very very happy with my life. If only a few of my dreams come true, I'll consider myself lucky."

'Jest a Second'

"I'm going to call it 'Portrait of my Parents'!"

Singer at Age of 74 Plans To Marry, Hunt Bears

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I have lived alone for a year and I have not liked it. So I thought I should have a companion for my sunset years."

Lauritz Melchior was talking about his marriage May 23 to Mary Markham, 40, a television producer who once was his secretary.

Melchior, 74, seemed a long way from sunset. His girth is still Wagnerian—he and his future bride agree he'll be dieting —and his rich tenor can still ring to the rafters.

Further evidence of his youthfulness was offered by Miss Markham, a pretty blonde, with mock complaint: "We'll have a week's honeymoon in Hawaii and then he's going to leave me to hunt ice bear in Norway and Greenland."

Melchior added: "After hunting ice bear, I look forward to coming back to a warm home.'

PLANS FOR HOUSE

He is involved in plans to refurbish his Rubelhaud Drive home, so it will fit his new family. His bride-to-be has a three-year-old son, also named Lauritz, by a previous marriage.

"The boy and I get along fine," said Melchior, himself a grandfather, "but then, I have always liked children. It runs in my family. My grandfather and father ran one of the best boys' schools in Denmark."

Melchior's singing activity has slowed down in recent years. He began singing opera in 1913. At the Metropolitan Opera House alone he performed 312 times.

PRESENTS TALENT

Over the last 13 years, The E. Sullivan Show has presented more than 10,000 performers at a talent cost of more than $20,000,000.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Leslie Caron, Red Buttons, Edmund Purdom in "Marco the Magnificent", 1.30 - 7.00 - 9.20.

AT THE PARK — In Technicolor and Panavision, "The Cardinal", Tom Tryon, Romy Schneider, John Huston, 8.15 p.m. Box office opens 7.15 p.m.

CHURCH SERVICE HELD

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A special church service held at the international snowmobile competition here March 1 has served the promoters of the event from being charged under the Lord's Day Act, Rev. T. Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 9

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Check past resolutions regarding health, rest. Avoid going to extremes. Trying to force issues will create unnecessary tension. Good tonight to visit one who requires "cheering up."

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Analyze emotions. Play "hard to get." Don't "wear heart on sleeve." Make decisions based on facts . . . otherwise, there could be embarrassment. Being reticent is best course today.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Advance career, personal ambitions by listening rather than talking. No day to fight those in authority. Key is diplomacy. You will eventually get your way if you are patient.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): Favorable lunar aspect highlights problem-making ideas, journeys. You will succeed by breaking out of rut. You can gain attention by making "offbeat" suggestions. Stress individuality. Be original.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 21): Conflict concerning finances will be avoided if you follow hunch. Heed inner voice. You know what is right. But many try to talk you into some other action. Adhere to convictions.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your greatest asset today is sense of humor. One close to you may be "touchy." Know this, act accordingly. Take special care where partnerships, legal questions enter picture.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Conflict indicated. Burden of proof rests with "opposition." Don't attempt to justify actions. Permit record to speak for itself in personal life, show consideration for loved one.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Personal magnetism rating high. Your personality due to attract many — including members of opposite sex, charming, dynamic. Highlight creative abilities, greater enjoyment of life.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Concentrate on security. Choose course which holds best advantage in future. Bypass shortcut methods. Be selective. Highlight quality. Applies also to choice of friends.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Take special care where correspondence, journeys are concerned. Bit of extra caution could save money, time. Quiet reflection necessary. See persons, situations as they actually exist.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Accept added responsibility .But also insist on authority to carry out assignments. In personal life, be frank. Intelligent talk can clear the air. Keep mind open for suggestions.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Opposition may not be clear but you can overcome it. Key is being agile, flexible. Day to finish projects. Strive to improve "image." Adhere to principles of Golden Rule. Stress diplomacy.

If today is your birthday . . . you are fine administrator, are attracted to hospital, library work — to actively connected with philanthropic organizations.

General Tendencies: Day when "establishment" is shaken.

The Frontier Recedes in NWT

By JOHN WARREN

HIGH LEVEL, Alta. (CP)—In the vast area between Peace River, Alta., and Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories there is unmistakable evidence that a frontier is being pushed back.

It is here in the form of new mills, grain elevators, oil drilling rigs, service stations and tourist accommodations, a year-round highway, a railroad under construction and thousands of acres of freshly cleared farmland.

Such men as 60 - year - old Hank Thompson can best describe the changes they are helping make in the developing North.

"Twenty years ago I hauled gunpowder and shot to the Indians at High Lakes (in the wilderness 350 miles northwest of Edmonton). Hardly any of them used shotgun shells then. They used to trap and fish and live off the best goose - hunting in the world.

"Now they want money. They get it for brushing and burning (clearing) new homestead land and for working construction."

Mr. Thompson's one eye sparkles when he recalls the fortunes and misfortunes that have befallen him since he first came to the North as a trapper in 1929 "and found out I wasn't very good at it."

HAS OWN PLANE

Today he owns six pieces of heavy equipment a one eye squadron and construction work, an airplane and a strip to land it on, a comfortable home-trailer, two farms—and a set of false teeth and glass eye he wears "only when I'm going out."

He lost his eye from a .22 rifle blow up in his face.

High Level, 410 miles northwest of Edmonton, is his present home. It has a population of about 300, with both highway and railway service. It even has what Hank Thompson believes is the only airport level crossing in the country—where the Great Slave Lake Railway cuts across the taxi strip between his runway and fuel tanks.

Twenty years ago "there was nothing here," not even a bend in the rough and lonely track that became the Mackenzie Highway.

"We used to do 90 miles a day and take two weeks' lunch, an eiderdown sleeping bag and an axe for the 380 - mile trip from Peace River to Hay River, N.W.T.

"I took the first load of fish out of Great Slave Lake in 1947. I made $800 for five tons of whitefish and trout."

That was four years after the first primitive road was cut through the bush to Hay River.

LIFE GETTING SOFT

Hank Thompson admits life is getting pretty soft in the area and suggests the kind of people who cleared the first land and started the first businesses will be moving on farther north.

"One of the great attractions of the North was always that you could start with nothing. In other places you had to buy out somebody else to get started. It's getting that way here now.

"A person can have all the comforts that he used to be deprived of in the North. Look at here. We getting a government land office, court house, forestry department offices and treasury branch. The new hotel is filled and the oil companies are everywhere."

Work has begun on two pizing mills here, one of them designed to produce 20,000,000 board feet a year.

Other examples of the startling pace of development are High Level's new hotel, a new school, curling rink and a bank.

Owen Jordan, who operates the $250,000 hotel which has a 100-seat tavern and will contain 34 rooms when completed, says High Level's location "can't be beat."

GOOD FOR FARMING

He says agricultural officials report High Level is at the centre of 6,000,000 arable acres, from which was truck-hauled 130 miles to Manning for rail shipment last fall will be hauled in elevators at High Level this year and shipped south on the new Great Slave Lake Railway.

The railway has cut as much as 30 cents a bushel from the cost of hauling grain by truck and is responsible for a similar decrease in lumber shipping costs.

There are seven big drilling rigs and an equal number of seismograph crews in the High Level area and dozens more along the route from here to Hay River in the south shore of Great Slave Lake.

A Peace River catering firm, Fortier - Northey, is providing food at 108 camps from Fort McMurray, Alta., to Aklavik, N.W.T., an indication of the amount of work being done in the northwest.

Trucker Henry Dillman of Manning says there are between 400 and 500 new farms along the northern route, cut out of the bush by homesteaders in the last two years.

All this doesn't happen overnight, however. And Rev. Alexander Costa, an effervescent little Roman Catholic priest whose diocese runs 120 miles along the Mackenzie Highway from Meander River to the territorial border, can attest to that.

"I don't have any idea how many people are in it," he says. "Much of my work is done with hammer, nails and plywood. I spend more time patching cabin walls than I do in the work I'm here for."

Father Costa covers his diocese in a pickup truck loaded with a strange assortment of gear that includes a gasoline drums, a pump, a sleeping bag, medicine chest, movie projector, propane stove, tool kit and in the building.

The Italian-born priest converses with his parishioners in a variety of Indian dialects, the major ones being Slavey and Cree.

He stopped for a chat while en route to Indian Cabins, a settlement of about 30 small buildings squatting near the highway. He was to show movies that night in the Hudson's Bay Company store which has been converted to a church and community centre. But first he had to install a new propane stove

'United Canada' Plea Of Balcer, Diefenbaker

Canada Said in Danger Of Falling Asunder

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and his Quebec lieutenant, Leon Balcer, joined Wednesday night in calling for a united Canada and in rejecting the results of last week's federal - provincial conference.

"Canada stands in gravest danger of falling asunder" because of the federal government's weakness at the conference, Mr. Diefenbaker told a Progressive Conservative party rally of about 400 in Montreal's Notre - Dame - de - Grace constituency.

"Never before in Canadian history have federal-provincial relations been in such bad shape," Mr. Balcer added.

It was the first time the two speakers had appeared on a public platform together since Mr. Balcer, MP for Trois-Rivieres, was defeated Quebec lieutenant of the party leader.

For Mr. Balcer, the rally was the first in a series of public appearances he plans to make across Quebec. He spoke mainly in French, Mr. Diefenbaker in English.

SEES FAILURE

The opposition leader referred to the federal-provincial conference as "the Pearson government's greatest failure."

Federal delegates spoke "in weak and quivering accents" because they had nothing to offer the provinces—"no alternatives to their principles of centralization."

The Conservative party stood for the preservation of Confederation—"the building of one Canada while maintaining unchallengable the rights of the provinces under the British North America Act."

Mr. Pearson had told the conference in effect that he believes in the principle of the provinces opting out of joint federal-provincial projects.

This was bound to result in "a new Canada, a Canada divided instead of united, a Canada that cannot discharge the hopes of its founders."

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson declined Wednesday to pin the obstructionist label on the Progressive Conservative opposition.

However, he said at a press conference he isn't optimistic about how long it will take to get parliamentary action on his minority government's legislative program.

He urged that the political parties in the Commons get together to allocate the length of time for debate on the various government proposals.

Mr. Pearson, marking the anniversary of last April's election which brought his government to power, ran down a long list of items still to be acted on.

The 45-minute press conference ranged over a wide variety of subjects. Among other things, Mr. Pearson made these observations:

1. Federal and provincial governments were working together to find solutions to their problems and "I'm sure it can be done without destroying Canada."

GIVES PROBABLE DATES

2. Byelections to fill vacant seats in Nipissing, in Ontario and Saskatoon, probably will be held around June 29.

3. He wouldn't confirm—nor would he deny—that the government may lift the exemption proposed for Time and Reader's Digest to tax measures aimed at protecting Canadian periodicals from competition for advertising revenue from foreign periodicals.

4. He didn't agree with articles in the London Times that the Commonwealth has become a "Europe farce." The Commonwealth association was valued by the government and it provided great opportunities for the future.

5. He declined comment on reports that Liberal colleagues object want to set up their own association separate from their provincial Liberal colleagues.

6. The government is satisfied the directives given the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus would permit the force to carry out its task. It would be inappropriate to make the operational directives public. It is working with the other UN peacekeeping forces.

LIPPMANN PREDICTS

NEW YORK (AP)—Columnist Walter Lippmann says the Republican party probably will nominate Richard M. Nixon or Henry Cabot Lodge for president but may turn to Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania. Lippmann said Wednesday night on a television interview ("CBS reports") that Scranton is "the man I think has the greatest promise as a public man in the coming years."

SEAWAY OPENS — The Carol Lake, a 715-foot carrier loaded with 400,000 bushels of grain destined for the Soviet Union, was the first vessel to move through the Seaway Locks at Massena yesterday as the St. Lawrence Seaway opened its 1964 navigation season. The opening was the earliest in the five-year history of the giant waterway. (AP Wirephoto)

Clearing Tables For Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — After nibbling on supplementary estimates for two weeks there were indications the Commons might begin chomping through the remaining items today to clear the tables for the Canada Pension Plan.

With another detailed-bottled day of estimates behind them, three opposition parties came out in favor of completion today. There was no official agreement from fourth party, the Conservatives. But some party members said later there likely will be a burst of speed with remaining items.

If the Commons can polish off the final portion of $240,000,000 worth of estimates for the fiscal year that ended March 31, the legislation for the controversial Canada Pension Plan would be next on the menu. That bulky bill will offer the chamber many an hour of work;

Canadians Bringing Peace To Cyprus Wherever They Go

KAZAPHANI (CP) — Canadians seem to bring peace to Cyprus wherever they go.

As soon as the Royal Canadian Dragoons moved into the western villages of Cyprus this week — they had 12 armored scout cars there Wednesday — hilltop fighting stopped.

All has been peaceful, also, in the "areas patrolled by the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, in Nicosia's suburbs and in the mountains near the Kyrenian Pass.

Things have reached the stage where Lieut. Michael Bernard of Valcartier, Que., plans to try to get Greek - Turk fraternization through movies in this northern foothills village overlooking the Mediterranean.

"As soon as it gets warm enough in the evenings we'll set up our movies in the street and see if both Greeks and Turks will come," he said Wednesday.

"But at the start my men will have to sit between them."

Kazaphani is one of the few villages, if not the only one, in Cyprus where Greeks and Turks both live, though divided by a street through the centre.

"They aren't talking to each other but they aren't shooting each other either."

Greek and Turkish children are not permitted by their parents to play together in the village.

Maj. Patrice Tremblay of Chicoutimi, Que., commander of Company Van Doos, said he is trying to get school reopened. He failed in his original attempt to achieve a meeting between Greek and Turkish elders here but plans to try again.

Van Doos in this area have been swimming and they walk out in Kyrenia unarmed when off duty.

Tuesday, they used helicopters for mountain training and today will land on mountain ridges to carry out patrols instead of making the tiring climb of foot.

Members of Bernard's platoon experimented with donkey riding Wednesday. The donkey was loaned by a villager for the afternoon.

Van Doos are continuing to keep a daytime watch on an air-

Living Costs Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian living costs rose to record levels in February, with the consumer price index at March 1 advancing one-tenth of a point to 134.8 from 134.5 a month earlier.

The bureau of statistics said today that the rise was caused by higher prices for housing, clothing and transportation. All other components in the index remained unchanged.

The index — yardstick of urban living costs — is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

At March 1, the index was 2.5 points above the index for the corresponding date in 1963.

The February rise followed an increase in industrial wages during January. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Feb. 1—latest date available—was 197.8, compared with 180 a month earlier and 190.9 a year earlier.

BASED ON 1949

This index, also based on 1949 levels equalling 100, represents an average of total wages paid by firms employing more than 15 persons in a wide range of industries.

Increases for both shelter and household operation pushed the housing index to 137.5 from 137.2.

The household operation index rose .3 per cent mainly due to higher prices for furniture, floor coverings and textiles.

A wide range of factors increased the transportation index to 143 from 142.6. They included an increase in gasoline and substantially higher licence plate fees.

The clothing index was unchanged at 121.3.

Other indexes which remained unchanged were health and personal care at 163.4, recreation and reading at 152.3, and tobacco and alcohol at 119.4.

Army Private Shot Premier

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Times of India reported today that a Communist army private has confessed assassinating the premier of the Himalayan state of Sikkim.

In a dispatch from Phuntsoling, the Himalayan town where Prime Minister Jigme Dorji was killed by a single bullet last Sunday night, the newspaper said the shot was fired by Jambay Dukpa, 45. His motive was not reported.

Dukpa was arrested Wednesday in Tala, 10 miles from the scene of the assassination, the dispatch said.

Striking Belgian Doctors Confer With Minister

CP from AP-Reuters

BRUSSELS—Belgium's striking doctors made contact with the government today for the first time since walkouts by them started nine days ago, raising hopes that a solution might be on the way.

Interior Minister Arthur Gilson sat down with leaders of the 12,000 physicians and dentists. Both sides minimized the importance of the meeting, saying it dealt chiefly with emergency medical arrangements that are functioning during the strike.

Robarts Will Announce Plans For Ontario Centennial Project

TORONTO (CP)—Plans for a multi-million dollar centennial project to be undertaken by Ontario will be announced soon by Premier Robarts, it was learned today.

The project, still secret, was decided upon this week by the provincial government's six - member committee studying the part Ontario will play in Canada's centennial observation in 1967.

The Ontario project will be separate from those planned by individual municipalities in the province. To date about 30 Ontario cities have submitted proposals to the government for local projects.

Premier Robarts likely will announce Ontario's plans after the legislature resumes its sitting next week. The total cost is expected to be well in excess of $5,000,000.

MacArthur Charged Perfidy
Thought British Relayed Views to Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Two time and it is unthinkable that 10 - year - old interviews with Douglas MacArthur published as the general lay in state in the Capitol rotunda have revived memories of the bitter Korean War dispute which ended his military career.

The interviews were given in January, 1954, to Bob Considine of Hearst Headline Service and to James G. Lucas of Scripps - Howard Newspapers and were withheld until MacArthur's death. They were published in copyrighted stories Wednesday.

In a memoir on the interview Lucas quoted MacArthur as blaming British "perfidy" and Washington "harassment and interference" for failure to contain Communists in Korea.

The Lucas story said MacArthur became convinced he was the victim of a conspiracy in which the state department was showing his communications with Washington to the British who in turn relayed these to the Chinese Reds.

British embassy spokesman denied the charge, saying: "British Commonwealth troops were serving in Korea at the British government would endanger the lives of their own troops by passing information to the Communist Chinese as alleged."

A state department spokesman declined comment "on this purported statement" by Mac-

'Complete Nonsense' - - Attlee

LONDON (CP) — Earl Attlee, Britain's prime minister during the Korean War, said today that accusations of British treachery attributed to Gen. Douglas MacArthur were "complete nonsense and perfectly ridiculous."

"Why on earth should we want to do a thing like that?" Attlee said. The Labor peer recalled at his country home near London that "our troops also were fighting in the Korean war."

The foreign office declined to comment officially on the report. A senior official said the charges of British perfidy were "so palpably absurd as not to warrant an official comment."

Attlee recalled that he went to Washington in 1950 because he was concerned that a danger of extending a war from Korea to an all-out war between America and China.

At that time MacArthur wanted to bomb Chinese supply lines in China.

Attlee said he wanted to avoid a war against the Chinese in China.

"It would have been fighting with the wrong enemy at the wrong time," he said. "It would have left Russia's hand quite free if America were bogged down in China."

spreading of a huge bed of radioactive cobalt across the northern frontier that battle scarred land."

Considine quoted MacArthur as saying:

"Of all the campaigns of my life . . . one I felt most sure of was the one I was deprived of waging. I could have won the war in Korea, in a maximum of 10 days, with considerably fewer casualties than we suffered in the so-called 'truce period . . .

"The enemy's air (power) would (then) have been destroyed. I would have dropped between 30 to 50 atomic bombs on his air bases and other depots strung across the neck of Manchuria. . . ."

The Hearst writer also quoted MacArthur as saying he almost convinced President Eisenhower Dwight D. Eisenhower Dec. 11, 1952, to adopt a undisclosed plan by MacArthur to end the cold war but was frustrated by the late John Foster Dulles who was to become Eisenhower's secretary of state.

Ontario Likely Will Opt Out Of Federal Plan

Robarts Sets Record Clear in Statement

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Wednesday Ontario would be surrendering its constitutional position as a province if it participated in the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

In a speech widely interpreted as setting the record clear once and for all that Ontario will stay out of the federal pension scheme, Mr. Robarts made these points in favor of a separate Ontario plan:

1. Canada's constitution, the British North America Act, gives the provinces the right to pass legislation in the pension field.

2. By having a plan of its own, Ontario would have complete control over any future alterations to retirement benefits for the people of the province.

3. Ontario would have complete control over 100 per cent of the monies built up in a pension fund through contributions, to be used for investment. (The federal government has offered 50 per cent control).

4. Through its broader legislative powers in the pensions field, Ontario could provide superior benefits to those offered in the federal scheme.

5. An Ontario plan could provide pensions that would be portables to other parts of the country where the Canada Pension Plan was in effect.

These points were outlined in a speech by the premier to a Canadian Club luncheon. Later, he said Ontario as yet has made no decision to remain outside of the federal plan, scheduled to come into effect in January, 1965.

"This will involve repealing that portion of the existing legislation in Ontario dealing with minimum pensions, and this we have authority to do."

By repealing the provisions of the pension benefits act setting minimum plans for pensions, the government would clear the way for introducing public pension legislation, or for participating in the federal plan.

Premier Robarts declared any intent on his part to block the Canada Pension Plan.

"I have been concerned many times of scuttling the Canada Pension Plan," he said. "I think it is now evident that I have no intended, nor have I done so."

He said that if Ontario was to establish its own plan, the legislation would be "most carefully devised to fit Ontario and only with other government plans, but to the many private pension plans presently in existence."

A provincial plan would provide better benefits, especially in the fields of disability, survivorship, between man and wife, orphans and children, Mr. Robarts said.

He emphasized the province would have available for investment in Ontario 100 per cent of the funds that would be accumulated from contributions to a provincial plan.

"It seems to me only fair and right that we should consider the advantages that will accrue to us in having these funds available," he said.

Would Give Canada New Route

by HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — A mammoth water and power proposal that would create 4,000,000 new jobs, give Canada a new water route from the Pacific Ocean to the Great Lakes and boost Niagara Falls power by 50 per cent is to be studied by a new U.S. Senate subcommittee seeking ways of diverting more North American water to the parched areas of the southwestern United States.

"Unless Arizona, for example, gets more water, it will wither and die," Senator Frank Moss, Utah Democrat, said in an interview Wednesday as he gave the basic ideas behind an unprecedented water diversion plan that would require outlays of more than $100,000,000,000 during a 20 - year period. This money would be repaired through the sale of water and power.

An equivalent $100,000,000,000 also would be spent on facilities to put the new water supplies to use—creating a vast new capital market for more than $200,000,000,000 in manpower and supplies.

W NTS SURPLUS

Devised by Ralph M. Parsons Company, a Los Angeles engineering firm, the proposal envisages the collection of surplus water from the Yukon, Peace, Columbia, Fraser and Athabasca rivers and redistributing them to the parched areas through a system of reservoirs, canals, tunnels and rivers the huge Rocky Mountain trench would be 200 miles long.

The estimated costs, described by the firm as "very preliminary," would include digging a new ship waterway to connect Vancouver to the Great Lakes at Duluth on Lake Superior, reducing the need for many locks on ships to use the Panama Canal. The increased water flow through the lakes would boost Niagara power by 50 per cent.

More trenches, channels and reservoirs would take water down from the northern areas to the U.S. and Mexico, bringing all three countries meet water, power and irrigation needs.

A federal reclamation bureau official, asked whether the U.S. government would consider such a project feasible, replied that it might, but suggested the Parsons company project may be more complicated than reality. Southern California and Arizona are fighting over division of Colorado River water and the proposal may be a California threat to force Arizona into some form of acceptable compromise.

France Will Not Initiate Drive To Give Red China Seat in UN

CP from Reuters-AP

TOKYO — Visiting French Premier Georges Pompidou said today President Charles de Gaulle will initiate in seeking a seat for Red China at the United Nations this fall.

Pompidou, in Japan for regular consultations with Japanese leaders, also said it had become necessary for France to send her own representatives to Peking to understand the situation.

Pompidou said France would not sell nuclear weapons, either for cash or deferred payments to Communist China.

He told a press conference here that before the split, it was "absolutely necessary" for France to send her own representatives to Peking to understand the situation.

Eastern Ont. Concert Group Presents Splendid Program

By EUGENE LANG

A good-sized audience was present at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium last evening to hear the second Belleville appearance of the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra under the direction of Stephen Choma as sponsored by the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E.

This group of nearly forty amateur musicians ranging in age from early teens to the seventh decade have one purpose in mind, namely to play together and to give of their very best musical talents both individually and collectively. The varying abilities of the players, whether of the elementary degree of proficiency or professional calibre have all been hewed, chiseled, carved and shaped into a co-ordinated entity under the guidance of Mr. Choma that shows a continual improvement of this orchestra each time they are heard over the space of the four years that they have been in existence.

The choice of numbers last evening was all inclusive from the light popular favorites to the excerpts from the heavier classics. Rossini's overture to "Rosemunde" Overture was the curtain raiser that brought the full orchestra into play this being followed by Ketelby's nostalgic "In a Monastery Garden," both selections being handled very well by the players, even though the tympani seemed to get mixed up in the former piece.

The excerpts from the "Pathetique" Symphony of Tschaikowsky was pleasing, but did not live too well as regards tempo indications, the closing motives of the first movement extending the tempo overly hurried, to mention only one instance. The Vivaldi movement was quite smoothly articulated by the strings throughout its course as were the Handel, Schubert and Brahms offerings, the interpretation of the Schubert being the least polished of these last numbers with raspiness showing up here and there. Grieg's Anderson's rhythmic "The Syncopated Clock" concluded the first half of the concert in a frothy and carefree rendition.

The "Symphonette" of Pleyel was a lovely little work well played except the violins were guilty of dragging in the second section of the same. The "Entrance of the Sirdar" by Ippolitov-Ivanov from his "Caucasian Sketches" was admirably conveyed by all choirs of the orchestra in a convincing realization under Mr. Choma's able direction. Erikson's "Little Suite" for Orchestra demonstrated fine intonation and blending in the brass section of the group. Haydn's "Toy Symphony" with its added instruments such as rattles, toy flutes, etc., was a delight both for the audience to listen to and it seemed also for the orchestra to perform -- everyone got a lift out of the delightful little 18th century caricature. Too bad that the celesta player had so much trouble in the cuckoo call -- a better luck next time. The concluding "Humanina Overture" by Isaac was handled with power and fervor, and again gave everyone a chance to get into the musical picture, even allowing the Concertmaster, Mrs. Marion Stratton two short violin cadenzas within its scope.

TWO GUEST ARTISTS

The two guest artists of the concert are well known to Belleville audiences and as usual received hearty applause at the end of each of their selections. I am referring to Robert and Hardman Reid, tenor and soprano. In their three duets with the pens of Jerome Kern and George Gershwin they proved mellisonant and in perfect balance. In their two solo selections both Robert and Hardman endeared themselves to the listeners by their vocalisations of "Ol' Man River" and "Danny Boy." We could have had an encore from them. They never fail to give excellent accounts of their vocal talents, and last night's example was no exception. They were accompanied at the keyboard by Corrie Bergsma.

POOR LIGHTING

The only carp we could make and this is getting to be a habit, is the poor lighting that was recently appears on the B.C.I. stage does so in darkness. Both the Concert Group and soloists performed in semi-darkness. This was true of the R.C.A.F. band also, but also surely some kind of lighting can be arrived at that the main participants in a musical event can be seen. Maybe a toned down spot light or perhaps a couple of the panels of the footlights could be exposed. Anything would be better than seeing the performers in the semi-gloom of a stage that isn't even properly lit.

Mr. Ralph Zillis, Regent of St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E., introduced the orchestra and Mr. Choma and the Belleville before the concert began as well as giving a brief resume of the aims and principles of this most worthwhile, organization. We hope that this now turns out to be an annual affair. It was enjoyable, both for the listeners and definitely it was a joy for all of the musicians to demonstrate their abilities at their respective instruments.

The soloists and orchestra were entertained in the College Cafeteria by this sponsoring Chapter at the conclusion of the concert.

Y's Activities

So-Ed's three - part program (social, educational, and recreational) went into its regular swing last night with about 45 young men and women in attendance.

For the first hour the So-Ed Club had given an insight into Criminal Law. Next week Thomas J. Lally, a Belleville lawyer, educational, and member of Wills and the Problems of Property." Owners. The club was then kept of parachute jumping by John Burdrow and Don Wise, Vice President of the Prince Edward Sky-Diving Club.

Such subjects as astronomy, funerals, and alcohol will be the topics of future guest speakers. A delegate from the African Students Foundation will be present on May 6.

The remaining half of the evening after refreshments was spent in dancing. At one point, instruction was given in the Fox-trot and Polka by Frank Mauro, and experienced dancing instructor from the Arthur Murray Studios.

Wolf Population On Increase In County

The wolf population in Hastings county is on the increase.

At least more wolves are being trapped or killed, and that seems to be an indication.

County Clerk-Treasurer Carl Hemmell told councillors yesterday that more wolf bounty was being paid by the county each year and that the increased indication it would be up again this year.

Reeve Clarence Graham of Hungerford township wondered how many townships paid an extra bounty. Reeve Allen Reynolds out that Marmora and Lake, Rawdon, Huntingdon and Hungerford also paid bounty.

"I was just wondering if there was any possibility that dead wolves were being carried over the township boundaries," commented Reeve Graham.

The wolf killed in the county so far this year have been killed in Hungerford township, returned the clerk-treasurer.

Rosicrucians Name Officers

The re-enactment of a ceremony that began in ancient Egypt over forty centuries ago was the highlight of a local Rosicrucian conclave held in Belleville recently.

The ceremonial rites of the Egyptian New Year was celebrated by a symbolic feat. As the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, a non-religious but philosophical fraternity, maintains that its traditional origin occurred during the reign of Amenhotep IV, in 1350 B.C., the order commemorates this ancient New Year with a ceremony that embraces the allegorical significance of the spring equinox rite.

New officers of the local Rosicrucian organization who will be installed are: Joe Dullage, master; Ethel Hazard secretary, and Audrey Hart, guardian.

The ceremony and conclave was held at the Eastern Star room of the Masonic Temple in Belleville.

Truck Driver Given Chance to Get Legal Aid

A truck driver, whose cement mixer was hit by a freight train on Friday the thirteenth, today was given time to get a lawyer's advice on a careless driving charge.

The extension came after Magistrate T. Y. Wills was told the truck company's lawyer withdrawn his offer of legal aid for Arsenault Arsenault.

"At the last moment they backed down," said acting crown attorney Tom Lally.

"When was the last movement?" queried the magistrate.

"Yesterday."

Arsenault was charged after the mishap on March 13 in which the tanker was rammed by the train at the CNR Wallbridge Road level crossing.

"I'll have to plead guilty," Arsenault told the magistrate today.

"You don't have to," advised the magistrate. "There is no urgency on this . . . I think you'd better give it a little thought and take some advice."

The case was adjourned to April 30.

County's Tax Rate Will Remain Same as Last Year

Hastings county will hold the tax line in 1964.

That was the decision by the county fathers yesterday when the county mill rate for this year was set at the same figure as last year.

The general county rate will remain at 13.5 mills, while the county road rate (applicable only in the southern nine townships), will also remain the same, at 8.5 mills.

Debenture costs for the county will be down slightly because of increased assessment and this year will be .378 mill.

Total expenditures of the county for 1964 are estimated at $1,408,272, of which $612,472 will be raised by local levy.

Finance chairman Gerald Irvine of Sidney township, commended county committee chairmen in "holding the fort" for the year.

"In this day and age it is something to be able for a municipality to hold its levy and still carry on," he said.

WILL RAISE RESERVE

Aside from normal expenditures, this year's county level will raise $100,000 as a reserve for possible costs in the connection with the new extension to Belleville General Hospital.

Reeve Irvine noted that this month will see the final payment of $49,500 as the county's share of the cost of the new court house and administration building.

However, he said that rather than try to reduce the county rate, the finance committee felt it wiser to keep the rate constant and thus decrease the amount required for hospital purposes when the new county levy comes due.

General government this year will cost the county an estimated $65,000; law enforcement $174,052; roads $582,102; public welfare, $301,500, and "other items," including the $100,000 hospital reserve, $224,760, for a total estimated expenditure of $1,408,272.

TO BLOW BUGLES

BELVOIR CASTLE, England (CP)—Two bugles that sounded the charge of the Light Brigade at the Battle of Balaclava in the Crimean War are to be blown again. Their sound will mark the opening of a museum for the "Death and Glory Boys," the 17th and 21st Lancers.

IN MEMORIAM

GRAY — In loving memory of my husband Fred J. Gray of Plainfield who passed away April 9th, a year ago today.
Memory is a golden chain
At the end of the road.
Through which must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see,
Our Father called for him
Beyond the gate my loved one,
And through memory I meet you
And find sweet comfort in the thought.
That a loving God knows best.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by his wife Muriel.

GRAY — In loving memory of our dear father Fred J. Gray who passed away April 9th, 1963.
"Poppy", Fred Gray, who passed away a year ago today.
When evening shades are falling
And I sit by myself and sigh,
I wish for one more longing,
If "Poppy" only could be by.
—Ever remembered by his two daughters.
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Mary, son-in-law Jay, grandchildren Rose and Glenn and families.

GRAY — In loving memory of our dear father Fred J. Gray who passed away April 9th, 1963.
Loving and kind to all he was,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere in deed,
In mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
—Ever remembered, Mabel and Marjorie Reid.

NOLAN — In loving memory of my dear husband Francis J. Nolan, who passed away April 9, 1962.
Please God, forgive a silent tear,
A lonely sigh, a heart in pain,
There are others cry, we know,
But God, you know them best.
Dear Lord, send a message
To our father in heaven above,
Tell him we miss him and love him,
And give him all our love.
—Ever remembered by daughter Jean, son-in-law John and grandchildren Sharon and Larry.

NOLAN — In loving memory of my dear husband Francis Nolan who passed away April 9, 1962.
My lips cannot tell how I miss him,
My heart knows but it will not tell,
God alone knows how I miss him,
He took a heart to heaven with him.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife.

NOLAN — In loving memory of a dear father Francis Nolan who passed away April 9, 1962.
We little know when we woke that morn
The sorrow the day would bring,
The call from heaven would come,
To part with one we loved so dear,
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why things happen as they do,
But we know God has planned,
Beyond our power to undo.
—Lovingly remembered by son Don, daughter-in-law Winnifred and grandchildren.

WESCOTT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away one year today, April 9th, 1963.
Peaceful sleep our darling rest,
His weary trials and troubles past,
He silently suffered, his sufferings he bore,
Till God called him home to enter no more.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife, Ina.

GRAY — In loving memory of our dear grandfather who passed away April 9, 1963.
Though your smile has gone forever,
And your hand we cannot touch,
We have still memories,
Of you, Poppy, we loved so much.
—Sadly missed by Sandy, Timmy and Howard.

GRAY — In loving memory of a dear father Fred, who passed away April 9, 1963.
Sweet are the memories,
His hands a place appointed,
In no one else's heart,
More cherished in our hearts,
—Lovingly remembered by Earl and Marjorie.

Confederation Will Not Break Up - - Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday that steps taken to solve federal - provincial difficulties will not break up Confederation.

"The two levels of government are working together to find solutions," he told a press conference, "and I'm sure it can be done without destroying Canada."

Mr. Pearson's reply to a reporter's question did not specifically refer to Mr. Diefenbaker's charge Monday that federal proposals to last week's federal-provincial conference in Quebec City could lead to "de-Confederation."

He said, however, that a formula remarked by Mr. Diefenbaker when he was prime minister, allowing Quebec to take over payment of federal university grants, was the first instance ever of allowing a province to "contract out" of a program financed by Ottawa.

Damage Suit Is Continuing

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer Wednesday told a Supreme Court justice that a construction company was paid an extra $60,228 on the recommendation of the Ontario public works department's chief architect that it would be "good public relations."

Douglas K. Laidlaw also cited a case where the department failed to collect $18,116 of disbursement in a contractor's default on a government project because Deputy Minister John D. Millar felt the claim was not completely fair.

The statements were cited in the $150,000 damage suit by former senior civil servant John Wesley Clarke, 56, against Mr. Millar and the chief architect, Douglas Glen Creba.

Mr. Clarke who was fired from his $12,500 a year job as contract adjustment director in 1962, charged the two conspired to bring about his discharge. He seeks a court declaration to reinstate him to the Ontario civil service at the same salary and job level.

The trial continues.

NEWEST PROVINCIAL MISSION—Quebec House, latest of the provincial missions in London, is headed by Hugues Lapointe, right, a man schooled in law, politics, diplomacy and the military. London Mission Symbol Of Quebec's New Drive

By JOE MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Conversation crackles with industry at Quebec House — industry ranging from steel through such things as electronics, timber, peat moss and jewels.

Symbolic of Quebec's economic drive, this newest of Canada's provincial missions in London has undertaken manifold commercial, industrial and information tasks, including contact work in connection with the project for a big steel complex beside the St. Lawrence River.

But Agent - General Hugues Lapointe, schooled in the law, politics, diplomacy and the military, allowed himself a bit of British - type understatement when he described the job.

"We get in touch with people" said the former federal government minister and United Nations delegate.

Perhaps the most exciting liaison came in connection with th. $250,000,000 plan to establish a steel industry at Becancour on the St. Lawrence below Trois-Rivieres, at a site accessible to ocean ships throughout the winter.

BRITISH INTERESTED

When Premier Jean Lesage set up a feasibility committee on the project two years ago, the United States, France and Belgium were the countries usually mentioned as likely participants.

Committee members also made several trips to Britain, however, and soon "put in touch" with steel-makers and investment people here by Lapointe and his men.

The Quebec experts were interested in British steel techniques as well as investment money. The British, in turn, showed keenness to get in on the enterprise, to supplement other plants and to establish secondary industries.

"To what degree they will be involved in the actual project will depend on the committee's report and the government's decision," said Lapointe, interviewed on his 53rd birthday in his genteel office at Quebec House.

Despite the accent on industry and such things, some of the atmosphere of Old Quebec can be savored—not by accident — at the four - storey Georgian - style building near Grosvenor Square, location of Canada's Sir John A. Macdonald Building and the United States Embassy.

Particularly charming is the reading room furnished in the style, with Salamander armchairs from the early 18th century around a pine refectory table.

PLAN EXHIBIT

Nearby the receptionist is heard at the telephone murmuring "Quebec House—Maison du Quebec." An elevator is being installed with the idea of making the upper floors available for exhibits of Quebec artistry and industry.

Son of the late Ernest Lapointe, federal justice minister for many years, the agent-general has served as solicitor-general, veterans affairs minister and postmaster-general and was vice-chairman of the Canadian delegation to the UN General Assembly. He rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and served overseas with Le Regiment de la Chaudiere in the Second World War.

In telling the British about the industrial advantages of Quebec, he is assisted by: Frank Turner, Montreal, English-educated counsellor on economic and industrial affairs; Fernand Renault, Quebec City, former newspaper man and broadcaster who is director of information; Ray Vaudry, Montreal, administration officer; and a five-member staff, including one British girl. Another counsellor to be added.

Quebec's lack of business restrictions — as compared with Britain—was cited as a major magnet for industrialists. Another was the province's proximity to U.S. markets.

ASK ABOUT SEPARATISM

The issue of separatism in Quebec has grown since Lapointe was appointed agent-general in December, 1961, and ever since Lesage formally opened the mission during his London visit last spring.

"They ask questions," was Lapointe's smiling reply when asked whether British businessmen who might go to Canada are disturbed by Quebec developments.

"Those who know, who are familiar with the Canadian scene, do not appear too disturbed. However, when you come across a person who knows very little about the country, and you find yourself giving a course in Canadian history, constitutional and political.

"The average Britisher is just about as well informed about Canada as the average Canadian is about Britain."

Newspapers, television and radio have done little coverage in depth on the Quebec situation so that the occasional sensational report of violence tends to leave the British baffled.

MANY SPEAK FRENCH

Quebec House is becoming more active in the promotion of provincial products abroad in co-operation with the federal agencies. Quebec trade groups will begin arriving this summer.

...itish attitudes toward language have been a pleasant surprise for the mission which has found that many industrialists here converse freely in French since that tongue has traditionally been regarded as an asset in business and banking circles.

"Some business people moving to Quebec may at first be concerned about language in schools, but since most of them plan on settling in bilingual areas, this raises no problem," said Lapointe.

Younger folk, particularly, "want to live in areas that are not French or English, somewhere in between, where they can get the benefit of both cultures."

Quebec, for its part, and perhaps paradoxically, appears to be showing new interest in Britain, as indicated by the number of French - speaking students here.

"About 70 of them turned up when we gave a reception recently," said Lapointe. "Science is the big thing for them—such as advanced mathematics, nuclear physics. A few years ago there were only a few French-Canadians in technical books or all studying the traditional humanities.

"We're keeping in touch with these students. They will shape the Quebec of tomorrow."

No Glen Miller Bypass County Council Is Told

The present alignment of the highway road on the west side of the Trent Canal between Frankford and 401 Highway, will be used when this road is rebuilt as a development road project.

Members of county council were told this morning that despite a request from the county, the Ontario Department of Highways had decided not to by - pass the village of Glen Miller when the road was rebuilt.

The road and bridges committee report was read by chairman Reeve Clayton Hall of Thurlow who outlined county road building and maintenance projects for the year.

Mayor J. H. Ellis of Belleville and county MLA representatives W. E. Sandercock and Clarke T. Rollins were heard briefly at the morning session.

WILL CALL TENDERS

Mr. Sandercock said that tenders for rebuilding of the county road through Glenn Miller would be called during the coming summer.

Mr. Rollins said an extensive highway improvement program on Highway 62 would again be carried out this year and said that the letter signaling leading to the north of the county was needed for promotion of the tourist industry.

Mr. Rollins also said that fluoride would be installed at the intersection of the county road at the Foxboro by-pass within the next months several serious accidents have occurred.

He said he had assurance the warning light would be installed as quickly as possible.

"If warning lights are not the answer, something else will have to be done," Mr. Rollins said. "We don't want accidents, but motorists are not obeying the present signs.

PROTEST

The decision of the highways department not to by-pass the village of Glen Miller when that road is rebuilt drew an objection from Reeve Bert Jones.

He said this decision would defeat the purpose of a high speed road connecting his village with 401 Highway north of Trenton. Also, he said a detour would be the problem of a dangerous intersection in Glen Miller.

Roads chairman Hall said his committee had done all possible to get the by-pass but the department refused the request on the grounds that this would mean parallel roads within a quarter of a mile.

But did you tell them that there would be a deep river between the two roads?" asked Gordon, deputy reeve Marmora Morton.

Frankford Reeve Wilmott Rose expressed his appreciation to the roads committee for its efforts in getting crushing flasher lights for his village.

MANY CULVERTS BUILT

Mr. Hall said that construction of culverts was the big building program for the winter, much of this being submerged in the swampy areas.

Several culverts — structures such as that over Chrysal Creek, had also been completed.

This work is being done as a development road project with the highways department contracting the rebuilding. The county pays for the cost of additional right-of-way and for fencing.

Total roads and bridges by-law for the year will be $373,000, subject to approval of $60,000 regular expenditure by-law passed in January and a supplementary by-law of $174,150 approved during the April session this week.

Careless Driving Charge Brings Fine of $150

A Belleville man today was found innocent of dangerous driving in a highway accident December 28 while seriously injured a 14-year-old boy.

However, John Charles McArthur, 22 Charlotte Street, was convicted of careless driving and ordered to pay $150 and $46 costs. A third count of ability impaired was dropped when no evidence was offered.

The boy, Tommy Bongard, 197 James Street, received a separated pelvis and broken leg, when hit by a car as he was hitchhiking with two companions on Highway 2 near the city's western limits.

Conviction on the lesser charge came today after Magistrate T. F. Lally on a written judgment to defence counsel Ronald Cass and acting crown attorney Jim Lally on the dangerous driving count.

The judgment, summing up testimony Mr. McArthur's trial last week stated there was "no evidence of extreme speed or any improper driving by the defendant other than his failure to see the Bongard boy."

Mr. Cass then entered a plea of not guilty to the careless driving charge, however the magistrate reminded him he had reduced liability in the mishap to the extent it qualified careless driving.

"I have given him all the benefits I properly can," concluded Magistrate Lally.

NO MORE HOOKY

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—From now on, Mexican school boys and girls who play hooky will be in trouble. A newly created office of juvenile control and orientation has launched a campaign cracking down on the "off - campus extra - curricular activities," namely hooky.

Anyway It Sounds Like Fun

LONDON (AP)—An official of a soccer team that's lost 23 consecutive games today made one of the spring's classic understatements.

Graham Naylor, halfback and chairman of the village of Ockbrook's soccer club which plays in an amateur league, said: "We've decided we may be outclassed. Age and beer may be telling on us."

The players train in a pub called the White Swan.

For years the athletes have met at the White Swan Monday nights to select their lineup—and have a few beers.

Friday evenings, they gather at the White Swan to plan tactics—and have a few beers.

Saturday nights the players gather at the White Swan, hold postmortems on the week's games—and have a few beers.

The team's last victory was in September, 1962.

Questionable Deaths Must Be Reported

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Association has issued recommendations aimed at ensuring that questionable hospital deaths are reported swiftly to coroners.

In a questionnaire accompanying the OHA circular, the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons has asked the province's 175 hospitals what action is taken to determine the competence of doctors granted hospital privileges and what disciplinary action is taken against offenders.

The moves follow recent inquests into post-operative hospital deaths and criticism by attorney-General Cass that doctors and hospitals are not obeying the letter of the law in reporting questionable deaths to coroners.

County Council Hears Objection On Brochure

Hastings county council will ask that county boundaries on tourist brochures published by both the Madawaska Valley Tourist Council and the Hastings and Land O' Lakes Tourist Region be outlined.

This was done by the letter' organization in its 1964 brochure with the result that the Madawaska region objected because the nine northern townships in Hastings are in the Madawaska Valley.

The objection was placed before county council today with the result that this body voted to ask tourist associations to outline the county in their brochures.

The feeling was that although grants were given to both tourist organizations, the county had no right to direct policy.

It later developed, however, that the county request was actually unofficial as both organizations had already decided on changes for next year's publications.

James Holt, vice-president of the Hastings and Land O' Lakes Tourist Region, said a motion was on their books to give credit to the Madawaska Valley for the nine Hastings townships in that region, while Harold Thompson, reeve of Huntingdon, said the Madawaska Valley region would lie doing the same thing for sections of the county not in its area.

He said that 25,000 brochures had been handed out, and many personal questions asked regarding the Hastings county area.

No Time to Think

Harold Klinck, retiring president of the Ontario Educational Association, told a general session of that body that modern schools and society are robbing students of the time to think.

As a result, he said, the boy who used to fish for hours now has his time completely organized by schools, radio, television, the Scout leader or the athletic coach—all telling him what to think.

We could quarrel with some of the implications of that statement, but the report of what Mr. Klinck actually did say is too fragmentary to justify criticism of details. His main point was well taken.

Today's girls and boys have too many demands on their time.

The same, though, is true of adults.

For one thing, many of us have less usable time available. We are the victims of the ease of modern transport. Our places of work, or our schools, are many miles from our homes—and the time spent travelling to and fro is largely wasted.

In the remaining time, too many alternative ways of using it are offered. If these alternatives just meant a variety of opportunities, they would be a distinct asset. But too many of us, old as well as young, try to do too many things—with the result that we do nothing well.

Some of these additional demands are not necessarily harmful. We do not know what Mr. Klinck meant when he listed television as an "organized" demand on a student's time. It is one diversion where the student appears to be free to choose and television is not necessarily less rewarding than reading—it depends on the choice of programs and of books. Reading can be infinitely more rewarding than TV-watching—but not if one sticks to the modern equivalent of Nick Carter and Frank Merriwell.

As for fishing—it has been transformed from a lazy sunbath on a river bank to an energetic excursion by speeding motorboat from one promising spot to another.

Too many of the people who deal with the young appear to have forgotten that the great need of youth is to restrict and lessen appetites of various kinds—while the great need of the aging is to maintain every existing interest in life.

"Refuses to Understand"

"The Minister of Finance has refused to understand the needs of a basic industry in our country."

Paul Martineau, Progressive Conservative member for Pontiac-Temiscamingue, said this about Hon. Walter Gordon.

Here, we are not interested in the accuracy, or otherwise, of Mr. Martineau's accusation, but in the wording of his charge.

"Has refused to understand." What a revealing phrase! What a pity to think that it may be more the product of a translator, of rendering in English what Mr. Martineau probably said in French, than of any deep insight into the workings of Mr. Gordon's mind.

"Has refused to understand." We wonder how many of us do exactly that, when we are face to face with facts whose implications we dislike. We do not merely close our minds against these facts. Nothing so passive as merely ignoring them will satisfy us. We refuse to understand them and, in so doing, insist on misunderstanding them, in giving them an entirely different meaning from that which reason tells us they should have.

Instances of refusing to understand are common-place in the world of diplomacy and politics. But many of us display the same habit in our personal relationships. We simply refuse to believe the obvious when recognition of a plain truth would prove embarrassing or would require us to apologize or to change our ways in a manner which we consider would prove humiliating.

Many misunderstandings, we fear, are not the result of any inability to think clearly and accurately, but are the product of a deliberate and tenacious refusal to accept the truth.

The idea of belonging to a community, of belonging to a family, of belonging to a town, of belonging to a people, of belonging eventually to the world—these are very strong ideas and I don't think the fact that people feel a sense of responsibility to their own communities first necessarily means that they shrug off responsibility to mankind.—Novelist and television playwright John Bowen.

Ottawa Offbeat

Showmanship Stalks Staid And Stolid Political Stage

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — National politics, to hear Prime Minister Pearson tell it, is one of the performing arts.

In an exhaustive off-the-beaten-path sort of speech the other day, the prime minister, in a kind of strange interlude mood, stood to one side, and with a new perspective, took a long and different look at himself and Parliament.

This, finally, was the real prime minister emerging.

This was the prime minister who once said that "if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen" — who at first, in the high - pressure months of early power, seemed to find that heat all but overpowering — but who now, if not actually enjoying the uncomfortably high temperature of the kitchen, was learning to live with it, and at times, even laugh about it.

This increasingly "different" Mike Pearson saw Parliament as a stage, and the prime minister as one of the stars of the Tax-And-Speed Drama of Government.

"Only Shakespeare could do justice to the tragic — or is it comic — possibilities of the part played by the leader of a minority Government in Canada today," he mused.

NOT SO SERENE:

His performance as star of the show, he continued, was "not so much in learning lines, but legislation; not so much in the cast as with the cost; not so much in short runs as in long events."

To the prime minister, as Parliament's leading man, "the most exciting moments in Parliamentary days comes from the announcement after a vote of confidence: for the Government — 127; against the Government — 120."

It all made, he allowed with a grin and a shrug, "for an exciting and dramatic, if not very serene existence."

Then, in the same wry way, he went on to wonder about the increasing intrusion of showmanship, as he called it, into the once staid and stolid profession of politics.

He hoped that the antic art of acting would not altogether replace the old virtues of statesmanship, and that a socko performance on the public stage of the House of Commons or on television not become any more of a prerequisite than it already had for getting and staying elected.

If it did, Parliament Hill of the future would end up with a cast in the Commons headed by Johnny Wayne as prime minister, Frank Shuster as external affairs minister, and the cast of Don Messer and the Islanders as the National Cabinet.

In the prime minister's book, the process already had gone too far.

THE HUCKSTERS:

"The showmanship of politics more and more is being taken over from the actor - politicians by the hucksters and producers — the image-makers."

South of the border, he recounted, the hucksters had so taken charge of the political show that even the candidates were picked, not by the parties nor even the people, but "by a computer, guided directly and controlled by vending machines, and elected by automatic multimedia selling and packaging techniques."

He had heard it said, "emphasisly, if somewhat frighteningly" by a political public relations expert the other day that "the ideal voter" was the man "hesitating in the middle" between the choice of candidates, as if he were weighing the competitive qualities of different tubes of tooth paste in the drug store."

But the prime minister didn't altogether buy that kind of political public relations jazz.

For good — humoredly kidding the image - makers, the back - room - boys and assorted hucksters who "sell" politicians in an election campaign in the same tasteless, over - stated manner that TV peddles toothpaste, he strapped up this particular offbeat speech performance with this:

We have just finished a coast to coast national survey and learned with great satisfaction that in the eyes of nineteen million Canadians, reflected by the thousands Canadians we polled, our party and government, by actual tests, have fallen off forty percent more than the cavities that any other competing political product."

Letter to The Editor

Need More Facilities For Recreation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir:

Last Saturday's breakdown of the ice plant at the Belleville Memorial Arena must have been a bitter blow to all the Belleville Minor Hockey Association officials and the volunteer workers who have worked so hard to promote this Peewee Hockey Tournament.

One has to wonder what an incident like this does for the reputation of the city when these teams go back home as far away as Ajax and Ottawa. These children probably don't remember the World Champion McFarlane, but it must be a useful let-down for the officials and parents when they arrive here to find such a sorry state of affairs.

This brings up the thoughts that are in the minds of all the officials of the Belleville Minor Sports Association. When will the city council make some considered move about the situation regarding recreation facilities in Belleville?

Gentlemen, it takes money to make money. This is no reason to refuse the Memorial Arena could not at least break even.

It should not be necessary to lose money. It should also be general knowledge that the citizens of Belleville will not condone the discomforts of the arena.

We have seen this past winter, a village of twelve hundred people, in Tweed, project and install an artificial ice plant at a cost in excess of $20,000.00. Maybe it won't show a profit money-wise but from reports from citizens of Trenton, and not a few from those of Trenton has had—a very successful season also.

Gentlemen, can we not find the interest and means to overhaul the ice plant or install a new one, install some type of heating to the building, and, lest we forget, do something about the public address system. If we have something to sell it to the public age, all good businessmen will say, if you it has to be well packaged.

And while we are dealing with the Belleville Minor Hockey Association should have to resort to asking this charitable organization for approximately $4,000 to make possible its annual program?

There must be something wrong with a budget that totals about $500. In cash to look after the recreational needs of the children of this city. How about an investigation of the distribution of the mill rate? It also makes one wonder, when we see the Y.M.C.A. present a budget of approximately $25,000 to the United Appeal, just how much the volunteers of the Y.M.C.A. contribute to the city of Belleville.

Whatever the cost, for the sake of the children, I would hate to think of what would happen if the ice plant and arena were dropped back into council's lap.

Incidentally it was very noticeable that council did not particularly appreciate one iota what this group means to the city, when it recently organized the Parks and Recreation Committee into two groups, as not even one of the heads of these affiliate groups were included on this committee. Oh yes, I have heard since council has appointed two members, but with no voting powers. Gentlemen, you were very condescending.

I usually try to listen to the council meetings on radio. So far I have yet to hear any mention of the new project

"You have to do your homework so when you grow up you can help your son with his homework."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 9th, 1944.

Boy Scout Week was observed across Canada and for its great work in character building the people of the Dominion gave unstinted support of this noble movement. Its achievements are written in the lives of many scores of thousands of young men and boys who have come into association with this cause. It has shown itself in the finest young manhood of Canada.

There is no financial appeal in connection with this observance, but it is well that the public interest in this organization should be widespread for it has as its aim the development of the finest type of character among the youth and boys of our land and nation. Its members are inspired to be good citizens, to honor God and their King, and they receive commendable training in doing good deeds in a practical way.

The United States furnished 80 per cent of the petroleum used to win World War I, and is now providing 98 per cent of the high-octane gasoline to keep Allied bombers in the air. As a result of the loss of Britain and Dutch installations in Burma and the Far East Indies, and because of our highly developed refining industry, the United States reserves are being overtaxed.

Secretary Ickes' announcement that the government is ready to build a 1,200-mile pipeline to bring United States-owned oil from the Persian Gulf to a port in the Eastern Mediterranean reveals that we may have to import oil to eke out our war-depleted reserves. That we should follow Britain's example in acquiring oil sources in other parts of the world is simply commonsense.

Mr. W. C. Mikel writes to the Ontario Intelligencer as follows: "In view of the Centennial Celebrations in June it may be interesting to attempt to locate the first church in Belleville. The erection of the centre part of St. Thomas' Church commenced in 1837 and completed in 1838. Funds were provided by the sale of proceeds of a market building in 1836 and it is likely that the building now occupied as a police court building on the market square was the building erected pursuant to the arrangements which is at this time 97 years ago. This was used as the village hall as an armory for No. 1 Company of the 40th Battalion.

The brick store house of Thomas Holland on the west side of Victoria Street is another old building. The land was acquired from the Crown on the 15th of December, 1818, by William Ross for the purpose of a Methodist Church, the first building erected upon the lot being of frame. Some yekrs later the date of which cannot be ascertained, the frame building was removed and the present brick building erected in its place. It was sold by the Methodist congregation to the this group has taken on to provide an additional youth centre.

When will council get the message? Or is this another case of feeling that if one ignores a problem long enough it will go away?

Gentlemen, this country doesn't need bigger police stations or larger prisons, just better facilities for recreation and more youth centres.

Sincerely,
J. F. Jones,
R. R. 4, Belleville.

Strictly Personal

Man Can, and Must Abolish Starvation

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Suppose that we in America had an absolute cure for cancer, or for some comparably big disease. Suppose, further, that this cure was rather simple, relatively inexpensive, and desperately needed throughout much of the world.

And suppose, finally, that the exportation and implementation of this cure was blocked from the rest of the world by economic, political and cultural differences — that issues having nothing at all to do with health and disease prevented millions of sick others from having access to this drug.

What a cry would go up — and justly so! Millions of men and women of good will. The profound immorality of such a thing would produce a long, insistent action. We would be touched to the very core of our humanity.

Yet much the same situation obtains today in regard to the world's food problem. I have been reading a new, and immensely persuasive, book called "No Need For Hunger," by Jonathan Garst, who is both a practical farmer and a nationally respected agricultural researcher. In this book, Garst demonstrates that modern man has solved his food problem.

Griseofulvin, Antibiotic Used for Treating Fungi

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've recently had an article concerning the drug griseofulvin and mention made of its use for fungus infection of the nails.

I have a friend who contracted this ailment on geraniums similar. He said the army diagnosed it as a fungus infection. The treatments gave negative results. He will not use a doctor (he's had the condition for about 30 years and thinks he will bring it with him). My friends and I are trying to convince him the griseofulvin may help him. — H. G. E.

Griseofulvin is an antibiotic which attacks fungi. (Most antibiotics attack bacteria but have no effect on a fungus infection.) This is the only one, to my knowledge, which attacks fungi at all.

But it does a fantastically good job in the right cases.

It is not just for fungus of the nails. Fungus infection can attack the feet, the ears, the scalp (ringworm being all example) or any other area.

When the nails are affected, you can't expect quick results. It will be several months before the old nails grow out and are fully replaced by new ones. But — the important thing — they can defeat the fungus infection, and keep it conquered until the fungus - laden nails have disappeared, then you've got the problem whipped.

There are people who have suffered for 20 years and upward, and who then got rid of the trouble in a matter of a few weeks or months.

It's a prescription drug, so you must have a doctor prescribe — and, incidentally, decide whether to use the drug at all. One must be sure the infection is due to a fungus.

Some types of fungus disappear quickly. Others withstand the drug. The trick is to know which is which.

There's no reason to expect the average physician to be able to distinguish one type from another, unless he happens to have studied this difficult subject.

But a dermatologist usually can, because that's his specialty. (There will be some cases in which he can't be sure, but in a great many he can give a reliable forecast of what to expect.)

This is not a brand new drug. It has been in use for perhaps half a dozen years or so, which is sufficient to show that it is safe, and that it can be used with some fungi and not with others.

The drug is taken by mouth. The amount must be carefully calculated.

People who gave up 11 or 15 or 20 years ago should try this, provided their doctors identify the cause as antibiotic. Another Mr. H. G. E's friend will benefit. I can't say. But I hope he has the kind of fungus that will yield.

Astronaut Humiliated

London Free Press

Withdrawal of Colonel John Glenn Jr., former United States Senate primary ballot in Ohio because of his uncertain spelling of his name is a supreme piece of irony almost unmatched in fiction.

Here was a 42-year-old man, one of a select few chosen to be an astronaut for reasons of superior intellect, judgment, physical condition, self-control and aviation experience. He had flown for his country in two wars. Just two years ago he made three historical orbital flights around the world in one of the most dramatic achievements of our time — a veritable Superman honored by his government and idolized by his fellow-Americans.

Then a month ago, just for fun say the record, that he would be incapacitated for months. It was an accident-prone fellow — that suffered by King Richard III, defeated because he had been unhorsed "at Bos worth Field."

Col. Glenn's misfortune reminds us that despite the perils of the air and the road which endanger us daily, there's still no place like home for falling and getting hurt — and the bathroom is the most hazardous place of all.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The ticker was running five minutes late near the opening of the stock market today as it turned reached its highest figure for the first hour of trading since November, 1953.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 2,536,000 shares compared with 2,000,000 at the same time Wednesday. All indexes moved strongly ahead.

PCE Explorations provided the biggest boost to the volume, trading 90,000 shares for a gain of 18 cents to 42 cents after reaching a high of 33 cents. The company is believed to be acquiring property northwest of Timmins where a large copper strike is rumored.

Bunker Hill advanced eight cents to 63 cents and Coniagas eight cents to 82 cents among other active speculatives.

Steels and integrated oils were strong on the industrial board, Algoma up ¼, Steel Company of Canada ¾ and Dominion Foundries and Steel ¼ among the former and Imperial Oil ahead ¾ among the latter.

Falconbridge rose one point to 69¼ and Denison ¼ in senior metals.

On index, the Exchange index rose .39 to 138.98, industrials .41 to 148.43, golds .50 to 131.06, western oils .36 to 89.07 and base metals .24 to 67.53.

On Wednesday all sections of the market shared.

The western oil index was down 1.96 to 87.81, golds 1.05 to 130.56, industrials .35 to 148.02 and base metals .16 to 67.29. The exchange index was off .41 to 138.59.

Volume for the day was 7,413,000 shares compared with 7,383,000 Tuesday.

The boost in volume came from activity among speculative issues. PCE Explorations jumped 12 cents to 25 cents on 612,843 shares. Falcon rose four cents to 18 cents on 425,000 shares and Ryanor two cents to 14 cents on 282,500 shares. Bunker Hill closed unchanged at 55 cents with a turnover of 440,870 shares.

CPAC Will Show Films On Planning

"The City — Heaven and Hell" and "The City: Cars or People?" These are the titles of two films that the Community Planning Association will show this Thursday at the Library. They are the first in a series of six that the National Film Board filmed in eleven countries to illustrate Mumford's book "The City in History."

"To renew the life of our congested cities we must give them again some of the spaciousness and natural advantage of our best suburbs; to keep our present suburbs from blotting out the countryside we must give them the social concentration and variety that only cities achieve," Lewis Mumford is convinced that "the city is man's most precious collective invention", but that part of its own nature now threatens to destroy it.

The second film of this Thursday's program may have special relevance for Belleville. It is a study of "old but dangerously growing problem: — how to make the city accessible for meeting and mixing without allowing transportation to make it congested and uninhabitable, as the present motor car now threatens to do.

SHORT DISCUSSION

Members of CPAC will be on hand to lead a short discussion period after every Thursday's showing. The next will start at 7.30 and discussion is over by 9.

Films next week will be "The City and Its Growth" and "The Heart of the City". The following week the films will be "The City as Man Builds It" and "The City and the Future." Everyone is invited to attend.

These films, together with the walking tours of the past two sponsored, should provide a good background for Prof. Michael Hugo Brunt's talk that CPAC is sponsoring on May 28. Dr. Brunt is professor of Town and Regional Planning at the School of Architecture at the University of Toronto.

Invitations have started to go out already for this lecture which will accompany a dessert and coffee party at the Hotel Quinte Pinnacle Room.

Victor Leonard Card pleaded guilty to careless driving in a collision on Highway 2 March 13 and was fined $50 and $4 costs.

In addition he automatically lost six points off his licence and acting crown attorney Tom Reilly said Mr. Card had come into court with eight points already cancelled. Under the Ontario demerit system 15 points are credited each driver's licence.

He was charged after his car smashed into the rear of an automobile turning off the fourlane stretch of the highway at Elmwood Drive. The other car was wrecked and its driver, Mrs. Flossie Pope, and Mr. Card received minor injuries.

Mr. Lally said Mr. Card told police he did not see the other car signalling for a turnoff.

Fell Asleep At Car Wheel

A 24-year-old man who said he fell asleep at the wheel of his car before it crashed into a county road, today in Belleville pleaded guilty to careless driving.

He have to get up every day at 6 a.m. . . . I was tired," David Walton Foster told Magistrate T. V. Wills.

"Don't say any more about it," counselled the magistrate. "That's the essence of the offence — that you should have stopped when you were tired."

He imposed fines and costs of $18.50.

The typical mid-nineteenth century gentleman was a curious combination of hard-headed businessman and romantic sentimentalist.

After years of diligence and sharp financial manoeuvring he chose a picturesque Renaissance or Italian setting in which to display his wealth.

His legacy is a series of large impressive Manor Houses and Villas scattered across Eastern Ontario. One of the finest of these is Saint Agnes Manor, built in 1860 by a wealthy Belleville industrialist.

LUMBER BARON

Billa Flint was a lumber baron who made his fortune from South Hastings hardwood in the heyday of the square-timber trade. He was active in politics, represented Hastings in the Legislature, the home of his political enemy, Sir John A. MacDonald.

Bellevue was an architect-designed example of "modern Italian". Saint Agnes was probably copied from a pattern-book by the contractor, who devised from the Italian ideal in only two respects.

He used red brick with the slight quoins instead of stone for the exterior and he stuck to the conventional centre hall plan instead of the more theatrical arrangement of rooms favoured by architects in every other way Saint Agnes is faithful to the Tuscan Italianate style in vogue in the mid-eighteen hundreds.

VENETIAN PALACE

The most striking feature of the house is the square tower with Tuscan "watch-tower" with its flat-pitched hip roof supported by four pillars and topped with an ornamental chimney-piece. The frivolous little balcony decorating the tower is a lawning roof with a scalloped verge board that is supposed to suggest the fabric of the medieval knight's canopy and banners.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was active and prices stronger on most classes of livestock at the offer Tuesday. Heifers were steady and good cows sold stronger. Bulls were actively steady. Veal calves sold steady. Fat hogs were firm, weaned pigs and sheats sold steady. Good springers sold readily on a firm demand.

Following are quotations:

Choice steers 23 to 25; good steers 19 to 22.

Good heifers 18 to 20; mediums 17 to 18; commons 15 to 17.

Good cows 17 to 18; heifery cows as high at 18½; mediums 14 to 16½, common and cutters 11 to 14.

Good heavy bologna bulls 19 to 20½, mediums 17 to 18½, commons 15 to 17.

Good stock calves 22 to 24. Choice veals 32 to 34; good 29 to 32; mediums 24 to 28; common 20 to 24; boners 15 to 20.

Grade A hogs 18 to 19 on liveweight basis.

Light sows 15 to 16; heavy sows 14 to 15.

Sheats 19 to 22; weaned pigs $9 to $13 each.

Good springers $210 to $260 each.

Small type heifers $175 to $200 each.

Good stock horses $75 to $150 each. Meat horses 7 to 8.

Liberals Wear Carnations For Victory

OTTAWA (CP) — Red carnations were worn by Liberal MPs in the Commons Wednesday to mark the first anniversary of their election victory.

When Prime Minister Pearson rose for the first time during the question period, his supporters gave him a thumping ovation, lasting nearly a minute.

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) noted the carnations in asking a question and said "never has so much color produced so little glamor."

Northern Affairs Minister Laing thanked Mr. Herridge for referring to the election of Mr. Herridge's old party, adding that the British Columbia Liberal Association still is waiting for a letter of resignation from their old vice-President.

Mr. Herridge was vice-president of the B.C. Liberal Association from 1932 to 1934.

NDP Leader Douglas said Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of the Liberal MPs.

He said that since Liberal policies had been watered down during their year of office, pink milk might be a more appropriate color than red.

Prime Minister Pearson said that if pale pink was worn, then the Liberals might be accused of being fellow travellers.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker remarked that this was further evidence of the co-operation between the Liberals and NDP. There was little difference in the coloring.

Councillors Visit Museum

Hastings county councillors had a look into the past yesterday as they toured the grounds of the Hastings County Historical Society.

Following their afternoon session council members were invited to the county museum for tea and a tour of the museum, now featuring a military display relating to early regiments in Hastings county.

Also councillors viewed a series of colored slides shown by Society president Gerald Boyce.

Included were pictures of early buildings in the county, covered bridges at Tremont and at Frankford, touching operations and other events which took place before the turn of the century.

COULD COVER WORLD

Councillors Want No Part Of Extended Deer Season South of Highway No. 7

Hastings county councillors want no part of an extended season for deer hunting south of No. 7 highway and will notify the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests that they strongly object to the proposed two weeks hunting season in this area.

Earlier this week council had been told by a Lands and Forest official, that requests were being received for extension of the deer hunting season from one to two weeks south of No. 7 and that with an increase in the deer population in this area, the department felt the extension might be advisable.

But the feeling of private property owners was sought before any change from the one week season was made.

Yesterday councillors made it plain that they, as well as other owners of property did not approve of the proposal for extending the season.

VOICE OBJECTION

No less than five councillors from South of No. 7 voiced objection. Two others from the North Hastings were divided in their opinion.

Reeve Elgin Oram of Bangor said the proposal would benefit "day" hunters, but he felt only shotgun shells could be used south of. No. 7 in the more populated areas.

But Reeve George O'Brien of Wollaston township said owner objection to hunters was increasing even in the north. He said more and more postar properties were in evidence each year.

A Peel County resolution calling for a number of regulations to allow city-in certain unsuccessful annexations proceedings was assessed against the municipality making the application, was concurred in following a lengthy discussion and after three different votes.

The resolution called for frivolous annexation applications and those made for purely tactical purposes be discouraged wherever possible and that costs in unsuccessful actions be assessed against the municipality making the application.

FINALLY CARRIED

A motion that the resolution was turned down; then a motion to refer it to the county solicitor for an opinion met with the same fate — this time by a narrow margin — and finally the motion to concur was carried.

Council also concurred in a Wellington council resolution asking adoption of the Red Ensign with coat of arms in a shield, as the national flag of Canada.

County Council Members Change More Frequently

Not too many years ago a record of 30 or more years in county council was nothing unusual.

But that is now all changed and the oldest man in terms of service among the county fathers is a "veteran" entering only his 11th year.

This was noted yesterday by T. N. Brown, former reeve of Thurlow and ex-Warden of the county, who during a brief visit to the council chambers noted there was now only one member in council, who was sitting in 1954.

He was last year's county warden, Charles Long, who in 1954 sat in council for the first time as deputy-reeve of his township — Tyendinaga.

Not too many years ago, two members of council, Reeve William Davis and Reeve James Spracklett had more than 30 years of service to their credit.

I. O. D. E. National President Stresses Canadian Unity

CAMPBELLFORD — Twenty-five members of Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E.-attended the Peterborough Municipal Chapter-19th annual dinner at the Empress Hotel, Peterborough, recently, when the national president, Mrs. D. W. McGibbon, was the guest speaker.

Mrs. Perry Sanders, municipal regent, welcomed the visiting chapters from Campbellford, Norwood, Stirling, Lindsay and Lakefield. The honored guests at the head table including Mrs. J. M. Benor, Campbellford, were introduced. Musical numbers were enjoyed. Mrs. McGibbon spoke on the work of the Order in the field of education, and said one-third of a million dollars had been spent on education in 1963. Since 1952, students have been brought to Canada to do post-graduate work. In India, Nigeria, Jamaica and the West Indies, undergraduates are supported. In Nigeria and India musical students are helped, and in Nigeria there is one doctor to 50,000 people.

Chapter members are urged to offer aid and hospitality to newcomers. There are now eight or nine racial backgrounds in the I.O.D.E. membership. In 1963 the I.O.D.E. proposed full equality for the Canadian Indian to the Canadian government. Excellent work is being done in the arts in Canada in the fields of music, drama, ballet and writing. Many projects are in the planning stages for I.O.D.E. for the Centennial Year 1967. Mrs. McGibbon called on her listeners to declare their faith in Canada and in Canada's future, and for all to dedicate themselves to making this a united Canada.

Following a short break, the Municipal Chapter was presented with the annual reports and Mrs. McGibbon installed the new officers for 1964.

Mrs. Perry Sanders is the Regent for the coming year. The meeting closed in the usual way.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

"You'll never be lonely!"

A large, entertaining house-building organization placed these words at the top of a very fetching advertisement which announced its newly-built "planned community" in a metropolitan suburban area. Further down in the advertisement, the happy copywriter wrote:

"Now, with the aid of modern planning techniques, we have learned the secret of human needs! In these carefully-built homes we have placed built-in virtues of living which are certain to eliminate the scourge of human loneliness!"

VIRTUES OF LIVING

Nothing, however, more clearly demonstrates our superficial understanding of the real "virtues of living" than when we put confined cheerfulness color - arrangements and designs, and other assorted symbols of artificial warmth into a single column, and add them up to equal that most overworked word — "togetherness".

Such planned efforts do not combat loneliness as much as they deceitfully relieve by their misdirection of our attentions. Says one astute student of human nature: "Efforts at this kind of result in a sick loneliness, the loneliness of illusory and pretense, the loneliness of the calculated and contrived, the loneliness of a ready-made solution replacing the satisfactions of creating with our own talents, capacities and skills."

The way out of sick loneliness is through personal attention — not the architect's or the builder's — to our own homes; attention to our own real feelings and hopes; attention to the significance of our own lives as they are related to others.

That advertisement sheds a lot of light on what ails many of us. It is not that we are lonely, but that we live in terror of being lonely. It is that terror, that fear of facing up to a possible painful human situation which blights our lives. It is not loneliness which separates us from others, but the fear of loneliness and the constant, artificially-contrived measures we pursue in frenzied attempts to escape that fear. We may join one crowd after another in order to dodge our fear of loneliness, but even when we are in the midst of the many, we often feel alone and uneasy — because, ironically, the crowd is a "lonesome crowd".

AMPLE EVIDENCE

But there is ample evidence from the world of sensitive, creative folk, to believe that far from being something to fear, solitude is more often a blessing than a curse. Even great men are lonely men — they walk alone, think alone, commune alone.

In that lonely communion, they often can come to grips with the meaning of their own life, the direction they should give it. In moments of aloneness, they can discover who they are, and find the true nature of their relation to others.

The lonely crowd is lonely because it follows plans which are supposed to keep it happy — plans written and directed by others.

We run away from the challenge of being with ourselves by trying to find ourselves only with someone else. Instead of running we stayed with ourselves, we might become ourselves.

Loneliness is not something to fear, nor is it a mark of weakness. It is something we cannot escape; therefore, we should not try it is something mature men can learn to build on.

Adult Club Entertains Other Group

CAMPBELLFORD — St. John's Adult Club had at the March meeting the Norwood United Church 50-60 Club. The Norwood group were accompanied by their new pastor, Rev. Robert Nicholls, a former Campbellford boy who was recently inducted at Norwood.

President of the host club, Joan Sharpe welcomed the visitors, and called upon Mae and Mel McCown to conduct the devotional session, during which time Jack Chynoweth sang a number and Lenna Veal contributed a vocal solo. The hymns chosen were in keeping with Holy Week and Good Friday when Don Bennett, A.T.C.M., was pianist. Eleanor Nelson showed a series of colored slides depicting the Easter Story in Biblical times. Mae McKeown read the accompanying commentary.

President Joan Sharpe called upon the president of the Norwood 50-60 Club, Mr. Albert Bell, to present the entertainment which the visitors had prepared.

The program presented by the Norwood Club included a vocal solo, and a couple of amusing acts and games, finally winding up the evening with a game of charades.

St. John's Young Adults served lunch at the close.

Sugar Lump Loaf (YEAST)

by Mary Moore

Home bakers are showing a great and growing interest in yeast products. One of our eager readers sent me a recipe for a loaf which intrigued me because it was different. I ate two "lumps" as soon as it came from the oven and hope when you make it your timing is just perfect to take it directly from oven to dining table.

SUGAR LUMP LOAF

Note: I have Helen Young to thank for this idea.

1 package granular yeast
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup lukewarm water
1/3 cup milk, scalded
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour (about)
1/3 cup melted butter
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons finely chopped walnuts.

In mixing bowl add the 1 teaspoon sugar to lukewarm water, sprinkle yeast on top and let stand 10 minutes. To the scalded milk add the 2 tablespoons sugar, shortening, salt and stir. Add to risen yeast liquid. Stir in 1 cup flour and egg and beat until smooth. Now add another 1½ cups flour. (Reserve remaining ½ cup for flouring board for last kneading.) Knead until smooth and elastic. (Or knead with dough hook in Kenwood Chef for about 5 minutes as I did.) Let rise in bowl, well covered, until very light. Mine required 2¼ hours.

When dough is risen, combine the last amount of sugar with the cinnamon and nuts in a medium - sized bowl. Have ready the melted butter in a wide - mouthed little bowl (or cereal dish).

Punch down dough, turn out on board floured with remaining ¼ cup flour, knead until smooth and shape into 12" roll. Cut into 24 little even pieces. The dough is very soft but form each piece into a ball as well as you can, drop into melted butter to coat, then into sugar mixture to coat. Arrange coated balls in layers in buttered 9¼" x 5¼" standard loaf pan. Sprinkle any remaining sugar mixture over top. Cover with light tea towel and let rise until doubled — 1¼ hours. Bake on centre rack at 375 deg. Fahr. about 30 to 35 minutes, being sure "lumps" in top centre are baked through. Note: I reduced heat to 300 deg. for last 10 minutes and baked mine 35 minutes in all.

Turn over on rack, let pan rest over loaf for 2 minutes, then remove. Pass right side up on big cake plate, for your family to pull off the warm sugary lumps.

"HOW TO COOK A HUSBAND"

A good many husbands are entirely spoiled by mismanagement in cooking and so are not tender and good.

Some women keep them too constantly in hot water, others freeze them, others put them in a stew, and still others keep them constantly in a pickle. It cannot be supposed that any husband will be good and tender if managed in this way, but they are really delicious if properly treated.

Don't keep him in the kettle by force, as he will stay there himself if proper care is taken; if he should sputter and fizz don't be anxious, some husbands do this. Add a little sugar, the variety that confectioners call "kisses", but on no account, add vinegar or pepper. A little spice improves them, but it must be used with judgment. Do not try him with something sharp to see if he is becoming tender. Stir him gently, lest he lie too long in the kettle and become flat and tasteless. If you follow these directions, you will find him very digestible, agreeing nicely with you and he will keep as long as you wish.

U.C.W. Meeting

MARSH HILL U.C.W.

MARSH HILL — The April meeting of the Marsh Hill United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. David Little with 13 members and two visitors present. Mrs. H. Deller presided.

Mrs. Grace Bartindale gave the Easter worship service with Mrs. Farley Lindenfield reading the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Harold Deller read an Easter reading and Mrs. David Little favored with a solo.

Mrs. Albert Clare gave the chapter on "Miracles" from "The Word and The Way," which was followed by a question and answer period.

The members repeated sending 23 cards and one letter and making 13 calls: Mrs. Farley Lindenfield read a letter from Mrs. Herb Smith, Presbyterial supply and social assistance secretary. Mrs. Bartindale reported from the recent manse committee meeting.

After the benediction and the singing of grace the hostess served refreshments.

River Valley W. I. Hears Many Reports at Annual Meeting

On April 2 the president of River Valley Women's Institute was the hostess with 17 members and one visitor present. The first vice-president, Mrs. Glenn Bush, presided and welcomed the group. This year's dues of $1 per member were paid. The Institute has six life members and 15 fees were paid for the new year.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe presented the financial report and there is a good balance on hand to carry out the work of the organization. Mrs. Ernest Carr read messages of thanks, a letter re the Jubilee holiday at Guelph and a message from the Belleville Fair Board re a display of house plants. Mrs. Albert Wilhelm translated a letter from the W.I.'s adopted boy in Germany. Some of the money had been used for sports shoes and underwear.

One-minute reports of standing committees were given by various members, one of which was a story giving an account of the value of a farmer's wife. The public relations officer, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, stressed that all reports be sent out immediately to the district convenors. She stated that the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, the United Empire Loyalists' Association of Can. and the Canadian Legion are all strongly in favor of retaining the red ensign as the distinctive Canadian flag. Every Canadian who desires to have this flag retained is urged to write to their member of parliament. She also reported that she had attended the home economics course on "Food Shopping" at Pinegrove W.I. and found it most interesting.

PLAN COURSE

Mrs. Roy Tucker spoke briefly re "The Countryside Magazine" and gathered the pennies for friendship. To date over $17 has been contributed. The course on copper tooling will be held in April at the school kitchen. The letter with full particulars was read and further plans made.

Mrs. Kenneth Byers, district director, gave the report of the recent board of directors' meeting held in Belleville for Hastings West district. The district annual will be held on May 12th at Marsh Hill United Church. Mrs. Allan McDonell reported that $40 had been realized from two card parties in March clear of expenses. Mrs. Ernest Carr reported 38 members for the year just closed.

During the year there was one deceased member and one new life member. The average attendance was 22 and two members Mrs. Vernon Harry and Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended all meetings. Two 4-H Clubs were sponsored and one senior training class. The group catered for a banquet for Grand Master Earl Fox and a cheese board meeting at Shamrock Factory; also at the official opening of the factory and at district curator meeting.

VARIOUS PROJECTS

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe reported receipts of over $600. A barn sale, a pot-luck supper and a pie social were sponsored, also a picnic at Col. Vandervaater's Park. The expenditures amounted to over $500, for various aspects of the work. The Institute provided delegates' expenses to Hastings West district annual and to the Trent Valley area. They contributed to the expense of the four leaders and provided food for the Girls' Club. Mrs. Stanley Irvin read the auditor's report.

The four conveners of standing committees gave interesting account of the work their group had accomplished during the year. The reports were prepared by Mrs. Kenneth Byers, Mrs. Roy Irven, Mrs. Jack Bush and Mrs. Allen McDonell.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a summary of the items which had appeared in the weekly and daily newspapers and thus included 11 regular meetings, executives meeting, ten card parties and the weekly paid corner in the News Argus, ten of public relations the Institute contributed for authorized Institute projects $105, which included the international scholarship fund, save the children fund and the Adelaide Hoodless fund; for educational work the total was $171, for school children, $27.25; community contributions of funeral flowers, various cards and kitchen expenditures were $100. She summarized the work as less than one third for Institute work and other organizations and more than two thirds $300. for the Institute.

As Friendship Link secretary Mrs. MacMullen had forwarded letters, clippings, newspapers, 25th anniversary card, Christmas greetings and 96 crocheted book marks to Abbots Leigh W.I. in England. Their ink blotters and pens were placed in purse paks at Christmas with usual round of letters and parcels.

River Valley Women's Institute is one of the few Institutes all over Ontario that have kept up their Friendship Link with a British Institute established in the days of World War II. River Valley W. I. also forwarded a gift for the golden wedding reception to be held in Wolfville, Nova Scotia, and thanks were expressed to Mrs. Clarence Chard for providing the crocheted dolly.

TRIBUTE PAID

Mrs. Ross Bush, Tweedsmuir curator, displayed the second edition and paid tribute to the secretary, the district chairman, and other committee members. River Valley is one of the oldest communities and there is much yet to be written of its past history. She discussed the convention

Successful Living

Slow Children Catch Up, Retarded Remain Behind

DEAR DORIS — Could you please tell me the difference between a retarded child and one that is classed as slow?.

My boy of four years talks very little and what he does say is almost unintelligible. He has trouble carrying out the simplest order. The pediatrician says he is classed as a slow flabby baby.

He was born a month early; slow in physical strength, did not walk until 20 months. Can't dress himself or help with simple tasks, but is toilet trained. Loves TV commercials and can pick the products out in the store.

The doctor says he is not ready yet for tests; also that he doesn't have the mannerisms of a retarded child. But if he isn't one, what is he? —PUZZLED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR PUZZLED — Why not ask the doctor? What I think is meant is that your baby was prematurely born, and has a lot of catching up to do. This does not mean that he has to be markedly behind others his age all his life, as a retarded child is.

"Premies" do catch up, sometimes all the way, but it can take many years for them to realize all their possibilities. If he isn't ready for tests yet, the doctor must think there's plenty of chance for improvement.

Don't bribe him. Challenge him. Bite your tongue, tie your hands before you do anything for him which he can possibly do for himself. But give love, encouragement for the slightest success, all the way.

DEAR DORIS — I'm a woman 34 years old and have been going with a chap 17 years old. He is a hard working guy and seems much older than he actually is.

He has asked me to marry him, and I'd like to, only I'm scared it won't work out. In a few years he may find someone close to his age and we'd be finished. I told him to wait until he's 21, but he says he can't. I know this sounds crazy, but I love him. Please tell us what to do. — SEVEN YEARS TOO OLD.

DEAR SEVEN — Better wait. His urgency makes me feel he needs to live a little longer before he seals his fate — and yours.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PULLED BOTH WAYS — It is not easy to know when you stand when your mother issues one order one week and contradicts it the next. You sound to me like a girl who is thinking very clearly about her problems. Get in touch with the child care agency for your county or the Mental Health Clinic nearest you. Say that you want personal counselling and you will get it.

DEAR DORIS — Would you explain a little about the receiving line at a wedding reception? When it is formed, who is in it, and whether it is correct not to have one at all? — BRIDE'S MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — If there's a reception, someone receives. When there's been a re- ption ceremony not follo- ed by a reception, even then the bride may receive with her groom, her mother and bridesmaids, in the church parlor.

Usually the reception is more formal. It takes place in an accommodating inn, hall or home. The mother of the bride is the hostess and hence first in line to greet the guests as they enter. After her come: groom's father, groom's mother, bride's father. Then, a little further in, the bridal party: bride, groom, maid of honor, bridesmaids.

Fathers of the bride and groom may or may not be in the line but may stay nearby to "catch" the guests as they leave it and introduce them around.

DEAR DORIS — I'm expecting a baby very soon and have a problem about birth announcements. My husband and I have been separated for the last month (the baby is his) and expect to be getting a divorce. I'll have to send at least a few announcements and am wondering whether to use both our names or just mine.

My husband has no interest whatsoever in the coming baby and doesn't intend to try for custody. The people to whom I'll send announcements already know the situation. — SEPARATED.

DEAR SEPARATED — Use just your name. It would give a peculiar impression to say, for instance, that "John and I are pleased to announce the arrival of a baby daughter"; especially since "John" just doesn't give two hoots and they all know it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HAPPY GIRL — It's your decision. At the same time, are you sure you know the hazards of marrying someone of a different race? Not only you, but your children may meet with difficulty. Perhaps a personal discussion with your minister or priest can help you with your thinking.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TOO YOUNG TO WORK — Write again, this time enclosing your proper name and address on a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply. Repeat your question.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Life Membership IODE Pin Presented at Meeting

Mrs. Ralph Ellis, Regent, held the regular monthly meeting of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. at her home on Monday evening, April 6th, with 24 members present.

The highlight of the meeting was the presentation by the Regent of a life membership pin to Mrs. Charles Bishop. Since her son joined the Navy in 1940 Mrs. Bishop has been a hard-working member of the Chapter in which she has held many different offices.

Mrs. George Hume, world affairs convener, reported on conditions seen on a recent visit to Barbados where she said "Sugar is King."

TELEPHONE BRIDGE

Results of the Chapter's Telephone Bridge were announced by its convener, Mrs. W. G. Sinds, who also presented the prizes to the winners.

Mrs. G. M. Gibbons asked for and procured volunteers to help at the Blood Clinic to be held at the Kiwanis Centre April 9th. Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Hume were appointed delegates to the Provincial annual meeting to be held in Hamilton April 15, 16 and 17th. Reports of this meeting will be given at the next regular meeting of the Chapter on May 4th at the home of Mrs. Doolittle.

Mother's Helper

A CONSTANT remind of "sin me no" may soon fall on deaf ears if you have a croupy or teether who is constantly pulling hair, the wrong things. He does have to learn to mind you, but sometimes it's better for both of you if you simply pick him up and remove him from a floor-licking, bed forbidden situation. He'll respect your "no" if he doesn't hear it too often.

field Turks are building. It is big enough now to take a twin-engined Dakota. The UN fears the Turks may use it to run guns from Turkey.

A convoy escorted by two carr of Canadians reached Kokkina on the northwest coast without further incident after being held up Tuesday for 5½ hours by Greeks at Morphou. The soldiers have remained in Kokkina which was under Greek attack for three days.

Delay at Morphou's crossroads was created again how little control the government has over some outlying villages. The UN hopes order—if not law—will be re-established through firmer control from Nicosia.

Greeks resent British paratroops and the latter likely will be withdrawn from all sensitive areas as the UN force builds up. An Irish advance party is due today and an 800-man Swedish battalion will begin arriving Friday. Swedes will take over the entire western area relieving the Dragoons in the northwest.

Disbarred Lawyer Sent to Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Samuel Rosenberg, disbarred Toronto lawyer, was remanded Wednesday to April 15 for trial on 12 charges of theft, fraud and conversion involving a total of $187,277.

Rosenberg was charged on his return from Tel Aviv. He was picked up by Metropolitan Toronto International Airport March 31 and taken to jail. It was the end of a 10-month international search for him.

The theft charges include one involving $123,506 from a representative of the Woodsworth Memorial Foundation, a charitable organization set up to honor the memory of J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the former Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (CCF) Party.

Rosnick was a CCF candidate in Toronto St. Andrew's riding in the 1951 provincial election and president of the foundation.

Police issued a warrant for his arrest last May, shortly after he flew to Israel with his wife and three children. He worked briefly on a communal farm while attempting unsuccessfully to obtain permission to live in Israel. In the interim, the Law Society of Upper Canada disbarred him for professional misconduct.

— AUSTRALIA JOINS

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Australia has accepted an invitation to join an air standardization program among air forces of Britain, Canada and the United States, Defence Minister Paul Hasluck announced Wednesday.

Johnson May Draw Line With Reporters

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson is shaking his head in perturbation at the press and once result may be the drawing of a definite line between business and social events involving reporters.

The president was disturbed by reports in print that, with beer at hand, he sped along Texas roads, passing on a hill and forcing an oncoming car onto the shoulder of the road during his Easter vacation at his Texas ranch.

He showed some of his feelings here Tuesday night in a mild remark to hundreds of members of the National Press Club at a reception honoring White House Press Secretary George Reedy. Johnson popped in and dropped a remark in Mr. Reedy's rather difficult for me to believe that folks who can be as difficult as you folks are in the day time. . . ."

A burst of laughter left the sentence unfinished.

The basis of the presidential displeasure was the fact that White House reporters were invited to the LBJ ranch on a Saturday afternoon for beer, soft drinks or coffee. Johnson turned the affair into a press conference even before some persons had had a chance at the beer, then took off with only a few others on the ranch by car, with Mrs. Johnson at the wheel of one car and himself at another.

LEFT RANCH

Most reporters left the ranch for press headquarters in Austin, Tex., after the tour but several were invited to remain. And it was after most of these that Johnson was reported to have burning up the highway.

None of those in the car with him has written a story that has drawn a rebuke, others reported that Johnson was hitting perhaps 70 to 80 or 85 miles an hour on the open road after church on a highway with a posted speed limit of 70.

The president said subsequently that he was unaware of ever having driven over 70.

Time and Newsweek magazines carried stories along with stories about speeding and some of the remarks reported about Johnson and son and some of his guests. Time mentioned beer drinking.

These had to be secondhand rather than eyewitness accounts.

They did not escape White House attention, but Reedy stood fast on statements that they involved events of which he had no personal knowledge or observation.

In any event, Johnson apparently thought enough of it had stepped beyond the proprieties that should be observed by presidential guests.

Minister Sure Directive Given Is Adequate

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday he is satisfied that the directive given to United Nations troops in Cyprus is adequate for their self-defence.

But he again declined to reveal publicly the terms of the directive. The UN had not released details of the directive and he was satisfied this was proper.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had asked Mr. Martin whether the details now could be released following Tuesday's incident in which Canadian members of the UN forces were held up by Greek-Cypriots. He also wanted to know whether Canada filed a protest over the incident.

Mr. Martin said that "Canada is not holding itself aloof from developments" on the island, and the Canadian high commissioner on the island is in constant communication with the Cypriot government. Canadian representatives at the United Nations were also dealing with the matter.

USING CHANNELS

"We are availing ourselves of these proper channels" for expressing Canada's views.

He declined a direct answer to Mr. Diefenbaker's question as to whether Canada filed a protest.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said he hoped Canada would make it clear that it didn't want to be caught in hostilities due to the action of the Cypriot government in renouncing existing treaties.

Mr. Martin said the view of the government was similar to that of Mr. Douglas.

Canadian and British troops deserve the highest commendation "for the restraint they have shown in trying circumstances."

He was satisfied that the presence of the UN force in Cyprus has "considerably reduced the danger of conflict, although it had not completely disappeared.

Will Charge Owners Leaving Fish Huts

ORILLIA (CP)—Harold Van Wyck of the Orillia branch of the department of lands and forests said Wednesday that hut owners will be charged for leaving their huts on Lake Simcoe beyond the legal deadline.

Final date for removal was March 31 and although Lake Couchiching was clear by then, numerous huts still dotted Lake Simcoe. Department officers will check on the weekend and making a final check before laying charges.

Investigation showed 20 huts still littered the ice so names and addresses were noted by conservation officers. Mr. Van Wyck said charges will be laid in all 20 instances.

The charge carries with it a maximum fine of $1,000. Those facing charges come from Orillia, Oshawa and other areas.

Version Called Improvement On Shakespeare

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian Stratford Company rounded off its triple bill at the Chichester Festival Theatre Wednesday night on a warm if critical acclaim.

Michael Langham's modern dress production of "Timon of Athens" with Canadian catch phrases as "a triumph" and "surely a real improvement on Shakespeare."

The company's three - week season on Chichester's open stage promises to be a resounding success. Monday's production of Love's Labor's Lost also received rave reviews and Tuesday's offering of the Moliere comedy Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme had a mixed but generally warm reception.

The consensus is that the Ontario players have not only given Britain some first-rate acting and three lively and imaginative productions but also some lessons in Shakespearean opengstage techniques as well.

Bernard Levin in the Daily Mail says that Timon, the story of a man with limitless generosity disillusioned by the indifference of his friends when his fortunes fail, is Shakespeare's "blackest play."

IS TRUE TRAGEDY

In Langham's hands it "becomes a true tragedy," he adds. "All in all, a thoroughly satisfied revival of a rarely revived play."

The anonymous critic of The Times praised the decision to set the play in modern times, in fact specifically in "the post-Suez Middle East."

This "most cynical and disillusioned of Shakespeare's plays is also most of and for today."

"The device of freezing a stage full of actors while one, in full spotlight, delivers a key soliloquy . . . can seldom have worked more effectively than here."

Gerard Fay, London editor of the Manchester Guardian, says Canadians should not be worried about the problem of accents. Canadian speech is excellent and hardly any accents—indeed what exactly is a Canadian accent?

"The general level and style of speech is such unregarded purity that any consciousness and pronunciation would be higher than in some English companies.

IS 'CLEVER COMPANY'

"If it (the play) is to be modernized, I do not expect it to be better done by the clever company from that other Stratford closer to an English Stratford."

All critics single out the "towering" performance by John Colicos as Timon.

"Mr. Colicos acts with a nobility and pathos that is enhanced by his fine Shavian voice," The Daily Telegraph. "This is acting stripped to the bone."

REJECT ARMS BID

LONDON (AP) — Parliament Wednesday rejected a labor MP's bid for legislation to ban export of surplus arms from Britain. Richard Marsh told Commons 271,400 surplus rifles were shipped out of Britain during the last three years.

A fund was started to help educate the children and so big and little contributions including some from the Royal Canadian Navy it has grown to more than $140,000 under the guidance of a New England woman.

She is Mrs. Wallace Collingsworth of West Beach Hill, Beverly Farms, Mass. She is the mother of five children and as a great - great - great grand - daughter of Alexander Hamilton she christened the Polaris missile submarine Alexander Hamilton two years ago.

Wednesday Mrs. Collingsworth, who started the fund collection with a goal of $500,000, was honored in a ceremony at the Pentagon.

Navy Secretary Paul H. Nitze gave her a certificate of appreciation for her "ambitious, unselfish dedication and driving zeal."

On hand were admirals and civilian officials of the U.S. Navy as well as leading officers of the British, Canadian and Japanese navies.

She told reporters help came from many quarters, including the navy and a Boston bank. The Colony Trust Company, which has volunteered to serve as trustee and receiver for contributions to the fund.

Contributions range from dimes mailed by children to a check transfer worth $5,000, Mrs. Hollingsworth said.

Lesage Demands Not in Keeping With BNA Act

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Demands by Premier Lesage that Quebec be master in its own house are not in keeping with the British North America Act, Boro Laskin, an authority on constitutional law, said Tuesday.

Mr. Laskin, a member of the University of Toronto law faculty, told 100 people at a Canadian Club dinner.

"A federation presupposes some independence, but it also presupposes mutual dependence and an ultimate national authority.

"The whole is greater than the sums of its parts in political life.

"If Mr. Lesage is thinking in terms of economic planning, I know of no federal state in the world in which the local units have the kind of regulatory power over their citizens.

"Economically, we need a reappraisal of power in favor of the centre. I refuse to accept linguistic and cultural grounds for sufficient to justify demands of Creditiste leader Real Caouette for provincial control over income tax and exports and direct taxation.

SEES NO NEED

"Any suggestion that the federal authority should be ousted from the field of taxation seems to me sheer madness," Mr. Laskin said.

He denied that out of the Canada Pension Plan, he added, it will only be because the Parliament of Canada permits it.

He contended the federal authority could compel Quebec to participate in the scheme if necessary.

Mr. Laskin said he disapproved of unwarranted promotions for bilingual members of the civil service. He felt the practice was an unfair element of ethnic consideration.

"I'd be darned if I would be prepared to bonus people merely on that basis," he said.

Mr. Laskin proposed no sweeping changes in the structure of the federal constitution to calm "this present bilingual-bicultural storm."

"All we have is a pretty functamental defect. But you make the changes easy; they'll become like a national timetable, good for this date only.

"Representation by population is fundamental as a principle to be vitiated by the introduction of any other."

Fears Slump Making Thirties Like a Picnic

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, said Wednesday night financial reform is needed in Canada to avert a crash that would make the depression of the 1930s "look like a picnic."

In a speech to the Montreal Junior Board of Trade he said nine-tenths of the ills and miseries of the federal constitution to calm "this present bilingual-bicultural storm."

"All we have is a pretty functamental defect. But you make the changes easy; they'll become like a national timetable, good for this date only.

"Representation by population is fundamental as a principle to be vitiated by the introduction of any other."

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAKING FRIENDS IN NEW NEIGHBORHOOD

When a new family moves into the neighborhood, naturally the neighbors are curious.

The question then arises as to who should make the first stab at establishing friendly contact. Should those who live nearby make the first call on the newcomers, or should the newcomer call on the neighbors to say hello and introduce herself?

It used to be a hard and fast rule that the established residents make the first gesture by making a formal call on the new neighbor shortly after the family moved in. Nowadays, this form isn't as rigid and contact often is established informally, just by saying hello on the street or over the backyard fence. A formal call may be made at a future date. In the meantime, the newcomer has a chance to get her house in order but still has the feeling that she's putting down roots while putting down the carpet.

When a new neighbor moves in, it still is customary and desirable for those who live in the immediate vicinity to offer some gesture of welcome. However, methods have changed, and, instead of the oldtimer just parading up and ringing the front doorbell in grand fashion, it's now considered polite to telephone first and make sure the new householder is settled enough to welcome a visit.

While the new arrival may show her friendly intentions by smiling at the neighbors when she sees them on the street and bidding them "good morning" in passing, it's still wise for her to cautiously put out feelers. She might engage a neighbor in conversation about her garden or ask about shopping in the area, and so on, to help break the ice. But it's more prudent to let others in the area make the first solid signs of friendship by suggesting a visit or making a definite invitation.

In the meantime, the newcomer can make her adjustment to the area by participating in school activities and by volunteering to work on school committees and neighborhood projects.

"Go slow" is the rule to follow when sizing up the area and its residents. People soon show their friendly intentions when a newcomer shows she's the kind of thoughtful, considerate, well-mannered and pleasant type of neighbor everyone is anxious to have.

Special Court To Hear Case On Wednesday

PICTON (Staff) — Two Campbellford men found that it costs money to take a drink of anything stronger than soft drinks while attending a hockey game at Wellington.

William Scarr and Clifford Grills, both of Campbellford, paid $13.50 each when they were charged with drinking in the Wellington Arena. They paid their fines without appearing in Magistrate's Court.

Ronald F. Woodcock, # 25, Centre Street, Belleville, was remanded by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to next Tuesday afternoon when a special court will be held.

Woodcock is charged with robbery with violence on the person of Miss Audrey Allen of Picton. He is alleged to have taken her purse containing $3.

Woodcock told the court that he was unable to raise the $1,000 cash, or two sureties of $1,000 each, and also that until he could get out on bail, he was unable to get enough money to hire a lawyer.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills raised the bail to $2,000 cash or two sureties of $2,000 each.

PLEADS GUILTY

Wilfred Samatte, who gave Dundas Street, Toronto, as his address, was fined a total of $128 when he pleaded guilty to two charges — failing to remain at the scene of an accident — and for driving with no operator's licence.

The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Pat McKenna after he had investigated a two-car accident near Milford on April 4 in which the accused was in collision with a car driven by Leo Minaker also of Toronto.

"This is not a finance office," said the magistrate when the accused asked for time to pay the fines. "If you can afford to drive a car you can afford to pay the fines, you will be given two weeks to pay and if they are not paid you will serve one month and seven days in jail," he added.

SKIDDED 85 FEET

David C. Bailey, Inkerman Drive, Camp Picton, who is 17, was fined a total of $68 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and of driving without an operator's licence on March 7th.

Provincial Constable Harry Sisty laid both charges when he investigated a two-car accident at the intersection of Lake Street and the back road from Camp Picton.

Skid marks from the accused's car showed that the car skidded 85 feet. It seems that L. J. Foley Motors supplied the car to Bailey, when he told them he was in the Armed Services and was being moved to Petawawa.

Damage to the car exceeded $500. Damage to a truck driven by Mrs. Eva McKibbon was estimated at $125.

"I don't have too much sympathy for any car dealer who will give a car out without first ascertaining if the person has a driver's licence," said the Magistrate. "You had better get over this car craze," he added. "Your licence is cancelled for 12 months, and if you are caught driving in that period, you will go to jail," Magistrate T. Y. Wills warned the youth.

Gerry Shannon, Toronto, was found guilty of impaired driving and fined $62 in court here Wednesday. The charge was related at the suggestion of the Crown, from drunk driving. He was allowed one week to pay the fine or serve ten days in jail.

Almost 300 Donate Blood At Clinic

PICTON (Staff) — "Almost 300 people donated blood at the Picton Armouries in the afternoon and evening on Wednesday," said Mrs. H. B. Slaven, chairman of the Blood Donor Clinic of the Red Cross last night.

"The response this year has been even better than last year, and we are all so pleased," she added.

During the afternoon, prizes in the poster contest were presented to the winners. These winners were: 1st prize, Judith Brown, S. S. 4, Hallowell; 2nd, Rodney Williams, S. S. 15, Sophiasburg; 3rd, Jaime Whitehead, Mount Pleasant, and 4th, Joan Alexander, S. S. 4, Hallowell. Honorable mention went to Carolyn Westoll, Crofton School.

The entire blood donor clinic and the poster contest were sponsored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Ann Landers

Not Realistic to Think One Can Insist on Success

DEAR ANN LANDERS — From the beginning of our marriage my husband has been restless, shifting from one job to another. Karl has taken night school courses, correspondence courses and what have you — never finishing anything. I have lost count of the jobs he has had in the last 25 years.

Karl has a pleasing personality and a great many friends, but I resent having had to work from the day we were married. There were times when I carried the total burden because Karl was "between positions." This never seemed to bother him.

ANN LANDERS

Our children are grown and on their own now. What I want to know is this: Do you feel I should insist that Karl make a success of something and take care of me as other husbands do — or should I leave him and make a new life for myself? We are now going through one of those periods when I am working and he is not. — OYS-CASHPILT.

DEAR OYS — No man ever made a success of something because his wife insisted on it.

Your letter gives me the creeps. No woman is a prize who would consider dumping her husband after 28 years because he hasn't been able to make a success in business.

I don't know what you envision as "a new life for yourself" but of this I am sure — Cary Grant isn't waiting for you, Doll.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a close friend who baffles me. I'm never sure of the kind of greeting I will get from her. It ranges from ice cold to hugs and kisses. This has been going on for years.

Sometimes I think she is mad at me for something I said or did and I can't figure out what it could be.

Her reactions are so unpredictable she makes me nervous. Now I dread running into her.

You seem to be the lady with all the answers. Do you have an answer to this one? — FROZEN EMMA.

DEAR FROZEN — I know the type. One day they fall on your neck as if you were a long-lost relative. The next day you get a chill like you are coming down with malaria.

These swings are symptoms of a sick personality. Don't take it personally. You don't have a problem, your friend does.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My sister started college last fall and everyone in the family looks forward to her letters. Yesterday she wrote about a mixed pyjama party — for both boys and girls. Yes, they actually wear pyjamas. Instead of chairs, mattresses are provided — in keeping with the theme. My sister didn't attend such a party but her friend did.

The sororities sponsor these mixed pyjama parties according to my sister. They are becoming very popular.

My folks are shocked, and frankly, so was I. It seems to us that no respectable girl would attend such a party. Am I square and out of date at 22? I am scarcely believe it. Please tell us what you know about this. Can it be that things are moving that fast? We'd like to know. — CHICKIE.

DEAR CHICK — Sorry, but I don't believe sororities sponsor mixed pyjama parties.

If I am uninformed I'd like to know. May I hear from my college readers? How is it where you go to school?

TORONTO (CP) — If provincialism continues, Canada could "fall apart without anyone feeling directly responsible," André Laurendeau, co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, said today.

He said strong provincialism of Quebec is emphasizing the crisis facing the country, over the relationship of French- and English-speaking Canadians.

Speaking to the Empire Club of Toronto, Mr. Laurendeau said the commission, in its present inquiries, has found a crisis focused in Quebec but with numerous secondary angles, compounded by the problem of minorities in every province in Canada.

"There is a tendency to see the questions first from the provincial point of view, and to be satisfied when a provincial solution has been achieved within a province," he said.

CAN FALL APART

"If that attitude prevailed, Canada could fall apart without anyone feeling directly responsible."

The massive task of the commission is to investigate the separate but joint speeches by Mr. Laurendeau and Davidson Dunton, co-chairman of the 12-member royal commission.

Mr. Laurendeau said the central crisis between English and French Canada is acute, complex, contradictory and ambiguous.

"We have not been charged to restore this worsening situation," he said.

"A crisis of such depth and of such dimensions cannot be resolved by a royal commission. The solution or the failure will be found at the political level."

Mr. Dunton, explaining that the words of each co-chairman are said on behalf of both, said the commission is not trying to promote anything and so far is not for or against anything.

"It is a body set up to inquire, study and make recommendations."

He said the commission, in its current round of informal meetings across Canada, expects to gain a heightened perception about the attitudes of different Canadians and the realities of the problems facing the country.

This, plus a study of written briefs due by mid-May, will set the stage for formal hearings across Canada next fall and winter.

Mr. Dunton placed importance on separate research studies of a variety of subjects from the number of bilingual persons in the civil service to the teaching of French and English in schools.

He called for help from "those who can look without prejudice, drop constricting ideas they may have grown on with and face facts squarely; those who will make an effort to appreciate the feelings and aspirations of Canadians otherwise than those close to them."

He said an "enormous national effort of objective examination and understanding is needed."

Text of the speeches was released in advance to the press.

Ridgway at the bottom of his list of field commanders and referred to him as a "chameleon."

He said Ridgway favored MacArthur's plans for winning the war but did a "complete flip-flop in 24 hours" upon learning of Washington's disapproval. (Ridgway declined comment.)

Gen. Mark Clark, who succeeded Ridgway — MacArthur said Clark "initiated his own retirement" because "he couldn't take it any more." Clark said he did initiate his own retirement but only after he had signed the Korean armistice and returned to Korea at Eisenhower's request. He said there had been "many, many" requests for MacArthur's views.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, MacArthur termed a great future for Taylor even while he was a cadet at West Point. He said Taylor would make a move without contacting higher echelons . . . when such a move was necessary and was forced to make his own decisions on such men inevitably are—they sometimes come up with weird ones." (No comment by Taylor.)

Marshall, now dead—MacArthur said the then defence secretary was "acting as the errand boy of the state department" in vetoing MacArthur's plans to bomb Yalu River communist supply lines.

PRINCE RETURNS TO U.S.

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince William of Gloucester, 22-year-old cousin of the Queen, will return to the United States next week to complete his year at Stanford University, it was announced Thursday. The prince has hoped to enter the Commonwealth office but failed civil service examinations.

Clearing

more than 70 pages await members.

The idea that the House should clear up the estimates as brought earth by New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas late Wednesday when he suggested that all parties get together, impose deadlines on themselves, and finish the job by tonight.

A good idea, said spokesman for the Social Credit and Creditiste parties. But the Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill gave no commitment in the debate but his issue was being discussed in the corridors by representatives of all parties.

ALL AGREE

In a first step in the speed-up process, all parties agreed Wednesday, to give up the normal private members' hour so members could continue gnawing at estimates.

They were on defence items.

"Is there a single, solitary plane over which we are equipped to fight at this moment?" demanded Mr. Churchill in the often-stormy debate that continued to usher the legislation through.

Associate Defence Minister Cardin said, "I do not believe any aircraft now are armed." But he denied Mr. Churchill's assertion that the RCAF in Europe has been in "the poorest possible position in the history of Canada." He said it was even worse when Mr. Churchill was defence minister.

As they and others continued to debate defence matters there were interruptions of "filibuster" and "tell the truth" from backbenchers.

To suggestions of a Conservative filibuster, Mr. Cardin (Sherbrooke — Yukon) said the Liberals held up supplementary estimates for 26 days in 1962. Not so, said Privy Council President George Mitchell. It was eight days.

Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux jumped to his feet frequently to keep members on the prescribed topic, but Progressive Conservative Alvin Hamilton (Qu'Appelle) complained about lack of answers from the government benches.

Among answers given Wednesday, Mr. Cardin said all Canadian CF-104 planes in Europe now are in the process of being converted to dual nuclear and conventional weapon roles.

He also said that it will cost from $2,000,000 to $6,000,000 to cover an unforeseen increase in repair costs to navigational systems on the planes.

Mr. Churchill said Mr. Cardin was a "bit oldfashioned" in refusing to say, for security reasons, how many Canadian planes and nuclear bombs are available in Europe.

If this information is being withheld from the enemy, Cardin said Mr. Churchill, "why did they tell us the number of people who have gone to Cyprus?

One Uniform For Forces by July 1, 1967

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department has announced it have the three armed forces in one uniform by July 1, 1967— the Confederation centennial.

A department spokesman said Wednesday this date is "acceptable as a target" for unification of the three forces, as opposed to integration which already is under way.

Planning now calls for issue of a single Canadian defence force uniform starting next year.

What will it look like?

No decision has yet been made on color or design, the spokesman said. But the concern now is for the choice of a good, neat, serviceable cloth.

"We want something good something so that when a man stands up his uniform will stand up with him instead of remaining seated," said the spokesman.

Meanwhile, a planning committee has begun work under Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, C.B.E., designated as the new chief of defence staff. It is laying out details for a single defence staff for Ottawa headquarters.

Informants said this reorganization should be complete by this summer. Legislation providing for the single chief of defence staff will go before Parliament then.

The hope here is that integration of field commands will be well advanced by 1965.

MOSCOW (AP) — More than 100 Moscow teenagers have been arrested for a venture into capitalism—making profits by selling puppies, pigeons and pet fish. Apparently most were caught at the free enterprise pet market, where men do a flourishing business selling pets.

Man Who Confessed to Gaspe Killing Called by Inquiry

By STRUEN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — Francis Thompson, the Mohawk Indian who told Mi-mi police six years ago he killed two United States deer hunters, then retracted the statement, is scheduled to take the stand today in the Wilbert Coffin inquiry.

Thompson was being questioned by Miami police in 1958 for a theft when he confessed verbally to two detectives he and a partner had killed the hunters in Quebec's Gaspe. His retraction was also verbal.

Wednesday Wednesday concentrated on a lie detector polygraph test Thompson underwent following retraction of the confession.

Warren Holmes, an internationally known polygraph expert, said he administered the test and considered Thompson a "good subject."

However, he said he would not believe Thompson under oath.

DENIED STORY

In the test, Thompson denied telling the hunters or even having been in the Gaspe in his life. He said he had not fired a gun for the previous 10 years. Mr. Holmes said the blood pressure, breathing and skin electric activity indicators showed Thompson was telling the truth when he denied the statements.

During cross-examination, Coffin questioning, Mr. Holmes said he was mainly interested in finding Thompson's motivation for the confession.

He discovered Thompson was not being rewarded and has not been forced to make the confession.

"He did say he objected to the persistent interrogation on the theft charges," Mr. Holmes added. Mr. Thompson repented police and "he wanted to make a fool out of them."

Mr. Holmes, a former president of the International Polygraph Association, described Thompson as a "good liar" who "always protected himself."

LITTLE INFORMATION

Under cross-examination, Mr. Holmes said the test could have been delayed because the Miami police did not receive information it had asked from Quebec Provincial Police.

It was decided to go ahead with the test following receipt of information from Jacques Hebert who had gone to Miami on hearing of the Thompson confession.

He said he had no direct information from the QPP on the killing of three U.S. hunters in the Gaspe peninsula, but had enough facts to ask "general questions."

The Quebec royal commission in the Coffin affair was set up after Montreal author Hebert published a book, "J'Accuse les Assassins de Coffin" (I Accuse Coffin's Assassins) in which he maintained Wilbert Coffin, a Gaspe prospector, had been unjustly sent to the gallows by Quebec government officials.

Coffin was hanged in 1956 for the 1953 murder of one of the three hunters.

MacArthur

ident Truman who ended his military career in a dispute over the Korean War.

Rupp-Howard story said MacArthur paid grudging respect to Truman as "a man of raw courage and sound guts . . . the little bastard honestly believes he is a patriot."

WON'T REBUT

A spokesman for Truman said the former president would make no rebuttal and was sticking to his praise of MacArthur, upon his death, as "one of the great military men in our history."

Truman relieved MacArthur of his Korea command April 8, 1951. In other white cities, raised a series of rows between the general and Washington headquarters. After Peking sent in troops, MacArthur proposed expanding the military effort to Red China — "coastal areas and interior bases," Truman and UN allies favored limiting the campaign in Korea.

MacArthur gave his version at lengthy, censored Senate hearings upon his return. Among other things, he testified that the British were "cutting their own throats" by giving "much complete support to Red China."

The Lucas story quoted MacArthur as saying "those fools in Washington" prevented his winning the Korean War with his plan for bringing in Nationalist Chinese troops and sowing a five-mile-wide belt of radioactive cobalt along the Yalu River after defeating the Red Chinese to seal off China permanently from Korea.

SUICIDAL BELT

MacArthur was reported to have said the United States had cobalt "in abundance" as a by-product — presumably from atomic energy manufacture — and the radioactive belt would make it suicidal for an army to try to cross it.

The radioactive form of cobalt is produced by bombardment with neutrons. It is widely used where radiation is needed as in treating cancer.

The story said MacArthur was told of British "betrayal" by a field commander, Lt.-Gen. Walton Walker, but "said he became convinced he was the victim of a conspiracy" only after he had ordered Lt-Gen. George E. Stratemeyer to bomb the Yalu River bridges after the Chinese intervened.

Just as the bombers were about to take off four hours later, MacArthur was quoted as saying, his order was "peremptorily" countermanded by Gen. George Marshall, then defence secretary.

Truman has written in his memoirs that quickly upon receiving a message from Stratemeyer that MacArthur had ordered bombing of a Yalu bridge connecting Korea with Manchuria the president conferred with State Secretary Dean Acheson. Acheson in turn had checked with various state and defence department officials, including Dean Rusk, then assistant secretary of state for far eastern affairs. (Acheson declined comment on the Lucas story.)

MUST CONSULT

Truman said Rusk, now state secretary, had "pointed out that we had a commitment with the British not to take action which might involve attacks on the Manchurian side of the river without consultation with us" on them."

Only an hour and 20 minutes after Truman said, a message was sent to MacArthur banning all bombing of targets within five miles of the Manchurian border until MacArthur obeyed but repeated the limitations would have "disastrous effect."

The Lucas story quoted MacArthur as expressing those opinions about various individuals: He called Eisenhower — "Mr. MacArthur) was extremely bitter toward Gen. Eisenhower whom he referred to several times as 'one a man of integrity' (A spokesman for Eisenhower said the former president did have no comment.)

MacArthur, killed in Korea in 1950 of all his field commanders, Gen. MacArthur reportedly liked Lt.-Gen. Walton Walker the best" and complained that Walker was consistently villified by the "left wing press" and from Taylor.

Marshall, now dead—MacArthur said the then defence secretary was "acting as the errand boy of the state department" in vetoing MacArthur's plans to bomb Yalu River communist supply lines.

Ben Matthew Ridgway, MacArthur's successor as Far East commander — MacArthur rated

Cigarette Consumption Up Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — A 3.1-per-cent rise last year in cigarette consumption in Canada was indicated Wednesday in a bureau of statistics report. Cigar consumption jumped 8.4 per cent to a record high.

These were the increases in tax-paid withdrawals of cigarettes and cigars for consumption as shown by sales of excise revenue stamps.

The number of cigarettes rose to 39,976,838,000 from 38,-823,886,000.

That's the equivalent of 1,-997,842,900 packs of 20 cigarettes or 105 for every man, woman and child in Canada last year.

Twenty years earlier, in 1943, the equivalent of 963,827,200 packs were consumed or 48 packs for every Canadian.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Cigarette sales in New York-State rebounded to nearly normal levels last month, but the recent cancer scare cost the state more than $3,000,000 in tax revenues, the state tax department reported Wednesday.

The agency said cigarette revenues from March sales climbed to $8,549,786—after dipping to $7,826,678 in February—and brought total collections for th' fiscal year that ended March 31, to $122,000,000.

The yield for the full fiscal year was only ½ per cent under collections for the previous fiscal year but was $4,100,000 below expectations.

A department spokesman said the report issued by the U.S. government in January calling smoking a hazard to health apparently cost the state between $3 000,000 and $4,000,000 in revenue.

Noting the March recovery, however, he said:

"We are certainly more optimistic about the trend now. It looks like people are starting to smoke more . . . or again, maybe."

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

In this article we will deal with adopted children. For income tax purposes adoption means more than appears at first glance. Each year many taxpayers who have a child or children in their custody and control, do not claim exemption for the reason that such children have not been legally adopted.

Adoption for income tax purposes is defined as "in law" or "in fact." You do not have to legally adopt a child to claim exemption for it. If no one has any legal right to remove such a child from your custody and control, then you are considered to have adopted the child in fact. The often is the case where relatives take in an orphaned child and raise it as their own child. In fact the adoption papers were not signed in no way prohibits the claim for exemption.

Children from a childrens aid society located in the home cannot be claimed for exemption as they could be removed at anytime by the organization that placed them with you.

A child adopted during the year is entitled to full exemption for that year. This applies even when the child was adopted in December. In the case of an exemption for a child it is either full allowance or nothing at all.

In some cases a taxpayer will take a nephew or niece in order to provide him with higher education than they would expect if they were supporting their own. The fact that the taxpayer pays the entire keep and education for the child does not claim an exemption for such child. It is only the parents of the child that could legally claim exemption.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed, five-cent stamped envelope and send it in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question: We have taken a child from an orphanage on a trial basis. We will adopt it if mutually satisfied. Can I claim exemption this year?

Answer: Exemption for such child may only be claimed when it is legally adopted.

Question: I am educating my brother's sons. I pay their tuition fees and all other expenses. Can I claim anything for all this or my income tax return?

Answer: No. You have no claim whatsoever.

President of Parsons College Most Cussed and Discussed Man in Higher Education

By G. K. HODENFIELD

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP)—Eight years ago Parsons College had a student body of 362 and a campus worth $700,000 and debts of $1,300,000.

Parsons now has 2,700 students, a $7,000,000 campus is virtually debt-free and will show a profit this year of $2,300,000.

Behind this rags - to - riches story stands Dr. Millard G Roberts, president of Parsons College and one of the most cussed and discussed men in U.S. higher education.

Roberts, a former New York minister now in his 40s, appears to have mastered the impossible.

He has turned a bankrupt college into a thriving business, free of dependence on government or private grants and appeals to the alumni. And he welcomes students no other college will take.

ANSWERS CRITICS

Roberts' favorite sputter that no college should even try to make a profit.

Roberts replies that a profit-making approach is the only salvation for most private colleges.

The critics also charge that such colleges can admit students with poor test scores and high school records and still maintain a quality academic program.

Roberts says it's only a matter of a little good sense and teachers, turning them loose to teach, and giving the students more personal attention.

When Roberts took over as president in 1955, the average faculty salary was $5,500 a year. Today, the average faculty salary is $12,996 and nearly 90 per cent of the faculty members have their doctorate, a figure surpassed in only a handful of institutions.

Admission is on the basis of scores on the college entrance examination board tests. Parsons uses a quota system to determine the makeup of its freshmen class: One-third from the highest ranking one-third who apply, one-third from the remainder of the top half, and one-third from the lower half.

COURSES ARE FLEXIBLE

How do you find a curriculum for a risky student body?

Parsons' answer is to solve that problem with a 3 - 2 - 2 - 2 grading program and team teaching.

First, the number of courses was pruned to 160 from 768. Next, a "core" program of 20 courses in the basics of science, social science and the humanities is required of all freshmen and sophomores.

Non-credit "pre-courses" in English composition, European history and mathematics are required of freshmen weak in those areas. Superior students are allowed to "test-out" of many courses above the core level.

Perhaps the most radical departure from tradition was in the expansion of "contact time" a student has in a given subject.

Traditionally, a three - hour course in history means a student attends three 1-hour lectures a week. At Parsons, the student attends the lectures but also is required to attend two weekly, small-group discussions of the lectures.

Here the lecture material is gone over slowly, questions are answered, and ideas explored.

FREE TUTORING

Students in difficulty may have up to 10 hours a week of individual instruction.

Thus, instead of three hours of "contact" with a course, a Parsons student gets at least five and as many as 15.

Roberts has built his faculty with a combination of high salaries, good working conditions, and time to pursue such activities as research, writing and advanced study. Parsons is on the trimester system, with full, 16-week terms beginning in June, October, and February. Faculty members teach two trimesters, and have the third term off at full pay.

Roberts uses the Parsons dormitories and food services into profit-making enterprises. Tuition was $425 for two semesters when Roberts came to Parsons. This year it is $1,000 for two trimesters, and tuition will go up $50 a trimester every year.

Why raise the tuition in a college showing a $2,000,000 annual profit?

MANY WANT IN

"Such a small tuition rise is fully justified," Roberts said, "by the rising costs of college elsewhere, the increasing number of applications for admission (4,200 last year), and the constantly rising quality of our physical plant and academic programs."

Each student pays $300 a term for a dormitory room, and $300 for meals. College figures show almost 60 per cent of this is clear profit.

Roberts plans to have a $12,-000,000 campus within three years.

"We also are going to use our money for direct grants to the faculty for research," he said. "This is a new source of funds for academic research—with no strings attached by government regulations, no restrictions imposed by philanthropic foundations."

Quebec-Labrador Boundary Spotlighted in Two Houses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec-Labrador boundary was in the spotlight in two legislatures Wednesday.

Premier Joseph Smallwood said in the Newfoundland house of assembly Quebec feel they were betrayed in 1927 when the Privy Council laid down the border.

He said the widely-divergent views of Quebec and Newfoundland regarding the border would be a matter for reconciliation.

The people of Quebec regard the Privy Council ruling as a "foul betrayal" of justice, he said.

Meanwhile in the Quebec house, Mr. Smallwood's statement Tuesday that a student demonstration disrupted highlevel talks on the border issue during last week's federal-provincial conference in Quebec was disputed by Premier Jean Lesage.

The premier said Mr. Smallwood was "undoubtedly joking" when he made the statement in the Newfoundland house. He said his discussion of the subject with Mr. Smallwood was admittedly unfinished, but it was not interrupted.

DRIFTED MATTER

The matter came up during a coffee break, Mr. Lesage said, but they had to drop it to return to the conference room.

Premier Smallwood said Tuesday he and the Quebec premier had scarcely begun to discuss the boundary issue when Mr. Lesage's attention was drawn to a relay group of students outside.

In the Manitoba house, Welfare Minister J. A. Carroll said, the province's welfare department is planning an experimental program in the field of community development for the Manitoba Indian population.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta said it is too early to say what may happen to a bill dealing with a proposed Canadian Pacific Railway development plan in Calgary.

He said the draft bill, introduced in the legislature Tuesday, must be given thorough study by the house. It could be amended.

The plan calls for the railway to remove its tracks from the present mid-city right of way to a new route of way along the Bow River and to develop the old property over a period of time.

Close Look at Canada's Water Supply May Follow Pact on Columbia River

OTTAWA (CP) — A close look at Canada's water supply may follow final agreement on the Columbia River project, federal officials say.

This study would cover the whole Great Lakes basin and fears that the huge water system is drying up. Steps would be considered to put more water in.

Also included might be studies of water "exports" by Canada to the United States, plus diversion proposals to turn the flow of northwestern rivers like the Peace, Athabasca or even Yukon southward across the Prairies and perhaps into the Great Lakes basin.

Latest concern about adequate water supplies arises from abnormally-low levels on the five Great Lakes. Lower snow and rain for the last three years, coupled with more evaporation than usual, have combined to drop Lake Huron three feet below normal. It has been calculated that every drop of one inch on Lake Huron costs 3,000,000 in power loss annually and $280,000 in shipping restrictions.

The solution to all this is simple, according to a proposal made a few years ago and still pondered from time to time. This scheme would turn James Bay area rivers southward over the height of land—using pumps driven by hydro power—to the Great Lakes.

SUGGESTED IDEA

The original proposal suggested that James Bay water itself might be pumped south since its net content generally was low anyway and would be chlimed out even more in the lakes. The water would flow along the Hurricanaw River in Quebec, the Ottawa River and then divert into Lake Nipissing and Lake Huron.

The water resources division of the federal resources department took a brief look then at the concept. Officials agree that if the Great Lakes really are drying up, Northern Ontario and Quebec rivers are the only sources to replenish the system and meet rising municipal, industrial and power demands in Canada and the U.S.

But they point out some difficulties too. For example, in 1952, Lake Ontario water levels hit record highs that caused extensive damages. There is nothing in the pattern of lake-level data, kept since 1860, to indicate any clear cycle of drought and flood.

Thus, suppose a diversion to water did start, it might coincide with a wet spell in the Great Lakes watershed and make it worse. Officials say it takes about three years for water from Lake Superior to reach Lake Ontario and this makes quick control impossible. In 1952, Ontario Hydro did dust off Ogoki diversion north of Lake Nipigon.

HEARST'S WORD

Another detail is that the northern rivers are Quebec and Ontario resources and these provinces have the last word on their use.

Walter Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson who has made public statements on Great Lakes water usage, also notes that the Great Lakes involve the export of water to the U.S.

He suggested in a Jan. 6 speech in Vancouver that water could become a major item of trade with the U.S. and that northern rivers if properly diverted could flushing great industries for power, irrigation, industrial uses and sewage.

Just how Canada would charge for water exports to the U.S. is a matter requiring a lot of study, he agrees. But perhaps it could be handled the same way that Saskatchewan is selling a huge block of Columbia power to the U.S.—in a consortium of private and public customers.

Here engineers and industries on the U.S. side of the lakes system might willingly sign long-term water sales, Mr. Davis says, and certainly the whole subject is a matter that bears further investigation.

Public Defender System Recommended to Board

WINDSOR (CP) — The establishment of a provincial government-financed public defender system with possible law society control was recommended to a joint committee on legal aid which ended a two-day sitting here Wednesday.

The Windsor Chamber of Commerce proposed the system to the seven committee members of government and Law Society of Upper Canada officials and stressed it should be "as independent of government control as possible."

In the plan, the chamber proposed a local office of public defender, agency counsel and said a cost-sharing arrangement by municipalities and the federal government should be considered.

The committee headed by W. B. Common, deputy attorney-general, is exploring the legal aid system in Ontario. It held sessions in Toronto, Ottawa and London before arriving in Windsor. The committee will resume work in Sudbury April 20.

A major recommendation in the chamber's submission was that a person applying for legal aid in a criminal case should be free to choose between the public defender or a private counsel taking part in the public defender scheme.

EXPLAINS SYSTEM

Grant McCready, solicitor for the chamber, said under the latter arrangement the public defender would act in an administrative capacity but, at the same time, the private counsel could use the investigation facilities of the public defender office.

Committee member Robert Reid said the suggested system differs little from the existing legal aid system in Ontario. It merely goes by another name, he said.

Mr. Reid said the legal aid plan now is administered provincially by a Toronto lawyer who assigns counsel from a volunteer panel and handles some defence work. The provincial government give a $20,000 annual grant to the law society to help fund the operation of the plan.

Mr. Common said popular impression of the public defender type of legal aid system is that the danger of conflict of interest lies in the system of appointing and paying both prosecutor and defender.

It may or may not coincide with the truth, although it appears popular in the United States, he added.

Mr. McCready admitted the public defender's office might reduce experience opportunities for younger lawyers in the legal aid field. Under the existing system, however, an accused person does not always get an experienced lawyer, as would a paying client.

Earlier in the sittings, Charles Dubin, director of legal aid for the Windsor area, said there is all need there is well handled under the existing system.

Sellers Nears End of Crisis

Sellers, 38, was stricken Monday while making his first Hollywood film, Kiss Me, Stupid.

The three doctors attending him said he was resting well and his condition was encouraging but still critical.

His agent, Richard Shepherd, told reporters Wednesday:

"I think he's going to be all right because he is so strong in every way."

Sellers was in good spirits. "He's very witty," said nurse Joan Spatola. "He makes funny faces on occasion to make us laugh."

Shepherd Sellers pull through, he still would face at least six months' convalescence, hospital sources said.

Canadian Cast Takes Time Out for Party

By ROD CURRIE

CHICHESTER (CP) — The hard-working cast of the Shakespeare Festival Company from Stratford, Ont., went to a party Wednesday night for their first bit of relaxation since they arrived in Britain Easter Monday.

The celebration in the restaurant of the Chichester Festival Theatre, as guests of the director of governors, came after their first performance of Timon of Athens, the third of three plays they are presenting during their three - week season here to help celebrate the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth.

The actors, having already collected a bundle of favorable critics' comment in the British press for Love's Labor's Lost Monday and Moliere's Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme Tuesday, were delighted with the reception they got at the conclusion of Timon.

Because of the open stage, there are no curtain calls but the entire cast was called back four times to receive the applause of the enthusiastic full house audience.

Then they rushed backstage to scrub off their makeup and change for the party.

Since their arrival they have hardly had a free minute, with rehearsals running daily from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

GET GOOD REVIEW

The Sunday Times, in a belated review of Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, says that "as a comedy of situations this production must surely rank with the best."

The Times says it is one of those European classics which are "imperfectly appreciated" in Britain.

"Let it therefore be said in praise of the Stratford company's production that they gave a performance of gusto and humour and that the full house rose to the occasion with unreserved laughter."

Director Jean Gascow "does full justice to its visual and dynamic demands" and the singers and dancers, "unlike the average supporting cast, contributed a great deal to the performance's vitality."

Although the emotional pressure of three successive "first nights" now is behind them, the Canadians have a tough schedule today—Love's Labor's Lost in the afternoon and the Moliere play in the evening.

Meanwhile, a major off-stage preoccupation among hockey fans in the cast is trying to find out the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs are going. Several of them are threatening to telephone Canada for the information.

POTASH TESTING

EDMONTON (CP)—One year of testing has indicated that potash application may be helpful in increasing potato yields, says Dr. W. T. Andrew, head of the Alberta agriculture department's horticulture division. Tests to show under what conditions potash would be most profitable are continuing.

Minister Asks Broadcasters To Give Listeners, Viewers Better Political Reporting

QUEBEC (CP) — Transport Minister Pickersgill appealed to broadcasters Wednesday to give listeners and viewers more analytical political reporting as a step towards getting public opinion behind needed changes in Parliament.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters that Canada's Parliament needs some rule changes if it is going to function properly and turn "national purpose into national achievement."

But he doubted changes in the mechanics of Parliament could be effected unless public opinion demanded them.

"I appeal to you to take a look at and a listen to political reporting and ask yourselves if you are really doing your job if you are giving listeners the picture as it really is and not just little scraps."

Too much effort, he suggested, is being made at impartial reporting of Parliament. There ought to be more analytical reporting of the government acted foolishly or if the Opposition was responsible for particular situations the public should know it.

When newsmen meet act like exhibitionists, "they should be reported as exhibitionists," he said. "The public ought to know who is gumming up the works."

HAVE TO COVER

He understood reporters had to cover Parliament for all shades of opinion but more analytical reporting would be for the good of the country.

No media, he said, has a bigger impact on the public mind than the broadcasting industry, both radio and television. This impact should be used to get public opinion behind necessary changes in the mechanics of the Commons.

Parliament's reputation has declined in the public's opinion in recent years, he said.

". . . the ordinary people of Canada think something is wrong with Parliament and they are right." He suggested the decision - making process within Parliament has been slowed down and that rule changes are needed to speed it up again.

One of the most simple and effective ways of speeding up work would be to abolish appeals on rulings by the Speaker. It was "utterly absurd to elect a Speaker and trust him so little that one member can challenge anything and five members can ask for a vote."

He said too, time for debates should be rationed, as in the British Parliament and the question period should be restricted.

IS OUTSIDE

The current type of question period has grown up outside the House rules and become "an hour-long quiz program with no holds barred."

There was no other country in the world that expected cabinet ministers to know every detail of his department's operations, be up to date with happenings in the provinces abreast of radio and press reports.

The question period, as it has developed in the last six or seven years, has become "a shocking waste of time" that prevents urgent business from being done.

But if the government attempted to change it, there would be accusations that the government had something to hide.

Guerrillas Overrun Post

TAN AN (AP)—A Communist victory only 15 miles south of Saigon has dealt a major setback to strong man premier Nguyen Khanh's plan to clear the Viet Cong from Long An province of South Viet Nam on the doorstep of the capital.

Red guerrillas overran a South Vietnamese self-defence post at 3 a.m. Wednesday and killed 28 South Vietnamese. Most of the dead, including two civilians, were riddled in their beds.

Thirty-six men were wounded and 37 others are missing, believed captured after the hit-and-run battle in which the Viet Cong seized 115 weapons and blew up two watchtowers.

Viet Cong losses, if any, were not known.

South Viet Nam's 7th Division sent in a large force to stalk the guerrillas, and under-secretary Phi was reported in the area today.

Shipping Head Fears Trouble On Great Lakes

TORONTO (CP) — J. D. Leitch, president of upper Lakes Shipping Limited, said Wednesday he fears a repetition of lawlessness on the Great Lakes if "elements which were responsible for the violence" remain in power in the Seafarers International Union of Canada.

In a statement sent to Prime Minister Pearson and Labor Minister MacEachen, Mr. Leitch said he had "carefully considered reports of the agreement apparently arrived at between the maritime union's executive committee and Hal Banks, international president of the SIU."

"We are in favor of a settlement which would effectively clean up the Great Lakes' labor situation and enable ships' owners to operate into American ports," he said.

"We are, however, concerned that the agreement which seems to contemplate leaving in power the SIU the very elements which were responsible for the violence and lawlessness on the Great Lakes in the first place may as a result not bring about lasting peace and that we will, in the future, be faced with a recurrence of the same lawlessness.

"On the surface, the agreement appears to run contrary to the declared policy of the trusteeship," he said.

U. N. Force in Cyprus Encounters Predicted Traps

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With depressing predictability, the United Nations Cyprus force is encountering the traps and pitfalls that were forecast for it.

So far the force has reacted according to plan — with patience, restraint and more patience.

The fact that the force is venturing cautiously into the centre of the countries providing troops.

By and large these countries and the UN knew what they were up against. It was clear that the conditions under which UN troops would work would not be ideal. That was the price of admission.

From the start it was obvious that the venture would be as risky as it was necessary. The force was formed with few illusions, so there are few to be shattered.

It was predictable, for example, that Archbishop Makarios would try to use the force to gain his own ends: The destruction of the Turkish-Cypriots' capacity to fight back and of Turkey's rights to intervene.

The archbishop — president, leader of the Greek - Cypriots, has performed as expected by pronouncing the end of the treaty giving Turkey intervention rights. And reports from Cyprus speak of a campaign by the archbishop's followers to launch a "counter - attack" against the Turkish community.

It was predictable, too, that one side or the other would accuse the UN force of failing to carry out its mandate. Turkish-Cypriots have been the first to complain, charging that the force has done nothing to prevent attacks on members of their community.

It was predictable, given the terms of reference of the force, that Makarios' "regular irregular" would challenge UN soldiers and the latter would either have to fight or back down.

Such an incident happened Friday when a detachment of British UN troops were held at stage for a time. It provoked demands in the British press — parliament for clarification of the UN powers, with the influential London Times demanding that British troops should be withdrawn from the force unless they "can be assured of a useful and dignified role in keeping the island's peace."

From the UN point of view, such assurance is impossible. It is the nature of UN peace-keeping activity that success is usually built on compromise rather than toughness.

Barring a near - miraculous improvement on the island, the Britons, Canadians and Swedes so far making up the force can expect more rather than fewer demands on their self-discipline.

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, of the Ontario Supreme Court, former mayor of Sudbury, Ont., was expected to testify today at the perjury trial of Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, president of Northern Ontario Natural Gas.

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor when Sudbury city council awarded NONG the franchise for gas distribution in 1956.

Farris, 53, was charged on two counts of perjuring himself before Ontario inquiries when he denied knowledge of the disposition of a block of 14,000 NONG shares, some of which went to officials or former officials of municipalities which awarded gas franchises to the company in Northern Ontario.

The largest block of shares—7,500—went to Mr. Justice Landreville after he had left the mayoralty of Sudbury for the bench.

Another Crown witness likely to be called today is County Court Judge Archibald Patrick, 64, of Orillia, Ont., at one time a law partner of William A. Moore. Their firm acted as solicitors for the town of Orillia and at the preliminary hearing in January it was stated that 150 NONG shares went to Mr. Patrick.

RECEIVED SHARES

At Wednesday's hearing it was disclosed that 50 of these shares were sold by Mr. and Mrs. Moore's law partner, now Judge Carter.

One of the chief witnesses in Wednesday's testimony was J. Chester Grey Jr., of Tucson, Ariz., who said shares received in addition by defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick he had purchased 9,144 shares of NONG for $5,255 and sold them for $165,000.

Mr. Grey, a former Seattle man who now lives in Arizona, was manager and financial director of a vice-president and general manager from April, 1954, to August 1956.

Mr. Grey, who said his job was to find Northern Ontario municipalities in NONG's then-projected pipeline, told the Supreme Court jury he eventually resigned in 1956 when he couldn't get any more stock.

He said he started with five shares of NONG's initial issue, which was soon split 100 for one, then again, again, five for one. Along with stock purchase rights, he wound up with 9,144 shares for his investment. The stock now sells for $22.

DOESN'T SEE REASON

Mr. Grey testified he could see "no reason" for NONG's extending to then-mayor Landreville an option on 10,000 shares at $2.50—less than a quarter of its market value at the time—two days after Sudbury city council awarded the franchise.

Earlier, Mr. Grey said he was successful in getting a number of municipalities to look with favor on Bell NONG's application for a gas distribution franchise but had no luck with Sudbury.

He said he reported the situation to Farris early in 1956 when Farris told him he would take over the shares.

April a visit to Sudbury had been successful, said Mr. Grey.

He agreed with Mr. Sedgwick's suggestion that Farris told him this after the company head had visited International Nickel Company executives in New York.

HAD NO VALUE

Mr. Grey also conceded that without participation by Inco as principal client, the Sudbury franchise alone had no particular value.

"So it's fair to say that once Inco said 'we're going to take it,' it was going full into the," said Mr. Sedgwick.

Mr. Grey agreed.

The jury has heard evidence from the 1958 and 1962 Ontario investigations into NONG stock transactions, showing that Farris testified he was unaware of how the 14,000-share block of stock went to Landreville.

A letter Farris wrote to Mayor Landreville after Sudbury granted the franchise was also produced in court.

Mr. Justice Wells, in earlier indications by the mayor that he would be interested in acting in a legal capacity for NONG when he left municipal politics and extended the stock offer.

Jury Finds Baby Died From Neglect, Brutality

SUDBURY (CP) — A courtroom crowded with 350 women Wednesday said, "because a baby of that age has such soft cartilage and muscle — it would tend to give rather than break."

WIFE WAS ROUGH

Wilfred Leduc, father of the dead infant, who admitted he often spanked the baby about being rough with his children, said: "She had terrible headaches. I couldn't stand to hear the baby crying."

He admitted that he "did spank" the baby's head to stop it from crying and that she did not seem to cover the baby's mouth.

Dr. Bremner said the baby was undernourished and dehydrated and weighed two pounds less than she should have. Her weight at the time of death was just over 12 pounds.

The Children's Aid Society had been called two days earlier by Mrs. Patricia Chenier, a long-time friend of Mrs. Leduc.

Mrs. Chenier told the society that the child was being abused.

Jack Thompson, society director, told the jury: "Under present conditions we do not have the facilities for protective custody of children and could do nothing."

The verdict blamed neither Mr. nor Mrs. Leduc for the brutality and neglect.

"I said, where was it you wanted me to drop you off?"

Brant Geese Hard to Shoot, Use Pacific Ocean as Flyway

VANCOUVER (CP) — The brant is a sea goose who would probably die laughing if he came close enough to shore to see the hunter trying to get him in his sights.

There are two ways of going after the breed of brant that uses the Pacific Coast as its flyway.

Both are so uncomfortable, and unproductive, that a true humanitarian would be tempted to put the hunter out of his misery.

The brant does not fly over land or light in the fields. He must be shot over the sea.

This leaves the hunter the choice of making a "jet-out" in a punt or using the "stand-out" method—that is, floating around in deep waters in the shallow tidal flats.

Either method requires a minimum of 12 decoys costing a likely $3 each. A punt costs up to $200 if built to specifications.

ALMOST HOPELESS

Mike Cramond, Vancouver Province sports columnist, has delivered a light - hearted sermon to the uninitiated:

"If you can stand out in water above your waist in winter for several hours each day, you might end up with four or five brant — just being with you. Rare seasons might bring that to 25 birds.

"If you wish to hunt brant by sitting out, you have your work cut out. As the tide recedes it leaves often a quarter mile of sand and mud over which to haul your punt, decoys, guns, and other gear.

"This may mean you launch in the middle of the night, or return late at night — or you must have two men and a trailer to aid you. Tides that are good for brant rarely coincide with the day time of shooting.

. . . Sunny calm days are few. When they do come the brant often choose not to fly. This often leaves you the alternative of sitting out in discomfort with a single lumber 30 birds for the same time.

"Here are the brant anything to make a hungry hunter smack his bliss, chapped lips over?

No. Cramond writes:

"Brant have a flavor much like any other goose, are no more than enough for two good servings, and could really not be considered (in all honesty) any more delicious than a mallard.

"One might wonder why a hearty hunter will go to the pit or blind on a cold, wet and disagreeably windy day year after year. Don't know. I have never heard a brant hunter who could tell me why—not in the 15 years that I have been wading and sitting out in such kinds of gawdawful weather."

Barbara Hutton Married for Seventh Time

HUITEPEC, Mexico (AP) — Barbara Hutton, the one-time poor little rich girl who now is 51, was married Tuesday night for the seventh time in an ancient Indian village. She wore a Southeast Asian costume and her feet were painted red. For the third time she became a princess.

This time the bridegroom was Vlerianos - French prince Doan Vinh, 45, a chemist. They were married in Miss Hutton's $3,000,000 Oriental - style home near Cuernavaca, about 60 miles south of Mexico City.

Miss Hutton's Felipe Castrejon Castrejon of Jiutepec, a sleepy village fronting Miss Hutton's large estate, conducted the civil ceremony just after sundown.

Miss Hutton was dressed in a green gown with gold trimmings. There was no immediate explanation of the symbolism for her feet being painted red.

When Doan declared in a March 16 Tokyo interview he was marry the Woolworth five-and-dime heiress, he said his mother was French and his father a Vietnamese royalty in what was French Indochina.

He said he had been married once before, but gave no details other than that he had been widowed.

Doan said he was a Buddhist and added Miss Hutton "is very favorable to this religion."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

The off-again-on-again Stanley Cup bangtails have reached the end of the seven-furlong test shakes.

They have rounded the turn and tonight will roar down the stretch in a neck-and-neck finish in the final dash for the right to enter the Gold and Glitter Stakes.

Tonight in Chicago and Montreal four squads that have been hot-and-cold in the test runs will likely shake their inconsistency and show the nation they are capable of playing championship hockey.

In the seven-game series that goes into history tonight all four squads have shown some of the potential that rated them the playoffs—and by the same token have displayed in the other half of their outings a calibre of hockey that would make them sitting ducks for the ousted Boston Bruins and New York Rangers.

All four coaches took turns at sighing the lament "we were off tonight" and on opposite occasions "We played hockey tonight—and they didn't."

Canadiens' Toe Blake snorted in anger after Tuesday night's striped-kitty shellacking, "What can I say? You saw it. They got three goals and we didn't get one. We had a few chances but didn't play well enough to win."

Toronto's ebullient sworn mentor Punch Imlach merely grinned in "I-told-you-so" style. His cryptic ball for once came up with the right answer so much so he'll stand pat tonight with Tuesday's line-up.

"Without," as one rabid Montreal fan murmured, "Ole Lady Luck and John Breaks sitting on his bench."

Chicago fans are still groggy from the impact of the worst shellacking given any team in the in-and-out series.

The suddenly tripper-happy Red Wings led by their twice-Dorey-Harpy-hooker Norm Ullman deftly removed the scalps from a lethargic Hawks flock and sent them back to their not-so-happy hunting grounds in Chicago licking their wounds and waving rearguards.

Coach Red Wings mentor Sid Abel after catching a paying $500 wound in his wallet, neatly incised by "Dr." Clarence Campbell for over-indulgence of vocal chords, "we'll be ready with everything at Chicago on Thursday night."

Nomad Billy Reay from his chief's wigwam in the Windy City Hawks' We felt upset in the second period and they gave it to us good on the scoreboard."

From this point, the Red Wings have shown the best consistency of the four combatants, particularly in the last three outings. Watch for trouble from this quarter.

So look out for two hell-for-leather combats tonight. That extra loot that goes with the grand entrance to the finals is a mighty powerful incentive, pedners, and you can add to that the "grudges" that have crept up between players and spectators like prop roots.

They have been, perhaps, one of the most bitterly-fought semi-finals series in some years, and tops in this respect in full view of a coast-to-coast audience.

And all indications point to tonight's struggles being the hardest-fought of all with the Hawks and Canadiens, having the home-town edge, if that means anything in hand-to-hand combats of this nature.

If the cliche insist on their Alphonse-Gaston attitudes ("Apres vous m'sieu") then it will be Hawks and Canadiens in the finals. If, as they probably will be, a dog-eat-dog, drag-'em down affair, then it should be Hawks and Canadiens. With a slight reservation on the former. If you're holding a Red Wings ticket in the office pool don't toss it away until after the final whistle.

And in case you didn't read about it, the Montreal-Leafs game will be telecast from the opening puck-drop. And don't change the dial. If the Wings-Hawks game is still in progress after Leafs-Hawks finish, it will go on the telecast air immediately following.

Habs Are Slight Favorites Over Leafs

By JOE DUFUIS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Canadiens, season-long superiors, and the Toronto Maple Leafs, season-long disappointments, tonight face the awful moment of truth in the 1963-64 hockey season.

After six soggy games their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final, the teams are still trying to prove which is the better.

Tonight—the seventh and final game—will decide the issue. One team will leave and pack it up for the season. The other will meet the survivor of the Detroit-Chicago set, also down to a final game tonight in Chicago.

For the guy who likes to back his choice with money, the Canadiens rule as slight favorites to beat the Leafs because of the advantage of home ice, and the return of their injured superstar Jean Beliveau after a week-long absence.

Another factor to consider is the 3-0 shutout Leafs administered the young Habs in the sixth game at Toronto on Tuesday to tie the series 3-3.

LOSS UPSET BLAKE

That gave Leafs a terrific psychological boost, and upset Habs coach Toe Blake so much he refused to let reporters interview his players in the Laurentian Mountains resort where the team is staying until game time.

But to get it from the horse's mouth—as it were—as the rival coaches.

Says Blake: "We've always played best with our backs to the wall, and we couldn't be any nearer the wall then we are now."

Says Leafs mentor Punch Imlach: "We're going to win a hockey game."

So, with both coaches confident, both teams nervous but anxious, and the difference between the squads chiefly a matter of freaks—the game shapes up as one of the most exciting in years.

Over the six-game series, Leafs have scored 14 goals, one more than their rivals. Another factor: Neither team—as in the Detroit - Chicago series — has been able to put two good games together, winning and losing in rotation. So, if the sequence holds, it's Canadiens and Chicago over here to win tonight. Montreal and Toronto have shutout the other once.

Imlach says in a sudden-death type game anything can happen. Blake calls it an "if" game —if Beliveau catches fire, if Leafs' defence wilts, if Toronto's Frank Mahovlich plays dead, if—and so on.

MAHOVLICH IS DUE

Mahovlich, incidentally, is due for a big night. He's had two of them in the series, and Leafs won both times.

Imlach's defending cup champions are due in the city early today on the overnight train from Toronto. The team has survived the series so far with out injuries. But Imlach has four performers from Rochester, Americans on call to join in case. One of them, Gerry Ehman, played in Tuesday's game and made his presence felt although he didn't score.

Habs have been less fortunate. They lost high-scoring winger Gilles Tremblay after the first game with a pair of ankle. Then, in the fourth game, Beliveau bent his knee after Eddie Shack bearded him heavily. He missed the next two games, but Blake said he could have used the big centre and team captain Tuesday night if Canadiens had needed to win. "The rest did Beliveau a lot of good," Blake said. He'll be in top shape for this big game."

Three other Habs, centre Ralph Backstrom, defenceman Jacques Laperriere, and centre Henri Richard, are playing as well but not enough to keep them out of the limp.

BACKSTROM WILL PLAY

Backstrom's charley - horse, picked up Tuesday, has reduced his effectiveness, but Blake says he'll be able to take his regular turn. Laperriere's wrist, sprained in the schedule-ending game at New York which Canadiens won 2-1 to capture the National Hockey League championship, still has to be taped and treated.

Jacques says he can't get any strong wrist-action into his slap shot which Blake relied on much during the schedule-ending power play. Richard has a sore groin, and patched-up head, the result of some weird head-butting by Shack, and a fan who hit him with a hard object in last Saturday's game at the Forum.

Refereeing could prove to be a decisive factor in the final game. The teams have already broken all existing penalty records for a Stanley Cup playoff and Imlach has warned that if Canadiens "want to play rough we'll meet them on their own terms."

Blake, although not exactly overjoyed at the officiating to date, says simply, through clenched teeth, that "refereeing won't win the game for us. We have to do that ourselves."

Famous Umpire Dies At 80

MIAMI (AP)—George Joseph Moriarty, 80, a long-time American League baseball player and umpire, died at his home here today.

Moriarty, a native of Chicago joined New York Giants in 1906. He played primarily as a third baseman.

In 1909 he was traded to Detroit Tigers and became an umpire in 1917.

Wings Have Good Record

But Statistics Give Leafs Edge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Here's a bit of bad news for Chicago Black Hawks. When it comes to winning seven-game Stanley Cup playoffs, Detroit Red Wings have the best record by far.

Since the first best-of-seven series was played in 1920, the Wings have been involved in eight of the 12 that went to the wire. And they've won six of them.

As it happens, they've never previously tangled in a seven-game set with the Hawks, whom they meet tonight in the seventh game of their current semi - final. Nor, for that matter, have Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens ever met in a cliff - hanger prior to tonight's encounter in the other semi-final bracket at Montreal.

But the Hawks' meagre record of down-to-the-wire competition is unpromising. They went all the way against Montreal in a 1933 cup semi - final and lost 4-3.

SAFS HAVE EDGE

The book gives the Leafs a slight edge over Canadiens. They've won three of their five seven-game playoffs while Montreal has a 9-3 record. Just to complete the picture, Boston Bruins have won once in four rise and New York Rangers have lost their only series that went the limit.

The Wings have been murder against Montreal over the long haul, meeting Canadiens in three times and winning them all, in 1942, 1944 and 1945. They also own seven game victories over Toronto, Boston and New York but have lost twice to the Leafs including the most astounding defeat in cup history.

That was the incredible 1942 final, in which the Wings took the first three games from the Leafs, two of them on Toronto ice, and then blew the next four. That hasn't happened to anyone since.

Stanley Cup Finals Dates

MONTREAL (CP) — Four teams are fighting it out in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, but there are only three cities in which the final series could open.

The first two games will be played on the home ice of the team which finished highest in the regular National Hockey League season. If they are in a Canadian city, the first two games will be played Saturday and Tuesday. They will be Sunday and Tuesday if they are played in an American city.

If the Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, first- and third-place finishers respectively, and Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings, second and fourth, making up the two semi-final series, the first game of the final series could be any of the following:

Saturday — Chicago at Montreal; Detroit at Montreal; Detroit at Toronto; or Sunday — Toronto at Chicago.

After the first two games, the series will revert to the other city for the third game next Thursday and the fourth game the following weekend.

The NHL office is getting more suspense this year than ever before in arranging final playoff dates and sites in advance. It's the first time since seven-game finals were started in 1941 that both series have gone the limit.

Lead Series 1-0

Marlies Whip Baby Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — A late three-goal burst in the final period by Toronto Marlboros provided a 5-3 win over Montreal Junior Canadiens Wednesday in the second game of their best-of-seven set for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff title.

The Marlboros took a 1-0 lead in the series in the wake of a 5-5 tie last Sunday in Toronto. No overtime is played in the series and the first club to get eight points emerges as champion.

Grant Moore sparked the victory for Toronto and was involved in all but one of their goals, scoring two and assisting on two others. Defensively he helped preserve the victory several times, notably in the third period when he frustrated a three-man attack by Bob Charlebois, Andre Boudrias and Leo Thiffault.

Andre Boudrias, playing on two lines, scored twice during the second period tic match.

Moore's output and Leo Thiffault scored the third to put Canadiens ahead for the first and last time in the game.

Weston Whips Kingston 5-1

KINGSTON (CP) — Weston Dodgers grabbed a 2-0 lead in their Ontario Hockey Association best-of-seven Junior B semi-finals by defeating Kingston Frontenacs 5-1 Wednesday.

Jim Jago, Jocko Pataki, Mike Flesler, Allan Osborne, and Derrick Ateckie shared the Weston scoring honors.

Ron Earl spoiled Stu Chapman's shutout bid at 16:36 of the final period.

Udvari In Tough Spot In Chicago

Could Be Fireworks

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CHICAGO (CP) — Referee Frank Udvari remembers the time when Montreal fans became so incensed at his officiating that six cops smuggled him out of a back door of the Forum. He remembers, too, the lonely hours he has spent while waiting for a National Hockey League game to start.

This soft - spoken, pleasant man from Kitchener, Ont. has been an NHL official since 1951 when he was 25 years old. He's a loner, but not by choice. He must avoid stopping at hotels where any of the six NHL clubs stay on the road during the October-to-April season and Stanley Cup playoffs.

Udvari is no different from any other big-league referee or linesman, except that he skates into the most embarrassing ach'pots on the ice. Off the ice, he wouldn't be found dead with a player or club official. He and his cohorts in striped shirts shun fraternization.

The game belongs to the players but they, at a tumbledown piece of real estate on West Madison Avenue known as Chicago Stadium in the old road section of the city, he finds will be the central figure in the decisive seventh game of the Stanley Cup semi-final between the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

WINNERS GET $1,500

A lot of money is riding on this game. Each player on the winning team receives $1,500 plus a chance to go for another $2,000 as a member of the cup-winning club in the final. Then there are bonuses. Each member of the losing team gets $750, and a long summer.

Hockey fans don't need an introduction to this brown-haired man.

Last Dec. 7 he was in charge at Toronto when the Maple Leafs and Hawks engaged in a tongues we. The result: Counsel Punch Imlach of the Leafs and Billy Reay of the Hawks drew $1,000 fines and various players were hit in the pocket book by NHL president Clarence Campbell.

That, said historians, was the worst brawl in the league's history.

It could easily have been topped last Sunday in the fifth game of the best - of - seven Hawks-Wings series here. And Udvari was right in the middle of it. He had to make probably the most important decision of his whistle-tooting life in the third period with the Wings ahead 3-1. The puck went into the Detroit nets on a highly controversial call to tie the score 3-3 and then, with about four minutes left to play, Hawks scored another to win the game and go into a 3-2 lead in the series.

MADE BIG DECISION

It was up to Udvari to rule whether the game-tying goal should, or should not, be allowed. It was a judgment call and, after much deliberation, he ruled it a goal.

Red Wings squawked so long and so vehemently that coach Sid Abel was slapped with a $200 fine by Campbell. Abel charged that Udvari was "gutless",that he "blew" the call and that the goal was a "steal."

If it had gone the other way, the garbage-throwing Chicago fans could easily have started a riot.

Udvari didn't panic on the call, but so much fuss was raised that he probably wondered whether the $200 and expenses he receives for officiating at these tension-charged games are worth it.

Detroit club officials said they didn't want any part of Udvari for tonight's game but the referee assignments had been made weeks ago and Campbell said there would be no change. Udvari is stuck with it.

The series between the two clubs hasn't been up to par from a standpoint of good hockey, but it has been colorful. And the fact that five goalies have been used—three by Detroit and two by Chicago—has made it somewhat of an oddity.

Detroit's miseries started in th second game of the set when regular goalie Terry Sawchuk developed a pinched ...re and had to bow out. However, Wings, with unknown Bob Champoux in goal, managed to win 5-4.

Sawchuk made a dramatic exit from hospital, a couple of hours before the third game and blanked Chicago 3-0. Back to hospital he went, emerged grain pers. before game time and was forced to retire early in the second period with the Wings ahead 3-1. Roger Crozier from Pilsburgh, Pa., Hornets of the A erican League took over and the Hawks won 3-2 in overtime.

Sawchuk was still ailing in the fifth game at Chicago last Sunday and Crozier was the Detroit goalkeeper when Wings' set 3-2. Terry returned to work Tuesday night and Detroit, behind a fired-up crew, bounced the opposition 7-2.

Chicago netminder Glenn Hall complained of nausea Tuesday and stepped aside after the middle period to let standby goalie Denis DeJordy take over.

Hall was in fine shape when the Hawks arrived home Wednesday and the word from coach Reay was that he would be in the nets for the seventh and deciding game, Terry Sawchuk will be facing him down at the other end.

The NHL announced Wednesday that a Toronto-Chicago cup final would open in Chicago Sunday, not Saturday as originally scheduled.

A Montreal-Chicago or Montreal-Detroit series would open Saturday in Montreal while Toronto and Detroit would start in Toronto Saturday.

The U.S. teams previously agreed to Saturday dates to accommodate Canadian Broadcasting Corporation television scheduling. However, the Chicago Stadium was subsequently rented for a commercial show for Saturday night. Apparently Hawks figured there was no chance Toronto would get past Montreal.

Stouffville Wins Second From Wellington

Stouffville Clippers grabbed a two-game stranglehold in the OHA Junior "D" championship series last night on home ice.

Clippers nipped the Welling-ton "Dukes" 6-5 in overtime and now lead the best-of-five set two games to none. Both victories have been in overtime.

The third game is scheduled for Wellington on Friday night at 9 o'clock.

Braves, Mets Win

Indians Clobber Giants; Yanks Beaten

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Richie Allen promises to be a lucrative rookie for Philadelphia Phillies in their bid for greater riches this season.

The Phils expect the 22-year-old Allen to end their six-year search for a regular third baseman. Based on Allen's spring performance, they may wind up with even more than that.

The right - handed slugger slammed his seventh home run and increased his runs batted in total to 23 Wednesday as Philadelphia trampled Los Angeles Dodgers 11-4. He had three hits and four RBIs and is by far the team leader in both departments.

Philadelphia has converted Allen into a third baseman from the outfielder he has been the last two seasons. Before that he played shortstop and second base.

The latest move was made to plug what probably was the Phils' biggest hole for their long-shot pennant chances. The team is striving for even better prospects after its fourth-place finish in 1963.

HAVEN'T BEEN FREE

Not since Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones have the Phillies been free of third-base worries. Jones started there for 10 years.

During the first seven years of his tenure, Philadelphia finished in the first division six times.

As a rookie for Arkansas in the International League last season, Allen led all hitters with 12 triples, 33 homers, 97 RBI and 220 total bases. He batted .290. Then in 10 games with the Phils at the end of the season he hit .262.

Allen's home run Wednesday was only one of many that dominated exhibition baseball action. Cleveland Indians got three of them in trouncing San Francisco Giants 14-4 for the first time in 10 spring games.

Willie Mays was struck on the right wrist in an attempted pickoff throw in that game and may be sidelined until Saturday or Sunday.

Julian Javier's two-run homer for St. Louis Cardinals in the eighth beat New York Yankees 5-4 while slugger John Gorzy gave Minnesota Twins a 5-4 triumph over Houston Colts with a two-run homer in the ninth.

Baltimore Orioles crushed Cincinnati Reds 8-1, Chicago Cubs nipped Boston Red Sox 7-6 in 11 innings, New York Mets downed Kansas City Athletics 11-9 and Milwaukee Braves beat Washington Senators 5-2.

Winnipeg In Finals

Woodstock Nips Alouettes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four games Wednesday eliminated only one team from the annual Allan Cup hunt, but two other senior hockey clubs are on the brink of elimination.

Winnipeg Maroons advanced into the Western finals with a convincing 9-0 triumph over Port Arthur Bearcats to take the best-of-seven series in four straight games.

Woodstock Athletics exploded for six first-period goals to down Bowen - Northids Alouettes 7-5 and take a commanding 3-1 lead in their eastern semi-final series.

Saskatoon Quakers moved into a 3-0 series lead in Kimberly, B.C., with a 5-4 overtime victory over the Dynamiters, and rule as favorites to meet Winnipeg in the Western final.

But in the East, outcome of the second series is still up in the air. Ottawa Montagnards evened their set with Windsor, N.S., Maple Leafs at 1-1 with a 7-4 victory, thanks to a two-goal effort by Chester Koneczny, one of three new players added to the Ottawa lineup.

Both eastern series resume Friday.

At Woodstock, Gerry Stringle was the big man for the Athletics with two goals, while Ron Hergott, Ted Power, Ron Mason, Jack McIntyre and Tommy Wilson scored one each. Ray Carpentier, with two, Rolly Fasselle, Pierre Laliberte and Reginald Cossette scored for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions.

POPULAR PALMER — Arnold Palmer obliges the kids with autographs following practice round for the Masters Golf Tournament at Augusta, Ga. (AP Wirephoto)

"Mr. Bowling" Tournament Begins May 1

Number 13 will be lucky for some district bowler on the first weekend in May, when the Bowl-O-Drome holds its 13th annual Mr. Bowling tournament here.

"More and bigger prizes and what we expect will be a full list of top entries should guarantee our best and biggest tournament ever," said a tournament official.

The tourney will be held on Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2. Play will get under way at seven o'clock Friday night and resume at 10.00 a.m. Saturday.

The final round will be rolled Saturday afternoon, starting at three o'clock.

One hundred entries only will be accepted and if there are that many in the tourney the prize list will be exactly $700. The prize total depends on the number of entries but it works out something like this: With 50 entries, first prize money will be $125, with 75 entries, $158, and with a full 100 entries, the top bowler will collect $250.

The tournament winner will also receive a beautiful wrist watch and will have option of taking his prize in a lump sum of cash or else taking an all-expenses paid trip for two to the New York World's Fair, plus the difference in cash.

The top ten bowlers will share in the big prize money bundle and there will also be a long list of other prizes up for grabs. There will be a special prize for the single of the tourney, based on the number of entries, plus ten other high game awards of $5 each. The 11th to 18th position bowlers will receive a consolation prize of a flight bag.

Jim McKenzie won the "Mr. Bowling" title last year and is expected to be a top contender again this year.

With the increased prize list bowlers are advised to get their entries in early and avoid disappointment.

The Handguns

The Quinte Marksmen were hosts to the Northern Electric Handgun Club Tuesday evening in the Belleville Armories.

The Marksmen defeated the Northerns 1233 to 1185.

The Northern team was paced by Reg Sprackett with 258, followed by Bert Waters 252, Jack Bradford 239, W. Gee 220, R. Beaudin 216.

About 30 local hand ... took part in the event w... ...e top five scores from each club counting.

Next Tuesday evening the crack team from the Trenton Handgun Club will meet the Quinte Marksmen in the Belleville Armouries.

Masters Golf Tourney Nicklaus 4-1 Favorite

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The 28th Masters golf tournament opens today with the game's greatest players haunted by a pair of nightmares — a course drenched by days of torrential rains and a pink-cheeked young giant named Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus, a 24-year-old from Columbus, Ohio, has been made a 4-1 favorite to become the first Masters titleholder ever to repeat, and his stature seemed to grow with every inch of water that fell on the beautiful Augusta National course.

"Let it rain," Nicklaus said Wednesday as he calmly watched rivulets course through Augusta Nationally like valleys. "Rain or shine I feel I'm ready."

"I don't remember when I have gone into a tournament in better physical shape or a better frame of mind. I may blow the chance but, if I do, I'll have no excuse. I feel wonderful."

The 210-pound Nicklaus, who in two short years, has crushed all professional opposition in his massive arms, is one of 96 players—58 United States pros, 15 amateurs and 23 foreigners—who began the four-day, 72-hole test that has become perhaps the most prestigious tournament in the game.

The Ohio belter listed as his chief opposition: Arnold Palmer, seeking his fourth Masters title in six years; Gary Player, the astute little South African who won here in 1961; U.S. Open champion Julius Boros; putting wizard Billy Casper, and Tony Lema, the 1963 runner-up.

The 6,980-yard, par 72 course, renowned as a big hitter's dream because of the many fairways planted in the Palmetto driving area, has been turned into an awesome monster by more than two inches of rain since Monday.

Water came down in torrents Wednesday. The fairways were saturated. The greens, lightning fast under normal conditions, were turned into miniature lakes.

The skies began to clear shortly during the afternoon and the drying out process began. The weather bureau forecast clearing and cooler weather for today. The tournament committee said play would be held as scheduled.

PICHE TO LEAFS

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves announced Wednesday that Canadian pitcher Ron Piche had been farmed out to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Bombers Get Quarter From Lions

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who had three pretty fair quarterbacks going for them during the last Western Football Conference season, have picked up a fourth.

Few critics attributed the Bombers' nosedive from Grey Cup status in 1963 to a fourth-place finish the following year to a deficiency in the signal-calling department. But they chose to pick up Pete Ohler, a 25-year-old bench-warmer with British Columbia Lions last season, in the WFC draft.

The last-place Edmonton Eskimos, granted two picks, also raided the roster of the 1963 Grey Cup finalists for defensive guard Barney Therrien and plucked Bob Myers, a fullback-linebacker, from Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Ohler, the Lions' third-string quarterback last season behind Joe Kapp and Mel Melin, offered the Bombers plenty of depth in case they make a deal for one of last year's threesome of Kenny Ploen, Hal Ledyard or Dick Thornton. There have been rumors that Thornton may wind up with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference.

Oakville Parks Board

Wants $3,000,000 Stadium

OAKVILLE (CP) — Jack Cornwall of the Oakville parks board announced Wednesday the board intends to propose the establishment of a $3,000,000 sports stadium here.

Mr. Cornwall said he will make the recommendation to town council in the near future.

The proposed stadium would seat 30,000 people with parking space for 10,000 vehicles.

The site under consideration was purchased eight years ago for about $45,000 but has been a "moth ball enterprise" until this year, he said.

Mr. Cornwall said the Toronto Maple Leaf baseball club of the International League will be asked whether it is interested in purchasing part of the 115-acre site.

Bob Hunter of Toronto, one of the co-owners of the baseball club, said in a telephone interview Wednesday:

"We would be very interested in looking the Oakville situation over and we will likely do so at the first of the week."

Bulldogs Dump Fort Wayne

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prior to the Intergational Hockey League semi-finals Fort Wayne Komets were rated as a sure thing to wind up in the finals. But someone forgot to notify Windsor Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs, who finished fourth in the seven-team league, have been battling the second-place Komets right down the wire Wednesday Windsor jumped Fort Wayne 5-3 to force a seventh game in their best-of-seven series.

Meanwhile, Toledo Blades downed Port Huron Flags 5-2 to take a 3-2 lead in games in their set. Toledo finished first while the Flags took third-place.

Despite a brilliant 38-stop performance by goalie Chuck Adamson of the Komets, Bulldogs took a 2-0 lead early in the first period and never looked back.

Irwin Grosse showed the way with a pair of goals while Bill Mitchell, Jack Costello and Bob Brown added the others.

Len Thurgson, Eddie Long and John Goodwin replied for the losers.

After a scoreless first period, Toledo counted once in the second and four times in the third before the visitors were able to get on the scoreboard.

Toledo marksmen were Walter Bradley, with two, Wayne North, Greg Jablonski and Terry Slater.

PARK ON STILTS

LONDON (CP)—A £3,000,000 state-financed project to build multi-storey car parks on stilts over 20 railway stations in outer London has been drawn up by the Cement and Concrete Association.

Blades Win Over Seals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defenceman Camile Bedard scored two goals to spark Los Angeles Blades to a 3-1 victory over San Francisco Seals in the opening game of the best-of-seven Western Hockey League final Wednesday night.

Bedard, a 29-year-old veteran who played for the Seals last year, pushed the Blades to a 2-0 lead in the second period on a pair of long shots.

San Francisco's Moe Mantha snapped goalie Jack Norris' chances for a shutout at 10:42 of the third period, connecting on a 25-foot shot which slammed into the top corner of the net.

In the final minute, Stan Maxwell stole a pass and whipped the puck some 60 feet into the unguarded San Francisco net after the Seals had pulled goaltender Bob Perrault for a sixth attacker.

The teams tangle again Friday night.

Races Twice Before Derby 'Dancer' Fit And Ready

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) Northern Dancer arrived at Keeneland race course Wednesday to continue his campaign toward the May 2 Kentucky Derby. The three-year-old Canadian-bred colt, winner of the Flamingo and Florida Derby, appeared fit and in good spirits.

The Dancer, owned by Canadian industrialist E. P. Taylor, is the top Canadian - owned money winner of all time, with earnings totalling $261,365.

Speculation centred on whether the Dancer and Hill Rise, derby co-favorites, would meet in a derby prep race. Bill Finnegan, trainer of Hill Rise, said he plans two races for his horse before the derby, but he wasn't sure which ones he would select.

Both horses are nominated for the $25,000-added Blue Grass Stakes April 23, closing date at Keeneland.

"At this moment we're thinking seriously of it," Finnegan said. "But if the colt or the weather isn't right for us, we might skip and wait for the derby trial at Churchill Downs." The trial is April 28.

Aces Lead Clipped By Hornets

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Hornets came from behind Wednesday for a 5-1 victory over Quebec Aces that kept the Hornets in the American Hockey League playoffs.

Going into the game, Hornets had lost three straight in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

The series resumes in Quebec Friday with the Aces needing only one victory to enter the Calder Cup finals.

But Claude Laforge evened the score for Pittsburgh at 1:49 of the second period and a minute later Warren Godfrey put the Hornets ahead. Lowell Macdonald tallied another Pittsburgh goal in the second period, and Bob Dillabough scored two for the Hornets in the final period.

Hornets' goalie Roger Crozier, who had 30 saves Wednesday compared to 35 by Quebec's Lorne Worsley, was to go to Chicago today as a steadby goalie for Detroit Red Wings in their National Hockey League playoffs with Chicago. But Crozier is supposed to return to the Hornets in time for the game with Quebec Friday.

Badminton Winds Up Season
'Bird' Club Champions

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club wound up a highly successful season last night at the armories.

The club championship tournament brought down the seasonal curtain with highly competitive play.

A spokesman for the club said that the season just finished was one of the best in many years.

Under the presidential guidance of Merv Potts and his executive, 'the club' membership will up from that of a year ago, developed into one of the better organizations of the district.

Both senior and junior members acquitted themselves well in the various district tournaments.

Loreen Potts headed last nights parade of club champions with two doubles titles to her credit.

Teaming with veteran player Billie Waldron, she won the "A" ladies' doubles and assisted Al Sinclair in amazing the mixed doubles title.

Billie Waldron and Bob Emerson were winners of the mixed doubles consolations.

Al Sinclair and Dave Bell took home the "A" men's doubles championship. There were no consolations events in either the men's or ladies' doubles events in this class.

In the "B" division, Leo Fortin and Peter Cook won the men's doubles with Paul Temple and Greg Harrison taking the consolations award.

Eileen Vance and Rosemarie Haight won the ladies' doubles event with Lois Spencer and Dorothy Geen the consolation winners.

Doreen Bell teamed with George Gibbons to annex the mixed doubles honors with Donna Gilroy and Leo Fortin taking home the consolation award.

The annual meeting of the club has been scheduled for April 16th.

Sacos Win Finals Opener

SACO moved into the lead in the Quinte Hockey League finals last night by defeating Horlock Electric 4-3 in the series opener played at Trenton.

The clubs hope to play the second game in the best-of-five series also in Trenton at eight o'clock Monday night but this is not definite at this time. The titular series had to be moved out of Belleville when the ice plant broke down here last week.

SACO scored single goals in each of the first two frames and carried that 2-0 lead into the third, when each team scored twice.

George Crabbe, assisted by Doug Lucas and D. Kingdon, opened the game's scoring. Barry Portscou converted passes from A. Dellise and Jack Calnan in the middle frame.

H. Reid netted one on a solo effort and Calnan rapped home the final SACO marker, aided by Dellise, in the third.

Bobby Wannamaker triggered both Horlock markers with Ab Wright assisting in each instance.

MAY HEAR POLICY

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's price support policy for dairy products in the year starting May 1 likely will be announced "in the next week or so," Agriculture Minister Hays said Wednesday in the Commons. Mr. Hays said he was "elated" with the results of last year's policy. Prices had been higher than for a number of years and butter production had levelled off.

SPORT BRIEFS

WILL MISS SEASON

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A heart specialist said Wednesday that Birdie Tebbetts will not return to his job as manager of Cleveland Indians this season. Dr. Arthur Dudley said the 54-year-old Tebbetts was enjoying a normal convalescens from the heart attack he suffered last week, but added: "He will not be back this season. It will be hard to keep him out, but that will be the responsibility of the doctors in Florida.

JAMES PLANS COMEBACK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gerry James, former star fullback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said Wednesday he will try to earn a spot with Saskatchewan Roughriders for the 1964 Western Football Conference season.

James, 29, has been out of action since Blue Bombers gave him his unconditional release in 1963. James spent last winter coaching a hockey team in Switzerland.

AID POWER HITTERS

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — U.S. amateur golf champion Deane Beman has decried what he calls the recent trend of building new golf courses or altering old ones to favor the power hitter. "I may be wrong, but I think it has taken something away from the game," he said Wednesday. New tees are being built, lengthening the courses to favor the power hitters, such as Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, at the expense of finesse.

ATLANTA GETS TEAM

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An unidentified major league baseball team has agreed to transfer to Atlanta next season under a long-term lease at the city's proposed new stadium, an official said Wednesday. Arthur Montgomery, chairman of the Atlanta-Fulton County Recreation Authority, said the lease would expire at least 15 years. Montgomery said the team cannot be identified until the 1964 season ends.

Immigrants Doing Well In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Immigration Minister Pickersgill said Wednesday that in 1951 the average salary of Canadian heads of families with dependents was only $175 more than that earned by post-war immigrants who were family heads.

Mr. Trembley used this figure and others of a comparable nature in illustrate "how well" immigrants who arrived in Canada since the end of the Second World War have fitted into the Canadian industrial scene.

"In 1951, the average salary for a Canadian head of family with dependents was $4,124," Mr. Trembley told the social planning council of Metropolitan Toronto. "For post-war immigrants, who were family heads, it was only slightly less: at $3,950 or 96 per cent of the national average.

The two main points of a brief to be presented next week to the Canadian negotiating team to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in Geneva by the Canadian Importers' Association were revealed at the meeting.

J. T. Manley, newly - elected president of the association, said the brief will ask that the 10-per-cent premium on domestic goods bought by the federal government be dropped, and that dumping duties be imposed only if a domestic manufacturer can prove to an impartial board that he will be hurt if the duty isn't dropped.

"We are amazed at the number of goods not made in Canada that are being taxed under the dumping laws," Mr. Manley said.

Artur Rubinstein, 75, Still Active on Concert Tour

By MILES A. SMITH
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — After some 70 years as a performing artist, Artur Rubinstein still sets a pace that leaves young musicians and critics shaking their heads in wonder.

Now that he is 75 (his birthday was Jan. 28) the still plays about 100 concerts a season, as he has for the last four decades. In February he gave three different programs on three consecutive nights at Carnegie Hall. Then he took off on another leg of an American tour, headed for the West Coast and a swing back east.

For a man who insists on keeping up the pace, 70 years is a long career. The great pianist was a child prodigy. At four he was passing around cards in his native city of Lodz, Poland, inscribed "Artur the great piano virtuoso."

"At six," he recalls, "I played for a big box of chocolates at a charity program. But then . . ." with a smile and a wave of his hand, "all the pianists played when they were small children."

RESTS WELL

He declares that when he is on tour he rests, and calls himself quite lazy. On his latest tour he took with him the long neglected manuscript of his autobiography.

"The contract to write the book was made 20 years ago," he said. "Then I was too young to write all the truth. Now I am not afraid of it." . . .

His schedule for next fall includes a trip behind the Iron Curtain. Six of the concerts will be in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev, his first trip to Russia since the Stalin era.

Also, he has just renewed his recording contract for another eight years. There will be some new works, but also the re-recordings of many he made years ago when the studio equipment was not as good.

He has recorded all the works of Chopin—the master he has admired greatly ever since he was a teen-ager—except the Etudes.

"The Etudes are very dangerous," he says. "It is very difficult to play all the notes right."

NOT DETERRED

Then the blue eyes light up, and he declares with gusto, "but I will try them. I will try them. with God's will and a little work."

The "presence" which Rubinstein radiates when he strides out on the concert platform is not lost even in the quiet of his Park Avenue apartment. He is about five feet eight, but he moves and talks with such vitality force that you cannot take your eyes from him.

He is full of anecdotes, a wonderful mimic, a celebrated story-teller.

Laughter always has been a major ingredient of the pianist's personality, coupled with a strong zest, with a sheer joy of living. As Steve Borelli, the man in charge of tuning his pianos, said recently:

"He has contentment and health of mind, and his happiness reflects in his playing."

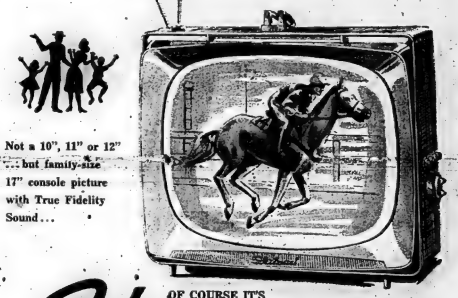
IF YOU'VE DECIDED TO BUY A PORTABLE TV



(. . . OR EVEN IF YOU HAVEN'T) This may seem like a dramatic challanging statement. We mean it to be . . . just listen! TV portables are getting smaller, and the viewing screen is shrinking to the size of an animated postcard. We and the people at Fleetwood are concerned about "tunnel vision". Besides this danger, we believe that the viewing public still likes to look at a BIG picture. However, the low cost of these portables is impressive. We wholeheartedly agree that this has brought a truly "personal" portable within the reach of most people and has made it possible for second, and even third sets to make their appearance in today's homes. Fleetwood people have helped us carry this idea a GIANT step forward. KING-SIZE CONSOLE-SIZE PICTURE PORTABLE at a POSTAGE-STAMP SIZE PRICE! It's here now! So don't do a thing about a portable TV until you've seen this one!

. . . AND HERE'S WHY

Now You Can Get a Console Big 17" king-size picture in a real portable TV for the price of a "postage stamp" size set

YOU'LL AGREE THAT THIS IS THE BIGGEST PORTABLE TV VALUE ON THE MARKET TODAY! Here's why! It's comfortable to view and a delight to hear. You've got a B-I-G 17" movie square screen that lets the whole family see in console size viewing comfort. No "peek" spots to annoy; no worry about "tunnel vision". Fleetwood engineered it with "console" power to bring in sharper, clearer pictures and true fidelity sound. You'll see blacker blacks, whiter whites . . . more contrast and clarity even in fringe areas from B-I-G chassis performance. YET IT'S A TRUE PORTABLE. Built to travel! No plastic case to shatter. This portable is enclosed in unbreakable aircraft aluminum that's lightweight and rugged . . . covered in color-keyed vinyl (like the new hard top cars) to match your mood and your decor. This slim-lined beauty boasts advanced "SUPER-POWER" design. Fleetwood built it to offer you finer performance for years with fewer service problems. (Even the case was engineered to eliminate "heat traps" that age and actually "cook" some portables, making them old before their time.) Note, too, the side-mounted controls for easy accessibility and the powerful four-section "magna action" antenna that actually "pulls in" even weak TV signals. If you want a REAL portable with REAL "big set" performance that will REALLY go wherever you go . . . THIS IS IT! Come in and see it demonstrated. You get all this performance, quality and size in a REAL portable, for the price of a "postage-stamp" size set. The price is the lightest part of all. Don't do a thing about a portable TV until you see this one!

OF COURSE IT'S

Fleetwood

WITH THESE FINE QUALITY FEATURES!

1. Console Size 17" PICTURE TUBE with all the enjoyment of a full size "Movie Screen Square" picture.
2. 110 Degree ALUMINIZED TUBE with short neck features for slim design, plexiglass for safety and to protect the tube.
3. 15 ACTUAL TUBES including the picture tube . . . many with the elements of two and three tubes contained in the one envelope. Offers BIG SET performance.
4. POWERFUL TETRODE TUNER pulls in even weak signals for a brighter, clearer and sharper picture.
5. AUTOMATIC SIGNAL STABILITY provided with automatic gain control keeps even a weak signal constant in strength and volume. Picture won't fade.
6. TRUE FIDELITY SOUND, specially designed audio section with a new advanced design speaker developed just for portables.
7. BUILT-IN ANTENNA folds into body of set, four-section dipole antenna is powerful and compact.
8. BUILT-IN CIRCUIT BREAKER protects your set against damage from overload or voltage rise in house circuits.
9. AIRCRAFT ALUMINUM CABINET, lightweight yet sturdy, won't crush, bend or shatter. Provides effective protection for your set.
10. VINYL COVERED in your choice of three decorator colours — GREY, BEIGE or WALNUT.

Betty Furness Speaks Up For Women in Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—"Women are being made to look like absolute idiots by television," said Betty Furness, "and I think it is a very serious situation."

Miss Furness, who quit as a TV's top saleswoman a few seasons ago and now has a daily CBS radio network show, cites situation comedies and commercials.

"The situation comedies show wives who are constantly trying to outsmart their husbands, and, of course, the big jobs of Father Knows Best was that he never did know what was best.

"It's like a battle of the sexes, with nothing to gain for the women. I have never caught a television show in which a woman was trying to be darling, to her husband except The Dick Van Dyke Show. It is almost as if the people at the top of the pyramid had decided to degrade women and never to let them be seen as real people.

"I remember that western last season—Empire — when they just killed off the mother and her daughter because they just didn't know what to do with 'them.'"

Miss Furness says that she is "deeply offended" by commercials that "constantly suggest that the American woman is totally incapable of doing the simplest household chores and they have them learning from men—repairmen and even delivery boys."

What network television really needs, she insists, are some intelligent, programs dealing realistically with what women are really doing—"moving out and meeting the needs of a world that demands so much of them."

Recommended insight: Perry Como Show, NBC, 10:11 EST—musical variety hour with Keely Smith.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lyndon B. Johnson can hold his own with his predecessors in the joke department, reports Bob Hope.

Hope did his usual slick job at the White House photographers annual dinner last weekend, and Variety reported the president was equally smash. The Variety verdict: "Johnson knows the words to punch and the most effective ways to pause . . . LBJ is in the Bob Hope class in comedy."

The comedian concurs. "He's very fast with a line," said Hope. "When I walked in his office with the other entertainers the day before the show, the president asked me, 'How do you find time to make all that money?' "

Hope classifies Johnson on a par with other recent presidents in the quip department, and he should know. He has performed before the last five.

"They were all great," said Bob. "Roosevelt had a wonderful sense of Humor, and Truman and Eisenhower do all right, but Kennedy's wit was marvellous; he loved nothing better than a good joke."

GIVES MATERIAL

Hope demonstrated some of his own material from the dinner: "I was going to stay at the White House, but I'd have to bring a flashlight . . . they're turning off the lights at the state department, too. Dean Rusk doesn't want Senator Fulbright to find his office. . . ."

Hope figures the president and the light switches will be one of the great running gags. The comedian used it himself while Johnson was showing the entertainment troupes around the White House.

Said Hope: "You know, Mr. President, you go out of the rooms first and turn out the light, leaving us in the dark. You may be saving $3.00 a month in electricity, but you're liable to be spending $3,000 on broken legs."

He added: "It's the first time ever 'left a room by braille.'"

Hope figures the president knows he's got a good gimmick. That seems to be substantiated by Johnson's parting remark at the dinner, as quoted by Variety: "Will the last one out please remember to turn off the lights?"

". . . Please reconsider him, dear — after all, we've had twenty-five years of you . . ."

Foully-Cursing Bandits Steal $5,700 at London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three foully-cursing, unmasked bandits, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, escaped with $5,700 in small bills in a holdup at a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in the city's east end Tuesday.
Police say the three men, described as "nicely dressed" in blue business-type suits, made their getaway in a black convertible, left with its engine running while their car made the raid at about 11:29 a.m.
Second officer at the trio stolled from the bank, 15 police cruisers converged on the area as police in a big systematic search. Provincial police were called in and late in the afternoon detectives were reported checking a car found abandoned on Highway 401 near the outskirts of the city.
Detectives also were examining a car dropped by one of the gangsters but said they had little to go on but the supposition the men fled from out of town because they did not wear masks.
Bank Manager Patrick Graham was in his office inside the bank front door when the men entered.
"Somebody shouted 'get out' I looked up into the muzzle of a shotgun that looked about four feet wide."

Montreal Doctors Using New Methods in Heart Cases

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal doctors, combining two surgical techniques developed earlier, have come up with a method of attacking heart disease which they say approaches an "ideal" treatment in certain specified cases.

A team at Royal Victoria Hospital and McGill University's experimental surgery department under heart surgeon Arthur M. Vineberg reports in the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association on patients virtually incapacitated by painful heart trouble who were able to resume normal activities following surgery.

The report is presented by Dr Vineberg, who developed the two techniques combined in the latest method, and doctors John Shanks, Roque Pifarre, Rosendo Criollos and Yutaka Kato.

Both surgical techniques are designed to provide the heart with new supplies of blood to replace such sources that are reduced because normal artery routes have been blocked or narrowed by disease.

The first, known as the mammary artery implant operation, was first used more than a decad. ago by Dr. Vineberg and has since been taken up elsewhere. It involves detaching an artery from inside the chest wall and attaching it directly to the blood-starved left side of the heart.

GRAFT TISSUE

The second, the more recent free omental graft operation, takes a slice of the greater omentum—an abdominal tissue which seeks out its own blood supply and grows tiny blood vessels—and wraps it around the heart muscle.

The combined operation, tried first on animals, was developed to help persons whose heart disease was so severe that one or other of the operations alone would have been of little use, particularly when both left and right sides are starved of blood.

The medical journal report outlines results in 17 surgical cases between December, 1962, and last summer, 15 of whom underwent both operations, the other two receiving only the omental graft.

The patients, ranging in age from 25 to 67 and including five women, had been suffering the classic symptoms of heart trouble, most for more than five years. Most had suffered at least one attack which left scar tissue on the heart and all were taking nitroglycerin tablets for relief — from two or three a day up to one patient who required 120 daily.

Only two of the 17 were working full time and four worked part time before the operation.

In a follow-up study last November — from 11 to four months after surgery—11 of the patients were working full time and two part time. Twelve were having no chest pains and the rest suffered less pain than before surgery. Only three were known to be still taking nitroglycerin and in those cases the number of tablets required had been sharply reduced.

"It is our definite impression that the free omental graft operation speeds up the rate of recovery and return to activity of the patient in comparison with the result obtained by an internal mammary artery implant operation alone," the doctors report.

Among specific cases, the report cites that of a 45-year-old housewife with angina for 10 years was able to walk less than 150 yards, slowly, because of an insufficient supply of blood to the heart.

The combined surgery was performed in last June and she has suffered no chest pain since. Following the operation she was able to go swimming last summer.

The report makes clear the combined surgery should be used only in special cases and advises against its use within six months of a heart attack or when study shows the disease to be progressing.

Britain's Future in Military Aviation Industry May Lie In Building for Others

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)The unhappy feature of buying highly sophisticated and expensive weapons from the United States is the lack of reciprocity.

This depressing sentiment is all the more apparent in the British aircraft industry which, that the government is going ahead with purchase of the U.S. Phantom to succeed the British Sea Vixen in the Royal Navy.

For the army, Britain is buying Agusta-Bell 47 helicopters, built in Italy under U.S. licence. The U.S. is buying nothing in the way of aircraft from Britain.

A redeeming factor is that the British version of the Phantom will have British engines, Rolls-Royce Speys, reflecting the esteem in which that sector of the industry is held.

But some veteran observers are wondering whether the British airframe industry as distinct from the engine-making side has a future.

The Treasury Times air correspondent says the implications of the Phantom decision are that the country's future defence military aviation "may well consist almost entirely of building other people's aircraft under licence."

"Since the way Britain has often inaugurated military aircraft and missiles from America, but all of these have been temporary stopgaps which have been followed by superior, or at least equal, British military machines. Now, however, there is no evidence that we can produce an aircraft that will be a real improvement on the Phantom."

CANADA BUYS

Canada also has bought many aircraft from the U.S. and in recent years has sold only one, the Caribou, in return. But Canada is known as in a much happier position than Britain because the U.S. has undertaken to make that for dollar of defence purchases with its northern neighbor.

It is not only the one-way nature of U.S.-British defence traffic that causes concern but also the high-pressure tactics of American aircraft-makers on this world market.

The most spectacular example occurred in the case of the British TSR-2, due to enter its first flight any day now and generally conceded to be the most versatile war plane of the nuclear age.

Virtually unarmed missile, the TSR-2 is designed for tactical or strategic operations, skimming the ground to elude radar detection and using bases no bigger than a rugby field. Yet because of competition from the less advanced TFX being developed by the U.S., the TSR-2 has found no buyers outside the home market—and the U.S. certainly isn't interested.

That means the whole development cost of £500,000,000 ($1,500,000,000) will fall on Britain alone and each plane will cost £2,500,000.

"Our aircraft, then, will come out in small numbers at enormous cost, while the TFX will come out in thousands, much probably at our own authority. "How can we keep the industry alive on that way?"

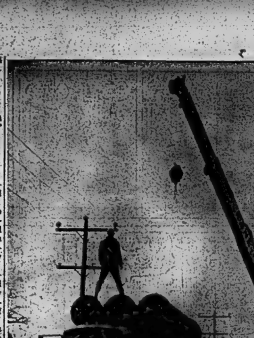
For a different sort of comparison, it has been estimated that Britain will be able to buy six or more of the make-produced Phantoms for the cost of one TSR-2.

In a nutshell, the industry is seen as better off now in terms of capacity than when cut-off orders than it was three years ago when it was reorganized from a large number of independent companies into two big outfits—British Aircraft Corporation and Hawker-Siddeley each comparable in capacity with the American giants.

The industry is assured of work over the next three or four years with orders for the Pidd vertical takeoff strike fighter for the RAF, ordered by Defence Minister Peter Thorneycroft at the same time as he ordered the Phantom. These will be used from carriers as the HS-681 short takeoff transport, the TSR-2 and civilian jobs, probably the Concorde supersonic speed-of-sound airliner being developed with France.

BLAZE HURTS

But beyond that the future looks bleak—and experts stress that the Phantom is regarded as a brief period in the industry.



Government delay in reaching decisions is given as one important reason for lost exports, particularly in the case of the TSR-2 which, many feel, is a design in which the British held a wide lead several years ago. "If the government had announced its decision to go ahead two years ago rather than a few weeks ago, we would have led the world," said an official.

He said the U.S., West Germany and France have been fast catching up."

Government delay in turn is haunted by the memory of £220,000,000 ($660,000,000) that went down the drain in some 30 cancelled defence projects in the last 10 years. It has been cautious about undertaking new projects without certainty of success and without the encouragement of export orders.

Or is purely economic basis for the industry? It does not make sense for Britain to produce expensive military aircraft for its own use alone. But many factors are involved, including national prestige, the danger of adding to the "brain drain" to the U.S., and the development of advanced technology with a bearing on the commercial field.

"We must not give up," said one official. "These things can't be measured in pounds or dollars."

IT'S WATER PIPE BUT . . . why does it always have to arrive when it's raining. Lightfoot Construction employees, working with Foley's hydro-crane, unload waterpipe at the Sidney Street construction site during Tuesday's rain. Norm Lightfoot told the photographer he would eat the first load of pipe delivered during good weather.

BAXTER CANNERY

A Wilson Concrete Products crew put the first roof on the Baxter Canning complex in Bloomfield yesterday, over the cooker building. Another roof, over the boiler house, is being put on today and work on the warehouse roof may start Monday, according to Wilson Latham of the Latham Co., general contractors.

Quinte Roofing has men on the site now, and hopes to start finishing the roof today or tomorrow.

Work is about three days ahead of schedule now, and would be a week ahead but for four days of heavy rain in the past two weeks. There was almost no delay, Latham says, when a wall section blew down in gale-force winds last week.

Arrangements have been made with Dominent Transit Mix in Kingston to send several special mobile-mixer trucks down when the floor is ready for the pour. The special trucks will carry 10 to 12 cubic yards of concrete per trip, (the normal truck load is 7 cubic yards) Transit Mix and other firms in the area carry five to six cubic yards), and the whole 52,000 square feet of floor area in the building will be poured in four days flat, Latham hopes. That means the concrete will be poured at the rate of about 225 cubic yards per day. Defoe Metallicrete Co. Ltd. of Toronto will finish the floor.

Y.M.C.A.

Brick painting has started at the new YMCA building on Victoria Ave., according to general contractor Hugh Murray, and the building should be finished by the end of April. Jan Ter Haar of Belleville, is handling the job. Painting was started behind schedule, Murray says, because the Kingston-based painter who had the original contract went bankrupt before he started on the job. A Toronto firm, meanwhile, is finishing off the vitro-glaze surface on the showers, and floor-tile has yet to be laid in several parts of the building. Some outside work will remain to be done after the building is opened, Murray says, depending on the weather. The outside jobs, including landscaping and paving of walks, will take only about a week after the ground dries off.

BRANCH LIBRARY

Two cupboards and some floor tile are to go in at the new branch library at Victoria and Farley; then E. W. Vanner and Son will start painting. The painting will take a week or so, then the building will be ready for opening. Don't look for an opening immediately though . . . Miron-Wigmore of Trenton built the building faster than the library board expected, and administrative arrangements for operating the branch haven't been completed yet.

BELLEVILLE TOWERS

Bernard Protter of Bernard Protter Ltd., in Toronto moved in on the Belleville Towers site last Thursday, to finish the building. Work stopped about four months ago, after some structural and previous contractors. Protter plans to have the third floor poured by the end of this week, and hopes to pour a floor a week from now on and be up to the roof by May 15. Protter will be doing the job only a couple of times a week, Albert Bavan will supervise the job. Most subcontracts are going out of town, Protter says, except for ironwork, the biggest one in the building, has gone to a Toronto firm.

BELL TELEPHONE OFFICE

Main floor slab of the new office building for Bell Telephone at Victoria and Pinnacle was poured in two sections, Monday and Tuesday of this week. Precast slabs were dropped into I-beam supports to form the retaining wall for the basement level, Monday, and glass is being installed around the building now. The glass should be finished sometime next week, according to supervising tendency Charles Farmer.

WILSON CONCRETE

Wilson Concrete Products are putting up a 40 by 60-foot warehouse now, in front of their block storage area. Purpose of the warehouse is to store bagged cement, which they keep for sale. Construction is of cement block with a prestressed roof, and the firm is handling the work itself.

WATER MAIN

Lightfoot's men have about 1,000 feet of the 24-inch water main laid down Sidney St. from West, Moira, and are blasting their way through rock that has never before been experienced with the blasting, according to Norm Lightfoot. Only one crew is working on the job so far.

ELLIOTT MOTORS

Roy Brooks is installing frame-straightening supports now at the new Elliott Motors building. Work completed so far includes a buttress (containing 45 cubic yards of reinforced concrete) near the north end of the back wall. The buttress supports three anchor points on the inside—and each of the anchor points must be able to take a 40-ton pull. Railroad track will be buried in the floor, with steel reinforcement, to provide other anchor points. The anchors will support jacks and pulling rigs used to straighten truck frames when they get bent. Another 25 cubic yards of concrete remain to be poured in the floor, over the rails.

STIRLING MOTORS

Planned originally to open April 17, Stirling Motors' new building may not be ready for use until April 24. Inside work is almost finished and painting is beginning on schedule, but mud in front of the building is delaying landscaping, paving the yard and so on. Gas pumps are ready for installation, as soon as ground conditions permit.

BUILDING PERMITS

Thirty three building permits were issued in Belleville last month, representing a total of $553,450 worth of buildings. Fifteen of these permits were for residential jobs, (11 single houses, three duplexes and one six-plex). five were for commercial additions or alterations and one, (a garage for Ivan May on College St.) was classed as industrial. Two of the permits were classed as sign permits.

BELLEVILLE BUILDERS' EXCHANGE

Belleville Builders' Exchange meets tonight at 6.30 p.m. at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Main feature of the evening will be a panel discussion, with questions from the floor, on the purpose and operation of the exchange. Panelists are William Tatham, of The Tatham Co., Vince Treasure, of Acme Plumbing and Heating, J. Belanger of Acme Electric, Ross Parks of Wilson Concrete Products, Roy Bradshaw of Bradshaw Contracting and Eev Quincey of Quinte Roofing.

Chain Store Owner Poses As Beggar

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto millionaire, disguised as a beggar, Wednesday rewarded seven "Samaritans" who stopped to give him 25 cents at a busy Toronto intersection.

Mel Lastman, owner of a chain of 23 Bad Boy appliance stores in Toronto, also fooled the police. They picked him up for questioning but later "released" him when his identity was revealed.

The masquerade at begging was to test the generosity of citizens toward an unemployed man looking for work. He said 19 of 20 persons passed him by. No women contributed.

One contributor accepted a $100 bill from the millionaire, but he had to be convinced first that Lastman could afford it.

The 8th Belleville Cubs and Scouts held their annual Father and Son banquet at King George School with about 125 present. The banquet opened with Rev. James Smith giving grace, followed by the toast to the Queen by Mr. M. Dowbyhtux. A delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings was enjoyed by all. Mr. M. Dowbyhtux, chairman of the 8th Group Committee, introduced the head table guests which included Mr. Glover, vice-president of District Council; Mr. A. M. Steenburg, Assistant Commissioner; Mrs. Robert Blair, president of Home and School for Queen Mary and Prince Charles Schools; Rev. James Smith, rector of Christ Church; Mr. W. E. Jarvah, District Commissioner; Mrs. P. Gelabhouse, secretary for the District Council; Mr. Robert Moorcroft, principal of King George School and J. S. Smith.

Mr. Dowbyhtux welcomed all the Fathers and stressed that it was their duty to be more active in the 8th Belleville Group Committee.

Scout Don Bellis proposed a toast to the fathers and Mr. Bob Moore responded for the fathers.

A toast to the mothers was given by Senior Sixer Ronald Jordan and responded to by Mrs. S. Smith, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Mr. M. Dowbyhtux then introduced the leaders of the Cubs who are as follows:

Akela Marion Gelsthorpe, with assistants, Janet Frelick and Brenda Smith.

Akela Marion Geisthorpe then called on District Commissioner W. E. Jarvah to present the following badges to the Cubs:

"House Orderly"—David Guest and Gary McMurray.

"Team Player" — Samuel Morgan.

"Pet Keepers"—Bob Ellis.

"Swimmer"—Philip Smith and Ronald Jordan.

"2nd Star"—Philip Smith.

"1st Star"—Samuel Morgan, Donald House, Doug Loffman, Allen Tehworth, Kenneth Sargent and Gary McMurray.

Ronald Jordan received his "4th Badge."

Mr. M. Dowbyhtux then called on Mr. Smith to introduce the guest speaker, Rev. James Smith, who gave a very interesting talk and showed slides on Hobart, Tasmania.

The entertainment consisted of gymnastics put on by Mr. Flynn's first class of Scouts for the Ontario School for the Deaf. Scouter Brian Lobb thanked the boys for this fine performance, responded to by Mr. G. Flynn.

This very enjoyable occasion for the 8th Belleville closed with prayer by Rev. James Smith.

We would like to thank everyone for their donations to the banquet.

Button-up Your Trenchcoat

All Aboard for Intrigue!

By DAVE STOCKAND

MACAO (CP)—If you tuck a misconception or two into your overnight bag, there is a tingle of excitement in catching the midnight boat from Hong Kong to Macao.

Intrigue is in the air at the dockside, in currents tugging at the collar of your imaginary trenchcoat, as passengers begin filing aboard the good ship Fat Sha.

The Fat Shan—the name fits as snugly as a shoulder holster. Surely she wouldn't dare venture out of port without Peter Lorre at the helm, Sidney Greenstreet squatting below as ballast.

For timid travellers who seek adventure in the fine print, the Yu On Shipping Company does its bit with a bucket-sided notice:

"Passengers are requested not to carry in their persons or luggage any contraband arms and ammunition, prohibited goods, etc., without government licence or permits."

Reminder for all concerned, imagination running to penny-dreadful extremes doesn't get much rein in a 40-mile trip taking just three hours.

VISIONS VANISH

By the daylight, with the Fat Shan tied up at Kowloon pier, and the Portuguese province of Macao only a gangplank away, visions of cloak-and-dagger conspiracy deflate like a war surplus lifesraft on a China coaster.

So—pitch out the intrigue, or at least leave it to the professionals. There is still much left that is intriguing.

Macao is an eight-square-mile chip off southern Europe grafted onto the Asian coastline, a giant crucible in which—plus two specks of Island—which provides a spot of sleepy-eyed siesta after the sinful frenzy of the Orient.

An ambi around at any hour is a rewarding experience.

By day you can admire the Mediterranean architecture, sample an amazing assortment of Portuguese wines for next to nothing, pick up Oriental objects of art if your bankroll allows, or browse through churches and temples—the latter with their smiling Buddhas, scowling Buddhas and even Marco Polo Buddhas.

By night, there are the gambling casinos which, along with an annual Grand Prix and a new track for greyhounds, allow Macao to call itself the Monte Carlo of the Far East.

PEEK AT CHINA

But the greatest tourist attraction of all comes free of charge—a peek at a piece of real estate as inaccessible to most as a summer cottage on the moon. It is the land mass of Communist China.

Here the westerner can get closer to China than anywhere else.

The tourists cluster, a few hundred yards back from the arched Portas do Cerco, where China starts, and look along a roadway lined with banyan trees into a forbidden land.

Photographs aren't permitted and really there is nothing to see. Only a crumpling of hills and a Chinese sentry with binoculars watching the tourists who are watching him.

Yet it has a hypnotic fascination.

People shuffle around for a few minutes, seeing nothing but reluctant to leave. Then they do go, a new tour group pops up to fill the vacuum.

TOURISTS LEAVE

Meanwhile, produce trucks which have brought in foodstuffs for Macao's population clang back across the border with a minimum of delay at the border checkpoints.

The Portuguese aren't concerned about the future. They depend on China for their food and their water but they also take into account China's need for a doorway to the West, no matter how narrow.

And, after all, they've been settled on the island since 1557.

British Labor Chalks Up Gains In County Votes

'Little Election' Held, Big One Set for Fall

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Britain's general election will be held sometime in the autumn, it was officially announced late Thursday. No specific date was given.

The announcement ends months of speculation that has kept officials of the political parties on tenterhooks. At first June was favored but just prior to the official announcement betting switched to October—with Oct. 8 as the most likely voting date.

In his statement from 10 Downing Street, Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home said he expected to put an "end to uncertainty."

The prime minister's decision gives his Conservative party administration a six-month lease on life. By the absolutely latest day—Oct. 8—he will have been in office almost a year.

The decision is likely to strain opposition Labor party resources. The Labor pre-election campaign has been running in high gear for several months now.

POLLS GIVE LEAD

With public opinion polls giving Labor a substantial lead, Labor officials see a victory being tantalizingly withheld in the interests of Tory strategy.

If the election is held Oct. 8 it will mark the fifth anniversary of Harold Macmillan's great Conservative triumph in 1959. It will make this the longest peacetime Parliament since the mandate was reduced to five from six years in 1911.

The decision also means Sir Alec is the prime minister commonwealth premiers will meet in London for conference initiatively scheduled for July 7-14.

The fall election may conflict with two other important events—the United States presidential election Nov. 3 and the Queen's visit to Canada. The sovereign is traditionally in the country when elections are held.

Buckingham Palace said Thursday the royal visit to Canada is scheduled for Oct. 6-14, but the dates had been known for some time.

Sweden To Send UN More Men

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Sweden today agreed to add 300 men to its contingent for the United Nations peace force in Cyprus in response to a request from UN Secretary-General U Thant.

The decision would bring the Swedish contingent to a total of 1,000 men.

A government statement said the extra troops would be volunteers from the Swedish contingents serving on UN duty in The Congo and the Gaza Strip.

The statement added Sweden had no objections in principle to U Thant's request for a Swedish police force of about 40 men and that the practical possibilities were being investigated by the interior ministry.

Earlier today, about 170 Swedish troops left in four American piercelies C-130 transport aircraft for Cyprus.

The troops that left this morning were part of the original, 950-man Swedish contingent for the Cyprus peace force. The rest of the 700 were to leave for Cyprus during the weekend.

U Thant's request reached here following press reports of tensions between Turkish troops and Greek-Cypriots.

Thant also asked Canada, Finland and Ireland to provide more men for the UN force.

Russia Says U. S. Diplomats Spied But Makes No Move to Oust Them

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government has accused four members of the U.S. embassy of improper activities smacking of espionage but hasn't expelled them from the Soviet Union.

Instead the Russians barred the quartet from travelling in Russia outside Moscow for 90 days. There was no indication why they were not expelled, the usual penalty.

The U.S. embassy said the senior British air attache in Moscow, Air Commodore A. D. Davis, was involved in one of the incidents with the Americans. But the British embassy refused to confirm or deny this or to say whether an alert had been restricted to Moscow.

The U.S. embassy said the Russians rigged incidents to make the Americans look like spies.

An embassy spokesman, confirming the travel ban today after news of it leaked out, said U.S. Charge d'Affaires Walter Stoessel had lodged protests with the Russian foreign office.

The Americans were two naval attaches, Cmdr. Stuart Savage of Alma, Kan., and Lieut. Leonard Cooper of Philadelphia, Pa., and two air attaches, Lt.-Col. Edgar Smith of Capt. Edmund Svetlisa, both of Dayton, Ohio.

The embassy spokesman said the Russians accused Savage and Bracken of making illegal photographs and Smith and Svetlisa of penetrating military territory.

The spokesman said the accusations arose from separate incidents in which the Americans were surrounded by angry crowds of Russians in Leningrad and Tula, south of Moscow, in February and March.

U.S. diplomats believe Soviet authorities instructed the citizens beforehand to pick out the Americans and create a disturbance, the embassy spokesman said. On both occasions the men were in civilian clothes but were in American cars.

Will Not Follow Quebec

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Thursday that if Ontario decides to establish its own pension plan it would not necessarily follow the pattern on the Quebec scheme.

In a 60-minute interview in h.. office he said Ontario did not intend to compete with Quebec by using a pension reserve fund to lure industry into the province. Such a fund would be ... side the direct control of the provincial government.

The premier, however, made no more clearer or positive st..tement than he had at a Canadian Club luncheon Wednesday on whether Ontario would opt out of the Canada Pension Plan.

But he did say his government was going ahead with preparations for its own contributory plan in the belief that the federal government would not change its plan enough to win Ontario's approval.

Mr. Robarts said that if Ontario does set up its own public pension scheme with a reserve investment fund which could amount to $3,000,000,000 in 10 years, one thing the money might be used for is loans to municipalities to float bonds at low interest rates.

WON'T COMPETE

"I'm certainly not going to enter into competition with Quebec if Quebec puts money into risk capital for developing industry and housing benefits in addition to pension benefits. It would seek to integrate with existing private pension plans to preserve a person's equity or savings in the latter.

Mr. Robarts explained that the pensions issue was part of the broader problem of changing federal-provincial relations.

He also stressed that Ontario was not prepared to opt out of existing shared-cost programs, pooling that the Canada Pension Plan had got out of control.

He said there had to be a readjustment of responsibilities between the federal government and the provinces, but added: "The provinces cannot exercise their constitutional powers to the weakening of the central government."

DON'T NOT WANT

Referring to the possible Ontario pension plan, Mr. Robarts said the risk of employer and employee contributions had not been decided. But there would be ...

Shawinigan Armory Loot Recovered

MONTREAL (CP) — Almost all the weapons stolen in an armory robbery at Shawinigan, Que., two months ago have been recovered, Director Josephat Brunet of the Quebec Provincial police announced today.

He said 34 rifles and FN automatic rifles, radio equipment and ammunition taken from the armory were found in a garage in Montreal.

Director Brunet said the lead came following the arrest of three young men near Rawdon in the Laurentian mountains Thursday afternoon.

The youths were arrested at a roadblock four hours after a holdup of a Banque Provinciale branch at Mont-Rolland, in the holdup the clerks and five young individuals armed with machine guns and army revolvers, escaped with $5,000. He said the two other individuals are being questioned and may be hiding out in the nearby woods.

The director said the youths were taken to Montreal and questioned by the combined QPP, RCMP and Montreal antirobbery squad. Following the questioning, search warrants were issued for locations in Montreal and the Laurentians.

The youths were expected to be taken back to St. Jerome to appear in court later today.

PROBE OTHER THEFT

Director Brunet would say only that the investigation is continuing into the Pinsliers Mont-Royal armory robbery in Montreal which took place before the Shawinigan robbery.

Federal, Quebec Liberals Seem Headed for Crisis

QUEBEC (CP) — Relations between the Liberal governments in Quebec and Ottawa seem headed for a crisis.

The dissatisfaction shown by Quebec at the end of the recent federal - provincial conference may hold perils for Ottawa.

Li Quebec legislature circles it is being said that Quebec's threat of double taxation in lieu of a more pleasing tax-sharing settlement could hurt the federal government more than the province. If it came to double taxation, Ottawa would get the blame.

Wednesday's meeting between Transport Minister Pickersgill and Premier Lesage is seen as a strong indication that Ottawa is worried. It went unpublicized until Thursday.

Mr. Pickersgill one of Prime Minister Pearson's top lieutenants, did not come to Quebec solely to confer with the provincial premier, but, while in town to address a broadcasters' group, he did not miss the chance to let Mr. Lesage know Ottawa's thoughts.

Mr. Lesage's remarks on a statement by State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne (see page ...) such as to sweeten relations, either.

The federal minister had said that he put little faith in reports that the Quebec premier was deeply disappointed by the results of the federal-provincial sessions. "It would be better to read my declaration," said Mr. Lesage, adding he was satisfied with newspaper reports of his feelings after the conference.

The question of the Quebec Liberal party's autonomy from the federal one is another factor in the apparently developing crisis.

Even before the federal-provincial conference opened it was clear it would lead to a break between the parties. ources close to the Quebec Liberal Federation regard the division as virtually accomplished.

Notable is the cancelling of a scheduled speech by Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay to the Quebec Reform Club last Saturday.

Mr. Tremblay wired that previous engagements prevented him from going to Quebec, but unofficial reports say the party split was the real reason.

Liberal legislature members in caucus with Premier Lesage privately Thursday. The premier is believed to have outlined to them Quebec's plans for forcing the post-conference situation.

It would seem likely the party split will succeed, since Francois Aquin, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, st-

2 Lake Unions Planned

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister MacEachen has unveiled a plan to separate deck officers and engineers from seamen on Great Lakes ships by placing them in two different unions—if they agree.

Mr. MacEachen spelled out the plan in a report to the Commons Thursday in response to a series of Opposition questions about the turbulent waterfront situation.

Outside the Commons, Mr. MacEachen said the pact made by the trustees and Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, gives a "valid expectation as of now" that there will be labor peace this summer on the Great Lakes.

The plan—as outlined by the minister after consultation with the three-man board of voluntary trustees—calls for a fundamental realignment of trade unions in the shipping industry.

It would leave only two unions in a field shared now by five unions—the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, The Canadian Maritime Union, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the National Association of Marine Engineers, and the Marine section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

NOT MENTIONED

While no specific unions were mentioned, the apparent end result of the trustees' plan would be:

1. The SIU should absorb the seamen members of the CMU and the CBRT and become the bargaining agent for all unlicensed ratings such as deckhands, oilers, cooks, stewards, wheelsmen and others.

2. The Canadian Merchant Service Guild, which represents only masters and mates, would absorb marine engineers from the SIU, the N.A.M.E. and the CBRT, thus becoming the organization representing all licensed personnel on lake ships.

The present troubles on the Great Lakes began when the SIU raided the National Association of Marine Engineers, thus expanding its jurisdiction and its power. The Canadian Labor Congress kicked the SIU out of its ranks in 1960 for this move.

The trustees have indicated that they do not favor the inte-

Britain's Birmingham Threatens To Duplicate Alabama Namesake

BIRMINGHAM (AP) — Citizens of this English industrial city used to pride themselves on their reputation for successful race relations. They were not, they said, mindful of race like some residents of Birmingham, Ala.

Today the tone of confidence and self-congratulation is gone. A decade ago there were 3,000 Indians, Pakistanis and West Indian Negroes in Birmingham. Now there are 50,000, one-tenth of Britain's total. Their children flood already crowded schools.

Clergymen, teachers and social workers report an atmosphere of lurking violence in many faded Victorian streets of Birmingham, and suburban Smethwick.

Race has become an underground political issue. All through the city this whispered slogan makes the rounds: "If you want a nigger neighbor, vote Labor."

Responsible political figures all parties deny authorship of the slogan. It expresses an attitude widely condemned in Birmingham.

Yet all Britain knows the phrase now. Some forecasters think the feeling behind those words could prevent Patrick Gordon Walker, prospective Labor foreign secretary, from retaining his seat from the Birmingham area in the House of Commons.

Britain lacks enough houses, schoolrooms and hospital beds for these people who have arrived from the tropical corners of the Commonwealth since the second World War.

No one knows how much antagonism would develop if jobs got scarce.

The color split here is threeway. In neighborhoods where the races are jumbled together the white people stay apart. Indians and Pakistanis form another group and the West Indians a third, with considerable civic tensions. The newcomers suffer loss of status from the misdeeds of the other three per cent.

Birmingham doesn't believe integration will work or that the races already even want it. Men of various colors work together but their wives seldom mix. Each group has its own shops, pubs and movie houses.

Johnson Wins 15-Day Delay Of Rail Strike

New Negotiations Open Under His Watchful Eye

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trains in the United States kept running today after President Johnson persuaded union and management to call off a scheduled midnight strike showdown. New negotiations open today at the White House under his watchful eye.

It was touch and go almost up to the last minute before Johnson announced both sides had agreed to a 15-day delay to sit down once more in an effort to settle their long, snarled dispute over wages and working conditions.

The agreement came within less than two hours of the midnight deadline, when 200,000 members of five unions were to strike on nearly 200 railways.

"The entire nation is grateful for the patriotic attitude of both the carriers and the brotherhoods," said Johnson in announcing postponement of the first major labor crisis of his administration.

SHOWS CONCERN

Johnson had indicated deep concern that a country - wide rail shutdown would cancel out the stimulus of the recent tax cut and seriously affect the U.S. economy.

The courts, congress and seemingly endless talks have failed to bring the two sides together.

As part of the deal to postpone the country - wide showdown, the union agreed to lift a strike in which they had closed down the state operations of the Illinois Central railroad in an effort to break the industry's united front.

The railways, in return, agreed to withdraw posting of work rules changes which are at the heart of the dispute.

Due to the late hour of the announcement, the word apparently did not reach all union officials and there were scattered reports of walkouts.

Estimates Get Stuck In Snows

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentary hopes for a quick clean-up of last year's final spending estimates are frozen in the snows of northern Quebec Thursday night.

For weeks the proposed transfer of administration over Quebec Eskimos to the provincial from the federal government has been in and out of the Commons—mostly in question form. When the northern affairs departmental estimates came up Thursday, Opposition snowballs were ready.

The result was that at the end of the day's sitting, the Commons was still on the Eskimo question, facing at least another day of plodding through the final appropriations for the fiscal year that ended March 31.

The lively northern affairs debate was started by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. The government, he said, is treating the 2,500 Eskimos involved like "serfs and political pawns."

Later former Conservative northern affairs minister Walter Dinsdale charged the proposed transfer is being handled in an "underhanded, devious and uncertain" manner.

SAYS TURNED DOWN IT

Justice Minister Favreau replied that Mr. Diefenbaker was criticizing the government for doing something similar to the former Conservative government's transfer to the provinces of administration of freedoms for Indians.

Northern Affairs Minister Laing noted the Conservatives' willingness of 1960 to turn over Indian welfare services to the provinces.

The stickiest point of the day was how much consultation with there be with the Eskimos before any change is made.

Will the government see that an Eskimo representative is on the proposed federal-provincial study committee? Asked Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) three times, insisting on an answer.

Mr. Laing said the government will ensure "the views of the Eskimos are known by whatever means we can obtain them," and that Eskimo representation would be considered.

The proposed move, Mr. Diefenbaker charged, was a breach of the constitution. "You cannot

'The Beast' Roaming Halls Gives Scientists Jitters

SALTIMORE (AP) — A robot that roams hundreds of offices is giving the jitters to scientists at the Johns Hopkins University applied physics laboratory.

The 100-pound robot, dubbed the Beast, sends staff members scurrying to slam their doors when they hear its burping approach lest it pop into their offices.

The robot, which looks like a huge tabbox on wheels, is the only one in the world that functions in a maze of corridors and offices.

When its 12 silver cadmium batteries start to run down, the Beast feels its way along a corridor until it finds an electrical outlet. Then the robot inserts two prongs into the outlet and recharges the batteries. Then it pulls out the prongs and moves on.

The machine steers itself by using its arm and microswitches built into its wraparound bumper to feel its way along corridors cluttered with soft-drink machines, stair wells, office doors and people.

Occasionally, the Beast gets caught in a stair railing or an electrical cord and has to extricate itself.

The robot moves back and forth, shaking its arm to disentangle it. If that doesn't work, it does a pirouette. If it still caught, it tries backing straight away. With built-in persistence, it keeps wiggling until it is free.

Soon, Hopkins scientists will equip the Beast with an echoranging device so it can roll straight down hallways and an electric eye for spotting wall plugs.

Eventually, scientists hope to develop more complicated models that can be used for space and underwater exploration.

Assessment Commissioner System Discussed in Council, Referred to Later Session

Hastings county council will adopt a "wait and see" attitude before any action is taken with respect to adopting a county assessment commissioner system.

Lincoln, Renfrew and Prince Edward counties have adopted the assessment commissioner system and the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs would like to see it generally adopted to bring about a more equalized assessment throughout the province.

Details of the system were explained yesterday to county councillors on the final day of their annual spring session, as they were addressed by Reginald Hunter, from the Municipal Affairs Department.

BARRAGE OF QUESTIONS

Councillors had a barrage of questions for Mr. Hunter, but no definite action was taken and the matter was referred to a later council session.

At the present time Hastings has a county assessor with actual assessing being done by 27 part-time assessors hired by the separate municipalities. The duty of the county assessor is to make recommendations to council for equalization purposes.

The spring session of council was wound up yesterday with second and third reading of by-laws.

The assessment commissioner system for counties sees local township assessors replaced by full-time assessors under the supervision of a commissioner.

ALL ON SAME BASIS

One benefit of the system is that there would be no further need for assessment equalization as all assessments in the county would be made on the same basis.

Earlier in the session Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine, chairman of the assessment committee, intimated that it would take four or five full-time assessors along with the commissioner and office staff to do the assessing now done by the 27 local assessors.

Mr. Hunter, however, suggested that more than five full-time assessors might be required initially if the entire county was to be completely re-assessed in a three-year period.

Until the county was completely re-assessed present assessments would be used for taxation purposes, it was stated.

Funeral

FRANCES GREEN (Deseronto)

The funeral of Francis Green of Rte. 1 Deseronto was held on Thursday afternoon from Christ Church conducted by Rev. Canon G. V. Templin. Funeral arrangements were under the direction of the White and Morrin Funeral Home, Deseronto.

Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery.

Bearers were Earl Green, Lorne Green, Don Genill, Joseph Dorsen, Marcel Hill and Joseph Maracle.

Following a short illness Mr. Green died at Deseronto on Tuesday. He was in his 75th year.

Born on the Tyendinaga Reserve, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Green. He had lived there all his life.

He was educated in Deseronto and was employed as a farmer, and was a member of Christ Anglican Church.

He was predeceased by his wife, the former Lena Brant.

Saw No Harm, Charged With Accosting

A 19 - year - old youth, described by his pastor as unaware he was breaking the law, today pleaded guilty to two charges of accosting Belleville women.

He will be sentenced Thursday.

Joseph Ralph Wells, born and raised in an island fishing community off the Newfoundland coast, said he had his introduction to a sizeable population centre when he joined his ship and "went on the ball."

After his arrest on the two charges of indecent assault — both in January — he said morning, when the youth was getting out for work on a Red. Secretary Miss Ina Staley was questioned on similar incidents by police.

Detective Sergeant Harold Reid said Wells admitted to 20 or 30 other offences without being charged.

Put in the box by his defence counsel, Ben Hurley, the youth said he was not certain if he was doing anything wrong in accosting the women.

B. H. Cross, Free Pentecostal Church pastor, described the youth as a "perfect gentleman."

"I would suggest lawfully 'Joe didn't know that the city of Belleville would not condone with such things," he said.

The magistrate noted a thorough psychiatric examination of the accused had revealed nothing to help the court in imposing a penalty.

Mr. Hurley asked for a suspended sentence and probation.

ASKS NUCLEAR STORES

OTTAWA (CP) — A remote Quebec village has asked the federal government to establish stores nuclear weapons near there as a possible means of preventing economic decay of the area. In a brief presented to Associate Defence Minister Cardin, a delegation from Parent 200 miles west of Quebec City said the cities north of Ottawa, said that a Pinetree radar station there being closed by the department should be replaced with a nuclear weapons depot.

Builders Will Retain Lawyer For Exchange

A local lawyer will be asked to specialize in construction law, and may be paid a retaining fee to act for the Belleville Builder's Exchange, members of the Exchange decided last night.

A two-hour discussion took place at the regular meeting of the newly enlarged unit in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club building for a final discussion on construction problems. The Exchange, may or may not, at present since 1956, is being rejuvenated this year. Thirty-eight members were signed up so far, including two general contractors.

One of the decisions made during the meeting was that directors of the Exchange will be asked to appoint a legal committee, and the committee will ask a lawyer to specialize in construction problems. The lawyer approached, Exchange members hope, will then be kept on a retainer to represent the Exchange and to represent individual members of the Exchange.

Also decided during the meeting was that a committee of directors will be installed to either the Kingston or Toronto Builders' Exchanges, or both, for a two-day session. The same committee will visit the Canadian Construction Association office in Ottawa and the Belleville Builders' Exchange may join the Canada Construction Association.

Speaking early in the meeting, general manager William Tatham suggested that Belleville contractors owe it to the community to adopt improved methods and techniques between firms not directly competitive. He said that while local contractors should compete among themselves, they are also competing as a group against out-of-town contractors. Where co-operation would ensure higher profits, win major contracts in the area, he said, Belleville contractors should ensure the area's interests as well as their own.

Information Sought on Rural Rehabilitation

The Hastings county agricultural and reforestation committee wants more information on the provincial Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act before it recommends formation of an ARDA committee.

This was indicated to county council this week by Burton Morton, chairman of the committee, as he gave the report of the council's agricultural committee.

Mr. Morton said the committee secretary had been directed to write to the Department of Crown, director of the ARDA committee in Ontario, to meet with committee members in June and discuss the program.

The Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act is aimed at assisting farmers to put sull-marginal farmlands to better economic use, to improve incomes and employment opportunities in rural areas and to develop and conserve soil and water resources in rural Ontario.

FAIR GRANTS

The committee recommended that class "A" fairs in the county receive a grant of $400, and class "B" fairs, $300, while a grant of $250 was voted to the British Empire Dairy Show and $125 to the Ottawa Winter Fair.

No grant was approved for the Hastings County Beef Improvement Association.

Councillors B. Morton and Clarence Graham, along with Warden Tom Burnside were named to plan a council bus trip to be taken during the August session. Marmora township Reeve John Wilkes has invited the council group to his township and it is felt that this new council should visit the south part of the county.

In the past two years council has taken a safari to the northern part of the county.

Mrs. Selden reported on the Eye Bank. He was requested to obtain information on the new Act that makes it possible for a next-of-kin to will a deceased person's eyes to the Eye Bank.

Mrs. G. Wishart representing the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Quinte St. Lawrence Home for the Blind in Kingston reported that the final report of the sale for 1960 was $18,231.00. Mention of the door has been slowed down to give more time for entering and leaving the elevator. Rails are to be built along the walls of the hallways as a concession to age, not blindness.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. H. Rollins reported on the Christmas party held on the day party of the White Cane Club catered by the Kinsmen. Mrs. Wishart, in behalf of expressing of entertainment sponsored by the ladies of the Moose Lodge for another evening. Mr. Sprague reminded the Board that the Lions Club will donate checker boards for the blind persons just for the asking.

Mrs. Gordon Cobb, treasurer reported on the expenses for the month. These cover the cost of white canes, telephone calls, radios, a zebigan board, talking book repairs, eye services, emergency assistance and Christmas supplementation.

A new talking machine is now in use in Belleville and is being enjoyed. A Belleville registered nurse, Miss Hamilton is being sent to Toronto for a period of adjustment training. The annual meeting of the Board will be held in Madoc on May 20th when it is hoped that all board representatives through out the County will be present.

BLINDCRAFT SALE

The nominating committee is comprised of Messrs. T. Finney, E. S. Fellman, and George Hobart. Mrs. A. J. Walker and Mrs. C. J. Coleman were appointed to make arrangements for a Blindcraft sale to be held next fall. Mrs. G. Wishart, Dr. H. B. Welch with Mr. G. Wishart as alternate were re-appointed to the Board of Governors of Quinte St. Lawrence Hall. Mrs. R. Bollard is to be in charge of admissions to the Residence.

Mrs. Timmins reported on the visits he has made in Belleville and throughout the County in Field Service. She told of eye services needed, supplementary assistance required for clothing, for aid and medication and the Board approved his recommendation. He spoke of the visits made by Mrs. Ross Whitelaw a specialist who acts as the liaison between the blind child and Field Service.

At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served.

Alberta Legislature Moves Closer to Colored Margarine

The Alberta legislature moved closer to approving colored margarine Thursday but some members continued to oppose Premier Manning's measure might harm farmers.

The legislature reported the bill following study by a committee of the whole assembly. It must still receive third reading before it becomes law.

Frazis Gainer, a coalition member for Banff — Cochrane, said he has permitted margarine to be colored lighter or darker than oleomargarine, would cause hardship to small farmers who have dairy cattle. Bet his motion to kill the bill was defeated.

The Alberta legislature is one of four provincial houses in session.

In the Newfoundland house, a select committee of members of the legislature [illegible] to the speaker to investigate allegations made by opposition member against the Liberal premier's office.

Premier Joseph Smallwood (PC — St. John's Centre) said Monday he had been told that a store proprietor in St. John's had been called by the premier's office asking that a political poster be placed on his window. He said the call followed two previous unsuccessful calls.

PREMIER WANTS NAME

Mr. Murphy had withdrawn his statement and apologized Thursday. Premier Smallwood refused to accept either, saying he wanted to know the name of the person who had given the information to Mr. Murphy.

In the Quebec legislature, Rene Chaloult (Ind — Eric Kierans) said the government was not persecuting anyone in its attempt to collect the taxes due it.

But, he said, his department must apply the law as it exists, which is only fair to the 97 per cent of people who pay their taxes.

Maurice Bellemare (UN — Champlain) said Mr. Kierans campaign has created an impression that Quebec merchants are thieves.

The Manitoba legislature approved in principle a bill allowing the City of Winnipeg to reduce the voting age in civic elections to 18 years from 21.

Second reading of the bill was passed on an unrecorded vote. It now will go to the legislature's law amendments committee for further study.

OPERATIONS NORMAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's two major railways said Thursday night operations would return to normal in view of the 14-day delay in the threatened United States railway strike. Earlier both the CNR and CPR had said their passenger trains would be turned around at the border and notified their agents they could continue to accept freight bound for the U.S.—except livestock and perishables—provided shippers were aware that delivery might be subject to delay in acceptance by U.S. railroads.

Charged Youth Sharply Rebuked By Magistrate

A youth who claimed his father was told he would be useless, was sharply rebuked today by Magistrate T. V. Wills.

David Wiltshire, 18, charged with car theft, appeared before the magistrate to have bail set. However, his parent did not show up.

He said his father had been informed by authorities (whom he didn't specify) that putting up bail would only result in the youth's re-arrest since he was on probation.

The magistrate told the youth his father had related "a fairytale."

"I would like to have him say right in front of you whether he will or whether he won't (put up bail), the magistrate snapped. "I'd like to have him here and answer my questions in front of you."

He reminded the youth that a magistrate his was the sole discretion on whether anyone should be arrested for breaking probation regulations.

Truck Driver Critically Hurt At Marysville

A 26-year-old Belleville trucker was in critical condition this morning after he became unconscious beside his parked vehicle on Highway 401 northeast of Marysville.

In Belleville General Hospital is Donald Trumpour, 26 Gilbert Street. He is suffering from severe chest injuries, two broken legs, a broken arm and head cuts.

Mr. Trumpour was hauling gravel from a pit when he recently-opened two-lane stretch of 401 north of Marysville to the nearby Highway 2 construction project. Police say he had stopped his vehicle for some reason still unknown, and was standing by the roadside when the accident happened.

A westbound vehicle brushed against the gravel truck and Mr. Trumpour was crushed against the door.

Later, provincial police checking vehicles at the 401 west coming northbound at Trenton took Leonard Gorman Grond, 33, of Calgary into custody. He is charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Mr. Grond was released on bail after delivering cattle in Ottawa.

To facilitate bail, provincial police immediately brought him before Magistrate T. V. Wills in city court later in the morning, where bail was set at $500 and the case adjourned to May 14th.

Seven Ships Trapped in Heavy Ice

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) Seven ships were trapped in the ice off the Lake Erie entrances to the Welland Canal Thursday, but officials in the field remained hopeful the three miles into the lake.

Winds blowing from the west piled the ice around the canal entrance, catching the outbound ships Spruecastle, Elmdale and Provencalair and the inbound vessels Burlington, Midland Prince and Joseph Medill Patterson.

The Midland Prince tried for seven hours to break a path into harbor, but made almost no progress.

Parents Sent To Hospital After Conviction

HALLEYBURY, Ont. (CP) — Joseph Paquin, 40, and his wife, Gloria, 24, of Haileybury were convicted in magistrate's court Thursday of exposing a child to danger threatening its life.

They were committed to the Ontario Hospital in North Bay for mental examination.

The couple's eight-month-old son Joseph is in hospital in this community, 78 miles north of North Bay, with a bone condition, fractured legs and bruises.

Mike Koshilka of the Children's Aid Society said the child was picked up March 26 and placed in hospital following complaints about illness and possible mistreatment. The child has improved after being in an oxygen tent for several days, he said.

Mr. Koshilka said his investigations showed "the parents were not capable of taking care of their children."

The couple has three other children—two girls aged 5 and 3 and a boy 2—who are also in the care of the CAS.

Justice Finds Certificates Not Trading Stamps

TORONTO (CP) — An appeal against a decision affecting the Robert Simpson Company Limited and Loblaw Groceterias Company Limited, both charged in London, Ont., with illegally disposing of trading stamps, resulted in the charge being dismissed Thursday by Mr. Justice Leo Landreville.

The appeal, brought by the Crown, was in connection with a decision handed down last January by Magistrate Donald B. Menzies of London.

Mr. Justice Landreville agreed with the magistrate's interpretation that merchandise certificates for Simpson stores were goods as defined in the criminal code.

However, he said that because Simpson was justly acquitted in the line, Loblaws too must be acquitted because of the wording of the charge. Magistrate Menzies had convicted Loblaws and fined the firm $100.

The charge against the two companies stated that between Sept. 24 and Oct. 23, 1962, they had formed the common intention to dispose of trading stamps contrary to the criminal code.

A London policewoman had collected three books of green stamps from four Loblaw stores and redeemed them for $6 worth of merchandise certificates good only at Simpson. She bought chinaware at Simpson with the certificates.

Mr. Justice Landreville held that the certificates, because they were widely used as a commodity, were not trading stamps but goods as defined in the criminal code.

House Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States-Canadian committee on trade and economic affairs will meet here April 29 and 30, Prime Minister Pearson announced in the commons Thursday. The committee, which last met in Washington last September, will review a broad range of subjects of joint concern and the Canadian and American governments looked forward to mutual benefit from the meeting.

Postmaster General Nicholson said Thursday in the Commons that the fees in a March 31 mail truck robbery amounted to an estimated $600,000 or $800,000.

Federal government intentions on exemptions from tax measures aimed at helping Canadian periodicals will be made known when the legislation comes before Parliament, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday. He had been asked whether the government would modify its plans in views of reports of pressure on the government to lift exemptions proposed for Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest.

Ken More (PC — Regina) asked in the Commons Thursday if postmasters are permitted to act as agents for newspapers. He said he had a circular received by a Regina resident from the Winnipeg Free Press saying: "Your postmaster is our agent and will be glad to forward your renewal to us."

Postmaster General Nicholson said postmasters are not allowed to act as agents for newspapers and that he would look into the matter.

Resources Minister Laing told the Commons Thursday he has not completed his promised statement on Great Lakes water levels. It would be a long and extensive report.

Social Credit Leader Thompson urged the government Thursday to remove what he called a sales tax discrimination against soft drink manufacturers and Canadian firms that import concentrated fruit juices for processing. He said the biggest competition for soft drinks comes from the packaged products that allow people to make their own flavored drinks at home — mentioning Kool - Aid as an example. Yet the sales tax applied to soft drinks and not the other products.

Wallace Casts Large Shadow Across the Political Scene

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Until last Tuesday, George C. Wallace was known chiefly as the man who stood in the gateway of the University of Alabama to keep the school all white.

Now, in the wake of the Wisconsin presidential primary election, Wallace casts a much larger and more ominous shadow across the American political scene.

Civil rights supporters are trying to wave it away, with only limited success.

When he came out of the deep south Wallace said that he would "shake the eye teeth" of both parties if he won as many as 25,000 voters in the Wisconsin popularity poll.

He came up with 261,000, more than half as many Governor John H. Reynolds threw in defeating him. And the politicos, unimpressed on the surface, are undoubtedly wondering where he got those votes, and why.

PHOBIA FOR TRENDS

American politicians have a fascination bordering on phobia for what are known as groundswells or grass-roots trends.

Wallace now moves on to primaries in Indiana and Maryland campaigning against integration and what he calls the civil wrongs bill.

If he continues to draw the kind of support he got from Wisconsin, it is hard to see how it could fail to affect the waverers and fence-sitters of both parties on the civil rights issue.

The results may show up both in the Senate's current debate on the civil rights bill and when party planks are formed at the Republican convention in San Francisco in July and the Democratic conclave in Atlantic City the following month.

A number of reasons have been put forward to explain—or explain away — Wallace's Wisconsin success. Some experts have attributed it to conservative states' rights feeling, local issues, or a protest by the Republicans who crossed over to vote in the Democratic primary.

SUCCESS DENIED

Hubert Humphrey, Wisconsin's liberal Democratic senator, says Wallace's efforts were a flop and a fizzle.

Reynolds said it only showed what we've known all along—there are prejudiced people in the north as well as the south.

The White House issued a statement saying the vote was not in the slightest a repudiation of the U.S. administration's civil rights program.

Be that as it may, there appear to be some loosened eye teeth in Wisconsin and Washington.

Macmillan Declines Queen's Offer of Earldom

LONDON (Reuters) — Former prime minister Macmillan has declined an earldom and the Order of the Garter offered by the Queen. It was learned today.

It was learned here from authoritative sources Macmillan now on vacation in Ireland, was asked by the Queen to accept the honors in recognition of his services to the country.

The queen said Macmillan begged the Queen to be allowed to decline these offers.

Thursday it was announced the Queen had conferred the Order of the Garter of the Labor leader in the House of Lords, Earl Alexander of Hillsborough, and Viscount Cobham, the former governor - general of New Zealand.

Trenton Masons Are Guests At Brighton

TRENTON — Last Tuesday night United Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 26, of Brighton, played host to 25 officers and members of Trenton Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 38. Those present, including the visitors, numbered 85.

Trenton officers and members under the leadership of Worshipful Master J. A. Webb were admitted in the lodge in a body and introduced by director of ceremonies Dr. F. H. Dannet, of Brighton. Brighton Lodge's Worshipful Master, Harold Morgan, extended a hearty welcome to the Trenton group.

After regular lodge business, Trenton's master, J. A. Webb was invited to assume the gavel and conduct the second degree, with Trenton officers and members assisting.

The degree conferred on Brother Ernie Longden of Brighton, was exemplified in a very efficient and dignified manner and the Trenton visitors were congratulated for their fine effort by W.M. Morgan and Past DDGM George Little of Brighton.

It is the custom of Brighton Lodge members each spring to host a pancake banquet. The ladies visitors disposed of great piles of succulent hot cakes, garnished with fresh, juicy sausages, golden brown sausages, before heading for home.

Among those from Trenton present was Past DDGM O. M. Newton who recently returned from a holiday in the southern United States. His reference to visits to various lodges in the district from time to time and remarks on lodge attendances in Florida and other Southern States delighted the gathering.

Council Budget Should Be Set By Next Week

TRENTON — Major James MacDonald said late yesterday that the council's budget would have to be brought down by next week if a delay in making out the tax bills was to be avoided.

Meanwhile Gown, fathers have been burning a lot of midnight oil wrestling with this problem.

If the councillors know what $1,903 million in 1963 residential; 94.24; commercial: 104.80 — will be raised on lowered they are not commenting on the subject at the present time.

WANTS FLAGS

OSHAWA (CP)—A committee of the board of education Thursday recommended acceptance of 28 Red Ensigns for Oshawa schools without a binding commitment to fly them. The offer of the flags came from the Oshawa and District United Council of Veterans Associations. Robert Nicol, a separate school representative on the board, said he thought the veterans' council would expect the flags to be flown. Board policy is to fly the Union Jack at schools.

Cancer Society Leaders Fly To Conference

TRENTON — Cancer Society campaign chairmen from Belleville, Trenton, Brighton and Frankford conferred with two of the top executives from the Society's Ontario division here yesterday. The occasion was a luncheon convened by Group Captain W. H. "Wib" Shroeder, campaign chairman for No. 2 district.

Ontario campaign chairman Phil Garratt and executive director Maurice Grimes, both of Toronto, arrived in Trenton with Mr. Garatt at the controls to exchange ideas with local executives. They were welcomed by G/C Shroeder at the officer's mess on the south side. In attendance from the Quinte area were: E. E. "Ted" Follwell and Jim Anton, Belleville; Jim Campbell, Brighton; and Mrs. Joseph McDonald, Frankford; Mrs. George Greer, Mrs. Anita Fraser and Elmer Bonter, Trenton.

Mr. Garratt, who is optimistic that the appeal in Ontario this year for $2,000,000 will be a success, stressed the important part the individual canvassers play in the drive to raise funds for the unrelenting fight against cancer. "Words can not express how grateful we in administration are for their devotion to this responsibility," Mr. Garratt said.

They Asked for It

Hands are being held aloft in horror because Britain bombed a Yemeni fortress—after giving due warning that such an attack would be made.

Reading some of the reports, one would think that this was the first time aircraft had been used in this manner.

Actually this is an old story in the Middle East and the same tactics were also occasionally used in the past against hill tribes in India.

Of course reprisals of this nature give the attached natives no chance to defend themselves. They are definitely "unsporting."

But does anybody really believe that the maintenance of empire has ever been conducted on the principles of sportsmanship?

"Here's to you, Fuzzy-Wuzzy, in your home in the Sudan, you're a poor benighted heathen but a first-class fighting man," sang Kipling. But he admitted it "wasn't 'arf fair" when British troops slashed them with machine-guns.

The advantage which the rulers enjoy over the ruled has been increased by modern weapons, but even in Caesar's day what the disciplined legions did to untutored tribesmen "wasn't 'ardly fair."

The difference—and it is an important one —is that today the use of such superiority in arms troubles the conscience of the rulers and overlords.

This, many will maintain, indicates that the world does grow better, despite the doubts of cynics.

In our view it is rather doubtful whether, romantics like Lawrence of Arabia to the contrary, one can be wholly unfair to the desert Arab. He has such a long history of tyranny behind him that almost certainly he deserves everything he gets.

In the case of Yemenis, they had asked for what they got in a convincing manner, making five serial attacks on territory of the South Arabian Federation, which Britain is pledged to protect.

If there is any feature of the incident which leaves a bad taste, it is Britain using the argument that it was obliged by treaty to retaliate for these attacks.

Rather let us admit that retaliation was expedient, as a means of preventing further repetition of Yemeni aggression, and that the least risky and cheapest method for the British, and probably for the Yemeni too, was chosen for this expedient action.

The North Goes Soft

The world is changing. Labor laws are softening up even the hardrock miners of the north.

A couple of decades or more ago, one of this tribe got peeved with his shift boss and decided to quit. He was dissauded from doing so by an argument which, in the effete south, might sound strange. "Any damned fool can quit," argued his friend and advisor. "It takes a good man to get fired."

Even a good man has trouble getting fired these days, when the unions and the arbitrators step in.

Up in Manitouwadge there is a good man by the name of Uuno Nyrminen, one of those Finns who built the North Country in the days when Southern Ontario's main contribution to its economy consisted of unemployed hockey players. Nyrminen went about his business in the mine giving his employer a hundred cents' worth of work for every dollar paid him until the unhappy day when the company installed a former member of the German Army as his foreman. The German proved to have a tongue as lively as it was foul and although Nyrminen talked back he lost on a decision, being suspended for four hours. So, when he met his foreman at a carnival, he tweaked his nose and threatened to kill him. The company dissased Nyrminen. The union appealed the decision.

We were under the impression that a threat to kill was a serious business, but a judge sitting as an arbitrator has decided the Nyrminen could not be expected to turn the other cheek, that his dismissal by the company was unwarranted and that he should be reinstated in his job.

He appears to have disregarded the threat and dealt only with the tweak of the nose.

In the old day in the mines that would have been the deciding factor, too. Any miner keen enough to tweak the nose of his shift boss and survive to brag about it kept his job—as the new shift boss.

You in the West tell us to work hard and we will get rich. Well, we are working hard and we are getting poorer.—Zana Dipcharima of Nigeria.

Strictly Personal
Habitual Acts Show Man's True Colors

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: To a creature large enough, or far enough removed, the sublunary conflicts of the human race would seem revoltingly obscure, for the differences that loom so great to us are imperceptible from a height — just as the world seems as smooth as an orange to an astronaut in orbit, who cannot tell the valleys from the mountain peaks. And which is "reality," his view or ours?

When we rise to an occasion we proudly call that "our real self"; but there may be more accuracy in Pascal's observation that "The strength of a man's virtue should not be measured by his special exertions, but by his habitual acts."

In politics, two groups can almost never consolidate unless and until they are animated by a passionate mutual detestation of a third.

Psychological states are not reversible: love can turn to friendship, but friendship to love; friendship can never turn to love — a fact that the amorous losers are pathetically reluctant to recognize.

A "good critic," to most of us, is one who praises the kind that those beneath us in taste are common, while those above us in taste are pretentious.

To be quoted is a sign of importance; to be misquoted is a sign of great importance.

In our civilization, more about the younger generation, we must be careful how we apportion the blame. The younger generation said more than two centuries ago: "Les jeunes gens souffrent moins de la faute de leurs pères que de la prudence des vieillards."

"Young people suffer less from their own mistakes than from the older people's wisdom."

A reader in California asks me to comment on the "Santa cram," but it has been this column's policy for 20 years never to comment on the opinions of any kind for at least six months — and then one finds there is no need to.

The incidence of scandal is a geometric problem rather than a moral one. The larger the house, the more closets; and the more closets, the more skeletons.

The great bulk of classical literature deals with the subject of "character in crisis" — that is what is wrong with much of modern literature is not that it shows these crises in darkest and most clinical terms, but that it has no high and severe idea of what constitutes a crisis. It is not in the depiction of man's activities that the books are stultifying, but in their unrelated estimate of man's stature.

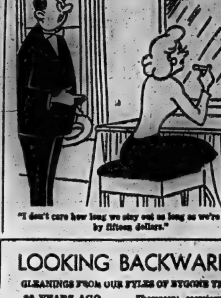
Birds Are Not Really Free

Kansas City Star

Birds are winging northward these days on annual migrations. They fly in response to urgings and guidance not yet fully explained. But whatever the cause, it is beyond their individual control—or even understanding.

It is different with the men who watch and sometimes envy their carefree travels. For men make their own choices . . .

That is free men do. This is one of the basic things — perhaps the basic thing — which sets man apart from the animals. He can choose, and he has mental equipment to assemble and judge the information which makes his choice meaningful.



The dictator turns back the clock, even robs a man of his humanity and puts him on the level of the animals, by depriving him of freedom of choice.

Men are enslaved by direct compulsion which tells them what they may or may not do. But they are equally enslaved by the denial of information which they must have to make a free choice. The chains may not be physical. But the man kept in ignorance by suppression of facts is no more the master of his fate than a bird winging northward in response to the vernal urge.

By free as a bird! A slave may wish he were. The free man knows that no instinct-driven creature can match him in unfettered flight of mind and spirit.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF YESTERYEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 30th, 1934.

When the final history of this war is written, it will be found that those Canadian citizens sorting on the home front contributed in many ways to the victories of our fighting forces. In the past there has been splendid response to appeals for Flying Fund, and we contributed to the present liberal supply of glycerine for explosives and medical supply and has helped make possible the removal of all restrictions from its use.

Fats in large quantities are still required for essential war purposes and the great for continuing to collect them is as pressing as ever. Salvaged fats help assure the supply of existing oils for the manufacture of munitions, war equipment, compounds for explosives and processing metals, lubricant greases for launching ships, lubricant greases for railway rolling stock, fatty acids used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, glycerine for insecticides and disinfectants, basic ingredients for ointments, leather for footwear for our armed forces, processed oils for textile manufacturing, for a number of really vital purposes of which the following are only a small proportion: soap for hospitals, for armed forces, finishing parachutes and wood processing.

The above is a list of some of the reasons why the collection of fats must go on. An intense campaign for the collection of fats will be started when the local committees of the Canadian Legion will appeal to the citizens of Belleville for this much needed essential war substance.

30 YEARS AGO

April 30th, 1924.

Miss Rita E. Collip, a member of the teaching staff at the Essex High School, spent the Easter vacation at her home here.

Mr. George Jordan of Hungerford township, the warden of the County, was a visitor in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Martin have returned to the city after spending several weeks in Jamaica.

Mrs. H. E. Hegle of Kingston was a recent visitor with her sister, Mrs. J. R. Scott, Coleman Street.

Ex. Ald. R. P. White of this city was re - elected president of the Lake Ontario and Trent Valley Dealers' Association at the third term at the annual meeting held recently in Port Hope.

Mrs. S. Medeland has returned to her home here on Charles Street, after spending the winter in Guelph, Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Elmer Adams has returned to Detior after spending the past week at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wells of Toronto spent the weekend here.

Dr. and Mrs. George Stehle will return to the city tomorrow after spending two weeks in Bermuda.

40 YEARS AGO

April 30th, 1914.

Mr. Robert Mathieson, former superintendent of the O.S.D. here, is spending a few days in town. Mr. Mathieson is now the treasurer of the Independent Order of Foresters at the head office of the Order in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Ketchabon of West Moira Street, have returned home from Florida where they spent three months.

At a meeting of the junior baseball league, known as the Trent Valley League, which was held at the Y.M.C.A. the following officers were elected: president — John O'Flynn; first vice president — Tom Thompson; secretary treasurer — Gerald Lynch; team manager — Harry Soanes.

In a volleyball match at the Y.M.C.A. the high school team defeated the Y.M.C.A. senior division team, the score being 15 to 2. Superior combination and team work were the key to the victories of our fighting forces. In the past there has been splendid response to appeals for Flying Fund, which has contributed to the present liberal supply of glycerine for explosives and medical supply and has helped make possible the removal of all restrictions from its use.

Do A-Bombs Make Quakes?

Brantford Expositor

It has always been held impossible to forecast earthquakes. But a Japanese scientist, Yosan Svantesson, predicted six months ago that "things will be popping for the Russians weeks in March." How much they popped, the Alaska quake discloses.

The basis of the Swedish forecast is a theory that Russian nuclear bombs set off between 1952 and August 1953 triggered a chain reaction of shock that has continued to "echo" through the earth. Certainly something has caused the closely following earthquakes since 1960 in Chile, the Azores, at Agadir in North Africa, in Baja, in where a volcano exploded early last year, and now the Alaskan disaster.

Most of the earth's violent quakes take place along a "Pacific ring of fire" which virtually encircles that ocean along the margin of the land. Most are believed caused by slipping of rock masses either vertically or nearly horizontally, sometimes near the earth's surface, at other times as deep as 400 miles below. It may be that a change in the state of the rocks under heat and pressure, as in the transformation of carbon into diamonds, causes the slippage, or that the shift results from movement of the earth to relieve strains that have built up gradually, possibly over decades or centuries.

It is doubtful if scientists have yet been able to measure accurately the forces with which a nuclear explosion near ground level hits the earth. The blow must be severe, perhaps severe enough to make the earth shudder at far distances from the point of impact.

So, like a ripple on a pond, the earth's crust is still reeling and travelling fastest along the well - known fault lines in the earth's crust. If at any point in the earth strain has built up to near breaking point the natural order of things, the extra shake of an atomic explosion's ripple might trigger a quake. The Swedish theory is not one to be scoffed at.

War on Hanoi Last Resort

Christian Science Monitor

Should the United States carry the war to North Vietnam?

No such decision has been made. Nor is a decision needed as yet. All means of strengthening the war effort in South Vietnam have not been tried. But President Johnson brought the question of North Vietnam into play himself in a veiled warning in his speech at the University of California. It was significant that the State Department as a move of psychological warfare to keep the other side guessing and aware of the possibilities. But not to make a specific threat.

In any event, it is known that some advisers are pressing Secretary Rusk and the President to carry the war north. Their pressure to do this from voices Republicans is likely during the campaign. And that a review of policy is under way in Washington.

The issue, then, needs to be considered.

The first point to establish is that to strike North Vietnam would be improper. It would violate the Geneva truce line binding rules which govern the relationship between the West and Communist China. It would strengthen known as the cold war. There was a settlement roughly along the Geneva lines, a power at the close of the Indochina war when the French were expelled. It was endorsed by the big powers at Geneva. Since then, the leaders of the former resistance movement in Vietnam, who are Communist supplied, have tried to change the settlement by force. They have failed both in Vietnam and Laos. This is not dramatic, but just as surely a victory for the cold war settlement, as the aggression of North Korea south of the 38th parallel was a defeat for Korea. The West is entitled to fight back. It did fight back in South Korea. The war not into China but into North Korea—where the original aggression started. The Vietnamese war could be carried to North Vietnam with similar rights, as long as it does not overly threaten, or come too close, to Red China itself.

But is it necessary or advisable? It may not prove necessary. Indochina is entering perhaps to the end of the year and beyond the election, might be needed. It seems likely that Moscow have both said they would oppose. To what degree? A similar, but not identical, nonaligned opinion throughout the world. How great? And to what extent do the Asian-African peoples learned more about the nature of communism since Korea? Would the Asian-African peoples learned more about the nature of communism since Korea? Would the Asian-African peoples learned more about the nature of communism since Korea? Would

TORONTO (CP) — Heightened speculative activity caused the Exchange ticker to run 15 minutes late after the first hour of trading on the stock market today.

Bunker Hill, Wiseh and Can Mines all traded heavily, in excess of the 160,000-share mark. Bunker dropped five cents to 8½ cents, while Can gained seven cents to 67 cents.

Winchester rose five cents to 17 cents on volume of 175,000 shares, while American Ledge dropped 2½ cents to 23 cents. The industrial list took fractional losses across a broad front. Trans - Canada, Trans Prairie and Westcoast Transmission fell as much as a dollar among pipe lines, while in foods Loblaw B and Monarch Fine Foods dropped ¼.

Imperial Oil and BA Oil each lost ¼.

Ochawa Wholesale A was a rare brightener with a gain of 50 to a new high of 450.

Senior base metals trading saw Hudson Bay rise ¼ and Falconbridge and Consolidated Mining and Smelting ¼.

In golds, Hollinger rose ¼.

Noranda and Dome rose ¼ and ¼ among oils.

The industrial index fell .05 to 144.79 and the Exchange index .04 to 139.27. Base metals dropped .07 to 67.39 while golds rose .22 to 130.99 and western oils .08 to 87.70.

Volume was 2,703,000 shares compared with 2,458,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

Volume on the market soared well over the 10,000,000 share level Thursday as a group of speculative issues with property in the Timmins area of northern Ontario moved strongly ahead.

PCE Explorations rose 22 cents to 47 cents on 1,621,486 shares, Bunker Hill 13 cents to 8c cents on 577,326 shares, Pelrio three cents to 28 cents on 185,000 shares and Paramaque 1¼ cents to 15¼ cents on 52,500 shares.

PCE Explorations led the rise following reports the company had acquired property northwest of Timmins near Texas Gulf's operations. There are rumors on Bay Street of a major copper find in the region.

APERS ADVANCE

Papers and financial issues led the industrial advance Thursday as all but wiped out losses experienced over the last two days.

Mr. Forest advanced one point to 29, and Abitibi ¼ to 14¼ among papers and Investors Syndicate A rose ½ to 56 among financial stocks.

Elsewhere on the industrial board Ochawa A rose two points to 48, Bell Phone one point to 53¾ and Dominion Bridge ¾ to 70.

Falconbridge gained one point to 59¾ and International Nickel ¾ to 82½ in senior base metals.

Great Plains slipped ¼ to 11½ and Hudson Bay Oil and Gas ¼ to 10¾ among senior western oils.

The exchange index gained .72 to 139.31, industrials .52 to 144.84, golds .22 to 130.77, base metals .17 to 67.46 and western oils were off .19 to 87.62. Volume for the day was 12,917,000 shares compared with 7,413,000 Wednesday.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter steers opened lower, regained losses and closed firm at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Heifers opened barely steady and closed firm. Yearlings were steady and bull prices steady. Replacement cattle still were higher.

Veal calf prices were about steady. Hog and lamb prices were higher.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 8,800 head, about 800 head less than last week and 1,200 head more than the same week in 1965. Western cattle receipts were 662 head as compared to 382 head last week. Some fat cattle were included in the Western receipts. Other out of province receipts included 47 calves from New Brunswick. There were no shipments in Eastern Canadian slaughters, however 45 veal calves were shipped off the market for slaughter in the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers and heifers 1,150 with fancy feedlot steers to 25.50; good 22.50-23.50; medium 20-22; common 17-18; choice heifers 22-23 with some fancy feedlot heifers higher; good 21-22; medium 19-21; common 15-17; choice fed yearlings 24-26; good 22-24; good cows 17-18 with sales to 18.50; utility 16-17; canners and cutters 11-11.50; good heavy bologna bulls 19-19.50; common and medium 16-18.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 23-25 with good feeder stock calves to 27; common and medium stockers 20-22.

Calves: Choice vealers 34-36 with odd singles to 37; good 29-33; medium 24-28; common 20-24; boners 18-20.

Hogs: Grade A 24.45-25.85; heavy sows 19.25 with light sows and boars 17.25; feeder pigs 13.50 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 22-23.50 per hundredweight with good feedlot lambs closing at 25; sheep 3-10 according to quality; receipts of spring lambs were light with most sales at $27 per hundredweight for 80-pound lambs.

Cut in Subsidy For Vocational Schools Assailed

TIMMINS (CP)—The Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves will fight "hammer and tongs" against a federal government reduction in subsidies to Ontario for building vocational schools, president Mayor Angus Campbell of Pembroke told Thursday.

Mr. Campbell told a regional meeting that he has learned that the federal subsidy, once 75 per cent of the total cost of building vocational schools, has been cut to 37½ per cent.

Mr. Campbell said Education Minister Davis of Ontario told him in a letter Ontario's share has been increased from 25 per cent to 37½ per cent of total cost.

In Toronto, an education department official said the federal subsidy was 75 per cent and Ontario's 25 per cent of the total cost up to Oct. 1, 1963, if the contract had been let before April 1, 1962. Since then, the federal subsidy has been 50 per cent of what the Ontario government pays.

The official said the Ontario government has guaranteed municipalities total subsidies up to 75 per cent of total cost on all vocational buildings on which tentative approval was given after Feb. 1, 1962. The other 25 per cent is provided by the municipality.

Fractional Surplus Shown In Auditor's Report Given to Council at Special Session

Belleville made it — and a little better than made it — in 1965.

The biggest co-operative enterprise in the Quinte district — the municipal operations of the city of Belleville ended its 1965 operations with a fractional surplus.

The auditor's report on municipal operations — adopted unanimously by city council yesterday — showed this statistical anatomy of civic finances:

In 1965 the city budgeted for $4,965,000 and spent $4,938,000.

While it estimated revenue at nearly $4,801,000, it actually crossed $4,907,000.

The marginal outcry in the black apparently was the essence of the 46-page report presented the city fathers at a special meeting yesterday by its auditors — Grange A. Welch and Company.

The entire folio was a straight presentation of statistics — minus the usual preface in which the auditor makes a judgment on the facts as revealed by figures drawn up by professional accountants.

The report therefore put it every statistic in its entirety — and it was left to Alderman Corke to make a fact noted by the chairman of the session, Alderman Ben Corke.

It would have called for chartered accountant, Robert Irvine, to promptly wade through the entire report, said the councillor.

"I think that's out of the question," said Alderman Corke. "I don't see how he can do that without reading all the figures."

However, the ghosts of Royal Commissions past still have strong influence in the council chamber. "Some shattering 1959 inquiry on city operations stressed failure of council to closely scrutinize its 'annual audit.'

"This is one of the important jobs we must do. It was necessary," reminded Alderman Ben David.

So, seated beside chairman Alderman Corke, Mr. Irvine continued to read down through the report as the councillors followed his every word from their own issued copies.

By the time he had reached page 9 — which covered all the general transactions of the city, including various boards and commissions—another half was called.

The city fathers also had decided to discuss budget estimates yesterday afternoon and, this business was upper-most in their minds.

About 2:35 p.m.—little more than a minute before Mr. Irvine had begun reconciling what the councillors held before them — Alderman Ross Sullivan rose and moved a motion, seconded by Alderman Doug Boyle, that the auditor's report be adopted.

Council concurred.

The last and most intricate — documentation of city business during the past 12 months revealed interesting facts in the estimates which worked both ways.

For instance, revenue from taxation was more than expected. Yet the total of contributions, grants and subsidies from both provincial and federal governments were lower than budgeted in the statement of revenue.

Again, expenditures were lower in the estimates for general government, expenses and protection services.

Social welfare was up over the estimates — by more than $13,000.

These are among the breakdown of statistics for 1965 with actual figures stated and those budgeted in brackets:

REVENUE

Taxation — $3,299,816 ($3,280,632).

Grants, subsidies (Ontario) — $556,429 ($561,293).

Grants, subsidies (federal)— $86,850 ($96,162).

EXPENDITURE

General government — $333,000 ($345,521).

Protection ($773,898).

Public works — $517,350 ($550,723).

Sanitation-waste removal $317,478 ($346,806).

Conservation of health — $113,000 ($108,977).

Social welfare — $439,878 ($435,080).

Education (including debt charges) — $1,981,093 ($1,868,553).

Debt charges — $560,098 ($593,783).

Among other statistics noted in passing was the fact that "other municipalities" paid $32,344 for rated, fire and garbage services. Income from this was budgeted at $14,500.

Licences and permits — including dog tax—were estimated at $22,300 in revenue. They actually returned $28,126 to the municipal treasury.

Recreation and community services' gross revenue figure at $119,843 is in the budget brought in $97,598. However the expenditure side they cost less — $173,800 compared with $175,300 n the budget.

Western Towns Set up Novel Voluntary 'Tax'

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal centenary planners have devised a novel self-denial system by which local authorities raise funds to mark the anniversary of Confederation in 1967.

The plan adopted by two communities — and there may be more—is to add a nominal charge or forgo normal discounts on public utility bills.

In Saskatoon, for more than a year, residents have been giving up the normal discount allowed for early payment of electricity bills. With the amount of these discounts set aside from now to 1967 in a fund which is earning interest, Saskatoon expects to have $1,000,000 with which to mark the centenary in permanent fashion.

In St. Paul, Alta., a community of about 3,000 northeast of Edmonton, the taxpayers have assessed themselves $1 a month on their water bills. The money similarly goes into a municipal centennial fund.

John Fisher, head of the Confederation centennial commission, has endorsed these projects as examples of good Canadian citizenship, because the centenary "must be more than structures and works paid for by governments."

White and Colored Cheese Same Price

First grade cheese, both white and coloured, sold at an average price of 35½ cents on the Belleville cheese exchange this week.

Offered on the board were 5,400 boxes, 2,880 twins, register cheese, and 4,722 square cheese.

Council Votes In Favor of Caucus Session

Belleville city council yesterday began scrutinizing its 1966 budget estimates—and voting in favor of a caucus session.

The closed meeting followed a brief open assembly while city fathers formally adopted the 1963 audit of the state of their treasury.

However, the budget discussion went behind closed doors when Alderman Ross, a minority of councillors, fueled by motion over the official notice calling the session.

One such memorandum sent councillors called for a meeting to "study the budget report, followed by discussion of the budget estimates."

Alderman Ross Bailey, who noted no mention was made of a caucus, moved the budget be discussed openly in the committee-of-the-whole.

However, city manager J. R. Reynolds reminded council an earlier notice he had mailed specified a caucus on the budget.

"I am opposed to us going into a budget discussion with the minutes being recorded and ourselves going out on the air," interjected Alderman J. Allin.

"Mr. Chairman," added Alderman Ben Corke, "we shouldn't have anything to hide from the public."

Alderman Ben Corke, however, noted the formal notice calling for a caucus, and added: "I am concerned with the legality of it."

Earlier in the brief discussion Alderman Corke noted he was chairman and asked Ald. Bailey to remove his name from the motion for a caucus meeting. Instead, he requested Alderman Don Jose as seconder.

The motion, however, was lost 5-3 on a recorded vote.

Voting against were: Mayor Ellis, councillors Allin, Corke, David, Jose, Harrison, Raycroft and Williams. Supporting the motion were councillors Ross, Bailey, Boyle, Joss, Whalen and Wishart.

Debenture Debt Nearly Double What City Receives in Taxes

What price normal progress? — or just keeping up with the times?

Pretty hefty when it comes to public debt—either national, provincial or civic.

In Belleville, the accumulated local public debt at the end of last year was nearly double what the city received in taxes.

The city audit, presented to council yesterday showed net debenture debt outstanding at December 31, 1965, at $6,506,900.

Total revenues from city taxation for the year was $3,299,000.

Yet a glance down the list shows not a penny spent on anything but bare municipal, during the past year.

In all, municipal bonds were raised for the following purposes:

Branch Library ($35,000.)

Local improvements: Gravel roads ($4,783); sewers ($170,879); water mains ($44,906); public schools ($225,000); separate schools disposal ($994,280); Transit Commission ($18,000); Parking Authority ($70,000).

Debenture debt at the end of 1963 stood at $5,374,304. On that outstanding debenture the city retired, through normal payments $411,089 in 1963.

With separate disposal demanding a mandatory maximum of $994,000, the city had to issue debentures for the same period, totalling $1,583,000.

GET METER MONEY

The debt burden when distributed outside general treasury responsibility to special boards and commissions, is even more revealing in the problem it presents to municipal administration.

Several groups particularly highlight the nagging financial problem revealed by the auditor's report.

The Parking Authority at the end of 1965 had a debenture debt of $151,900. Last year for expansion purchases, it issued a further $70,000. In the same period it redeemed $9,574. At the end of the year it

Ann Landers

Digging up Graves Not Being Very Practical

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In 1926, when I was a youngster, my mother died. I was an only child and the family had quite a lot of money. My dad managed to lose everything by the time I graduated from high school. He is dead now.

A few weeks ago, at a family party, they got to talking about my mother and what beautiful jewelry she had. One of my cousins asked what happened to the jewelry. My great uncle replied, "They buried her in it."

When we got home I mentioned to my wife that we could sure use some money and I would like to have my mother's grave dug up and sell the jewelry. She looked at me like I was crazy. ANN LANDERS Would this be such a terrible thing to do? After all, I am entitled to whatever worldly goods my parents had. My wife says the thought of it makes her skin crawl. May I have your opinion? — PRACTICAL MAN.

DEAR MAN — How practical can you get? You've managed to get by this long without digging up any graves, haven't you?

If you are so nuts about money why don't you dig up a second job?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are all shook up. It was discovered a few days ago that a certain girl in our class (we are high school juniors) has been putting up a "false front."

Her shower partner got mad at her for some petty reason and told. The news has spread like wild-fire and the boys are making rude remarks. The girl is so embarrassed she can't hold her head up.

We all feel sorry for her because she is a good person. Also, we don't feel that what she did was such a crime. She is tall and thin and built like a flagpole.

Please print this letter with a little plea for understanding. Thank you from all of us. — SORRY FOR HER.

DEAR SORRY — I can imagine no topic which would be less anybody else's business than this one.

A girl does not owe an affidavit to the public that everything they see is for real. This goes for teeth, eyelashes, hair, and, yes — measurements.

The one who should be hanging her head in shame is that big-mouth dame who blabbed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a lot of respect for your advice. Am I immature or is there something wrong with the man I am married to?

Wallace (not his real name) is 30 years old. We have been married seven years and have two pre-school children. Wallace is a faithful and considerate husband and a fine father. I should add, our sex life is very satisfying.

Last week I discovered by accident that Wallace has hidden some girlie magazines under his toolbox in the basement workshop. I've heard about such magazines but I had never seen one. Believe me I was shocked that girls would pose that way without even covering up their faces.

Should I throw the magazines out and keep quiet, tell him I know they are there, or just forget it? Help me. — NAOMI.

DEAR NAOMI — Your husband is still operating at an adolescent level — like the little boy who hides behind the garage and smokes a cigarette.

Tell him you have discovered the magazines and you hope he will outgrow the pecking stage before his children are old enough to use his tool box.

Reading Is the Key: Theme As Library Week Observed

By GLADYS WARD

Corby Public Library is more than a collection of books for escapist reading — much more. There are thousands of books for reference, for do-it-yourself addicts in home decorating, landscaping, cooking, sewing, radio and television repairs, and almost any hobby one could name. There are books to inspire, and as Miss Olive Delaney, chief librarian states it, "Books to stir your mind and heart."

There is an extreme shortage of librarians in Canada with growing demands from Universities, hospitals, and technical institutions. The positions offer good working conditions for young men as well as young women, the pay is good and it is a challenging profession. The requirements are a B.A. degree and a degree in Bachelor of Library Science.

At the Corby Public Library there are eight full time staff members, which includes two qualified librarians, Miss Delaney and Miss Fisher, and six library assistants. In addition there are 12 High School girls who work part time. At present the staff is busy preparing for the opening of the new branch library in June.

Corby Public library has been in existence for about 30 years and was named for its benefactor Senator Harry Corby.

MANY QUERIES

The librarian does more than stamp cards for in and out books. Last year there were an estimated 4,500 queries for information from the reference library. Also, on occasion, one whole grade at the High School level came in for information about the Middle East, the oil resources, agriculture, conservation, and so on. One grade had Africa as a project and the African States under United Nations trusteeship. The librarian does most of the basic work of looking up references because she is familiar with the method and is equipped to use the references material, and to find the less obvious type of information requested.

The film library is technically under the Belleville and District Film Council, but the library staff looks after circulation.

Some people are not aware of the record library where albums may be borrowed, the same as books. There is a list of classical music, Broadway productions, and light music to choose from, as well as Shakespeare's plays for students who are studying the Bard.

HOSPITAL SERVICE

A staff member goes once a week to the hospital where 1,830 books were circulated last year. The Women's Hospital Auxiliary assists with this work and donated $100 to the library to help share the cost of this worthwhile venture.

There is a never-ending demand for technical books on many subjects. Some of the most popular are radio and television servicing and automobile repairs.

The children's library is being used increasingly for reference work all the way from Grade IV to Grade VIII. This is partly due to the education al trend to broaden the base of learning for children, to take them outside textbooks and to have them look up references on everything from identifying a spruce tree to the biographies of political leaders in Canada.

There are eight libraries in operation in the schools with 13,775 books in the collections at the end of the year. These libraries are open one day a week and are staffed by public library personnel.

LIBRARY WEEK

This is Library Week and the theme is "Reading is the Key." It is the key to many roads, to a fuller life, to adventure, to an understanding of ourselves and others, to the wisdom of the ages, to self-improvement, and to knowledge of the world about us. Out of a population of 30,855 Belleville has a library membership of 14,939 which seems like a good average. But for those who have not yet discovered their library, they are invited to visit it, use its facilities and use the key to open the door of knowledge.

U.C.W. Hear Talk by Missionary

JOHNSTOWN — The Johnstown United Church Women enrolled their April meeting in order to attend the missionary meeting held at Stockdale United Church last Friday evening.

Miss Louise Scott, a missionary on furlough from Indore, India, dressed in blue sari, was the guest speaker. Two of the church girls, Jean Peck and Judy Pitcher were also dressed in the traditional costume of India.

The church was decorated with mementoes of India by Mrs. Harold Pitcher, who was responsible for the organization of the meeting. The young people of the church, with Miss Peck as leader, conducted the devotional service.

The Rev. C. R. Judd of Frankford, introduced Miss Scott and spoke briefly, dealing with her work as a missionary. He dealt with the fact that Christian church groups and nurses are uniting to heal the body as well as the soul of the Indian people by preaching of Jesus and teaching them how to keep healthy.

Miss Scott is a public health nurse who teaches and trains other nurses. There are three schools of nursing in India. An approximate 85 per cent of the people worship idols and only two out of 100 are Christians. It is difficult to reach the people due to the caste system in India. There are 500,000 people in Indore and 45 per cent of these are illiterate.

A great deal is being done in the agricultural field in this country. A number interesting slides were shown with Miss Scott giving the commentary.

Here living accommodation of mud huts were shown and that the cow is still held sacred in India. Miss Scott concluded by saying "There is a great need for public health nurses in this land of India."

Miss Scott was thanked by Mrs. Pitcher and was asked to dedicate the mite boxes which contain the missionary givings. The speaker explained that it is the work being done in the churches in Canada that helps with the missionary work in India.

Everyone enjoyed refreshments served by the young people.

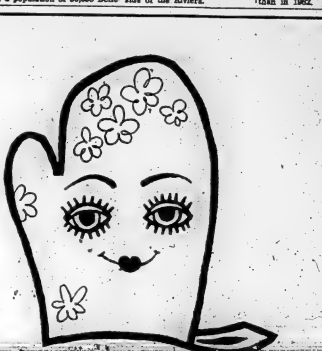
Holy Rosary C.W.L. Holds Luncheon

On Sunday, April 5th the mothers and daughters of the Holy Rosary C.W.L. assembled at the Knights of Columbus Hall to celebrate the annual Communion luncheon.

Mrs. E. Reed, the president welcomed everyone and called upon Father Rufus Debano, the Spiritual Director to open the luncheon with prayer.

Mrs. M. J. Walter, the convener of the event, called on the past president, Mrs. J. Darlington to introduce the guest speaker, the Rev. Father Paul McAvoy, Priest of the Archdiocese, who chose the Bible as his subject and generalized on the book of Genesis. He encouraged all to read the Bible and realize that the Holy scriptures should be read in the spirit in which it was written.



A most notable quote by Pope Pius XII "The Bible is a heaven-sent treasure which the Catholic Church considers as the most precious source of doctrine on faith and morals appeared on the souvenir program.

Mrs. A. Hockrutter thanked Father McAvoy.

Mrs. M. J. Walter thanked everyone who had given assistance to her in organizing the luncheon.

Question: Two relatives gave us identical novelty sets for wedding gifts. I know I'll never use both, one set very often and would like to exchange the other for a chafing dish. There were no markings on either package, so I don't know what stores they came from. Would it be inconsiderate to return one set, and ask the relative who sent it to send a chafing dish in exchange? Do you think it would hurt her feelings? — Mrs. H. B., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: If the relative is close, sympathetic and has feelings of flint, then you might take a chance. But if either is sensitive, and might think you disapproved of her taste, then it would be wiser and more courteous to keep the extra set and spare her feelings. Who knows? you might become a whale of a cook with all those extra soufflé dishes to experiment with.

Question: We have a dance coming up at the all-girl school I attend and I'd like to invite a certain boy I've met several times at parties. He's never asked me for a date, although he's always been friendly and has asked me to dance at a few social get-togethers. Would it be correct for me to invite him, even though we've never dated before? I know he doesn't go to church either, so it would not look as though I were trying to cut out another girl. Your help will be appreciated. — K. D., Newark, N. J.

Answer: Since you've already met the young man socially on a number of occasions, it would be permissible for you to invite him to the dance. You could ask him casually the next time you see him, or, if the dance is to be fairly soon, you could correctly call him on the phone to issue the invitation.

Mr., Mrs. A. Wanamaker Mark 50 Years of Wedded Life

HILLIER—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wanamaker were "At Home" to relatives and friends on Saturday, March 28, when they observed their 50th wedding anniversary, and on the preceding evening the immediate family enjoyed a turkey dinner.

On Saturday the many guests were welcomed into the living room which was appropriately decorated with gifts of spring flowers, Easter lilies and potted plants by Mrs. P. Power, Mrs. Frank Wanamaker and Mrs. Evans. Here the tea table was covered with a white linen cloth and a 50 year light and centred with an anniversary cake with an accompanying gold cake knife. Those who poured tea were: Mrs. H. Wense, Mrs. J. Timmerman and Mrs. N. Parks, while other relatives and friends helped with the serving.

Guests were present from the surrounding communities and from Belleville, Napanee and Kingston. Anniversary messages and congratulations were received from the Hon. L. B. Pearson, Ottawa; J. Roberts and other government officials, also congratulations from friends in Toronto, Woodstock, Niagara Falls, Ottawa, Saskatoon and Regina, Saskatchewan, Yellow Grass and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

A reception was held on Sunday afternoon for the honored couple at Bethel Hall, Bowmanville, which was in charge of Mrs. Wanamaker's sisters and brothers. At this time the guests were welcomed from various places in Durham county, Oshawa and Barrie, by Mrs. A. Moffatt, Mrs. J. Webb and Mrs. L. Moore, sisters of Mrs. Wanamaker. The room was decorated with colorful blooms and potted plants and highlighted with an attractively appointed tea table centred with an anniversary cake.

Messages of special interest were read from the Rev. F. Lane of Oakwood, Evangelist Mr. Simon Brownson of Bancroft, and Rev. M. Truax.

Miss Ellen Milliron favored with a vocal selection followed by the singing of Easter hymns. A time of visiting and good fellowship brought the happy occasion to a close.

Mrs. Wanamaker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Milliron of Orono East and was educated at Port Hope high school. She was teaching school in Hastings county when she met her husband.

Mr. Wanamaker is the third son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wanamaker of Mayo, Hastings county. The couple were married by the Rev. Miller at Bancroft, in 1904, and until 1925 lived on the bride-to-be's farm at Bancroft. From there they moved to Prince Edward County and bought a farm at Wellington, R.R. 1, where they resided for over 30 years, but due to Mr. Wanamaker's ill health, sold the farm and retired to their present home adjacent to Rose Hall. The last two years Mr. Wanamaker has been comparatively well, but lives quietly, taking quite an interest in the home garden.

Mrs. Wanamaker has been active in Sunday school; also the U.C.W. and the W.I. She is a life member of these organizations and is still active.

There were three sons, Merton, Gerald and Murray, who are deceased, also three daughters: (Marion) Mrs. P. Power, Pembroke; (Doris) Mrs. R. G. Lancaster, Belleville, and (Hazel) Mrs. W. A. Evans, of Weston, Lake Manchikiming.

Mrs. M. Young who was a bridesmaid at the wedding 50 years ago attended the celebration.

Installation Service Most Impressive

An impressive installation service was held on Wednesday evening, April 8th, in the I.O.O.F. hall, when Sojourner Margaret Stalker was installed as Worthy High Priestess. The installing officers were Sojs. Ethel Stewart, Past Worthy High Priestess of Belleville, and Soj. George Pound, Past Watchman of the Shepherds.

The attractive floors of the hall opened organ music was played by Soj. Leona Austin, Past Worthy High Priestess of Woolor, and as the officers entered the temple the soloist, Soj. Beatrice Wales of Peterborough, sang an appropriate hymn.

During the installation Soj. Margaret Gill presented Soj. Margaret with a bouquet of red roses from her husband and son Michael. The Installing Herald was Soj. Kathryn Bush-

Successful Living

Seventeen-Year-Old Beatnik Causes Parents Grave Concern

DEAR DORIS — Until about a year ago my daughter (now 17) was a girl any parents could well be proud of. Then she started getting these crazy Beatnik ideas and now we are ashamed for anyone to come to our home.

She and three other girls had their hair cut Beatnik fashion and were sent home from school because they refused to change it. Now these girls' mothers haven't spoken to me since as they know my daughter was the instigator. For the past two weeks she has been suiting because we could not give her money to go and see the Beatles, thinking if they saw her she would be asked to join them. Why do young people go to such extremes over such crazy fads?

My husband often walks all the way to work to give her nicer clothes and toward sending her to college — HEART-BROKEN PARENTS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HEARTBROKEN — Don't despair. Teen-agers love excitement. She's only off her rocker temporarily!

Things come to her too easily. Share with her, in all seriousness, your financial concern, and challenge her to earn the money for her clothes. At the moment she thinks money grows on trees. She'll clean up when she starts valuing her clothes, her future, and some clean cut boy!

DEAR DORIS — About a month ago my fiance's brother came home from serving away for three years. This is the first time I ever met my fiance's brother, and it was love at first sight on my part. We double dated with him quite often and my heart just breaks to see him kissing his girl friends. He is very friendly to me and when his brother, my fiance, comes around he changes.

I do not love my fiance any more and would love to go out with his brother. I have to break our engagement and just don't know how to do it. I don't want to cause friction between the two brothers, as they are very close, but what can I do? — DESPERATE LITTLE SUE.

DEAR SUE — First Fact — You no longer love your fiance. You must tell him so, and break your engagement. This is regardless of whether you ever go out with anyone else.

Second Fact — You are attracted to his brother. At some future time he may find that he is also attracted to you. Keep your dignity and hang on to your heart, right now.

DEAR DORIS — I presided at a meeting of our Sports Club for the first time last week. We got all tangled up in motions and amendments and members were yelling in all sorts of suggestions about how it should be done. That's why I'm writing you.

How does a person make a motion? Can someone change it right away with an amendment? And then someone else change it with another amendment? How long can this go on, and how do you unscramble it all? — CHAIRMAN AND I WERE I WASN'T.

DEAR CHAIRMAN — More seasoned souls than you have run afoul of proper procedures in such cases.

Whenever anyone says that he rather than "I make a motion that ——", After it has been seconded, the chairman calls for discussion. Perhaps right away someone says "I would like to amend the motion in question to read ——". Then there has to be a seconder for the amendment. Before everybody can put an amendment he might remember says: "I would like to amend the amendment to read ——". Somebody second this idea.

By this time confusion reigns. The chairman restores sanity by having the original motion read, then the first amendment, then the amendment to the amendment. If anybody else wants to amend at this stage, overrule him. There's a limit! The amendment to the amendment is discussed first, then voted on. Then the original amendment is amended, then the motion as amended. You and your secretary better go to bed early the night before. Write to me for the name of a good book about meeting procedures.

sell, PWHP, of Belleville, who was followed with Soj. Carol Adams, escorted her to the East. The setting Worthy High Shepherds, Clifford Smith, was accompanied to the East by Past Watchman of the Shepherds, David Hollinger.

The installation service was completed by Soj. Ruby Fleming, PWHP from Brighton, conducting the beautiful cross ceremony, where she presented the seven officers with white crosses trimmed with forget-me-nots.

Visiting the installation were Sojourners from Toronto, Peterborough, Kingston and Montreal. After the installation was complete the members and visitors adjourned to the upper hall where an impressive supper was put on by the Worthy High Priestess' special convenors.

Sugar Lump Loaf (YEAST)

by Mary Moore

Question—I have clipped all of your gluten-free recipes and they are wonderful for my little daughter who cannot have wheat products. Have you any more. If so I would be grateful.—H. P.

Answer—I will give you a new gluten-free plain cookie with variations, and a raisin cookie. I hope your daughter enjoys them.

GLUTEN-FREE PLAIN COOKIES

2 cups lightly packed pro-cooked rice cereal (infant), ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 large egg, slightly beaten, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 2 tablespoons soft shortening or butter, 1 tablespoon water.

FRIDAY
Dinner Menu
Broaded Smelts; Lemon Butter; Duchess Potatoes; Broccoli au Gratin; Celery and Radishes; Citrus Fruit Cup; Sugar Lump Loaf (see Thursday); Coffee.

Mix ingredients in order given and cream well. Mix flour and cut on sheet of heavy wax paper and press, flattened round. Place another sheet of wax paper over it. Fat or roll out between wax paper into a ⅛" thick sheet. Take off top sheet of wax paper and cut dough into sixteen 1¾" squares. Lift to ungreased baking sheet, placing them 1" apart. Bake in centre of oven at 350° Fahr. for 13 minutes. Variations: 1) If desired before baking sprinkle tops with chocolate and top colored sugar or other cookie "sprinkles." 2) If tolerated by allergic patient, press a whole pecan or walnut in centre of each cookie before baking. 3) After baking put the cookies together with Date Filling: One cup chopped dates, 4 teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup water. 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Cook together stirring, until blended and thickened. Cool before spreading between pair of cookies. Or make thinner (and more) cookies than above and put together in pairs with Lemon Frosting: One cup sifted icing sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Mix well.

4) If soy flour is tolerated by allergic patient, Infantsoy cereal may be substituted for the infant rice cereal.

RAISIN COOKIES
(Gluten-free)

2 tablespoons soft shortening or butter, 1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed, 2 cups precooked rice cereal (infant), lightly packed, 1 tablespoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, slightly beaten, ¼ cup water, ½ cup raisins.

Combine shortening, sugar, cereal, baking powder, salt, egg, and water and beat well. Stir in raisins. Drop by teaspoonfuls 2" apart on greased baking sheets. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes 3 dozen cookies. Note: As in above plain cookies, infantso cereal may be substituted for the rice cereal, if tolerated.

Build This Plywood Sawhorse To Simplify Carpentry

Any job from hanging a cupboard door to building a new machine shed is made easier with the right tools.

One tool you'll need is a sawhorse and the one shown here will prove just how useful a really good sawhorse can be. It contributes the convenience that cuts carpentry jobs down to size.

This fir plywood model is completely demountable for compact storage and you don't need any tools to take it apart or set it up.

Its top forms a wide working surface which, for cutting even fairly good sized material, eliminates the need for two horses — although two will be necessary on big jobs.

It solves The Case of the Missing Screwdriver. Holes and slots to hold screwdrivers, hammers, chisel and saws — almost any hand tool — place tools "at the ready" with no searching for each piece. The large holes hold paper cups for nails and screws etc.

The stiffness of broad fir plywood surfaces makes this sawhorse a really solid working surface. Strong as a horse and its wide-spread legs won't let it topple over under normal use. Plywood's cross-laminated construction prevents splitting and enables you to cut notches close to the panel edge with no strength loss.

Construction is as easy as it is inexpensive. Simply cut out the pieces as shown in the drawing and fit them together like a 3-D jigsaw puzzle. The wedge-shaped pegs are the keys that hold it together positively and solidly.

Full Use of Space Helps Home Grow

The familiar cry "if we only had more room" is becoming louder and louder these days.

Unfortunately, houses don't grow, and with increasing demands on living space and a corresponding increase in building costs, many a homeowner feels he is in the middle of a squeeze play.

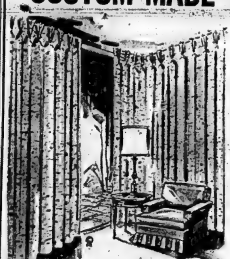
But if families would take a look down the basement steps, up into the attic, at their garage or perhaps the little used porch, they might see that the problem of too-crowded quarters could be solved with imaginative remodeling to transform the wasted area into useful living space.

TO SERVE MANY FUNCTIONS

The need may be for a study, an extra bedroom, or perhaps a general recreation area that can serve many family functions yet accommodate a crowd for a Sunday night supper.

Whatever the room's location or primary function, it will give years of practical and handsome service when lumber and lumber paneling are used for walls, ceilings and built-ins.

Lumber from the Western pine region has individuality in the range of color and knot formation. Further variation can be achieved through use of clear finishes, wood-tone stains or the new pigmented stains that can make paneling any color you desire without hiding the natural characteristics of the wood.



BUILT - INS GIVE STORAGE SPACE

Where to put a family room in a new house is a simple matter, but in an older house space may be a problem. If the attic or basement-have been reclaimed for other purposes, perhaps a guest room, dining room or den can be converted, and functional these rooms currently serve can be incorporated into the new family room.

After location has been decided, decor should be considered. If the walls are paneled, for example, use matching wood for built-in units almost a necessity if a multi-purpose room. Such built-ins might house radio and phonograph equipment, movie projector and screen, games and seasonal sports equipment that was stored in the old basement or attic. Consider adding a sofa-bed to accommodate extra house guests.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You look lovely . . . now let's get going before we're late."

This might be a built-in bed that matches the panelling. To avoid wasted space, the area under the bed can become a drawer to hold bedding.

Or long, low benches or banquettes along the walls covered with slabs of foam rubber can serve as seats during the daytime, and be made into beds at night.

All furniture should be comfortable, informal and sturdy with gully covered easy care surfaces. And even if there is another TV set in the house, if there is one in the family room, two viewing areas are available, thus avoiding arguments as to which shows to watch.

If the family needs a big room for entertaining, but has no basement or attic to be transformed into an extra room, consider utilizing your garage. The garage can be made attractive and additionally useful if solid wood is used for the walls and ceiling and built-ins for storage. Then all you have to do is put the car in the driveway when it's time for the party to start.

Paint the garage floor with a special cement paint and buy a drip pan to go under the car to protect the floor from oil and grease stains. To disguise the cement look, choose a shade of paint that matches or complements your paneling.

Consider the aesthetic as well as the practical problems if the remodeling involves enclosing a porch or a breezeway. Be sure that the addition looks as well from the outside as it works on the inside.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

It is possible to transfer real estate to future heirs and still collect income from it. In some cases, such an arrangement may mean a tax saving.

The idea of saving taxes is attractive to most persons, which may cause them to lose sight of other considerations when faced with a decision like that of Mr. W. H. R.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am 60 and recently suffered a heart attack. Although fully recovered, and, according to the doctor, likely good for a lot more years, it did make me do a lot of thinking. I have decided to retire and enjoy myself on the income from several good pieces of real estate I have acquired.

Thinking not only of my future but that of my children (grown now and with families of their own) I have considered transferring my property to them, retaining the right to the income. Would a complete transfer, with a life estate in interest, make it simpler with less legal fees, taxes, etc., than a joint deed arrangement?

Answer: The question is not so much how as whether to do it.

The advantages of tax savings at the time of your death are far outweighed by the concerns that often develop when one's relationship with his children changes from loving parent to a partner in a complex business arrangement.

In making such a transfer, you lose control of your real estate — but your children will not have complete control either. If the market (and values) change, if management of property is poor, if any of the hundreds of things occur in which opinions can differ, the possible friction between you and your children can greatly harm all the warmth and love you now so obviously share.

The reason I recommend so strongly against such transfer is that in my years as a real estate counselor it has been my experience that more often than not the good intentions of the parents result only in a hostile business relationship between them and their children.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: After a few years I got bored with being just a housewife and have taken up selling real estate as a sideline.

I haven't been doing too well though, which surprises me because I used to be a very successful saleslady before I was married. Do you think that because I haven't a regular license people don't trust me sufficiently?

Answer: You're luckier than you think if your activities have not gotten you in trouble by now. Every State of the U. S. now requires licensing of those in real estate salesmen, and in all states but one an examination is required before a license is granted.

Your question reminds me of another salesman without licence who was called before the Real Estate Commission and asked, "Didn't you know you can't sell real estate without a license?" With a sigh of relief, he replied, "I know I couldn't seem to, and am glad I failed to find out why — I was beginning to think I was just a lousy salesman."

Let me warn you, however, that training and education are required for a successful real estate salesman (as well as a licence). I advise you to associate yourself with a good broker and supplement this experience by taking real estate courses at a qualified school in your area.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We bought a house five years ago, and have a mortgage of $4,000 that comes due next month. The man who holds the mortgage said it to someone else for only $3,000.

The man who has it now won't renew it and says if we don't pay him the $4,000 he will foreclose. Since he only paid $3,000 isn't that all the mortgage is worth? Is it legal for him to up the price $1,000 that way?

Answer: I'm afraid I can't offer much encouragement. The face value of the mortgage — not the amount of money you borrowed — was $4,000. The fact that the original owner chose to sell it for only $3,000 does not affect the nature of your obligation to repay the amount you agreed to for the mortgage, and the current holder of the mortgage has the right to foreclose if you fail to do so.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Please hurry and answer this letter, as I don't know how long I can keep my husband calmed down. We have a new house problems that are driving us out of our minds.

As with many new houses, our foundation walls developed cracks — we patched them; our windows stuck, we waxed them; our doors stuck, we planed them down. But it has been happening again and again — patch, wax, plane, patch, wax.

My husband is ready to sharpen his ax, but I thought we should use a pen first and ask your advice. Is there some simple solution? — J. R. R.

Answer: From your description I suspect you have a very serious problem. Your major concern is not stuck doors and windows — they are just the symptoms. The real problem is settlement of the house. Your doors and windows continue to stick because their frames are being forced out of square.

I recommend that you engage an architect or engineer immediately for a thorough examination and report on the severity of the problem. If their report indicates (which I feel may be true in this case) you may require the services of an attorney to seek recourse against the builder.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

They'll Do It Every Time

Remodel to Boost Both Space, Values

In both older and newer homes, the sounds of hammer and saw, sander and spray gun, and a myriad busy tools will soon be responding to the call to "Home Improvement Time." Not only thriving but growing stronger than ever, interest in improving existing homes, is literally sweeping the country, as home owners go forward with plans designed to increase living space, enhance comfort and add importantly to property values.

"Home improvement" can mean many things, but signs indicate that, first of all, it means adding a room. Among 1500 home owners surveyed by the National Home Improvement Council, 76 percent were planning a specific remodeling job, and of those, 56 percent intended to add space to existing homes — especially, bathrooms, bedrooms and family rooms.

REMODELERS LOOK INSIDE HOME FIRST

Using the results of this survey as a yardstick, it appears that people look inside first when they plan to remodel. Among the homeowners queried 76 percent of those with projected remodeling jobs were concentrating on home interiors — particularly, kitchen and bathroom remodeling and basement refinishing.

However, that doesn't mean that there isn't plenty going on outside the house, what with roofing, siding, guttering, painting, installing patios and swimming pools, landscaping. Indoors, too, the bath and bedrooms, kitchens, family rooms and basement are by no means the only areas to get attention. So great is the present interest that it covers every improvement imaginable, with an estimated ten million home owners spending a predicted 13 billion dollars to complete major home improvement projects this year, according to Harold Mattlin, Chairman of the Council.

One especially significant fact emerges from the Council's survey. The home owners queried had a clear and definite idea of what they hoped to achieve through remodeling projects.

If you are planning to increase value by any home improvement project, the smartest move to make first is to decide, just as clearly and definitely, the exact result you want.

Learn all you can, by shopping and asking questions about new projects and ideas. Familiarize yourself with local building codes and how they might affect your plans.

When you have determined just how much you want to spend for just what improvements, consult local dealers and contractors for estimates. Since increasing the re-sale value of your home should be an important consideration in any improvement project, make sure the money you spend will get results that can enhance property value at least an equal amount. This means careful planning of changes and additions.

Although room additions stand high in popularity, it's worthwhile to check first to see that all existing space in your home is being used to best advantage.

Adjusting a house to a family's needs can often be accomplished through simple remodeling, points out Harold Edelman, American Institute of Architects member, who heads one of the organizations House Consulting Committees. A well-placed closet, an additional door or archway, a fover or a patio entrance all have a bearing on the space design of a home.

These additions, and many others that suggest themselves when the space plan for a home is studied, can mean the difference between an inconvenient, awkward area and a comfortable home.

MORE WAYS THAN ONE

There are more ways than one to add a room. Finishing attic, basement or porch does it the least costly way. You can convert an attached garage into a room, and add a carport to the home.

If, after considering problems and solutions, you decide that building on a room or rooms is the best answer, your costs will be higher than for remodeling, but you gain space two ways — not only extra space added but, with cramped conditions removed, better use of existing space, too.

Room additions often make it possible to rearrange the traffic plan of a house.

Outlet Park Being Prepared For Opening About May 15

PICTON (Staff) — Although "Old Man Winter" will not let go, spring and summer are not too far away, and the Outlet Park will soon be teaming with people out having fun.

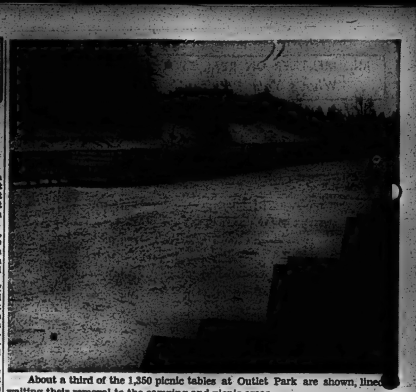
Before the crowds get there, however, a lot of things have to be done by Bob Davidson and his crew. Mr. Davidson is in charge of the Provincial Outlet Park.

All winter a skeleton staff have repaired and varnished the 1,250 picnic tables that must be placed throughout the park. The four flush toilets must be given a spring check-up, and the 50 earth pits (out-door toilets) must be scrubbed clean and checked.

The 20 parking lots must be cleaned up, as well as the 12 change houses. The 700-800 garbage tins must be set out. The fireplaces must be clean-ed up and made ready.

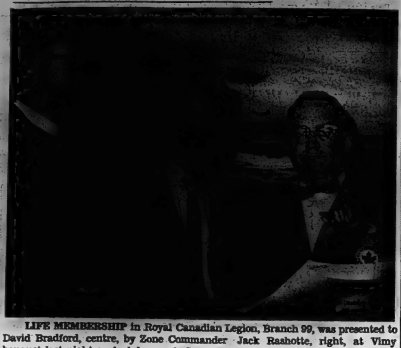
Fallen and dead trees are hauled away to be cut up in-to firewood to stock the three free woodpiles. In this con-nection, Mr. Davidson told The Gazette reporter on Thurs-day that they used to cut the wood to store length, and found that a lot of motorists were taking home a trunkful. "Now we just haul the trees in there and we call 'pole lengths' and supply a buck saw. We find that once a man has been on the bushwhacker end of that saw for time enough to cut his own requirements for his camp, he is quite willing to set the saw down, he added.

OPENS MAY 15



The park will be open officially about the 15th of May, but next week, or sooner, if the weather warms up, Mr. Davidson and his men will be out working getting everything in shape for the summer months.

The park can hold about 1,000 cars, and about 4,000 people. Some days during the summer, some campers have to be turned away, "but we always can find a spot for the bather or daytime picnicker to enjoy the beach," Mr. Davidson added.



Camping fees of $1.00 per site (one family to a site) and the admission to the park is unchanged from last year. The charge for admittance is 50c per car, or $3.00 for an annual pass. Mr. Davidson pointed out that this $3 permit allows your car to enter any other Provincial Park, and is also honored at the Ont. Jockey Club Seaway Parks. The maximum stay for campers is still 28 days, unchanged from last year.

The low water level of Lake Ontario is having some bene-fit at least in the park. "If the water stays at this level, we will have at least fifty yards more beach space," the officer pointed out.

One rule the parents must remember when they are at the beach. Water wings, inner tubes and air mattresses are al-lowed on the beach, but are prohibited in the water. The slightest breeze or change in the wind direction, can carry your child into deep water and trouble.

About a third of the 1,350 picnic tables at Outlet Park are shown, lined waiting their removal to the camping and picnic areas.

Labor Urges Minimum Wage Of $1.50 Hour

TORONTO (CP) — A mini-mum wage of $1.50 an hour throughout Ontario was urged Thursday by the Ontario Federation of Labor.

In a submission to the pro-vincial government, the federa-tion said changes in the Mini-mum Wage Act already made by the government were steps in the right direction.

Yet it was surprised that the government was contemplating a minimum wage of less than $1 an hour for parts of the prov-ince outside of the industrial-ized area.

The Oshawa - Toronto - Ham-ilton area now is governed by a minimum wage of $1 an hour, or $1.25 an hour for construction workers.

The 400,000-member OFL said it had hoped that the basic min-imum wage would be made ap-plicable throughout the whole of the province. It considered this to be a "reasonable request."

"When you consider that ag-ricultural laborers in this prov-ince, according to DBS (domin-ion bureau of statistics) figures, receive an average of $1.12 an hour, it is difficult for us to understand why the govern-ment should consider it neces-sary to establish a provincial minimum below that which we already consider adequate," the body said.

The federation also made rep-resentations to the cabinet con-cerning medical care, pension plans and public housing.

Three Escapees Given Year In Penitentiary

SUDBURY (CP)—Three men who escaped from Burwash in-dustrial farm Monday were sen-tenced Thursday to additional terms of one year in Kingston penitentiary.

Two others who escaped at the same time are still at large.

The men were captured Tuesday. They are Howard Dean, 29, of Sackville, serving 22 months for possession of stolen goods and false pre-tences; Basil Wilde, 30, of Toronto, serving three years for breaking and entering and attempted theft; and David Wyse, 23, of Toronto, serving 20 months for theft, uttering a forged document and possession of stolen goods.

The five escaped from a prison bus which had been forced to stop by a passing CNR freight train.

Will

be a closer ratio of contribu-tions and benefits than in the federal plan.

In practice, he added, this would probably mean a maturity period of up to 20 years in-stead of 10.

The premier said the govern-ment had considered and re-jected a proposal to give per-sons the right to opt out of a provincial public plan in favor of a private one. While it was actually possible to equate a public plan with private and other government plans "I'm not the least bit interested in pleasing the insurance compan-ies."

Branch 99, Canadian Legion Holds Vimy Ridge Banquet

Monday, April 9, 1917—a date hundreds of Canadians will never forget . . . .

For it was on this date, dur-ing the morning hours, that brave Canadian soldiers made one of the greatest feats in history—when they, led by General Douglas Haig, captur-ed the famous Vimy Ridge.

The Canadian soldiers were given one of the hardest posi-tions of the front and captur-ed 9,000 men and 40 guns.

Following this great news, King George V, in a message sent to General Haig said, "Canada will be proud that the capture of the coveted Vimy Ridge has fallen to the lot of her troops." The message, continued, "the whole empire will rejoice."

Each year, Royal Canadian Legion members celebrate this memorable day with a "Vimy" banquet and last night nearly 75 members of the local Leg-ion, Branch 99, gathered at the newly-constructed Legion hall for this occasion.

During the course of the ev-ening's program, First and Second World War veterans stood in silence, with heads bowed, in memory of those who so bravely sacrificed their lives for-their country, as trum-peter Armand Duffy sounded the "Last Post."

In a brief ceremony conduct-ed by Padre Bram Humphreys, the padre said, "the men of Vimy never die—they never fade away."

In his address to the mem-bers, Archdeacon A. S. Mc-Connell, M.B.E., of St. Thom-as' Anglican Church, guest speaker recalled many memo-ries of the Vimy Ridge vic-tory.

He also spoke of the memo-rial constructed on Vimy Ridge in memory of our "fall-en dead."

SACRED GROUND

Padre McConnell said the land on which the memorial was built on very "sacred and holy" land and added that wo-men in the Canadian Legion not allowed on the steps of the monument nor were children allowed to play near it or fam-ilies permitted to have picnics on the grounds.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. D. McVicker, president of the Deseronto Branch, and thanked on behalf of the mem-bers by E. Liddle.

A life membership was pre-sented to David Bradford by Zone Commander J. Rashotte.

Following the opening cere-monies conducted by chairman Frank Grandame, words of welcome were extended to the World War I veterans, by Col. Angus B. Duffy, which was followed by a toast to the Vimy veterans. Past president R. Madden responded to the toast.

A vote of thanks was ex-tended to the Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 99, by E. Smith.

This concluded an enjoyable evening of warm friendship and renewed acquaintances, which was joined in a singsong of World War I tunes.

do this. You dare not do this. . . .

"These poor people on the shores of the Arctic are being told the constitution belongs to them, not to them."

ACCUSES DIEF

Not long afterwards, Lloyd Francis (L—Carleton) jumped to his feet and announced that Mr. Diefenbaker's speech was "sanctimonious hypocrisy."

Voices became louder from then on, and questions more fre-quent.

Mr. Nielsen wanted a flat statement on whether any agreement existed between the two governments, apart from a memorandum tabled in the Commons March 4. Mr. Laing said he could categoric...ly deny that any such agreements ex-isted, and later Mr. Favreau said that negotiations had not gone beyond the memorandum.

The justice minister sug-gested the entire matter was being misunderstood.

There will be no breach of the constitution, he said. Ultimate jurisdiction over the Eskimos would remain with the federal government, and only the ad-ministration would be trans-ferred to the province.

The federal government now has a genial looking after the Es-kimos in the north. What was wrong with having the provin-cial government as an agent?

"The House may be assured that the fundamental and basic rights of Eskimos will be up-held," he said.

gration of licensed personnel in the SIU," said Mr. MacEachen. "They would favor the inte-gration of engineers with other ships' officers if the engineers and other officers so desire.

FOR INTEGRATION

The minister made it clear the trustees do not intend to impose union integration on m...rine workers. Indications are the trustees may hold referen-dums of the various groups of workers to weigh their feelings.

Mr. MacEachen also an-nounced that the trustees are not willing to appear before the Commons industrial relations committee "at this time."

He said the trustees feel a meeting right now would "pre-judice their efforts" to restore labor democracy to the SIU and promote union stability in the shipping industry.

"This is particularly so since much of the information in their possession is felt by the trus-tees to be the property of the u...ions they represent," he added.

He said he supported the trus-tees in declining to appear be-fore a Commons committee.

NO EVIDENCE FOUND

Mr. MacEachen said there was no evidence of a continu-ing "do-nothing" policy in the SIU when the trustees took office last year. Such a list, it had been alleged, was maintained by the SIU leaders to blacklist members from getting jobs.

But Mr. MacEachen said a trusteeship staff member is at-tempting to locate members formerly on such a list and steps will be taken to see that the p r a c t i c e doesn't occur again.

Opposition L e a d e r Diefen-baker said that in Montreal Wednesday, he was told there are seamen still being denied work because of the SIU black-list.

"This simply means a contin-uance of a major wrong that created the intolerable situa-tion," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if Leonard McLaughlin continues to the presidency of the SIU, "all the evils of Banks' regime will continue." Mr. MacEachen said the new president of the union would be "under close supervision" of the trustees.

Mr. McLaughlin, SIU vice-pres-ident, has been named as po-tential successor to deposed Hal C. Banks.

Another worry for Ottawa is the shape Quebec's own pension plan will take. An important Parizeau adviser, Yves Kent, spent Thursday in Quebec and spoke with Claude Morin, dep-uty minister for federal-provin-cial relations.

Mr. Lesage disclosed some details of the pension plans con-fidentially to conference dele-gates last week, but Mr. Kent apparently got more.

Observers suspect the Ottawa-Quebec crisis within Liberal ranks will really break when Mr. Lesage, also Quebec fi-nance minister, delivers his budget speech, probably in the last week of April.

Rocket Richard To Be Guest Of the Guards

PICTON (Staff) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard of NHL fame will be a guest of Lieut. Col. William Mutherin and the offi-cers and men of the First Bat-talion Canadian Guards on Fri-day, April 17.

On this date, the track and field meet will take place starting at 8 p.m. with the presentation of prizes scheduled for 4.30 p.m. It is hoped that Mr. Richard will arrive in time to present the major trophy to the winning com-pany.

The sportsmen's night will consist of a dinner at Camp Picton for all Battalion ath-letes, at which time it is ex-pected that between 175 and 200 will be present. Mr. Richard will give a short ad-dress at the dinner.

To Hear Talk On Quebec

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Kins-men and the Business and Pro-fessional Women's Club will attend a dinner meeting on Monday night at the O.E.S. Hall, Talbot Street.

Mr. Ivan Sabourin, Q.C., from the Province of Quebec will give a talk entitled "An Intelli-gent Look at the Quebec Situa-tion." The speaker is a close friend of Lewis Duncan, vice-president of the Proctor Silex Co., Picton.

Following his speech, Mr. Sabourin and Mr. Duncan to-gether with Lt.-Col. H. Mulherin will form a panel to answer questions on the Quebec situation. Panel moderator will be Kiwanian Jack Ward.

The Winners of the Record Draw at the recent HARMONY NIGHT were MR. S. ALEC GORDON, 30 BUNTON ST., BELLEVILLE, and MR. ALEC BURNS, 873 ALAMBROOKE ST., LONDON

LANCASTER BOMBER RETIRES FROM RCAF

The Lancaster bomber was officially retired from active duty with the RCAF at a brief ceremony at RCAF Station Downsview (near Toronto) Ontario yesterday. Log books of the last RCAF Lancasters were handed over to Air Vice Marshal C. L. Annis, Vice Chief of the Air Staff, during the half hour parade.

POP FLOPS as 19-year-old, 110-pound Judy Oliver of Belleville throws her father, 212-pound Provincial Police Constable Gordon Oliver, to the floor during the first session of the Y.M.C.A.'s self defence course for women. Nine women turned out for the first night of the six-week course, for training under Const. Oliver and Mrs. Gladys Smith, both of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Judo Club and of the Kodokan Black Belt Association. Const. Oliver wears a black belt, judo's highest honor, and Mrs. Smith wears a brown belt, indicating the second highest level of proficiency. The women's self defence course specializes in self defence, an art distinct from judo.

Lancasters, Workhorses Of the RCAF in 2 Decades Of War, Consigned to History

Lloyd McDonald, chief of CF's Ontario service, had a personal interest in Thursday's flypast of the Lancaster bomber. As FH-LL Mc-Donald he was a navigator on 36 missions over Western Europe during the Second World War and during his tour of operations was attacked the Distinguished Flying Cross.

By LLOYD McDONALD

TORONTO (CP)—The last of the Lancasters roared low over the parade ground, and the workhorse of the RCAF in two decades of war and peace was formally consigned to history.

Final flypast by the post-war version of the bomber that spearheaded the RAF-RCAF offensive on Germany was the climax of the ceremony of retirement held Thursday at RCAF Station Downsview, in northwest Metropolitan Toronto less than 10 miles from the runways of Malton Airport, where the first Canadian - built wartime Lancaster took off 20 years ago.

Over at Malton the DC-8S and 707S of the newest jet age took off and landed as the RCAF, through Air Vice-Marshal Clarence Annis, vice-chief of air staff, Ottawa, paid its final tribute. The four-engined Lancaster, in its day with its all-up loaded weight of 67,000 pounds, would have been dwarfed by the new jets.

But at Downsview the mood was mostly nostalgic, and few paid attention to the newest aircraft as the Lancs held their last show.

Three of the last four Lancasters to remain in service were parked around the reviewing stand, while the fourth circled the field at about 2,000 feet. As a guard of honor presented arms, Group Capt. Howard Morrison, a veteran of 50 Path-finder missions in Lancasters during the Second World War, strode in solemn slow march to the reviewing stand. There, he handed to the air vice-marshal the log books of the type, which flew operationally for the first time in 1942.

BOOKS ACCEPTED

Air Vice-Marshal Annis replied: "I accept these log books, and in so doing declare the Lancaster aircraft officially retired from active service in the Royal Canadian Air Force. May the memory of this magnificent airplane remain in honor and affection in the hearts of all who knew her."

The air vice-marshal was one of those. A career RCAF officer, he learned to fly in the air during the war but was posted overseas as group captain commanding the RCAF heavy bomber base at Linton - On-Ouse, Yorkshire, England. Regulations were that group captains could not fly on operational trips, but it was common knowledge that the stationmaster would take a co-pilot's seat on occasion.

In any event, there were few operational takeoffs from Linton in the Yorkshire dusk, and few landings in the black of night, when the group captain was not on hand to wave farewell or welcome back his crews.

And on Thursday, in bright spring afternoon sunlight, he stood at the dais at the head of a long, proud line of aircraft made its final flight.

THE TALKED OF PLANE

Later, RCAF and civilian visitors who had known the Lancaster in its days of glory, talked of the plane and the men they associated with it.

Wing Commander Fauquier, king of the Canadian Pathfinders, who personally supervised the attack on the German experimental base at Peenemunde in August, 1943, later credited with setting back Germany's rocket program until it was too late. . . . Al Avant, a quiet-spoken youth from Saskatchewan whose two tours of operations and sense of responsibility won him a group captaincy and command of a heavy bomber station at the ripe age of 21. . . . Andy Mynarski, a gunner who suffered fatal burns in the flame-ravaged rear fuselage of a Lancaster over Cambral, France, trying to rescue his mate in the rear turret. He won the only Victoria Cross of the Canadian bomber group.

And the others, many with well-earned Distinguished Service Orders and Distinguished Flying Crosses, and those who in Air Vice - Marshal Annis's words went down with their aircraft but will always remain in the memories of those who knew them.

LAST BUILT

The last Canadian-built Lancaster to operate in the Second World War landed at its Yorkshire base at 2:36 p.m. GMT April 23, 1945. More than 400 others had been built at the Victory Aircraft Plant at Malton between 1942 and the end of the war. But unlike many other wartime aircraft, the Lancaster was then only at the start of its career.

After 1945 it took part in air-transport operations over the Greenwood, N.S., in the monumental job of photographing Canada's northern areas. In transport and communications work. Its egg-shaped twin tail fins and its oddly non-retractable tail wheel were familiar sights for many years.

The last four retained most of the familiar silhouette, although the modifications from the wartime versions were in hundreds. Gone were the bulging gun turrets, but the awesome bomb doors still remained in two of the last survivors. (The Lancaster carried more bombs than any other military aircraft before the advent of the United States B-29 Superfortress, used only in the Pacific in the later stages of the war.)

CREST UP FRONT

The last airborne Lanc carried the prosaic number 836, instead of the wartime alphabetical system of two squadron letters and one aircraft letter-Q-Queenie or whatever.

But up front was the blue goose crest of 408 Squadron—first flown out of Air Vice-Marshal Annis's old wartime station.

The flypast went off with split - second precision. The honor guard presented arms, the band struck up Auld Lang Syne and the opening notes were drowned in the roar of the four Merlin engines.

And if some in the crowd wiped at their eyes, it might have been because of the brisk spring wind.

Words Impugning Member's Honor Strictly Banned

LONDON (Reuters) — Bastard, as an epithet, has been ruled permissible parliamentary language by the speaker of the House of Commons, Sir Harry Hylton-Foster.

Many words reflecting on a member's honor, such as liar, are strictly banned.

Sir Winston Churchill was once pulled up for using the word "he." He substituted "terminological inexactitude."

The tenseness of questionTime was broken Thursday when Sir Charles Taylor, a Conservative party member, complained he distinctly heard A. F. Holt, a Liberal, shout "bastard" at Paul Williams, another Conservative.

Taylor asked the Speaker if that word met with his approval.

The Speaker replied he had great difficulty in landing this epithet in any particular direction and added amid roars of laughter: "There are parts of the country in which it is used as a term of endearment."

OTTAWA (CP)—Commons Speakers through the years have set firm limits on the kind of language MPs may use in the cloistered House of Commons.

But so far no Canadian Speaker has been called on to rule, as the British Speaker did Thursday, that bastard as a epithet is permissible parliamentary language.

Canadian MPs, like their British counterparts, aren't permitted to call each other liars, tyrants, dishonorable or a long list of other terms or abuse.

But the expressions which can't be used leave a lot of leeway for the presiding officer.

Ship Traffic Moving Slowly Through Ice

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Third-class ships were in the neighborhood of the locks at Sault Ste. Marie Thursday as the Great Lakes shipping season picked up steam.

Twenty-four ships which anchored in the St. Mary's River below the locks overnight were following a track through the ice cut by the icebreaker Mackinaw, which was widening channels in the ice created since the season started nine days earlier.

All traffic was reported moving slowly but steadily during the day, at about half the speed of the normal navigation season. Night-time traffic has been halted in the river because of shortage of navigation markers.

Above the locks, 12 ships were making their own way through the ice, led by the 730-foot T. R. McLagan. No serious trouble was reported, although large chunks of ice blown into the channel at one point were causing some difficulty.

Ex-Mountie Says Farris Told Him He Gave Orders To Sell Stock at Low Price

TORONTO (CP) — A retired R.-.MP sergeant testified Thursday that Ralph E. Farris, 53, resident of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, had told him he gave orders in 1957 for the disposition of blocks of company stock for a special account.

Mr. Farris is being tried before Ontario Supreme Court Justice Dalton Wells and a jury on two counts of perjury out of seven statements made before Ontario government investigations in 1958 and 1962 that he did not know the disposition of 14,000 shares of NONG stock.

Arthur R. Bates, who retired from the RCMP in February, 1963, said he visited Mr. Farris' Vancouver office in 1962 to investigate the stock activities of J. S. Smith, at that time prominent speculator in brokers for trading in Columbia.

The witness said he showed the company president a confidential Investment Corporation (Convesto) account which listed the sale of NONG shares to Smith. Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court, and G. Kelly McLean of Victoria, assistant to Farris.

Mr. Farris said he had authorized these sales, among others, at $2.50 a share, about one-quarter the going price of NONG at the time, Mr. Bates said.

WAS MAYOR

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of Sudbury when the city awarded its gas distribution franchise to NONG.

Mr. Bates testified Mr. Farris told him he had given instructions in 1957 to John McGraw, head of Convesto, to sell the former mayor 10,000 shares but had been unaware that 2,500 shares of the Landreville block were sold back into Mr. Farris' own account at $10, leaving the judge with 7,500.

The witness said Mr. Farris claimed that the sale into his account was an error and that the 2,500 shares had been "transferred out" immediately. The witness said Mr. Justice Landreville will be called as a witness next week.

Mr. Bates also told the court that Mr. McLean had said in 1962 he knew nothing of the 800 shares listed in Convesto's accounts as having been sold to him.

HE GIVEN SHARES

Two former mayors testified earlier that Mr. McLean gave them each 500 NONG shares. They said the gifts were awarded after their respective councils had given gas franchises to NONG, and no attempt had been made to influence the councils' decisions.

Wanda Miller, Mayor of Bracebridge from 1954 to 1960, said she met Mr. McLean by arrangement in Toronto and was handed an envelope containing the shares. She did not pay for them.

Mrs. Mills said she received $1,781.50 through their sale in 1960.

Glen S. Coates, former mayor of Bracebridge, said Mr. McLean, Coates said he had met previously, presented him with 150 shares in February, 1957. He disposed of them five years later for more than $3,000.

The witness said Mr. McLean told him he was being given the shares for "the trouble and inconvenience I had been put to."

Mr. Coates said he insisted to Mr. McLean that he didn't think he had done anything to warrant a reward.

Engines, Body Stampings, Transmissions May Soon Be Built in This Country

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials aren't expecting big results immediately from the 18-month-old program of export incentives for auto parts.

But the feeling here is that, in time, it could help move Canadian auto-makers into the big-league United States market for major components such as engines, body stampings and transmissions.

Some steps in this direction already appear to be shaping up, with a General Motors plan for an interior body-trim plant in Windsor, Chrysler's proposal for expanded engine production, and the report that Ford plans a major move in Canada this year.

In the view of government experts, Canadian auto - makers would have to produce some of the big-item components for the Canadian market if their products can parent firms in order to earn the full benefit of incentives in the three-year plan announced last Oct. 25 by Industry Minister Drury.

Under the program, Canadian auto companies can earn exemption from import duties on parts to the extent they increase exports of Canadian-made vehicles and parts.

GET EXEMPTIONS

For example, if exports of Canada-made parts to the U.S. Ford Company should rise by $10,000,000, Ford of Canada would be exempt from duty on $10,000,000 worth of imported parts.

The program also covers the smaller independent parts manufacturers in Canada, since a U.S. auto maker, by purchasing from them, can provide duty exemptions for its Canadian subsidiary.

The incentive is a big one. Moreover it doesn't stem solely from savings on import duty.

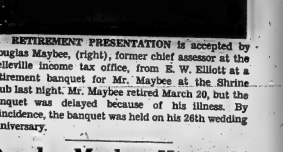
Beyond the duty saving is a large potential saving for auto-makers in the form of higher costs now paid for their own in short-run output of parts, for purchases of parts from tariff-protected suppliers, and for assembly - line inefficiencies in handling a large variety of car models.

It's estimated these costs are even higher than the import duty payments. Altogether, the extra cost including duty are around $250 for the average Canadian car.

ASSISTANCE SOUGHT

There have been pressures on the government for firm assurance that the program will run beyond its three-year term expiring Oct. 31, 1968. Karl Scott, president of Ford of Canada, said recently this is necessary if auto companies are to make the major investments necessary.

Industry Minister Drury said last October the plan would be reviewed after three years, with "future measures" to be influenced by the results achieved.



He hasn't gone beyond this, publicly, but informants describe the plan as an open-end one with the three-year period laid down only to give the government an opportunity to make necessary adjustments.

There has also been strong political criticism in the U.S. that the plan will take jobs away from American workers. Two U.S. senators have blamed the plan for Studebaker's shift to Hamilton from South Bend, Ind., and for a layoff of 700 workers making transmissions at Muncey, Ind., plant of Borg-Warner.

The Canadian reply is that Studebaker's move was dictated solely by the efficiency of its Hamilton plant, and that the Borg-Warner layoffs were due to changes in the U.S. market alone.

VOTE ON ISLANDS

RAMA, Ont. (CP)—Rama Indian reserve council will seek membership of Ojibway Indian islands in Lake Couchiching for a referendum to be held April 22. The Rama council is considering leasing the islands either for a park or for tourist development.

RETIREMENT PRESENTATION is accepted by Douglas Maybee, (right), former chief assessor at the Belleville income tax office, from E. W. Elliott at a retirement banquet for Mr. Maybee at the Shrine Club last night. Mr. Maybee retired March 20, but the banquet was delayed because of his illness. By coincidence, the banquet was held on his 26th wedding anniversary.

Douglas Maybee Honored By Staff on Retirement

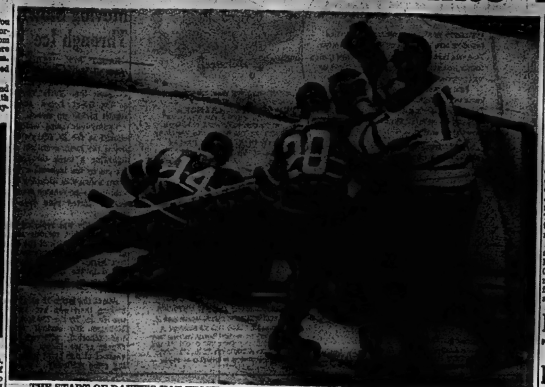
Seventy-five people turned out to a banquet at the Belleville Shrine Club last night, in honor of Chief Assessor Douglas Maybee of the income tax office in Belleville. Mr. Maybee retired March 20, after serving the department for more than thirty years.

Born in Campbellford, Mr. Maybee was educated in Campbellford and Toronto, and worked for accounting offices in Toronto and New York, and for Ontario Hydro, before he joined the Taxation Division of the Department of National Revenue, in Belleville, during 1933. He started on corporation auditing and on April 1 of 1947, he was appointed Chief Assessor.

Married, since 1938, to the former Mabel Moore of Belleville, he is the father of one son, now living in Kingston. The couple have one grandchild.

Head table guests at the banquet included Frank Lancaster, of Belleville, national president of the Income Tax Employees' Association, and W. A. Thibierge of Ottawa, national secretary of the Association. A "Thirty-Year Scroll," for service to the department, was presented by D. J. Gill, director of the Belleville office and a gift from the local staff association was presented by E. W. Elliott, president of the local association.

'Little Guy' Scores Three ★ ★ ★ ★ ★



Keon, Bower Put Leafs Into Finals

By BILL MacDOUGALL

MONTREAL (CP) — You needed a periscope in the Toronto Maple Leaf dressing room to see the little guy, there were that many people around him.

It was almost as crowded around the old guy too.

And when the reporters and photographers got through with them, there weren't any players waiting to say thanks.

THE START OF DAVEY'S HAT TRICK — The upraised stick of Don McKenny (17) signals the first of the three goals scored by Toronto Maple Leaf centre Davey Keon (not shown) as Toronto beat Montreal Canadiens 3-1 in the seventh and deciding game of their National Hockey League semi-final series. Crowding the ice in front of Montreal goalie Charlie Hodge are Canadiens Claude Provost (14), Dave Balon (20) and Jacques Laperierre. The victory gave Toronto a berth in the Stanley Cup finals. (CP Photo)

DAVE KEON

The little guy was Dave Keon, who finally got enough time off from penalty-killing duty to do some offensive work. The old guy was Johnny Bower, who would probably rather have Leafs a man short 100 times than go through another third period like Thursday night.

The two of them got together to beat Montreal Canadiens 3-1 and put Toronto in the Stanley Cup finals, hockey's annual event that means prestige and not a little bit of cash for the players involved.

"They came in handy," said Keon of his long goal, in a gem of an understatement. He was the Leafs' sole scorer as Leafs ended the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final four games to three.

WILL GET $1,500

And Bower, when he's not busy counting the extra $1,500 that goes to each player on the winning semi-final team and dreaming of the $2,000 he can get if the Leafs win the final against Detroit Red Wings which starts in Toronto Saturday, will probably be having nightmares about Canadiens' fierce, last-ditch fight.

The Leafs, Stanley Cup champions for the last two years, started Thursday night's game as if they were going to skate Canadiens out of the Forum. That's how it was for two periods in which, thanks to Montreal goaltender Charlie Hodge, Toronto scored only two goals.

From the start of the third period, the Canadiens put on an amazing display of skating and checking that had the Leafs, normally the tightest defensive club in the league, in a tizzy.

That's where Bower came in. Somehow he managed to keep his sanity as the puck skittered across his goalmouth, rifled into his pads and boomed towards corners he blocked with an agility that belied his age.

SCORES FOR HABS

Only one man, supposedly one of the walking wounded, was able to beat him—and that was only after several frustrated attempts. Ralph Backstrom, who suffered a double charleyhorse in the series sixth game and, some said, was a doubtful starter for Thursday night, found an open corner in the first half of the third period.

To many of the 14,541 fans it seemed like only a matter of time until Canadiens penetrated Bower's armor. No so. And when Canadiens in a last desperate effort pulled Hodge for a sixth attacker with about half a minute to go, Keon tucked the puck into the empty net.

"I'm happy I got three," said Keon, a 24-year-old native of Noranda, Que., who sadly rattled off in French for reporters of that language. It was the first time in his four-year NHL career he had scored that many in a game.

Toronto coach Punch Imlach described Bower as "the big guy in there," but saved some accolades for the elderly goaltender's Montreal counterpart.

"Don't take anything away from that little son-of-a-gun Hodge. He was great. He was terrific."

BUSY THIRD PERIOD

Bower, officially listed at 39 years of age but rumored to have already taken a chunk out of his 40s, made 17 of his 28 saves in the third period. Hodge—at 30 not a youngster but a stranger to Stanley Cup playoff action after several years lost in the minors, made 23 stops, 11 in the first period and 12 in the second.

It was the fourth straight season the Canadiens have been beaten in the semi-finals. Last year it was the Leafs who pulled the trick in five games, going on to win the final against Detroit in five games.

The second game of this year's final against the Wings will be played in Toronto Tuesday and then the clubs move to the Motor City for the third and fourth games.

Keon, who in the series' previous games had been too busy killing off the record number of penalties to worry much about scoring, had only one assist before Thursday night.

"Our line was working well, and I knew that sooner or later I would have to get the goals," the five-foot-nine centre said.

"All of the goals were clean. On that first one, the puck may have hit (Claude) Provost's leg. I don't know. But I was right in the slot when the puck came to me from (Don) McKenney."

That goal was at 8:22 of the first period. Defenceman Bob Baun started the play with a shot from the blue line. McKenney tried in vain to whack it in before Keon finally succeeded in pushing it through a goal-mouth scramble.

The Leaf centre scored his second goal at 11:15 in what might be described as the crowning insult to the Montreal power play, which Toronto tied up most effectively for the first two periods.

Andy Bathgate was in the penalty box for hooking Jean-Guy Talbot. Right winger George Armstrong passed to Keon at centre ice and Keon skated to within about 25 feet of the Montreal goal before beating Hodge with a rising shot to the upper corner. And if he hadn't scored, Talbot probably would have joined Bathgate in the penalty box. The Montreal defenceman held and hooked the Leaf in a vain attempt to stop him.

Backstrom scored his goal at 7:27 of the third period from the edge of the crease. Keon's third goal came at 19:49, a few seconds after Red Kelly had worked his way up the boards and missed the empty net.

The game was the clincher of the series, in which both clubs rewrote most of the playoff penalty records. Referee John Ashley called only eight minor infractions, split evenly. They brought the combined total for the series to 128, or 322 minutes.

The Leaf victory snapped a string of alternate victories. Montreal won the first game 3-0, Toronto the second 3-1, Montreal the third 3-2, Toronto the fourth 5-3, Montreal the fifth 4-3 and Toronto the sixth 3-0.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Blood-crazed athletes pounding each other in the ring or on ice certainly indicates something from blows in boxing and heavy body contact in football all duly recorded and reported on the national living room private eye lenses poked at shows of public criticism against "mayhem violence."

Shucks, if the he-men of the ancient Greeks, Romans, and others not so far back as their eras—were around today they'd call us a bunch of sissies.

Pugilism was created back in 1720 B.C., but it took Theseus, a Greek monarch, and son of Aegis, to add the real color. Theseus liked his blood and violence daily, like we take to breakfast cereal.

He made his own rules. Warriors met on flat areas facing each other . . . mean touching. Their fists were encased in leather thongs. On a signal they started punching and they beat didn't end until one was dead.

This was too slow for Theseus. He had the thongs studded with metal which resulted in quicker finishes. In time this dragged on Theseus had metal spikes inserted in the "gloves."

The first few blows usually crushed the face of the loser. A few "cheaters" killed him.

A Greek heavyweight named Theogenes was the favorite champion of that day. Theogenes won the title from a Roman bloke and went on to kill his next 1,425 opponents by the force of his shattering blows.

In Russia many years ago a couple of vodka-soaked travelers started the sport of "stepping." Wasyl slapped Michailo's face, Michailo stepped back. And so on. Ten hours and three referees later the men, their faces bloody and torn, quits and called it a draw.

And the Welshmen of years ago were roughies, too. They had a neat little pastime called "purring." The contestants put on heavy shoes with steel-reinforced toes.

They stood facing each other, hands on opponent's shoulders. On signal they started kicking each other's shins. The fellow who got his hair first and backed away was the loser. Or, he could stand there and have his shins—reduced to ribbon powder.

Axe-wielding was another gentle sport with the old-time lumberjacks. The boys took axes—the sissies chose two-pounders, the daredevils 12-pounders—and sharpened them to the point where they shaved with them before the contest.

The idea was to raise the axe in one hand high above the head and lower it gently toward the nose. A champion could bring it to within an inch; a superman using an 11-pounder could touch his nose.

Not many could do it. The descending axe if out of control could whip off the nose like scissors cut a string. And a few spent the rest of their lives breathing through two holes in the head.

The Swiss had a parlor pastime they called "belt-wrestling." Each contestant wore a big belt with handles attached. The idea was to grab a handle, twirl your opponent around and slam him to the ground, or out the nearest window.

In the Tyrol they had another parlor game called "finger-hooking." Men stood on opposite sides of a table, hooked forward and interlaced fingers. The winner was the guy who could haul his opponent by the fingers across the table, then shake hands with him—with his own fingers.

Probably the best sport with "violence" (and they probably loved it) was that indulged in by prehistoric forebears in the time of the year when young men's fancy turned to securing kitchen help and, a skip for the neighborhood women's darling sink.

The Flintstone of that day merely grabbed his war club, cornered the long-haired damsel of his choice, bopped her on the cranium and dragged her at hair-length to his rock-lined lair.

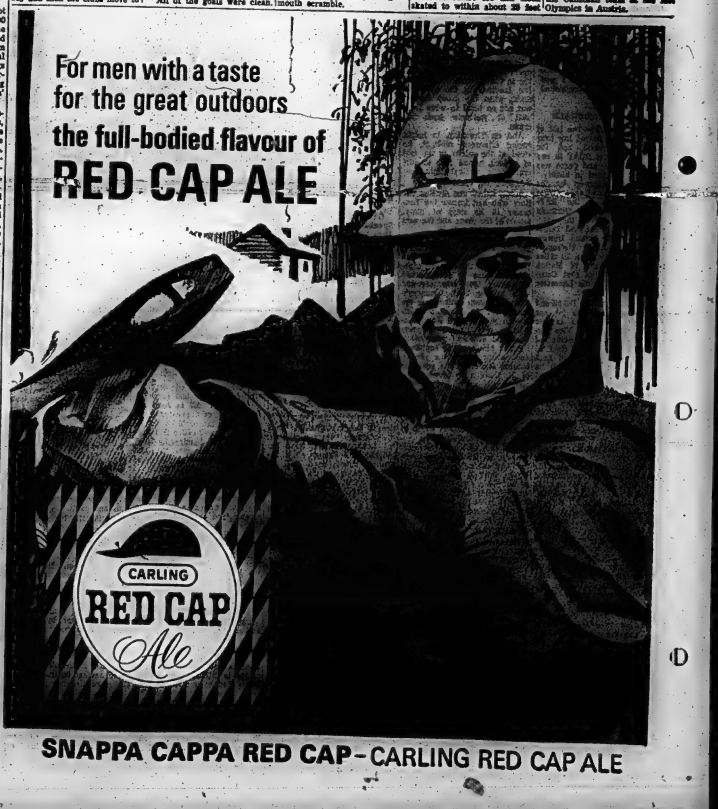
But that like other ancient sports has been replaced by modern versions. Nowadays they play it with a long convertible, large doses of "Besties" jangling, a hamburg at a drive-in and a jam session at a rock-'n-roll carnival.

Dragging her home by the hair is out because only her hairdresser knows that the night before, the brunette was a blonde. The lovelock Lake would wind up with a handful of purple with nothing attached.

Peralta Meets Pastrano

Argentine Seeks Crown

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Argentina's Gregorio Peralta hopes to make ring history tonight by dethroning light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano and becoming the first South American big man to win a world pro boxing title.



Conqueror of Pastrano in a non-title 10-round bout last Sept. 20 the 25-year-old South American heavyweight champion is confident he will be able to repeat his success in the 15-rounder at the municipal auditorium.

Although this is Pastrano's active city, the 26 - year - old champion was rated only even money in the first defence of the crown he won on a close decision over Harold Johnson at Las Vegas last June 1.

Peralta, a virtual unknown until he upset the solidly favored Pastrano at Miami Beach will match his fiery attack and left-hooking power against the speed, jab and boxing finesse of the champion.

The six-foot, wide-shouldered Argentine will have to make 175 pounds at noon weigh-in today. The big question is whether Peralta will be strong at a weight he hasn't made in more than a year.

Unbeaten in his last 29 fights, Peralta has a 39-3-4 record, including 18 knockouts. Pastrano's record is 41-12-6, including 13 knockouts.

National Team For Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—John Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister LaMarsh, lashed Thursday that Canada would enter the next Olympic Games with a nationality - recruited hockey team.

This was done at the last Olympic Games, the MP for Hamilton told the Commons that, "I do not believe there is any toleration of snapping up ringers."

Robert Simpson (PC—Churchill) had asked Mr. Munro about the hockeyists. He said he would "heartily recommend" that the program be continued. All Canadians were "exceedingly proud" of the effort put up by the Canadian team at the last Olympics in Austria.

Zooming Wings Drive Hawks To Cover

Made 'Monkeys' Of Prophets

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CHICAGO (CP) — A fine blending of seasoned old pros and a bunch of kids who can skate right up their opponents' backs, have propelled Detroit Red Wings into the Stanley Cup final. And for the third time in four years they're making monkeys of National Hockey League pundits who said they couldn't do it.

The Wings went into the best-of-seven playoff series with Toronto Maple Leafs by defeating Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 in the decisive seventh game on their best of seven semi-final Thursday night. This is old stuff to coach Sid Abel and his redskins.

They managed to latch onto fourth, the last playoff place in the NHL standings, in four of the last five seasons and went on to jam words down the throats of unbelievers who said it couldn't be done, by advancing to the final on three occasions.

They haven't won the trophy in that period but, as Abel likes to say, they'll "make it one of these times."

People should start believing him. Wings, who lost in five games to the Leafs in the skirmish for the cup last year and in six to Chicago in 1961, have the equipment to surprise a lot of folks.

SAWCHUK AILING

Look what they did to the Hawks this time. They managed to get only two full games out of Terry Sawchuk, their scarred and ailing goalkeeper who has more miseries in his 180-pound frame than probably any man in the NHL, and they came up with the big ones to send the Hawks packing.

He started in six games and last night, for the third time, failed to last the full 60 minutes. He was knocked cold in a second period collision with Chicago's Reggie Fleming at 13:26 and double-vision for the rest of the stanza and then shed his pads between periods with Wings ahead 3-2.

They got the lead on goals by Floyd Smith, Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio against counters by Red Hay and Bobby Hull.

Roger Crozier, a minor leaguer, went into goal for the second time in this set. Parker MacDonald scored a power-play goal and that was it for the Hawks. Wings picked up $1,500 a man for their semi-final win and are shooting for the $2,000 jackpot against Leafs who went to a seventh game before disposing of league champion Montreal Canadiens 3-1.

Script writers couldn't have come up with situations Wings had to face.

USE JITTERY ROOKIE

They used Bob Champoux, a jittery kid out of Junior B ranks a year, to win 3-4 after Chicago had opened the series with a 4-1 victory over Sawchuk. Then, in a dramatic third game appearance, Sawchuk walked out of hospital and blanked Chicago 3-0.

He finished a little more than two periods of the fourth game before going back to hospital and Crozier, up from Pittsburgh of the American League, did good a heartbreaking 3-2 overtime decision.

Crozier played a full fifth game with Sawchuk still in hospital and lost another 3 - 2 squeaker. That one cost Abel a $500 fine for directing highly uncomplimentary remarks at referee Frank Udvari.

The Wings down 3-2 in games, had Sawchuk back in the nets in Tuesday's sixth encounter and his fired-up mates walloped Chicago 7-2.

Then came the showdown with Udvari again; the man with the whistle.

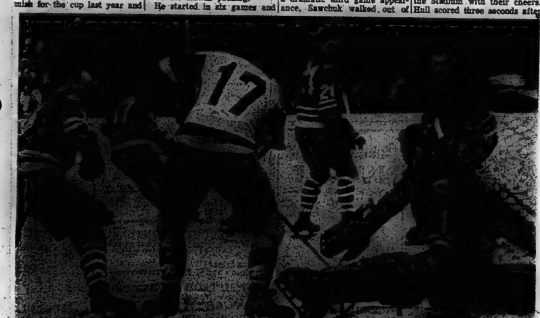
Before they knew it, the Hawks were trailing 2-0 on Smith and Howe goals in the first six minutes. Hay put Hawks back in the game midway through the second period and Delvecchio scored what proved to be the winner 23 seconds later. .

Hull again, put Chicago back in contention late in the second period, the 16,543 fans who had packed Chicago throughout most of the opening periods, rocking the Stadium with their cheers. Hull scored three seconds after Fleming had returned to the ice after spilling Sawchuk.

GETS INSURANCE GOAL

Both clubs missed big scoring opportunities in the opening minutes of the third period and MacDonald made sure of the trip to Toronto for the opening two final games Saturday and Tuesday when he beat goalkeeper Glenn Hall. Hawks defenceman Wayne Hillman was sitting out a five minute major for boarding Larry Jeffrey.

The Wings, who had played a positional man - to - man game after the opening two goals, checked the Hawks to frustration.



Hawks had tried to rough up the Red Wings and for their pains drew seven of the 12 penalties called by Udvari, including majors to defencemen Al MacNeil and Hillman.

"You know," Abel reflected after the game, "the Hawks' strategy of going out and hitting was a complete reversal of what I thought they would do. This was the most important game of the series and I was sure they would try to stay away from penalties that can kill you.

"Remember, we've got old guys like Gordie Howe, Sawchuk, Bill Gadsby, Marcel Pronovost and Delvecchio. Then, there's our kids who just keep right on skating."

And Leafs can't afford to take them lightly.

Abel thinks Sawchuk will be ready for the final opener. "Jeffrey might have a concussion, we don't know yet, but he' a tough little guy. It might take more than that to keep him out of a game."

Barons Stun Hershey 5-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons stunned Hershey 5-1 Thursday for their second straight American Hockey League playoff victory.

The Barons need only one more triumph to eliminate the Bears and sweep the best-of-five semi-final round. The two meet again Saturday at Hershey.

Winner of the series will meet the winner of the Quebec Aces-Pittsburgh Hornets semi-final for the Calder Cup.

Joe Sanza, 24-year-old Cleveland centre, came through with two goals. Ray Brunel also whacked in a pair, and Cecil Hoekstra added another.

Hershey goalkeeper Ed Chadwick put on a brilliant display in the scoreless first period, making 18 saves, some of which appeared close to impossible. He wound up with 35 stops for the night compared with 15 by Cleveland's Jean - Guy Morissette. Morissette has allowed only six goals in four playoff games against Hershey and Rochester.

Hershey scored first, at 2:27 of the second period, when defenceman Marc Reaume connected on a low liner from just inside the blue line. Then the Barons mounted a strong attack and Brunel faked Chadwick out of the net for an unassisted goal to tie the score.

Do Or Die
Softballers Meet Sunday

What may well be the final meeting of the Belleville and District Softball League has been called, for Sunday.

"This is a do-or-die meeting," said a league spokesman, "and unless we get some outside entries the league will be forced to disband, at least as far as a 'district' league is concerned."

The meeting has been called for two o'clock Sunday afternoon at Club Canada.

It will be the loop's third meeting of the season and there has not been any interest shown outside the city of Belleville.

A strong league executive, headed by president Harold Bawden, was elected at the initial meeting and this executive has attempted to interest Picton, Cobourg, Trenton Town and Trenton RCAF, as well as one or two other places, in entering a team.

Most centres have not shown enough moment to answer the letters.

Three Belleville teams have indicated their willingness to support, are Joyce Realty, Trudeau Motors, and a Junior club.

Some more will be made Sunday, either to disband completely or likely to form a new senior city league.

The lack of fights for night softball here leaves little hope that the league could work out an interlocking schedule with another city league such as Kingston. However, nothing has been ruled out at this time.

Anyone in the district wishing to keep senior softball alive is urged to attend Sunday's meeting.

In The Dressing Rooms

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — In the crush of final defeat, coach Toe Blake's tidy forgot that they had written a Cinderella story and perhaps launched another Montreal hockey dynasty.

For who could doubt that the 1963-64 version of the once-feared Montreal Canadiens could do nothing but get better in the National Hockey League in years ahead.

Young, fiery, fearless, the Canadiens, picked by many to finish out of the playoffs, won the NHL championship with raw rookies, a few veterans, and some fringe players fired up by the team's inspired playing.

They didn't quit and scratched their way on sheer desire through seven games in the Stanley Cup semi - final against the defending champion Toronto Maple Leafs. In the final, big game—Thursday night before 14,541 hometown fans—the spirit was willing but the bubbles had burst.- Canadiens lost 3-1, and the seasoned, mostly-new Leafs went into the finals.

Blake said Leafs got the breaks, but it was plain to see that his youngsters had overstepped their bounds.

"We are not satisfied team all season," Blake said. "We had no trouble reaching for a goal like that to fight the way they did all the time was great satisfaction."

SELECTED TOP COACH

Blake was himself honored by United States hockey writers as Coach of the Year for the miracle he performed in getting the maximum effort out of his collection of varied talents.

Even the opposition sang their praise.

"I tell you they played like hell," Leaf coach Punch Imlach told Frankie Selke Sr., the Habs managing-director, one of the first to enter the Toronto dressing room to congratulate the winners.

"Don't let anyone tell you this wasn't a tough series," chimed in Stafford Smythe, the Leaf president. "We've had a much tougher series than Chicago and Detroit."

Canadiens peppered Leaf goalie Johnny Bower with 17 shots in the third period alone, battling to the very end as was their trademark all season. "They could easily have tied the game," admitted Imlach.

Montreal's rookies who played like seasoned veterans all year —defenceman Jacques Laperriere, Terry Harper, winger John Ferguson, and Vezina Trophy goalie Charlie Hodge—wept silently in the Habs' tomblike dressing room.

Blake, unable to face reporters for 10 minutes after the game, retreated to a side room in solitude. He emerged later to say that after his team had scored their only goal—to narrow the lead to 2-1—"we had the game pretty well sewed up. I thought it was over by the way they can get up, and proved it all year, that we had it," he said.

LEAFS JUBILANT

In the Leafs' dressing room there was a bit of floor space available as everyone—Leafs, photographers, reporters and friends—hugged each other, danced and shouted.

"You're looking good, baby," someone shouted over to the ageless Bower, draped in a horseshoe bouquet of 1,000 roses, the gift of 81,237 Ontario country music fans.

Imlach fled from the throng to hold court with reporters in a quieter, less-crowded room nearby.

"We played too well to lose," he said. "If we had lost, there would have been no justice."

He said his team was skating and that was the big difference. Over the series, the Canadiens were plagued by injuries, a contrast to the Leafs who remained healthy. Habs lost superstar Jean Beliveau for two of the games with a bum knee. Speedy winger Gilles Tremblay got knocked out of action after the first game with a broken ankle. Laperriere played the whole series with a sprained wrist and slapped the snap in his slap shot, a device Blake sorely needed on the power play.

Ralph Backstrom's double checkey-borne of the sixth game reduced his effectiveness in the seventh, and little Henri Richard carried on gamely despite an aching groin, and cuts and bruises on his head.

Palmer Leads '69' Pack

Five Tied For Top In Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Arnold Palmer mustered the deceivers back to Azalea Army today as he opened his bounsial charge at the Masters golf tournament title with a first-round 68.

It was good for one-fifth of the opening-round lead, as the five tied for first place composed the largest bunch at the top since the tournament began in 1934.

Gary Player of South Africa, who won the Masters in 1961 and lost to Palmer in a playoff the next year, also had 68. So did Kel Nagle of Australia, who nosed out Palmer for the British Open title in 1960.

The other two in the five-man cluster were Bob Goalby, a tour veteran who said he has been in a slump for a year and a half," and Davis Love Jr.

Jack Nicklaus, defending champion, started in the last first man over to win twice in a row, finished with a 71.

FOUR ARE AHEAD

There were four more men ahead of Nicklaus and another five tied with him in the closely-bunched field. The 9-shotters were Dave Marr, Gene Littler, Don January and the veteran amateur Billy Joe Patton.

Amateur Dick Weslock of Toronto shot a 73 while the two Canadian professional entries, Al Balding of Toronto and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, carded 75 and 77 respectively.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

The opening shoot has been announced and other plans are quickly being brought into action as the Quinte Trap and Gun Club prepares to open the 1964 season.

A 50-target opening shoot will be held this Sunday, April 12. The teams shoots are expected to get under way on the first week in May.

A number of the local club members have kept active over the winter months. Light snow and the electric trap has made it possible for the real addicts to continue shooting most weekends.

The club hopes to see an increase in membership this season and feels that the new, fully equipped club house, with facilities for spectators and children, will help along these lines.

Meanwhile, the annual meeting of the Quinte Trap League was held last week with representatives present from four clubs. Several others have indicated they are interested in joining the league.

Picton won the league title last year but may have a battle on their hands to keep it with teams from Napanee, Belleville, Madoc, Brantford, Campbellford and possibly Bancroft, Cobourg and Brighton expected to enter.

Trap shooting in the district appears to be in for a good season.

Scots Versus Sassenachs

134,000 Fans Are 'Fitba Daft'

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

GLASGOW (CP) — The football wars between the Scots and the Sassenachs will be resumed Saturday with the clansmen confident the enemy from the south will be beaten.

Some 134,000 fans are expected at this frankly "fitba daft" city's Hampden Park for the 131st Scotland-England international in which the Scots are shooting for their third straight win.

After a workout at Ayr, the England team visited Hampden Thursday and the manager of Rab Ramsey discussed features of the field with his players, only three of whom have performed there.

This is by no means an ordinary international match. If Scotland wins, wild scenes of national joy will ensue—whisky will flow and the names of Rab Nie Burns will be heard amid the triumphant skirl of the pipes.

Batters Take Big Home-Run Toll

Dress Rehearsal Bad For Top Pitchers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The dress rehearsal was terrible. But presumably several of baseball's top pitchers are confident that it will be all right for the opening performance.

Certainly St. Louis Cardinals will be looking for better things from Bob Gibson. And Chicago White Sox will expect fewer gopher balls from their prize southpaw pair of Gary Peters and Juan Pizarro.

Even Warren Spahn came up with his first really bad pitch of the spring training season.

Gibson, one of the mainstays of the Cardinals' drive to the National League race last season, was pounded for six runs and nine hits in five innings Tuesday as the Cards came away with a 7-6 victory, featured by Rusty Staub's three-run pinch double in the fourth inning.

Meanwhile the Cards lopped another potential starter off their staff by optioning Ray Washburn to Jacksonville farm of the International League. Hindered by a back injury last season, he had been fairly impressive in training but manager Johnny Keane obviously felt he needed more work.

RELY ON HOME RUNS

Homers by Bob Skinner of Pe ters in the second inning and Deron Johnson off Pizarro in the eighth powered Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory over the White Sox Tuesday as Pizarro's first spring appearance since he ended his lengthy holdout, the longest in the majors.

Spahn's handsome 1.88 earned-run average was jolted when Brooks Robinson unloaded a three-run homer in the third inning as Baltimore Orioles downed the Braves 5-3.

Other leading hurlers lived up to their press-clippings. Juan Marichal, a 23-game winner last season, blew his streak of shutout pitching to 13 innings by setting down Cleveland Indians two hits for the first five innings of San Francisco Giants' 9-3 victory.

Camilo Pascual also pitched five scoreless innings in Minnesota Twins' 4-1 triumph over New York Mets and Dick Ellsworth, despite a three - run homer by rival pitcher Karl Spooner, came out a winner as Chicago Cubs got five runs on two four-baggers by Willy Williams to overcome Boston Red Sox 9-4.

Most Favorites for Awards Will Be Absent on Monday

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Next Monday is the night for the annual Academy Awards, and only about half the actors nominated for moviedom's big prize will be in Santa Monica Civic Auditorium when the program begins. Most of the favorites apparently will be among the missing.

But some what may, Dick Dunlap will be prepared. This is his fourth year of directing the big bash for television, and he has 13 cameras ready to catch the action.

"We'll start the show with a helicopter shot, coming in over the ocean right up to the auditorium as the cars are driving up," he said. "It should be effective. We'll have to pre-tape it at 4 because there won't be enough light an hour later."

TAPES ACTRESSES

Other parts of the show will be pre-taped due to the number of no-shows. Dunlap went to England recently to shoot some of the nominees who won't attend: Patricia Neal, who is in eight months pregnant, and Rachel Roberts, wife of another nominee, Rex Harrison.

"I taped three of the supporting actress nominees because they aren't families to most television viewers," he added. They included Diane Cilento and Margaret Rutherford, who are making films in England, and Joyce Redman, who is in a play.

Nominees who have made acceptances are: Sidney Poitier, Richard Harris, Leslie Caron, Shirley Maclaine, Natalie Wood, Nick Adams, Bobby Darin, Lilia Skala and Edith Evans.

Producer George Sidney has lined up a cast of presenters that will help fill the stellar gap: Julie Andrews, Steve McQueen, Edward G. Robinson, Frank Sinatra, Anne Bancroft, Donna Reed, as well as all of last year's winners—Anne Bancroft, Gregory Peck, Patty Duke and Ed Begley.

WRITES PLAY

Buddy Ebsen, star of The Beverly Hillbillies TV comedy series, recently finished writing his second play, a Civil War drama.

Sally Rand Will Narrate NBC News Special, 'Carny'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty years ago was also a world's fair year. It was in Chicago and in retrospect its two most exciting attractions were the exhibition of Whistler's Mother, and Sally Rand in her fan dance.

After all those years, Miss Rand, tiny, trim and blonde, is still waving her ostrich fans in witticy and dancing to the strains of Debussy. But now her professional life revolves largely around carnivals.

"They are terribly important," she explained during a brief visit to New York "Over 300 shows go out every May and the receipts from them are greater than the combined gates of baseball, football and basketball. And it remains one area of show business that television has hardly touched."

Sally and her fans are still prime midway attractions.

On Sunday, when NBC presents Carney, a news special about the billion-dollar-a-year branch of show business, Miss Rand will be narrator and guide.

...recommended viewing:

Saturday — Baseball: More than a game, NBC, 4:30-6 p.m. EST, sports special with Joe Garagiola."

Sunday—Masters' golf tournament, CBS, 4-5:30 p.m. Carny, NBC, 10-11 with Sally Rand.

CANADA'S LARGEST — The Calgary Zoo on St. George's Island in the Bow River is Canada's largest in the variety of species exhibited. Its 1963 inventory listed 511 species and a population of 1,275. Two of the younger inhabitants of the zoo, the gorillas Ruff and Tuff, are shown getting a toenail cut by keeper Norman Winnick. (CP Photo)

When Noah's Ark Was a Pickup Truck

By ED TREFIAK

CALGAR Y(CP)—Tom Baines remembers loading most of the Calgary zoo into a single pickup truck for an exhibit at the Calgary Poultry Show the year he became zoo curator in 1929.

Today, as Mr. Baines prepares to retire after 35 years as curator, the St. George's Island Zoo here would be portable only in a revival of Noah's ark.

"It ranks fifth in North America, largest in Canada, in the variety of species exhibited," says Mr. Baines.

The 1963 inventory listed 511 species of animals, birds, reptiles and fish in a total population of 1,275.

This tally excludes the 50 lifelike models of prehistoric beasts from Disney the Brontosaurus, towering 22 feet between front and forehead, to sharp toothed little creatures the size of lap dogs—in the popular natural history park associated with the zoo.

In addition, a new, $300,000 conservatory-aviary has more than 100 species of plants—tropical, alpine, desert and common house varieties.

START SLUGGISH

The zoo got off to a sluggish start in 1918 when somebody gave the city a deer. A pen was built for the animal on St. George's Island, in the Bow River about a mile east of downtown Calgary.

But during the last decade the zoo outgrew its 20-acre island site and spilled onto 30 acres on the river's north bank known as Tom Campbell's Hill. The hillside area, taken over last year, gives mountain goats, bighorn sheep and expansive enclosures in which to roam.

Mr. Baines estimates replacement value of the zoo's 32 buildings, exhibits and fencing at about $2,000,000—capital created by the Calgary Zoological Society with a substantial grant from the city and individual donations on money, exhibits and buildings.

STRESS VARIETY

Mr. Baines says the aim has been to display a wide range of species instead of creating mass displays of only a few types.

"When we started out we were going to restrict ourselves to Canadian mammals. Now we lack only two—the muskox and the caribou—and we will probably get those this year."

The zoo has all swan varieties but the Canadians, all geese but lesp and barick.

Most famous resident of the zoo is Chota, a chimpanzee that appeared in Tarzan movies and Chota's trainer donated him to the zoo when the chimp reached maturity and became too temperamental to continue as an actor.

Mr. Baines is particularly proud of the children's zoo, where "we emphasize contact" between the animals and the children." Youngsters are encouraged to play in an indoor pen among guinea pigs, rabbits, pitlets and other young animals.

"Zoo per intendants," high school and college students hired part time, supervise the pens.

The only notable escape was in 1939 when an adventurous dog, lion squeezed out of its cage, flopped into the Bow and flippered 30 miles down an irrigation canal to the farming community of Rosebud.

"A housewife found the lion, wrapped him up in a blanket and called the zoo," Mr. Baines recalls.

There have been accidents when incompatible inmates got together. In 1938 a lion got at a peaceful grizzly and tore out the bear's tongue.

The grizzly, known as Old Dynamite, survived to become in recent years the zoo's longest resident. Old age caught up with Old Dynamite and the dowyen of the Calgary zoo died March 19.

CANADIAN GUARDS

Now On UN Stand-by Duty

The First Battalion of the Canadian Guards are now on UN stand-by duty, as another of Canada's contributions to world peace. They are trained to serve anywhere in the world. Because of this, applications are now being accepted again. To play their vital role along side their sister regiments in the troubled world situation, the Canadian Guards — one of Canada's crack regiments — need adventure-loving young men of courage and character. In return, the regiment offers many other advantages, on important and secure future, pension, permanent employment, a healthy outdoor life, good rates of pay, travel at home and abroad, outstanding training and many openings for advancement.

If you are 17-32, single and physically fit, find out more about this exciting career. Apply now to Recruiting Staff, Canadian Guards Armoury, Kingston.

Teen-Age Canada

Revolution in Teaching Methods Said Coming

By JACK BUTTON.

Dr. B. F. Skinner, a Harvard University psychologist who visited Canada last week, has sparked a revolution in the classroom, Teen-Age Canada suggests today.

Not long ago a group of university students decided to try an offbeat experiment with an amused guiless pir — their professor.

The gimmick was to see whether they could influence the lecturer to do something ridiculous during his lecture, but without him knowing about it.

The profesor, realized something was wrong soon after the class started. Faces were blank in front of him. He moved forward uncertainly on the platform, trying to reach them.

The faces lit up when he reached the edge but went blank when he retreated. The professor spent the rest of his lecture teetering on the edge of the platform, something he had never done before in his life.

I heard this story told last week by Dr. B. F. Skinner, a slim, relaxed Harvard University psychologist, who may be doing more to influence what happens in our future class rooms than any other person in North America.

In case you haven't heard of Dr. Byrrhus Frederic Skinner before, he's the man generally credited with development of what is known as programmed learning, the scientific process of presenting learning in carefully prepared questions and answers.

The puzzled professor did what his students wanted—him to do because they only reacted when he stood on one spot on the platform.

PIGEONS

Dr. Skinner calls this motivation "positive reinforcement." And years ago he used it to teach pigeons to play ping pong. The secret: build up to this achievement through small steps.

What does all this mean to us?

It means simply that classrooms in Canada and the U.S. may see a revolution in teaching methods within our lifetime. It won't be in time for us, but it may affect our younger sisters and brothers — or our children.

According to Dr. Skinner, teaching is still classified as an art. You can lay down basic rules, but a lot is left to chance. Dr. Skinner is writing a book which challenges this philosophy.

His argument is that persons who have some knowledge of their subject and also know the psychological basis of presenting the material in short steps can write programs that can be used by many other teachers.

Teaching would become a craft. It becomes a science.

The implications of Dr. Skinner's theories stagger the imagination. His most ardent disciples claim that 75 percent of all teaching will be done with scientifically prepared programs within the next twenty years. The teacher for more individual tutoring.

I asked Dr. Skinner whether he believed programmed learning has proven itself for future classrooms. "No doubt about it" he replied. "Most other improvements being tried today are stopgaps, but not programmed learning."

It's hard to argue with the professor. Those pigeons, after all, did learn to play ping pong.

VOTING LIMIT

Canadian youth are interested in everything from baby-sitting problems to the Cyprus crisis if my mailbox is any proof. Here, for example, is a letter from Terry Williams, 17, of Calgary, Alta.

"Do you mind if I sound off about a few things? What do you think of teenagers who have been quoted all across Canada claiming they wish they hadn't been given the right to vote at the age of 18?

I happen to be one person who has argued for a long time that this should be our right. And I get hopping mad when I read about these hand-wringers.

"Without commenting on our political parties, I believe it's obvious that adults can lay no claims to being perfect when it comes to choosing their representatives.

"It's just possible — and I believe it's true — that high school students have a better grasp of current events than the average adult. So let's stop worrying about getting the vote an' prepare to use it wisely."

Drive Against Child-Beaters Is Launched

TORONTO (CP) — A concerted drive against child-beaters was launched in Metropolitan Toronto Thursday.

Metro's Children's Aid Society announced it will work with hospitals, police and courts to co-ordinate reports of abuses against children and to act against their parents.

The next steps will be to ask all doctors to co-operate and consider province-wide action at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies in Windsor May 5-8.

The Metro society said it will seek legislation requiring doctors to report cases of child abuse to police.

"With such a law a doctor would not have to fear that he is breaking his oath and would not have to fear legal suits by parents for breaking professional secrecy," an official said.

Dr. Harvey R. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, has said that for every child who dies of neglect, malnutrition or beating, 100 suffer unknown to authorities.

The Hospital for Sick Children has agreed to tell both police and the Metro CAS whenever it suspects child abuse. Other hospitals were asked Thursday to do the same.

Inspector Ralph Boot, head of Metro police youth bureau, has been assigned to handle forwardigations and see if charges should be laid under the Criminal Code.

At the same time, the CAS may take measures under the Child Welfare Act to protect the children from further abuse.

Single Uniform Not Considered House Is Told

OTTAWA (CP) — No consideration has been given yet to the provision of a single uniform as part of the integration plan, for Canadian armed services, Defence Minister Hellyer said in the Commons Thursday.

He stressed that the integration plan, announced in a defence white paper last month, is being started at the top with unification of the defence staff and will work down to the field commander level.

First stage would be to abolish the posts of separate chiefs for the army and air force. This would be spelled out in legislation.

He said it will be "dome time" before the work of services integration into one defence force tackles the question of uniforms. At that time, all factors would be taken into consideration, including the traditions associated with present uniforms.

The defence minister confirmed a newspaper report that July 1, 1967, has been selected as the acceptable target date for complete integration. He said the newspaper report was not correct in saying that a single uniform was being chosen now.

Mr. Lambert also asked whether Mr. Hellyer had been able to seal off "leaks" in his department of white paper details.

The problem is "quite well under control," the minister replied.

Little Man, Big Universe

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Science has certainly stretched our minds concerning the immensities of the physical universe. If the Psalmist thought the universe was big in his day, how much more do we realize its vastness today as we measure its distances in light years, and count the time of its geological formation in millions of years. Like the Psalmist who said of God's omnipresence, "Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it," (Psalm 139:6) as the sheer size of the universe is so great, our minds cannot take it in.

The question is, what is man's place in this vast, unencompassable universe? Is he just an infinitesimal speck to be flicked off the world at death, or is he more than that? Learning that fleas that torture dogs are themselves infested with microscopic ticks, a biology student once wrote, "The larger fleas have smaller fleas upon their backs to bite 'em; the smaller fleas have lesser fleas, and so ad infinitum." In comparison to the size of the universe, is man reduced to an infinitesimal dot of no more consequence to the universe than a flea, or a tick on a flea's back, or is he a person of immense stature in the sight of God?

PSALMIST ASKS QUESTION

The Psalmist asked this question ages ago, "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained, what is man?" (Psalm 8:3) The larger one's conception of the universe becomes, the smaller he feels in comparison to it. But since when has size become the criterion of value? Man may be infinitesimal in size compared to the stars, but as someone has pointed out, man is the astronomer. He designs the telescopes. He names the stars, and measures their distances. A star can't be anything but a star. But man is thinks. He values. He creates. He creates science, philosophy, and investigates. He communicates. He loves. He evidences some of the very characteristics of God. He believes in God. He worships God. He confesses to God. He tries to reflect God's love.

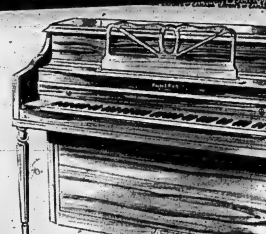
The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 12: "Man's Place in God's Universe, Genesis 1:26 - 30; Psalm 8; Luke 12:4-7,

Moreover, he believes God is mindful of him. "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?" (Psalm 8:4) That's the answer. God is mindful of man. Jesus said the object of God's love and concern.

And what is the evidence that God is mindful of us? The evidence is that God has endowed us with qualities of mind and spirit that make us "little lower than the angels." (Psalm 8:5) and enable us to have dominion over "the works of God's hands." In fact, the Psalmist says, "Thou hast put all things under his (man's) feet." (Psalm 8:6)

NEW TESTAMENT LOOKES AT PSALM

The author of Hebrews makes an interesting reference to Psalm 8. Quoting the Psalm, he says, "One is a certain place testified, saying, What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?" (Hebrews 2:6), and quotes the Psalmist's words, "Thou hast put all things under his feet." Then he makes this interesting observation: "But now we see not yet all things put under him." (Hebrews 2:8)



Man has not yet brought all the forces of nature under his control, although he has made great strides in that direction. The Psalmist never dreamed the day would come when man could literally fulfill his statement, "If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall Thy hand lead me." (Psalm 139:9) Man has even begun to bring outer space under his dominion. But he has yet to fulfill in control himself. He still has difficulty bringing his own passions under control. He still has difficulty controlling his thoughts. They slide off into all kinds of prejudices and hate.

"But," the author of Hebrews goes on, "we see Jesus." (Hebrews 2:9) We see what God meant man to be. We see how God has expressed His love and concern for man through the life and death of the Gallilean. The fact that God has so greatly endowed us does not lead the Psalmist to praise man as we are so apt to do. He gives all the credit and honor to God. Psalm 8:9) We cannot take the credit for life and health. These are the gifts of God. We cannot take credit for the intelligence and perception that make us little lower than the angels. The credit belongs to God. We may win dominion over His created world, but the credit goes to Him who made it. The excellence of His forever and ever.

He Made News - - and Delayed It

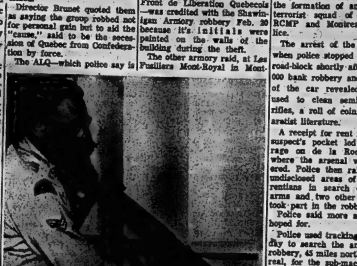
The scene above looks harmless enough. A car has left the road near a level crossing. That's exactly what happened — but the results were more spectacular than first noticed. The west-bound car, driven by William Fraser, 32-year-old Richmond Hill man, left the four-lane highway at Dundas Street East at the Bakelite plant early this morning. It veered across the CPR level-crossing, took out guardposts and snapped a hydro pole. The pole also carried CPR telecommunications circuits. As a result, teleprinters in newspaper offices (among them the Ontario Intelligencer), radio and television stations and the Army's Area Command at Kingston were blanked out. Mr. Fraser was uninjured.

Police Hope To Smash Quebec's Underground 'Liberation Army'

MONTREAL (CP) — Police hope to smash the underground Armee de Liberation du Quebec after dealing an initial blow to the terrorists with the recovery of stolen arms and the detention of three suspects.

"We still have a terrific amount of work to do in the case," Director Josaphat Brunet of the provincial police told a press conference Friday. "This is our first revealing break and we wish to capture all the accomplices of these young men."

The trio, one of whom bragged he was a member of the ALQ, were paraded in police lineups Friday night and an officer said they would appear in court at St. Jerome, Que., today.



They were arrested Thursday in the Laurentian Mountains, 40 miles north of Montreal, two hours after five masked and heavily-armed men had held up a bank in Mont-Rolland, Que.

The break, police said, led them to a garage in north-end Montreal where officers recovered 34 FN semi-automatic rifles, 3,500 rounds of FN ammunition in 164 magazines, three portable radio receivers, a radio transmitter and army uniforms—almost all of the material stolen by terrorists from an army unit in Shawinigan, Que.

A police spokesman said, however, nothing found could link the trio with a similar raid on a Montreal armory in which 20 machine guns, 40 sten guns, five pistols, 80 FN rifles, two machine guns, three bazookas, four mortars and 17,000 rounds of ammunition were stolen.

"However," he added, "we've finally got somebody who will talk up."

Two of the suspects said they were students at the French-language University of Montreal and the third was said to be an apprentice plumber. Two were identified as Jean Gagnon, 21, Rosemere, 28, and Jean Lasalle, 22, while the name of the third, 18 years old, was not disclosed.

Director Brunet quoted them as saying the group robbed not for personal gain but to aid the cause," said he was the secretion of Quebec from Confederation by force.

The ALQ—which police say is an offshoot of the smashed Front de Liberation Quebecois —was credited with the Shawinigan Armory robbery Feb. 20 because it's initials were painted on the walls of the building during the theft.

The other armory raid, at Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal in Montreal, occurred Jan. 30 and led to the formation of another anti-terrorist squad of provincial, RCMP and Montreal city police.

The arrest of the trio came when police stopped a car at a road-block shortly after the $5,000 bank robbery and a search of the car revealed material used to clean semi-automatic rifles, a roll of coins and separatist literature.

A receipt for rent found in a suspect's pocket led to a garage on de la Roche Street where the arsenal was uncovered. Police then raided other undisclosed areas of the Laurentians in search of further arms and two other men who took part in the robbery.

Police said more arrests are hoped for.

Police used tracking dogs Friday to search the area of the robbery, 45 miles north of Montreal, for the sub-machine guns used in the holdup.

Police also are probing the possibility that a $2,000 bank robbery in Coaticook, Stanstique, Que., 35 miles northwest of Montreal, Wednesday also was staged by terrorists.

The armory looting in Montreal was carried out by several persons described as "17 or 18-year-old beatniks" while the raid at Shawinigan, 75 miles northeast of Montreal, was made by five youths.

Following the Shawinigan raid, extra security precautions were taken at army depots in Quebec and other areas of the country termed sensitive by the defence department. Another weapons theft occurred at that time in Noranda, Que., but police said the youthful thieves were out for "thrills."

The original terrorist group—the FLQ—was smashed by police last spring after a 10-week nightmare of bombings in Montreal that took the life of one man and maimed another. The members were sentenced to jail terms.

Need Bold Plans To Divert Water Into Big Lakes

Level of Great Lakes Lowest in 100 Years

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two Roncalio, U.S. co-chairman of the International Joint Commission, said Friday Great Lakes water levels are the lowest in about 100 years and that a bold, long-term approach must be made to divert rivers and streams to feed the lakes and prevent damage that could reach into the millions of dollars.

"We need men of vision to consider radical new plans if we are to overcome this adverse cycle of nature," Roncalio said in an interview, as the commission wraps up a four-day semi-annual meeting with the Great Lakes situation was studied in detail.

Arnold Heeney, Canadian co-chairman, agreed that the situation is "very bad." He said the commission's appraisal is being sent immediately to the two central governments.

NO IMPROVEMENT

While both sides declined to disclose details of their report, it is understood the commission will inform the governments that no improvement in the water levels is expected in the near future.

Johnson Watching Rail Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators continue efforts today to bring a settlement of the knotted U.S. railroad work rules dispute. Talks are being held at the White House under the watchful eye of President Johnson.

The president, who has staked his personal prestige on achieving a voluntary agreement, was reportedly maintaining "absolute insistence" that the parties use a 15-day strike postponement to come to terms.

While exchanging comments with reporters Friday, Johnson said "there is not a word of truth" in a broadcast report that he engineered the truce to get time for Congress to pass emergency anti - strike legislation.

Kenya's Police Trying to Move Squatters Off Highland Farms

NAIVASHA, Kenya (AP) — Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta government is cracking down on hundreds of illegal squatters threatening to take over many European farms in Kenya's former white highlands.

Police armed with rifles, machine guns and tear gas have been raiding squatter camps. Several Kikuyu tribesmen have been jailed.

Many white settlers believe it is a case of too little too late. They fear they soon may be forced out of business unless action against the African squatters is stepped up.

"The European farmer is being set by a breakdown of law and order," says the president of the Kenya National Farmers Union, John Pollard. "His livestock and produce are being stolen and his labor is undisciplined to an extent unknown before.

"On the farms near Naivasha the majority of the land has been taken over by illegal squatters and the farmers are soon will be out of business."

To many Kenya Negroes, independence was the promise of an unbridled land grab. When it failed to materialize squatters took the law into their own hands.

To Europeans it now appears the entire future of Kenya's agriculture industry, which accounts for four-fifths of the national income, will depend on how the government reacts to the problem.

Quebec Expects to Raise $8 Billion by Pension Fund

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec portable pension plan could have an investment fund of more than $8,000,000,000 within 30 years of its inauguration, it is estimated in a report tabled in the legislative assembly Friday.

The report — first of three from teams of actuaries and economists — said the Quebec plan could provide a maximum pension of $1,500 a year to persons 65 and over.

Premier Lesage tabled the report, plus a comparative analysis of the Quebec and federal government plans which he read to the federal - provincial finance Conference last week.

The Quebec plan also puts emphasis on benefits to widows and orphans of persons who contribute into the plan, which will be compulsory for all working Quebecers.

The plan, it was learned meanwhile, is not expected to go into operation until at least Jan. 1, 1966. Pension legislation originally forecast for this session will not be introduced this year, Premier Lesage said.

Under the Quebec plan, no one earning less than $1,000 would pay into the fund. The maximum salary on which the pension purposes would be $6,000 a year.

The premium rate would be four per cent of assessable wages. Self-employed persons would pay the entire four per cent while persons employed by businesses else would pay two per cent and the employer two per cent.

Mr. Lesage's summary read to the fiscal conference said because of the $1,000 deduction on salary, the rate of premium would be equal to 2.9 per cent on the whole. The Quebec rate, it said, would remain fixed while the rate under the federal plan would climb two per cent to about four per cent by the year 2015.

Under Quebec's plan, premium payments would stop at age 65, even though the pensioner continued working. Under the

Bilingualism Body Chairmen Too Talkative - Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) — A blistering criticism of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was unleashed in the Commons Friday by spokesmen for all four opposition parties.

Chief targets in the 1½-hour assault were the commission's co-chairmen, Davidson Dunton of Ottawa and Andre Laurendeau of Montreal, who were accused of doing too much talking and saying the wrong things.

The issue erupted shortly before the House finished its marathon debate on the final supplementary estimates for 1963-64.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker objected to the "periodic interjections" being made by the commission co - chairmen.

"They are supposed to be listening to the views of Canadians," he said. "They go across the country. They make speeches everywhere and they interpret their powers and their authority. . . . I think a word of caution to these men."

LABELS CHAIRMAN

It had become "a commission of peripatetic ailer - dilmer speakers who, wherever they go, interpret what they have heard in the intervening days since the last speech or the last press conference. This is not the purpose for which this commission was set up.

Want UN Fall Meet Postponed

...NITED NATIONS (AP) — Non - Aligned countries in the United Nations were reported Friday about to ask that next fall's General Assembly be postponed until after their October Cairo conference and, coincidentally, the U.S. presidential election.

Diplomats involved in talks on the subject said some 50 countries would request Secretary-General U Thant in a week or two to move the starting date of the Assembly's 19th annual session from late in November from Sept. 15.

They said those making the request would explain that their foreign ministers could not attend an earlier session because they would be busy in September and October preparing for and participating in the non-aligned summit conference set for the first week in October in Cairo.

The informants acknowledged that another reason was that almost all UN members, and especially the United States and the Soviet Union, already were tacit agreement that the assembly should be put off until a week or two after the U.S. election on Nov. 3.

Recover $815,600 In Loot

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said today at least $815,820 in cash and other valuables were recovered in raids that brought the arrest of three men in connection with the robbery of a bank in Niagara Falls, Ont.

Police identified the man arrested Thursday as Henri Joseph Lizotte, 46, of Montreal. Those arrested Friday as Robert Simpson, 43, of Toronto and Joseph Kinisky, 39, of Hamilton.

A police spokesman said it was unlikely they would be returned to the U.S. that day "because there were still loose ends in the case to clear up."

The robbery took place at a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce the weekend of March 21. Niagara Falls police estimated the loot afterwards as about $400,000.

Police said Friday they had raided an apartment in suburban Ville Emard and recovered about $500,000 in bonds and securities, $9,000 in cash and $300,000 in U.S. and travellers' cheques. Two occupants of the apartment were arrested.

Authorities said a raid Thursday night resulted in the recovery of $250,600 worth of bonds in a Montreal bank vault. The third man arrested was found watching television.

Det.-Sgt. Donald Harris of the Niagara Falls police said the loot "could well amount to $1,000,000 when we've finished counting."

Besides the two raids that brought the arrests, police also descended on an apartment building, a motel, a garage and another apartment.

P. E. Tourville of the Montreal police said the investigation also will be carried to the United States where some of the stolen travellers' cheques were cashed.

Cheques totalling $1,900 were cashed in New York City and drawn on the Bank of America.

Police said the garage raided in Montreal contained safety lene torches, thousands of keys, screwdrivers and drills.

If You Are Going to Lay Egg Beethoven Better Than Beatles

MUZZANO, Italy (AP) — There's a chicken welfare state here in which the hens are real eggheads. The birds wear glasses and prefer Beethoven to the Beatles.

The hens are easily bored, sensitive and quarrelsome. But the eggs they lay are beautiful—uniformly large and with more yolk than white.

They're just the kind of eggs pastry firms in Milan, north of here, want for their mass production. Chicken experts say they found out the only way to get such eggs on a regular schedule was to give the hens the best of everything.

The result is the Aurora Poultry Farm, a Utopia where no hen has to scratch for a living.

At Aurora, specially prepared mash is delivered every day at the same time on an electronically controlled belt.

The hen house never gets hot or stuffy. It's air conditioned. And a lighting system creates the illusion of an endless summer day.

The experts also learned that nothing helps an egg production so much as music. They found out that rock 'n' roll leads to dizziness and chickens but the hens take to the classics.

As a result the chickens get a daily diet of Beethoven, Bach and Chopin over henhouse loudspeakers.

For some reason, however, this life of luxury makes the hens so irritable they can't stand the sight of each other. To avoid pointless bickering the chickens are fitted with special rubber blinders that look like eyeglasses.

Robarts Still Not Decided About Pensions

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Friday he has not yet decided whether to join the proposed Canada Pension Plan or to set up Ontario's own scheme.

In an interview, Mr. Robarts said he still needs replies from Ottawa to questions he has raised about the plan.

Coexistence Is Negative Idea, Need Co-operation Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — International coexistence is rather a negative idea, Prime Minister Pearson said Friday.

During the First World War, men in trenches coexisted 50 yards apart, but they didn't cooperate.

"It is not so much coexistence we want as co - operative coexistence," he told representatives of a number of co-operative organizations meeting to plan Canada's role in the 1965 "International Co-operation Year."

The 1965 observances, marking the 20th anniversary of the United Nations, are intended to emphasize the international work of the UN and other agencies and to spark new projects of international help and friendship.

Mr. Pearson said it is essential to achieve national co-operation with within Canada if the country is to play its part in international co-operation.

"If we cannot deal among ourselves in a spirit of close and friendly co-operation, there is little much hope in the field of international co-operation."

He said the government will back the efforts of private organizations "but it's the efforts of the people that really matter."

Ralph Enkell, Finnish ambassador to the UN, told a press conference the aims of International Co-operation Year is to break through the "barrier of silence" on the achievements and value of international co-operation.

Canadian plans for the special year are just getting off the ground. A national committee was set up in January.

Let Best Goulash Win - PM

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — If the world has entered the era of "goulash diplomacy" it would be a great gain for humanity to let the best cook win.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, addressing what was described as the 6th gastronomic luncheon ever held in London, offered his gastronomic up Friday.

Sir Alec, who has said that a fat Communist is better than a skinny one, elaborated on the theme that Soviet Premier was the way of progress — "Political ideology must no longer be allowed to insulate a nation from economic progress."

He made a direct reference to Communist China. He hinted the Peking ruled mainland might fall behind the rest of the world if ideological differences were allowed to "freeze" all other developments.

He spoke almost kindly of the Russians, saying in an aside that "the great hopes of the Soviet Union," Culin Yanes, "perhaps the last illustration of a nuclear power "gambling its strength."

In line with Nikita Khrushchev's warnings that a world clash is more important than revolution, Sir Alec said trade and economics must eventually break down ideological differences.

COLD WAR ALMOST OVER

He repeated his contention that the cold war is virtually over and added he thinks the Russians are beginning to see the dangers of one of their favorite tactics, subversion.

He thought that in the long term subversion might be eliminated in the same way as cold-war differences would disappear.

The luncheon meeting was jointly arranged by the Foreign Press Association of American Correspondents.

Board Gives Special Care To Needs of Blind Children

The object of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) is to ameliorate the condition of the Blind of Canada and to prevent blindness. To this end the members of the County of Hastings Advisory Board are constantly being alerted to the needs of registered blind under their care in Belleville and throughout the County. At the present time these number 126.

This week particular attention is focused on the blind children under the Board's jurisdiction. During March Miss Jean Whitelaw of the children's department of the CNIB visited the children, their parents, and made contact with their teachers, school principals and the Supervisor of nurses. One totally blind little boy will enroll in kindergarten in September and in 1965 will attend the Ontario School for the Blind where there are already two young pupils in attendance. A little girl with defective vision but not the totally blind group merits the board's interest. Another girl and older boy are in the hands of the CNIB who are considered to have enough sight to get along in schools for the sighted.

The CNIB follows these visits with letters and pamphlets to parents and teachers to guide them in the training and teaching of visually- handicapped children.

The CNIB in Belleville is an agency of the Belleville United Appeal and depends on the philanthropic support of a public minded citizenry.

Find Housewife Responsible For 3 Deaths

ROCKVILLE, Conn. (AP) — Coroner Bernard J. Ackerman has found a 39-year-old housewife criminally responsible in the deaths of three of her children.

Ackerman made the finding Friday against Mrs. Nora R. Rogers, wifeof Charles Rogers of Hazardville. She goes on trial Thursday on a manslaughter charge in the death of her seven-month-old daughter, Barbara Ann.

Ackerman said Mrs. Rogers was criminally responsible for Barbara Ann's death as well as those of Raymond Theresa, 3, and seven - month - old Michael Stephen.

Mrs. Rogers had 10 known children. Four, aged 3 to 13, are living.

Ackerman said Mrs. Rogers was "motivated by her inability to cope with her problems" and "unmightily schemed to cover up said homicides by making them appear as accidental deaths."

Mrs. Rogers was arrested Jan. 30. State police had begun an investigation after the death of an 11-month-old son, James, last Dec. 27 in a Springfield, Mass., hospital.

Elected Group Travel Convenor

OLIVE BRANSCHE

Photographed as she received word that appointment, Mrs. Branscombe recently received and will travel abroad in her club would be handled exclusively by Canadian Pacific Airlines' "CN"s Group Travel Plans offer convenient, comfortable travel at the most economical rates. We all save because there are now members who travel free or small groups. Party fares for groups of 10 or more members are now 10% to 20% over and above the big savings on Red "Bargain" and White "Economy" Days". Mrs. Branscombe chirped as happily about her plans for the future — "We'll stretch our excursion budget further — even by chartering a CN coach. For example, the 60 of us, with a coach of our own, can save as much as 33⅓. And 45 is a comfy, cozy number. One day, we'll surprise our husbands and go away overnight. We may not. We can charter a sleeper. You see, dear boy, nowadays there's no charter — no cheaper by far!"

City 'Squirts' Win Opener From Trenton

Belleville All-Stars won their opening game in the Trenton Squirt Hockey tournament this morning, defeating a hard-fought 3-1 decision over the host Trenton team.

In another early morning contest, Port Hope blanked Napanee by a tight 1-0 score.

Belleville and Port Hope were scheduled to clash in their second-round game at one o'clock this afternoon.

The tournament is a day-long affair being played in the Trenton Community Centre.

Ambulance Receives Another Phoney Call

The anonymous caller is back to her old tricks.

The mysterious caller telephoned the La Salle Ambulance shortly after 10.00 p.m. Friday night on the telephone said an ambulance was needed at 128 Bleecker Avenue.

When asked what the trouble was, (the mysterious voice) said an eight-year-old boy had "swallowed a bottle of pills" and added "I think he may already be dead."

However, when the ambulance arrived they were informed they had not been called. (No eight-year-old boy lived at that address).

The unknown voice was said to have sounded like that of a girl in the early teens.

BGH Workers Approve New Agreement

Approval has been signified for a new three-year contract offered members of the Building Service Employees International Union by Belleville General Hospital.

A meeting of the union's local membership endorsed a memorandum of agreement retroactive to January 11, a B.G.H. spokesman said yesterday.

These are the principle points in the new contract:

(1) Vacations provide an extra week — increased from two to three weeks — for employees with 15 years service;

(2) Pay increases are scaled to 5¼ percent in 1964; just under 5 percent in 1965 and about 4 percent in the last year of the contract;

(3) Fringe benefits include adjustments so that 50 percent of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission premiums will continue to be paid on the single rate after the projected increase from the entire Eastern district.

The contract will expire December 31, 1966. "Negotiations throughout were conducted in a amiable manner and we believe that this is a fair settlement — both for the union and the hospital", said administrator S. J. Johnston yesterday. "We were fortunate to reach agreement without recourse to conciliation services."

federal plan, premiums continue until the pensioner stops working.

"The Canada Pension Plan is penalizes effort after age 65, which is universally bad," the document said.

Mr. Lesage said he has ordered translations of the plan into English because other governments are "mightily interested" in Quebec's plan.

The report, and others to follow, will provide the basis for pension legislation which probably won't be adopted until next year sometime.

The province's plan will provide a maximum payment of $125 a month, compared with the maximum of $75 under the Canada Pension Plan.

It also will include allowances for widows, orphans and invalids of pensioners and will take into account increases in the cost of living, the report said.

Under Quebec's plan, a person earning only $2,000 a year could add up with a $500 pension assuming his monthly maximum will be $1,500 a year for someone earning $8,000.

The report also contains comparisons between the two plans in its statement:

1. The federal plan has a 10-year transition period, compared with 30 for the Quebec plan, which is more "socially equitable" in 10 years' period, it said, means future pensions will have to pay a disproportionate share of the costs.

WILL PAY 25 PER CENT

2. The Canada plan will pay only 20 per cent of salary, compared with 25 per cent in Quebec.

3. The Quebec plan reduces the effective premium for lower income groups while the federal rate is fixed.

The report suggests that pensions would be paid after 10 years after the plan goes into effect, but full pensions would be paid only after a 30-year transition period.

In that time, persons who retire would receive only a part pension, based on their contributions during their working years. Once fully operational, pension premiums would be paid from age 18 to 65.

Four local experts in various fields of agriculture and horticulture will take part in a round discussion dealing with such things as house plants, lawns, water, ponds, landscaping and tree problems.

The panel will be moderated by R. Phillips, head of the science department at Moira Secondary. A question and answer period will follow the discussion.

Bilingualism

the performers make speeches wherever they go."

Mr. A. Gilson (SC — Medicine Hat) read newspaper reports quoting statements by the co-chairman to the effect that provincialism could lead to the collapse of Canada and that the commission's findings on bilingualism and biculturalism would be misunderstood.

He said these and other reports "do not help to create a division between the cultural groups of the nation."

Mr. Gilson asked what is allowing public funds to be used so that these gentlemen can go about the country making that sort of statements, it is time the government took another look at the composition of the commission . . . and informed them that it is not their purpose to make this kind of statement, alternately to replace these gentlemen."

Charles - Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste — Roberval) said the commission had turned out to be "a gold mine for certain people chosen by the party in power."

If its chairmen should wait and make a report to Parliament instead of offering daily commentaries "which may lead to misunderstandings."

CAN'T AGREE

"I can't agree that the chairmen should offer their opinions every day, and the socialist ideas of one of these gentlemen are frightening and dangerous," he added. "I would suggest to the government they put a brake on these men."

Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) said the commission was created to appeal to one particular province and is resented in other parts of Canada.

The outburst was the last in a string of Opposition eruptions over bilingualism — what they taken up by study of the final set of extra spending items for 1963-64.

It came on a $765,850 item covering the royal commission's expenses from its establishment last summer to the close of the fiscal year, March 31.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) said the commission should be abolished because "the average Canadian thinks of bi-culturalism. Instead, it seems to be a case of Canadians what they should think about the question.

IT'S TOUCHY

"We in Western Canada don't want Canada thrown into a vast turmoil on this touchy subject. We want Canada to come back to start a new country and a new culture—not to retain two or three old cultures."

Alexies Caron (L—Hull) said Mr. Horner displayed a lack of knowledge about Canadian history. Confederation was a contract between French and English-speaking. This is a contract we want to see all across Canada."

In Fredericton, Mr. Laurendeau, in that city conducting commission hearings, said he had nothing to say about the Commons criticism.

Criticism of the royal commission emerged as the central item in a day of debate that ranged over Eskimo affairs, air services, Yukon highways and the possibility of a snap election.

Early in the sitting the House agreed to a three-hour overtime session Friday night in a drive to clear away the final items of the estimate- list. It was unlikely the vote on estimates of the 10 p.m. EST adjournment target.

Most of the afternoon was devoted to a renewal of the opposition's condemnation of a proposed transfer of Eskimo administration in Quebec to the provincial government.

Mr. Diefenbaker urged the government to submit the Eskimo issue to the Supreme Court of Canada for a ruling on whether such a move would be constitutional.

Transport Minister Pickersgill rejected this suggestion but agreed to ask law officers of the Crown for a legal opinion on it.

Copper Was King This Week As Speculation Fever High On Canadian Stock Markets

By IAN MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Copper was king on Canadian stock markets this week as speculation fever pushed daily volumes to their consistently highest levels since the boom of 1956—also inspired by copper.

Producers and prospective producers of the metal have been active and strong since the price of Yorgo Exploration increased on world markets after three stable years, and rumors of a major copper strike in Northern Ontario have added fuel to the flames.

Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. is drilling near Timmins, but so far no report has been issued and there is no indication if the company has hit paydirt. However, stocks of mining companies with property in the area have rocketed, led by PCE Explorations which traded as high as 53 cents from 13 cents before closing Friday at 47 cents.

Other companies trading heavily at the end of the week included Jelex Mines Ltd., Normetaque Mines Ltd. and Bunker Hill Extension Mines Ltd.

VOLUME IS HIGH

The daily volume in Toronto has been well over the 7,000,000-share level and Friday 12,436,000 shares were traded, heaviest since July, 1958, at the height of the 1956 boom.

The record volume on the Toronto Exchange is 15,000,000 shares, also set in 1956, but the market that year did not remain at such consistently high levels.

One phenomenon of the market which brokers find encouraging is that investors are not confining their purchases to the penny stocks—high priced industrials are also coming in for their shares of the trading.

Steels, integrated oils, banks and papers all advanced on the industrial board with several blocks lifted, although as a cautionary tendency was evident, a reflection of the uncertainty of the New York market in the face of a threatened rail strike.

Senior mining issues were spotty with investors concentrating on the prospects and developing stocks. Brunswick Mining and Smelting was strong among senior issues, closing Friday at $10.12.

Several oil stocks made highs, but there was little excitement. American Ledac continued to register heavy turnover although easing on profit-taking.

Volume in Toronto was 46,690,837 shares compared with 31,191,547 last week. Value was $74,216,513 compared with $66,551,297.

Four-hundred and 97 industrial issues were traded. One-hundred and 89 advanced, 180 declined and 118 remained unchanged. Mining and oil issues traded were 422, of which 207 advanced, 179 declined and 65 remained unchanged.

INDEX DOWN

On index in Toronto, the Exchange index rose .59 to 139.21, industrials .30 to 148.74, golds fall 3.62 to 120.29, western oils .52 to 87.79 and base metals .59 to 92.29.

In Montreal, industrials traded 1,383,121 shares compared with 1,000,000 week and mines, utilities traded 7,780,129 shares compared with 8,988,121.

Canada Bread traded 24,484, of which 176 advanced, 141 declined and 107 remained unchanged.

On index in Montreal, industrials rose .1 to a record 145.5, composite 0.9 to a record 140.1, utilities 0.1 to 122.1, banks 0.7 to 123.3 and papers 1.6 to 127.8.

A truck driver was left without his trailer on Highway 14 on Wednesday.

Police say the empty trailer became uncoupled from its tractor as Lorne Gardiner and Stirling was driving the transport a mile west of Foxboro.

The trailer ended in the ditch.

A Shopper's Delight

How many dollars' worth of groceries could you grab off the shelves in a supermarket in one minute? Or, or even a full 15-minute free shopping spree? $100? $200? $500? $1000?

"Well, a-lot of lucky Belleville and District Shoppers will find out starting Thursday, Foody's Shoppers' Sweepstakes starting next Monday," it was announced by Jack Foody, Manager of Foody's Beverages Limited.

The 10-week Sweepstakes will offer:

a) tens of thousands of dollars in cash prizes;

b) thousands of gift certificates, ranging in value from $5 to $50;

c) hundreds of shopping sprees of 5, 8, 10 and 15 minutes in duration;

d) eight grand prizes each consisting of a brand new 1964 Meteor station wagon, a 12-minute shopping spree and a year's supply of the Company's products.

"The Quinte Area will get its share of this fabulous shopping sprees," said Mr. Spinelli. "And who knows, some lucky citizen might even be a grand prize winner. A station wagon always comes handy when you have to carry home a few hundred dollars' worth of groceries."

This giant promotion represents an overall expenditure of more than half a million dollars by Pepsi-Cola and its bottlers throughout Canada.

"It's all very easy — and fun too," Mr. Spinelli explained. "For ten weeks, cartons or liners inside Pepsi-Cola bottle caps will all be branded. Six brandied liners — any two whole snap, mind you — along with an entry form make you eligible for weekly draws of thousands of prizes. Of course, you may send as many entries as you wish."

He explained that four members of shopping sprees will be entitled to choose their favorite food store and will be allowed to use a cart.

"There will be certain simple rules, though," he added. "Otherwise the whole thing could easily get out of hand. Winners will be given sufficient time to study these rules and plan their strategy accordingly. A whistle will mark the beginning and the end of the spree.

"And when the whole hectic episode is over, I'll be at the checkout counter to pick up the final tab."

IN MEMORIAM

GRABOWSKI — In loving memory of a wonderful daughter, Doris Christine, who passed away April 12, 1963. In tears we now you smiling. Your memory is our keepsake. Our hearts were almost broken, When God took you home.

Do not weep, dear parents, Friends may think we have forgotten,
When all those they see us smile, Unseen our tears flow for hearts.

Our smiles hide all the while, Sadly missed but lovingly remembered by Mother, Father, Sister, Frances, Joan, Jane, Freddie, Douglas, Dennis and Peter.

PROPLES — In loving memory of our dear father, David Proples who passed away April 12th, 1963.

Though your smile has gone forever
And your hand we cannot touch,
We have so many memories,
Of you we love so much.
Always remembered by the family.

GAY — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Charles Clinton Gay, who passed away April 12, 1963.

We cannot have the old days back,
Nor can we wish them over,
Until we meet you in God's mansion above.

Over on that peaceful shore,
Where we shall meet you by and by.
Sadly missed.

GRABOWSKI — In loving memory of a wonderful wife and mother (Jo) who passed away April 12, 1958.

Your spirit did not bend,
God saw your pain and suffering.
He knew we could do no more,
So He took you to His golden shore,
Had He but left you with us,
We would have been happier still.
But death has left a memory,
Time cannot dim.
Sadly missed but lovingly remembered by husband Alex Grabowski and sons Billie and Bobbie and baby Susan.

FREDERICK — In loving memory of our dear wife Lila Beatrice Frederick who passed away April 12, 1950.

Sweet memories, our eyes shall see,
Dear face we keep in memory,
And loved ones, for you shall,
Still cheer when we meet again.
Ever remembered by her husband Will.

Boy Students Win Honors At Quinte Science Fair

More than 50 district high school students put their working knowledge of science on display yesterday.

The event was the day-long fourth annual Quinte District Science Fair at Quinte Secondary School.

And with last year's results setting an example — that of Beverley Davies who went on from the local event to win top prize at a national science fair — yesterday's exhibition included a fair number of girls.

In all, 12 girls competed with 41 youths for top honors in exhibiting. The boys this year, however took top awards.

Grand champion exhibitor was Peter Smets, of Trenton, a QSS student with a display in the applied sciences section. Runner-up was Robert Murdoch, budding young electronics student at Belleville Collegiate, who exhibited operations of the vacuum tube.

Both youths now will present their displays at the Canadian Science Fair later this month at Montreal.

Sponsored by Belleville Rotary Club, the local fair drew entries from the four city high schools, Tweed, Trenton High School and St. Peter's Separate High School, Trenton.

His organization is in the hands of Rotarian Alec Pedersen assisted by Dr. John Barlow, federal government research scientist and Fred Beeby, an industrial representative.

Science department heads Ralph Ellis (BCIVS), William Cochrane (QSS), and Robert Phillips (Moira), combine the committee's work at the school level.

Prizes range from $25 for first place down to smaller sums for winners in various sections.

This was the prize list yesterday: General Physics — Allan Morrow (QSS), Leslie Frost (QSS), Donald Pugh (BCI), Electronics — R. Murdoch (BCI), Douglas Prudhomme (Trenton), Edward Demerest (QSS), Applied Science — P. Smets (QSS), Ronald Whitelock (Tweed); Howard Tait (QSS), Chemistry, Nuclear Science — G. Roulet (QSS); Bruce Scott (Trenton) Dwayne Ellis (QSS), Biology — R. Burns (BCIVS), Hughes Goldie (QSS), Jillian Roulet (QSS), Geography, Physiography — Quinte Geology Club (QSS), Pat Finnigan (Moira), Dennis Kerr-Barry Nix (Moira).

"Bi's" Royal Commission Encounters Rare Good Will

By RONALD LEBEL

FREDERICTON (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism encountered rare good will between English and French - speaking Canadians in the province on the fifth most-the-people forum here Friday.

French - speaking participants drew support from many prominent English - speaking New Brunswickers when they proposed the official recognition of French as well as English in this province with a French - language minority of 315,000, or 35 per cent of the population.

A consensus also developed on a need for wider use of French in the New Brunswick school.

The atmosphere at a public meeting in the evening attended by 400 was summarized by Prof. Lovell Clark of the University of New Brunswick, founded after the American revolution by United Empire Loyalists.

He said: "We're making progress in this province. In the past English - Canadians have not been generous in interpreting the constitution a case contract between two equal cultural groups. There is no doubt now that French-Canadians in this province will get their own secondary schools and their own teachers' colleges if they function."

URGES ADVANTAGES

Catharine Cain, a nurse, commented: "The French people in this province should have cultural advantages equal to ours. I think the commission should blueprint the areas where the English-speaking element has failed the French-Canadians."

Unlike the four previous meetings in Quebec and Ontario, the day-long discussions dealt almost entirely with provincial issues, despite several efforts by the seven commission members present to steer the debate into national questions.

French - speaking representatives asked that French be recognized officially in the legislature, the provincial civil service, schools and courts. French was sometimes used at all three levels, but it was on an illegal or unofficial basis, tolerated by the English-language majority, they contended.

Mrs. Claudia Whalen, an Acadian, said: "We fear that our French culture will disappear eventually unless we take steps to correct the situation. We want to revitalize our culture, not to separate from our English-speaking brothers."

There were complaints that the English - only atmosphere and the lack of French-language instruction in this capital city of 20,000, with staunch Loyalist and Orange lodge backing, discouraged many French-Canadians from attending teachers' college or entering the provincial civil service.

M. B. Mowatt, superintendent of schools in the Grand Falls area of Oromocto near here, ruffled feathers when he announced that the 200 French-speaking pupils in his 4,000-strong enrolment do not create a problem. They soon learn to tell off the English-speaking students in English.

"Surely that's assimilation," cried Prof. A. R. Kear of the University of New Brunswick. He said he was amazed at Mr. Moore's attitude, which reflected "the worst aspects" of the fact that French-Canadians are inferior creatures who must be assimilated by the English-speaking majority.

The commission will visit the Ottawa Hull area might be carved out of Ontario and Quebec to form an 11th province with full equal government. This would provide for democratic administration of the national capital on the Berlin and Vienna models and avoid the non - representation of the federal district system on the Washington model.

Several English - speaking participants cautioned against "segregating" or "isolating" the English and French languages groups in New Brunswick with dual institutions. The need was for closer ties between the two elements not further separation.

They called for oral French classes starting in Grade 1 in English-language schools, publication of more objective history textbooks in both languages and teacher and student exchanges.

French - speaking participants emphasized that they are strongly opposed to Quebec separatism and moderate in their views. They want the preservation of requiring all Canadians to be bilingual.

Says Quebec Not Disputing Federal Rule

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade Minister Sharp said Friday the "distinct society" phrase, contracting out" should not lead anyone to believe Quebec is trying to contract out of Confederation.

"So far as I am aware," Mr. Sharp said in a speech to the Canadian Club and Women's Canadian Club of Winnipeg, "there is no serious challenge to federal authority from the province of Quebec."

Mr. Sharp pointed out the same thing in an address the previous evening to students of Lakehead College at Port Arthur.

"Some people seem to have got the impression that Quebec is trying to contract out of Confederation," he said.

"This is absurd. Contracting out applies to a very limited area, namely to those federal programs in areas of joint occupancy or provincial jurisdiction, such as contributory old age pensions".

Quebec has simply stated in effect it was making use of its authority to legislate its own pension plan.

On health and welfare services, it was "surely not a symptom of national disintegration" that Quebec should ask responsibility for these shared - cost programs and in turn be compensated by appropriate fiscal adjustments.

Girl Leaps Five Storeys, Lands in Net

NEW YORK (AP)—A 16-year-old girl, after spurning pleas of police, jumped her guardian and several policemen for 45 minutes, leaped five storeys from a Harlem roof Friday. She landed in a net before some 3,000 onlookers.

The girl, Ora Lee Fuller, was taken to hospital suffering from shock and hysteria.

Miss Fuller, whose parents are divorced, came here about seven months ago from Ithaca, N.Y., to live with her grandfather, Lieut. Charles West of the Salvation Army. The West family resides on the top floor of the Manhattan Citadel, Salvation Army headquarters, on East 125th Street, from which the girl jumped.

Locate Leak In City's Water System

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A leak in the city's water system was located early today and pressure returned to normal after city authorities feared depletion of the water supply and cutting off of most of the province's electric power.

Water pouring from the break at a rate of 150,000 gallons an hour threatened to shut the Maritime Electric Company power plant which supplies most of Prince Edward Island's electricity. Water from the city's system is used in the boilers.

Death Takes Man Who Chose Name Spitfire

EDINBURGH (AP) — The man who gave the immortal name to Britain's most famous fighter plane of the Second World War—Spitfire—is dead.

He was Sir Robert MacLean, former chairman of the Vickers - Supermarine Aviation Company, which built the plane. The sight-gun Spitfire, with the slower and older Hawker Hurricane formed the backbone of the nation's air defence in the Battle of Britain. It shoot had another name. MacLean once related:

"In accordance with Supermarine tradition the name had to begin with an. S. I wanted something quarrelsome and troublesome, spitting venom, a thoroughly nasty and unpleasant creature to meet."

He had decided on "Shrew" —after Shakespeare's woman character who needed taming. But suddenly a much better name dawned on him—Spitfire.

MacLean died in Edinburgh Thursday. He was 80.

Sees Greater Educational Opportunities

MONTREBAL (CP) — A letter from Prime Minister Pearson to the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation predicting efforts to achieve greater educational opportunity across Canada would be rewarded "in due course" was read Friday to delegates attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Education Week committee.

During the meeting a need for some form of central consultation and coordination of education across Canada was stressed.

Turkey Clamps Down on Greek Nationals

ANKARA (CP-AP) — Turkey is clamping down on Greeks visiting or living in Turkey.

Relations between Turkey and Greece, allies of NATO's southern flank, have been strained since Nicosia's capital started more than three months ago on the east Mediterranean island of Cyprus between the Turkish and Greek communities there.

Turkey this week notified approximately 1,000 Greek nationals practising professions in Istanbul to cease doing so within 15 days, it was learned official Anatolian news agency reports. Foreigners residing in Turkey are forbidden by law to work as doctors, dentists or hospital employees. It was said the Greeks who received official notification were in professions of this nature.

The order is the third step taken in a series of measures directed against Greeks living in Turkey.

ABOLISH PACT

On March 16 Turkey abolished a 1930 Turkish' - Greek agreement recognizing special residence rights and limitations facilities to Greek nationals here. Since then several Greek subjects have been expelled for what has officially been described as "encouragement in harmful activities."

Last Monday the government abrogated a 1925 Turkish-Greek visa agreement under which citizens of the two nations enjoyed unrestricted travel facilities in each other's country.

The Anatolian agency said Thursday that Greek nationals who entered Turkey before the abrogation of the visa agreement would be asked either to obtain visas or leave the country.

Was Given 600 NONG Shares For Municipal Officials

TORONTO (CP) — G. Kelly McLean, former assistant to Ralph E. Farris, president of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, testified Friday Farris had given him 600 NONG shares in 1957 to distribute among Ontario municipal officials.

Mr. McLean said he had no idea why the president wanted him to do this.

Mr. Farris, 53, of Vancouver, is appearing before Supreme Court Justice Dalton Wells and a jury on two charges of perjury. The Crown alleges that he perjured himself when he told Ontario government inquiries in 1958 and 1962 that he had not directed the distribution of the 600 shares mentioned by McLean.

A second charge of perjury alleges that Farris swore falsely that he did not know the disposition of 14,000 shares allotted to Continental Investment Corporation (Converto) of Vancouver in 1957.

Mr. McLean, who in his association with NONG expanded an $800 investment into $400,000, testified that in the interests of offices of the firm in February, 1957, Mr. Farris handed him 600 NONG shares with a list of the persons who were to receive them.

NAMES RECIPIENTS

He said the recipients were Wilbur Crump, former mayor, and William Moore, former solicitor of Orillia; Wanda Miller, former mayor of Gravenhurst, and Glen Coates, former Bracebridge mayor. The three municipalities granted gas franchises to NONG.

The witness said Mr. Farris told him that with each allotment of shares there should be a covering letter to the effect that the gift represented the residual balance of the recipient's account with Converto.

Crown Prosecutor Harvey McCulloch asked: "Did you have any idea why Mr. Farris wanted you to do this?"

"No, I don't," the witness replied, and that the shares had been handed over to him at a "very casual meeting."

Mrs. Miller and Mr. Coates have testified at the trial to having received 150 NONG shares each from Mr. McLean.

RELATES SUCCESSES

Mr. McLean related to the court the start of the financial successes he gleaned through his association with Mr. Farris and NONG.

He said that in 1954, while working as a file clerk with Pacific Petroleum at Calgary, he was asked by Mr. Farris, then organizing NONG, outlining a plan to distribute gas in Northern Ontario.

Two years later, he said, he became assistant to the NONG president and was allotted 800 company shares at $6 a share. Investment of this $800, with the help of stock splits, grossed him $148,512.

The original allotment of stocks allowed him purchasing rights for $23,000, he said. He exercised them through borrowed money and grossed another $225,000.

Rusk's Doubtful Argument

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk's fundamental outlook on the Cold War has been challenged by Senator Fulbright, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the U.S. Senate.

Briefly, Senator Fulbright thinks that the danger of armed aggression by the communists, as distinguished from infiltration, has virtually disappeared.

Khrushchev's latest words seem to confirm this. This week he said in Hungary that only a child or an idiot does not fear war.

Mr. K intimated that he considered the Chinese communists are idiots—but this week the Toronto Telegram carried an article by Dr. David Chaffey, professor of philosophy at the University of Toronto, in which he contended that "our belief in the warlike nature of China's rulers comes strangely enough, from Soviet denunciations." The actions of the Chinese, he says, "show them to be very cautious in the use of armed force."

It is against this background of a challenge to his basic conceptions of today's world that we find Dean Rusk issuing an appeal to the nations of Western Europe. He warns them that "many more (communist) missiles than are aimed at the United States" are aimed at them. This, he argues, is a reason why they should close ranks in support of collective action against communist threat and aggressions.

This argument makes eminent good sense, if one accepts Rusk's basic conception. But many of these nations have long held the outlook now publicly advanced, (almost for the first time) by a figure of national importance in the U.S.), by Fulbright. And, if one accepts Fulbright's estimate of the facts and rejects Rusk's, the existence of these Russian missiles aimed at the European powers is a sound reason why they should shrink from too close a co-operation with a nation basing its foreign policy on Rusk's views. This, of course, is precisely what has been happening, with almost imperceptible gradualness, over the past several years. General de Gaulle and others of his kind think that the Russian bear is hibernating and see no reason to prod him into wakefulness by hardselling the warmth of his cave. If he is left to sleep long enough somebody else, possibly with a Chinese accent, may undertake the doubtful experiment of attempting to tame him.

No Difference

"I do not see any difference between those who advocate the supremacy of the yellow and black races over the white and those who strive for the supremacy of the white race over the black and yellow."

Who said that?

Some segregationist in the Southern States trying to hide a policy of white supremacy behind a curtain of reasonable words?

Or was it some liberal intellectual in one of the Western democracies, alarmed at this display of racial intolerance in liberated colonies?

No, it was neither. It was a communist, Soviet Russia's chief delegate to the recent Afro-Asian solidarity conference at Algiers.

Behind the observation, as one might have guessed, was the current inter-party struggle between the Russian and Chinese brands of communism. Russian accused the Chinese of propaganda "very much like the racist theory that was once carried out in Europe."

Nevertheless, his remarks serve two purposes. They remind us that the Russians, too, are white and that in any strife between the races they will be forced, by the colour of their skins, to stand with us. Secondly, they call our attention to what is almost certainly a development which will grow stronger before it recedes, a growing distrust by the colored races, black, brown and yellow, for the white man. The white man has earned this distrust. He has no real grounds for complaint. He will only be reaping what he has sown. Nevertheless, the world will be the worse for this reaction, for a belief in racial supremacy is a two-edged sword, which wounds him who wields it almost as much as it does the one against whom it is raised.

The actor, as long as he has been in existence, has been an extremely underrated person. The importance of his work measures up with the work of the doctor, of the psychologist, or even of the minister. I think his work is so important, because he is in the position of one who is able to teach the human heart the knowledge of itself.—Sir Laurence Olivier.

When budgetary restraint leads the Government to turn its back on new needs and new problems, economy becomes but another word for stagnation.—President Lyndon Johnson.

Ottawa Offbeat

No One Ready to Rock Boat, Least of All the Opposition

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Honorable Members — or at least a reasonably respectable majority of them — this week have been setting back, many wavering slightly embarrassed looks, into the comfortable old routine after what could only be described as The Strange Interlude of the Parliamentary-Recess-That-Never-Was.

Embarrassed because, altogether unwittingly they have confirmed the suspicions that a lot of the taxpayers held all along that nobody on Parliament Hill really wants to rock the political boat, much less force or even hint of a change of government.

Nobody, that is, save possibly that old and still fierce political soldier, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and some of his tried and trusted captains in the Commons.

The Opposition now has made it almost painfully plain that while the taxpayers may have felt they were electing them to stand up for Canadian nationality and democratically necessary job of opposing the Government nothing seems further from the hearts and minds of far too many of the Conservatives.

ALIENS

The New Democrats and the Socreds have made no secret of being cozy in the Government's corner.

Their votes on Opposition Want - of - Confidence motions has made that plain enough.

A couple of their Members have even gone so far as to publicly proclaim their Government support.

Real Caouette and his Creditistes, that haven't seemed able to make up their minds. Some times they've been with the Government, sometimes against it.

That left the Official Opposition to do the required job of Opposition — which is as it really should be, since "Splinter" parties, whether NDP or Socreds do little more than get in the way and complicate things.

This would have been correctly in the Parliamentary tradition, except that the Official Opposition finally seems to have openly confessed that it has not, is not and likely will not.

The chance came last week, during the Easter-Recess-That-Never - Was, and the Conservatives threw it away.

The Golden Years

Says $3,800 Better Than $12,000 If Retired Play It Right

By THOMAS COLLINS

Here is a man who insists he has found a better life on a $3,800-a-year pension than he had on a $12,000-a-year job.

He says any couple can do as well if they have average intelligence, and have the spunk to move when they retire.

His name is Rowland V. Young, a big town businessman. He has settled in a college town of just over 5,000 population. He tells how and why he did it:

"I didn't need an Ouija board to tell me that my wife and I weren't going to feel comfortable on $3,800 in the $12,000 way of life we had built up," he says. "I wasn't concerned about being embarrassed or old friends passing us up — that's a lot of nonsense at 65. I was just working arithmetic. A 66 per cent cut in income simply leaves you a cripple among the people and things you have been ..."

He says he and his wife decided they would move to a college town. "The reason for that was that a college town, even a small one, has a culture pretty much like a successful family has grown used to in a city. I'm talking of conversation and manners and such, not academic culture — I never got a college degree.

TO HIS CULTURE

"A retired man seeking a place where he'd feel comfortable — financially — on his $3,800 could go to a farm town or to a coal-mining town. But it wouldn't be his culture."

In selecting their college town the Youngs went to the pastor of their church for the names of colleges sponsored by their denomination in towns of less than 30,000 population. They figured a church college would cast a more peaceful spell over a town than a private college would, that the faculty would be less affluent, and that the religious atmosphere might be satisfying if religion became more important to them later on.

"In brief," says Mr. Young, "this is what I found with our $3,800:

"Cost 75 cents a round on the college course, as against $250 club dues back in the city; beer instead of Bourbon when we entertain, and sometimes just soft drinks; slacks, sports shirt, and any sort of jacket to go everywhere, instead of a $90 suit; a four-year-old foreign-make compact instead of a 1963 American sedan; a white frame cottage renting for $55 a month that your maid might live in back in the city, but here is much the same as the one next door where a Ph.D. Professor of History lives."

And this drastic cut in the cost of living, Mr. Young emphasizes, is among people of your own kind. "And since college faculty people come from substantial family backgrounds, they want more niceties than some small town people would, and they demand and get them — at a price they can pay."

In retiring to a college town of under 10,000 people, Mr. Young says the average retired couple from the city would expect to make their friends among the faculty. And would find them an interesting lot in the activity-tired people engage in the most — which is conversation. "Of course most of them are not educated people, as is commonly believed," Mr. Young explains. "They are specialists, highly trained in some particular field. But not educated people. They know whether King Tut had a wart on his left ear, and whether George Washington used pepper on his eggs. But they don't know who their M.P. is.

"Which is not so bad. You'd like to talk about geology. So you invite a geology professor to dinner. You just have to remember not to talk about anything else."

The Youngs say they are having fewer problems on their $3,800 than they did on the $12,000. They just don't think about money any more. The insurance is paid up. They see no need to save any longer. They are covered by health insurance. They need only to keep within their $77 a week, which isn't far from what everybody around them has to do. They feel comfortable.

"And I'll venture," Mr. Young concludes, "that we are getting more real satisfaction out of our professor friends, the college lectures and concerts, and the relaxed town ways than a retired millionaire is getting from his yacht off Palm Beach."

Honeymoon In Jail Cell

WARSAW, Ind. (AP) — A newly - married couple went separate ways Friday, sentenced to prison terms that could keep them apart for several years.

Michael G. Heathe, 20-year-old former army demolition expert, and his 20-year-old bride, the former Mary J. Clark, both of Muncie, Ind., were married Thursday night in the Kosciusko County jail. Then they were allowed to move into the same cell until their sentencing.

Friday, Circuit Judge Gene R. Lee sentenced Heathe to five to 10 years in the Indiana State Prison for a safe burglary in a supermarket. The bride drew one to 10 years in the Indiana Woman's Prison for theft.

Kennedy's Wife To Accompany Him to Canada

WASHINGTON (CP) — Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy will accompany her husband, the U.S. attorney-general, on his trip to Ottawa and Toronto April 14, the attorney - general's office announced Friday.

Mrs. Kennedy, mother of eight, has visited Canada a few times and first met Robert during a Christmas skiing jaunt at Mont Tremblant, Que., in 1944.

At Ottawa the attorney-general will be a luncheon guest of Justice Minister Favreau. Prime Minister Pearson is expected to attend. Mrs. Favreau will hold a separate luncheon for Mrs. Kennedy.

After the Ottawa visit, the Kennedys will fly to Toronto where the attorney-general will deliver an address at the annual dinner of The Canadian Press.

Interview
subject: electric heating

Mr. and Mrs. R. Simpson live in an electrically heated home in Glenburnie, near Kingston. The Simpsons are one of many families recently interviewed throughout Ontario to discover their personal opinions of electric heating. Here are their comments:

ELECTRIC HEATING IS CLEAN

"I've certainly noticed the difference from other types of heating. In our other houses there was always a kind of grimy dust. There's none of that with electric heating."

INDIVIDUAL ROOM THERMOSTATS PROVIDE COMPLETE COMFORT

"I can keep the youngsters' rooms a little warmer than average, and our bedroom on the cool side so everybody's comfortable. When we're going to take a bath we just turn the bathroom thermostat up."

THE AIR IS NEVER TOO DRY WITH ELECTRIC HEATING

"We are very comfortable here. The air is never too dry. In our other house we had to keep a container of water on top of the rad."

ELECTRIC HEATING COSTS NO MORE THAN OTHER SYSTEMS

"It's no more than we would pay with other systems without the comfort of electric heating. From September 1st until March of this year our bill for electric heating was only $146. When you consider that we are heating 1,500 square feet, and a basement, that's really something."

Electrically-heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. Flameless electric heating is clean, safe and offers the convenience of room-by-room temperature control. With all its advantages, is it any wonder so many people throughout Ontario are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system.

Electric heating is one of the many comfort features of the famous Medallion all-electric homes. For information, consult a qualified electric heating contractor or your Hydro.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME
If you are planning home extensions or if parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

A Lift for Living

Trouble Shakes Us Like Sieve But God Still Unfrightened

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

When I was a little lad I loved to watch my father mix concrete. He had been a carpenter in his youth and always retained his liking for building. He constructed our garage, remodeled our house, laid a new floor in our basement and laid new sidewalks where they were needed on our lot. Always there seemed to be some concrete at work to do. Trucks moved into our driveway, hauling gravel, sand, and bags of cement. Dad then attached the garden hose to an outside faucet for a plentiful water supply, and he brought the big sieve out of storage. This sieve he had built from screen mesh nailed to a wooden frame. Then Dad sometimes let me shake the sieve while he poured gravel onto it. All the little particles fell through the mesh and into the mixing tub while the bigger pebbles remained on top of the screen, separated from the rest of the material. Dad then mixed the fine gravel with the sand and cement and with water from the garden hose, thus forming the concrete he needed for sidewalks, basement, or garage floor.

When an earthquake hit our hemisphere a few days ago I remembered shaking that sieve and seeing the little grains of gravel disappear beneath the screen and the larger ones remaining upon it. Last Good Friday's disastrous earthquake destroyed houses, demolished businesses and split schools in two in Anchorage, almost extinguished nearby Seward, brought havoc to Kodiak and to a town as far away as Crescent, California. Railroad tracks were twisted, gas pipes, water mains and power lines were broken. Worst of all, many lives were lost.

SUN STILL SHINES

Nevertheless, today's tides will ebb and flow; today's sun and tonight's stars will shine in Alaska and California, as well as elsewhere. The seasons will continue to change from winter to mild springtime and sunny summer, to mellow ripe autumn and back to winter again.

When our world is badly shaken we can count on some things remaining secure. For one thing there will always remain some discernible order in nature. We can count on that. This world is not haphazard, but designed — constructed with an organization that reaches from this tiny earth to the farthest star. The more scientists have penetrated the secrets of the natural world, the more order they have discovered.

As long as man remains here this, too, will remain: man's seeking for something before which he can bow, something that will command his life and such he can trust. When a man is found that something, it will always become his Absolute, his God, whether it is money, security, popularity, fame, the state, or the Supreme Goodness revealed through Jesus Christ. No disaster has ever put an end to man's persistent seeking for an authority, power and goodness that transcend his own. Instead, trouble heightens the earnestness of the search. Man's craving for God remains unshaken after every convulsive event.

And God, the Answer to man's heart-hunger, still lives. Arthur Hugh Clough, a minor nineteenth century English poet, cited a major truth after having lived through turbulent times. He watched the awesome clash of nations at war, the awful devastation wrought by the truculence of man and the afflictions of nature. His life was plagued by uncertainties. Nevertheless he prayed,

"It fortifies my soul to know
That though I perish, Truth is so:
That howsoe'er I stray and range,
Whate'er I do, Thou dost not change.
I steadier step when I recall,
That, if I slip, Thou dost not fall."

God still lives. He is unshaken, unfrightened. He has plans and is competent and in charge of things.

Trouble shakes us like a sieve, and earth's events jolt us like an earthquake. But such unsettling agitations are revelations. They declare the values that last — the essential order above life's seeming disorder, man's abiding need for God and God's everlasting readiness to rescue and redeem man.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

Question—We ate out at a restaurant and had parsnips with some sort of glaze and they tasted nice and sweet. My husband asked me to make them sometime, but I don't know how. Could you help? —C. S.

Answer—Yours is a good question.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Oxtail Soup; Cornmeal Muffins; Cold Plate: Tomato Aspic, Chived Cottage Cheese, Dill Spears, Celery Curls, Ripe Olives; Cream Puffs; Tea.

GLAZED PARSNIPS

Note—same method may be used for carrots. A good change is to use half and half parsnips and carrots, for they look so attractive together in your vegetable dish.

Wash 6 medium parsnips and pare them with vegetable peeler. Cut into halves lengthwise. If some parsnips are too large cut them into quarters lengthwise. Cook in a small amount of salted water until they begin to get tender —about 12 minutes. (Do not overcook or they will break in the next step.) Drain well.

Over fairly high heat melt ¼ cup butter with 2 tablespoons light brown sugar and 1 teaspoon grilling flakes. Carefully add drained parsnips and using a pancake turner, turn them almost constantly in the glaze, for about 5 minutes, until they become an even golden brown. These are delicious and an economical vegetable to serve at a dinner party.

Note—In the February 21st column a letter from Constance M. J. asked me for a recipe for Scalloped Potatoes which would not curdle. I gave my standard recipe but subsequently several readers sent their favorite non-curdling scalloped potato method. Mrs. A. J. said, "Put sliced raw potatoes in very hot water, let stand until cool, then proceed. Never let boil or they will not curdle even with high temperature."

NON-CURDLING
SCALLOPED POTATOES
(courtesy Lorna G.)

2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons salt ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups sliced potatoes, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Melt butter in large saucepan, stir in flour and salt, then add milk slowly, stirring until thickened to sauce. Add potatoes and heat, stirring, until the sauce boils again. Turn into a greased casserole. Drizzle melted butter over. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes, or until potatoes are done.

Lorna G. adds "This has worked for me for 10 years and I came from Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Ontario and Alberta."

Answer—Thank you, Lorna, and Mrs. A. J. and all others who sent in help with Scalloped Potato making.

FROM THE HOLY LAND

(conclusion)

"Though it may be unessential to the imagination, travel is necessary to the understanding of men."
—Freya Stark.

"At the ulpan (school) we have alternate weeks of five hours work in the morning and three hours class in the afternoon, then four hours class in the morning and three hours work in the afternoon," continues Mary Boyce of Trenton in letters to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Boyce, described her visit to Israel and her experience in the kibbutz (communal community) at Ramat.

"This being the winter season, we have 7:30 or 7:45 A.M., and 1:00 or 2:00 P.M. in the summer, work begins at 5:00 or 5:30 in the mornings and I don't know what hours in the afternoon. Needless to say, such a schedule is hard to adjust to. The work is often physically exhausting.

"I have done a variety of tasks: picking lemons and grapefruits; sawing down trees, pruning (quite tense) working in the laundry; taking clothes to the washer, to the spin dryer, to the hanger, to the ironer. Hanging up sheets for — six people; transplanting flowers; ironing shirts.

"I went through the dairy and sheep pens and chicken sheds last week for people in the three places were very nice and glad to answer questions.

"Sarid has citrus which produces 1,000,000 litres (a litre is nearly a quart) of milk per year. About 2700 litres per day in winter and 2600 litres per day in summer (I don't know why the difference). It takes five hours to milk all the cows, —1. e. 15 hours per day. There is special music on Voice of Israel during milking times; I don't know what's so special about it, except that it all has a steady and unconced rhythm.

"Unsteady and surprisingly, we never eat butter — it's too lucrative a product and goes entirely to market. Lots of milk, though, including goats milk. Sheep's milk goes for yogart).

"They have various shops here. They make ready-to-order work boots for the members; produce all their own work shirts and coats, also jackets. Those goods are not for sale. Only for home consumption. There is also a machine shop, carpentry shop, electrical repair shop, etc., for their own use.

"Sarid is one of the most prosperous kibbutzim in the country; began in 1927 on some of the best land in Israel, although it once was swampy and full of where the living area is, sheer limestone.

"There is citrus and deciduous fruit (oranges, tangerines, lemons, bananas, apples, pears, olives (black) poultry (meat and eggs), cattle (meat and milk), sheep (wool and meat) goats (milk) and grindstone factory (their monopoly).

"I counted an average of 400 to a tree while picking lemons! Citrus fruits don't rot on the trees. They can be picked whenever is convenient. I have yet to see a rotten grapefruit except that the birds have already eaten out — no matter how high the tree or dense the branches. One morning every thing I picked grapefruit is, that they have small green stems which must be cut with pliers, for they are covered with very, very sharp thorns. When they are filled our sacks, we unload them into boxes, about 4'x4'x4' in size which the tractor takes away. When the boxes are loaded by hand, they are usually young-looking and physically able. Even middle-aged women can handle boxes and pickers the lighter fruit. There are almost no jobs on the kibbutz that don't involve some manual labor.

"All work here goes on, no matter what the weather, unless it rains in torrents. One works six days a week unless very sick. Most Israelis work a six day week of 40-48 hours. Women usually wear slacks all the time — the better to work in. Everyone but the physically or mentally unsound, spend a few years in the army, from age 18, unless they come to Israel later in life (up to age 40).

"This applies to both men and women, except for women with children. Every man and woman who has been in the army, no matter what trade, can handle a heavy rifle and a submachine gun at least.

"The kibbutzniks get only one week off per year, and after ten years on a well-to-do one like this, they get a two month vacation in Europe or, if they have a family there, in the United States.

"We are indeed indebted to Mary for such excellent glimpses of life in Israel; on this, but such as Sarid; for her impressions and descriptions of places she visited. We again thank Mr. and Mrs. Boyce who kindly made her letters available to this column, and we hope we may hear more from time to time.

Meanwhile, very best wishes to you, Mary, as you continue on with your interesting quest of Israel.

Going Places

Nature's Island of Madeira Place of Profound Loveliness

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

FUNCHAL, MADEIRA — The last of the boats bearly bobbed in the evening swells, dark lights from the S.S. Constitution spot, lighting their cargoes of flowered handbags and costumed dolls.

Beyond, only the firefly lights of the night fishing boats, harbor and mountainsides were visible now. "Okay, lady, one dollar!" shouted the last of the salesmen in desperation, and he slid a three-dollar handbag up a makeshift line.

The Constitution tooted haughtily and moved sidesaw slow on her way out of the harbor. Even the liner seemed reluctant to leave.

Madeira lies some 500 miles southwest of Portugal in the Atlantic, about as isolated and untrammeled as an island can be these days. At the moment, the nearest airport is at Porto Santo, a four-hour boat trip away. Except for the odd cruise ship, which brings out as many locals to gawk at the tourists as vice versa, hardly anyone comes here save that most ubiquitous of travelers, the well-heeled finders, the British tripper.

There are no licensed guides, for example, and nobody knows how to route the visitor through the favorite hand-embroidered tablecloth factory and wine cellar. Taxis range from 1936 Dodges to sleek Mercedes Cadillac touring cars; how they ever found their way here is something that will forever remain a mystery.

FAVORED BY NATURE

Yet the quaintness of Madeira is little more than a sidelight. A hundred factors have all favored by nature as few places on earth are, it is a place of such profound loveliness that it leaves most visitors shaking their heads in disbelief.

It may be the most fertile island on earth. Azalea and rhododendron bushes grow like trees. Poinsettias are planted for windbreaks. Bougainvillaea covers every fence; beds to discourn grass trash dumpers. Kids throw flowers instead of snowballs at passing cars.

Lillies, camellias, trumpet-roses, begonias, gladioli, bird of paradise, mangoes, papays, avocado, oranges, whole forests of mimosa, and bananas grow in such profusion that it is difficult for farmers to set aside vineyard space.

Everybody cultivates grapes for the famed Madeira wine. Land is so scarce that cattle graze in herds. Soil often is brought from house excavations for spreading on the slopes.

Madeira is so steeply mountainous that hardly overgrown that until recently many areas were as isolated as Shangri-La. Like the fabled Shangri-La men of yesterday were accessible only by foot across turnpike-trails, and many of their products down by hand, taking five hours to Funchal; the elderly and ill were carried by precarious chairs in hammocks supported by poles slung over shoulders.

TOBOGGAN SLIDES

There was one other means of getting down-mountain (but not up), an ingenious and unique method which survives today in the form of Madeira's most distinctive tourist attraction.

At one time wooden runners were laid down from the farms to the nearest public places, and the produce slid down in basket sledges. Today the sledges have been modified to accommodate two or three tourists and are guided down slippery cobbled streets with ropes by arawhad-ted runners in goatskin boots with tire-treed soles.

The trip begins at the scenic pinnacle town of Monte, and is a hair-raising half-hour ride during which the sledlined by wooden runners flash sparks and smoke. The sleds achieve speeds of 40 miles an hour at times, flashing by bemused citizens hanging out the flowered windows of adobe houses.

This bobsled-on-cobblestones is not for the faint of heart. But it is exciting, and about the only feasible way to see some of the steep back alleys of Funchal.

At the end of the ride sailors an opportunity to sample Madeira's other distinctive means of transportation, a ride in a gaily decorated sleigh drawn by a lumbering bullock.

To see the route of the basket ride, the place is the 1,000-foot elevation of Pico dos Barcelos outside of town. From here the hillside sprawl of Funchal, its overshadowing black - green peaks and its lovely bay-harbor, make a spectacular sight by day. At night the lights of the fishing boats turn the bay into a moving panorama of twinkling stars.

UNTOUCHED WORLD

A few miles northwest of Funchal is a dramatically different and even more untouched world. The road passes by the shoreline hotels into the countryside, where caves for wine storage have been cut into the sides of mountain faces. Massive wooden doors with brass locks seal the entrances. Overlooking the area is the vertical bluff of Cabo Girao, said to be the second highest sheer cliff in the world.

Half-forgotten villages are tucked into the mountains above, their terraced vineyards dropping off sharply towards the sea. Reached only by a single road into the hamlet of Camara de Lobos, its tiny harbor and beach densely cluttered with fishing boats unchanged in style from Phoenician times. Winston Churchill spent many hours painting the scene.

It is a curiously timeless place. On a rocky beach below the seawall women scrub their clothes and lay them out to dry. Barefoot fishermen mend their nets in the fish auction market, and clusters of white stone houses climb the rugged hillsides above.

Distant farmhouses' waterwheels still work and bread is baked over pine needle fires. Radio for Funchal, there are few cars, no television, no restaurants, and the citizens keep prosperous and happy making table cloths and wine for the world.

Anyone for getting away from it all? Sarid, Israel, or Madeira?

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Beware the nonchalant, but still irritating, little habits that put others' teeth on edge. Here are but a few that may become quite annoying, especially to a hostess. Are you guilty of any of these maddenesses? If so, you:

1. Put your feet on furniture upholstery or the rungs of chairs?

2. Place wet glasses on wood surfaces?

3. Tender dangerously on side chairs by tilting back on two legs?

4. Douse cigarettes on dinner plates or in the nearest vase or flower pot?

5. Get lipstick all over expensive dinner napkins and linen guest towels?

6. Sit on the arms of sofas and chairs?

7. Toss cocktail napkins, cigarette butts and other debris into the empty fireplace?

8. Crumble or scrape chairs along the floor when sitting down or getting up from the dinner table?

9. When it's raining, walk straight into the living room without removing rubbers first, and dropping a damp coat on the nearest chair?

10. Idly pick up decorative, and often valuable, items from shelves without being careful about how you handle them?

Neighbors' Aid Holds Meeting At Avondale

Mrs. Dawson Maclean, the president, was hostess to the April meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid, and opened the meeting with a poem. Margaret Weddy gave the devotional, on the theme of Christian duties. There were 19 members present, and two visitors.

Margery Hall touched on the life of the hymnist, Frances Havergal. She had learned to love and serve early in life and felt her talents should be used to lead others to Christ. She was the author of the hymn "Take my life and let it be."

Olive Mercer gave the report from the County Home auxiliary, and reminded the members of their visiting dates were May 17th to 23rd. For roll call each member spoke on what a mother of the lady on her left, which proved amusing.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing progressive euchre with Kay Lagace winning the first prize.

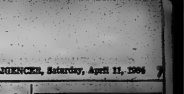
Nifty sweets and a cup of tea were served by the hostesses, Ethel Day, Barbara Angel, and Shirley Griffith.

Church Groups

ST. THOMAS W.C.T.

The April meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held on Wednesday with the president Mrs. M. F. L. Jones in the chair.

It was decided to present $500 to the church wardens for current expenses and to save towards improvement project in the Parish Hall.



Members were asked to give their support to the 1st Cub and Scout Bridge and euchre in April, to contribute baking for the V.O.N. and attend some of the sessions of the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Ontario to be held in St. Thomas Church May 5th and 6th.

The month of April Mrs. H. Alford took charge of the meeting and presented an enjoyable program by the pupils of the Esther Hughes School of Ballet accompanied by Mrs. A. C. Miller.

Refreshments were served in the lower hall at which time Mrs. John Pringle presented a going away gift to the Reverend D. W. Sinclair and Mrs. Sinclair on behalf of the members.

Thanks were expressed to Mrs. Alford, Mrs. H. Hornsey, Mrs. J. F. Gill, Mrs. Wm. Page and Mrs. R. S. Rutherford for arranging a most enjoyable evening.

WHYTE—GARIEPY

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Tabernacle United Church on Saturday, April 4, 1956, when Sharon Ruth Gariepy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville A. Gariepy, Belleville, was united in marriage to Murray Eugene Whyte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Whyte, Boulter, Ontario. The Rev. M. G. McFarlane, minister of the church, officiated before a background of white snapdragons and mums.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mr. Alec Gordon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Melville Gariepy, wore a waltz length gown of white nylon over taffeta and net, with the bodice featuring a square neckline outlined with seed pearls and rhinestones, dipping to a point at back where a fly-away panel fell from a bow and long lilypoint sleeves. The skirt was highlighted with an appliqued apron of lace. Her shoulder-length veil flowed from a floral headdress of three roses and stephaliotis, dotted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white rosebuds interspersed with stephanotis and tulle.

The maid of honor, Miss Wendy Brown of Foxboro, was attired in blue nylon over pet taffeta dress with short lace jacket. She wore a matching headdress with three garden lilies and tulle veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white mums. Miss Donna Allin and Miss Jeanette Wilson, as bridesmaids, were identically dressed but in pink over taffeta with matching long jackets. Each carried a bouquet of blue and white mums.

Mr. Richard Reid of Stirling, was groomsman, while Mr. Lewis Whyte and Mr. Wayne Gariepy of Belleville, were the ushers.

The reception for approximately 70 guests was held in the church auditorium where the bride's table was most attractive, centred with a three-tier wedding cake and flanked with tapering candles in crystal candelabras and vases of yellow daffodils.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a three piece pink linen suit, white and black patent accessories and a corsage of white and blue tinted carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a beige ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of white and pink tinted carnations.

For the wedding trip to points east the bride chose a blue linen jumper, with fern lene blouse, beige tweed jacket topcoat, flowered hat, beige accessories and a corsage of yellow and white rosebuds.

Guests were present from Boulter, Foxboro, Oshawa, Welland, Fort Erie, Kitchener, Tilsonburg and Wilson, New York.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Miss Donna Allin with the co-hostesses Miss Wendy Brown and Miss Jeanette Wilson. The bride was also entertained at a presentation by the Dietary Department of the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Whyte will reside in Oshawa.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By CEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WELLINGTON — Ask any burgher of this well-watered village what is the best hockey team in the world and you won't hear Leafs, Canadiens, Red Wings or Black Hawks.

He or she will stick out their chests and tell you "We've not only got the best team in the world—but the second best as well."

Right here where I took my first apple to the teacher before the bogies blew the Crimean War cease-fire, they have a juvenile-junior club that has set an all-Ontario hockey precedent.

They're a bunch of village-bred youngers who started out a few years ago as tykes and graduated cumsuch to the peewee, bantam, midget and juvenile divisions.

Last year they tucked away the first OMHA championship to come to the county that is attached to the mainland for medicine, duty and sometimes infatuement.

They accepted the OMHA Juvenile "D" O. J. Hardwick Memorial Trophy with the proviso they keep it for two years. They meant what they said; they promptly went out and won it again this year.

Due to a strange quirk in OMHA-OHA regulations the Dukes juveniles moved up into more powerful company, the OHA junior "D" division. It could be they have bitten off a little more than they could chew, as to speak, for their first encounter was the strong Stouffville aggregation, a club that is plentifully garnished with junior "A" potential.

The young Dukes were defeated in overtime battles the first two outings. They played the third game at home last night and won it 6-5.

The powerful youngsters have been a credit to themselves, their village, county and officials, Manager Don Baitley and Coach Allan Pettingill.

The tireless younkers have played 38 games already this season. They played nine playoff games in 15 nights. They won their first five juvenile playoff battles without a goal being scored against them. Their record was 16 goals for as for one against. They registered five straight shutouts against Warkworth, Little Britain, Nobleford, Blyth and Belmont. Campbellford was the only club to defeat them.

They won the Trent Valley Junior "D" crown before going on to take their second OMHA juvenile "D" title.

They annexed their group title against such clubs as Trenton, Gananoque, Picton, Napanee.

And bringing further honors to the village is a fine young midget crew who won the title in the OMHA finals and they now meet Belmont under the able coaching of veteran "Dutch" Ainsworth and manager Lous Cunneali.

This season will see the actions of the juvenile chain pious as a team since a nad dozen or so have reached the age limit and must seek a higher category next season.

"It is doubtful," Manager Baitley said, "that the club will go junior "D" another year. "We will recruit from the midget ranks and hope to bring back a third straight juvenile 'D' title to the village.

The installation of artificial ice in the village arena this season was a boon to all the clubs. It was an all-out community effort with villagers and "outside" neighbors putting their shoulders to the wheel both financially and physically to assure the hockey teams of permanent ice facilities.

Forced to Forfeit

Season Over For 'Dogs'

WINDSOR — The 1968 hockey season for the International Hockey League Windsor Bulldogs is over. Bulldogs were advised, otherwise at game time, accepted his request had been granted. Thirty minutes before the game started he received a telegram from Multigan that Ryder was not eligible to play. Since Ryder had started the game, Windsor continued to play him anyway.

"We're still hoping the league might change its mind, said Kimmerly. "But there isn't much hope. It's a rotten way to bow out."

Kimmerly said he sought league permission to play Ryder, and, when he was not forced to forfeit last Wednesday night's game with Fort Wayne Comets. Windsor won the series 3-2, with the deciding game scheduled for Fort Wayne tonight.

Team manager Jim Kimmerly said the forfeiture was ordered by league commissioner Andy Mulligan in upholding a Fort Wayne protest.

Mulligan said Windsor used an ineligible player, Norm Ryder of Long Island who was replacing injured defenceman Terry McGuire. Fort Wayne, which was required to give 175 sanction for use of his player, did not do so.

Wings Underdogs In Stanley Series

By TOM MITCHELL

Howe Signs New Kind Of Contract

Hockey, ace Gordie Howe, has been signed to a new, two-year contract by The T. Eaton Co. Limited.

The Detroit Red Wings' star right winger was named Sports Equipment Adviser to the company's extensive chain of stores and Canada - wide catalogue division in an agreement announced by Eaton's in Toronto.

The agreement, believed to be the first ever undertaken on a long term basis in Canada between a sporting personality and a major retail firm, gives Eaton's exclusive North American rights to the use of Howe's name and services in connection with the selection and merchandising of its top line sporting goods and associated sports apparel.

Howe, who during his 18 years in professional hockey has been voted Canadian athlete most valuable player six times and N.H.L. all-star team forward fourteen times, and is the holder of many other hockey records was the unanimous choice of Eaton buyers and merchandise managers across the country for the appointment.

PROTECT STORES

People in many French and German cities built rooftop nests for white storks, probably the most popular bird in continental Europe.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs are favored to take their final series with Detroit Red Wings and the Stanley Cup but the odds would appear to be against the Leafs duplicating the feat they accomplished during the regular National Hockey League season.

That's blunting Gordie Howe, the great Detroit right winger.

Big Gordie served adequate notice during the wings semi-final series against Chicago Black Hawks that he is even better than usual when the chips are down. He picked up 11 points as the Wings won in seven games in one half of the two oddsmakers that brought the "underdogs" into the final for hockey's biggest trophy.

That made him the greatest point-getter in NHL playoff history—132 points to 131 for former Montreal Canadiens star Maurice Richard. Howe's six assists for the Wings, fourth place finishers at season's end, put him on top in lifetime standings in that department with 79.

But the oddsmakers favor the Leafs, in third place after regular play, in the best-of-seven final that opens in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight.

...A DISTINCTIVE NUMBER

For Howe not only held Howe secretes during the season. They had a solid edge against the Wings both in home and away—a 4-2-1 margin on Olympia ice and a 4-1-2 margin at home.

The Wings and the Leafs, who took the other half of the semi-final by knocking off Montreal, first-place finishers during the season, both emerged in relatively good shape from the gruelling semi-finals left some marks.

After Thursday night's game in Chicago against the season runner-ups, it looked as though Detroit might lose the services of netminder Terry Sawchuk, who sat out the third period, and left wing Larry Jeffrey. But reports from the Wings hotel here were that both would be ready to go tonight.

Sawchuk left the game after being flattened by Reg Fleming's charge. Jeffrey also left in the third period victim of a thumping check by Wayne Hillman, after suffering a mild concussion.

Both said they had headache reminders of the punishment they were ready. The Wings sent Roger Crozier, who filled in for Sawchuk in the third period, back to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League. However, he'll be standing by tonight just in case.

"We have a few injuries," coach Sid Abel said. "but nothing to keep them out. I felt all along that the Hawks had the roughest team in the league. We had a ... series."

LOOKING FOR HELMET

Abel said he was looking for a helmet for Jeffrey but noted the left winger was reluctant to wear one because "it makes you have slip." He may try one similar to that worn by Leaf veteran Red Kelly. ...

The Leafs held a light-hearted workout Friday and the only absentees were Kelly, a workhorse for Toronto in the Montreal series, and defenceman Carl Brewer.

Kelly was given the day off by coach Punch Imlach so that the MP could visit his other leader, Prime Minister Pearson, in Ottawa. Brewer, who took a cracking check from Terry Harper in the final game in Montreal Thursday, was excused for a medical check-up and a clean bill of health.

Forecasters are picking the Leafs to win about as they did against Detroit last year, when they wrapped it up in five. They picked the Leafs to beat Montreal against Detroit during the season and give them the edge in the Chicago series.

But nobody's betting that Gordie Howe will be blanked.

Were Under-Rated By Hawks

Wings Defeated "5 All-Stars"

Chicago Black Hawks probably will place five men on the National Hockey League all-star team. Detroit Red Wings are a cinch not to place one.

Hawks finished second in the league, a point out of first.

Wings were fourth, 13 points back and for a while in mid-season appeared dangerously close to slipping right out of the playoff picture.

Yet tonight Wings are at Maple Leaf Gardens to start their Stanley Cup challenge against the two-time champion Toronto Maple Leafs!

Why?

"Hawks depend too much on five men," defenceman Doug Barkley declared. "We know we don't have many superstars, so we all pitch in. We've got 18 players working, not just five."

"All star team?" Bill Gadsby asked. "Means nothing."

For some strange reason, Hawks apparently didn't have to beat Detroit—a team which on paper didn't figure to have much chance against them in a short series.

"It's hackneyed," coach Sid Abel admitted, "but my guys simply wanted to win more than they did."

"We hustled, they didn't," added Gordie Howe.

"We had more determination," rookie Paul Henderson suggested.

As skaters, Hawks are too slow, perhaps the slowest of the six teams in the National League.

"Their fans wanted them to hit us," Marcel Pronovost pointed out. "But they had too much trouble trying to catch us."

The biggest factor contributing to Wings' success was that they were able to forecheck Hawks into disorganization in the Chicago end of the rink often enough to keep the big guns from firing accurately.

Hawks set an NHL penalty record, but against Wings they rarely exhibited the muscle they allegedly possess.

And, of course, Hawks very obviously underrated Detroit.

"Sure we did," one anonymous veteran said. "And don't bet Leafs won't do it too. You Toronto guys say they won't get another series like this out of Gadsby and Pronovost.

"Wait, Leafs have a couple like that too, Stanley's 38. Horton's 34."

The assessment from the Chicago executive suite was this:

Coach Billy Reay: "I think we may have left a little of our game in that stretch drive for first place Mitts had some bad games early in the series. Hull didn't have the same bounce. And Kenny Wharram was the same way."

Tommy Ivan, general manager: "I guess we don't have enough balance for a playoff series. We have to get more guys sharing the scoring. It's too concentrated. When one guy slumps, it hurts too much."

Owner Jim Norris: I wanted first place more than anything else. After all, no Chicago team has ever made it. I told the players that. Any talks I had with Billy and Tommy were along those lines. Maybe we spent our playoff effort trying to achieve it."

Stop Stouffville
Wellington Juniors Win

WELLINGTON (Special) — Wellington Dukes blew a two-goal third period lead but came roaring back to snatch a 5-4 victory over Stouffville Clippers here in a last-night before 1000 rooting fans.

Stouffville leads the best-of-five OHA Junior "D" championship series two games to one. The fourth game is slated for Stouffville on Monday night. Both Stouffville wins in the series have been by one-goal margins. Wellington experienced, but game, Dukes continue to battle every inch of the way.

Wellington opened up a 2-1 first-period lead last night and Dukes added to their score frame markers to leave the home club with a 5-3 lead going into the third period.

The Clippers lost little time in tying the game, striking for a pair of quickies less than a minute apart early in the period. Hood notched one at 3.21 and Brown made it 5-4 at 3.21.

Wellington battled hard to keep it tied until 9.30 of the period. Larry Poschman then triggered what proved to be the deciding goal, on a pass from Gallagher, with the fans roaring their approval. The Dukes continued to press and never gave Stouffville a chance to muster any kind of sustained attack over the final ten minutes.

Poschman had scored one earlier goal and also two assists for Wellington, while starry Don McNeill bagged a goal and three assists as setups. Bill Gallagher got a goal and two assists while Robert Bailey and Garry Leander also scored. Bryant, Lavender, and Dick also collected assists.

Ross Brown netted two Stouffville markers, while one each went to Hood, Kaleus and Reaser.

The visitors drew 11 of the game's 14 penalties.

Goalie Pete De Bryn, of Wellington, came up with another big performance, especially in the winner's nets, while Glen Jackson at the other end also played well.

East And West

Allan Cuppers Cut to 5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The list of Allan Cup contenders was cut to five Friday as Woodstock Athletics and Saskatoon Quakers advanced into the final rounds in Eastern and Western playoffs.

The Athletics with stood a brief third - period flurry by Bowyn - Norands Alouettes to take a 6-2 decision and the best-of-seven eastern series 4-1.

Saskatoon duplicated the feat of Winnipeg Maroons, the other Western finalist, by edging Kimberley, B.C., Dynamiters 4-3 to take their best-of-seven series in four games. Winnipeg disposed of Fort William Bearcats in straight games earlier.

The other Eastern semi-final still has a game to go. Ottawa Montagnards won a 5-4 overtime decision over Windsor, N.S. Maple Leafs Friday in Ottawa to grab a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five series.

Ottawa could wrap it up tonight.

Windsor blew a 3-0 lead in the third period Friday, but rallied to tie the score 4-4 with less than two minutes remaining to send the game into overtime.

SCORES IN OVERTIME

Chester Konecezny, a last minute addition from Morrisburg Combines of the Ottawa - St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League, broke into the clear and beat the 7:13 mark of the extra period.

Duane Beedle, with two assists on the deciding goal, was the hero of the game. Goalie Jim Corsi, with the fans roaring their approval. The Dukes continued to press and never gave Stouffville a chance to muster any kind of sustained attack over the final ten minutes.

Poschman had scored one earlier goal and also two assists for Wellington, while starry Don McNeill bagged a goal and three assists as setups. Bill Gallagher got a goal and two assists while Robert Bailey and Garry Leander also scored. Bryant, Lavender, and Dick also collected assists.

Ross Brown netted two Stouffville markers, while one each went to Hood, Kaleus and Reaser.

The visitors drew 11 of the game's 14 penalties.

Goalie Pete De Bryn, of Wellington, came up with another big performance, especially in the winner's nets, while Glen Jackson at the other end also played well.

TKO's Argentine

Pastrano Wins In Fifth

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 1½ inch cut made a dream come true for light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano and ended one for Argentina's Gregorio Peralta.

It was the gash over Peralta's left eye that gained Pastrano a sixth-round technical knockout over the challenger in their 15-round title fight in Municipal Auditorium Friday night.

The TKO may result in another New Orleans title scrap with Pastrano taking on Sonny Olson, the former middleweight ruler now engaged in a successful comeback campaign as a 175-pounder.

"I've been dreamed of winning a championship fight in New Orleans (his home town) and now I've done it," said the jubilant Pastrano. "Now I'd like to fight here again, maybe against Bo BoOlson or Harold Johnson, or whoever Angelo says."

"My dream is lost," moaned Peralta, the handsome contender who had hoped to become the first South American to win the world's light heavyweight championship.

COULD HAVE STAYED

"I could have continued, I was just getting stronger. The cut wasn't bother me too much. It's just bad luck."

Pastrano, leading going into the fourth round of the spirited scrap, ripped open the gash early in the fourth and kept peppering it in the rest of the round and in the fifth.

Dr. A. J. Italiano, the ring physician, inspected the cut after the fourth and fifth rounds. After the fifth he told referee Pete Giarrusso to end it. Under Louisiana commission rules it was recorded as a sixth-round TKO.

Giarusso had it even in rounds 2-3-4. The two judges had Pastrano ahead. The Associated Press gave Peralta the last three rounds and had him ahead, 3-2.

The defeat was Peralta's first in nearly four years and ended his unbeaten streak at 20. His record is 20-4-4. Pastrano, making the first defence of the title he won from Johnson last June 1, has a 62-12-3 record.

Cowan Lone Canadian Survivor

Palmer Leads By Four Strokes

By JIM BECKER

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Now Arnie's army has an air force.

It burned the Augusta National golf course while Arnold Palmer burned it down below. When the all clear sounded Friday, Palmer had a commanding four-stroke lead after 36 holes of the Masters tournament.

Only a highly unlikely tall spin in the last two rounds can keep Palmer from an unprecedented fourth Masters victory.

Palmer mounted one of his fabled charges on the back nine of the 6,365-yard course while a churning mass of fans swept him along. The 34-year-old golf millionaire ripped off four birdies on the last six holes and finished with a four-under-par 68.

Added to his opening-round 69, it gave him a halfway total of 137, four strokes ahead of Gary Player of South Africa.

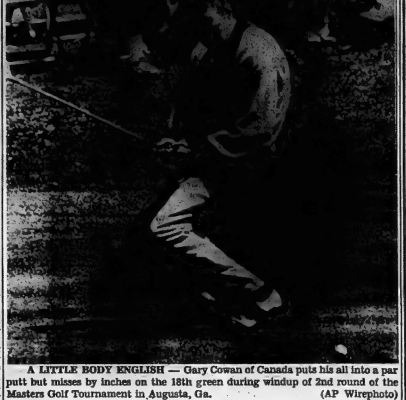
Player, even with Palmer in the five-man traffic jam for the lead after the first round, had par 72 for 141.

Gene Littler, former U.S. Open champion, and Don January, a 34-year-old pro who has never won an important title, were tied for third at 142.

LEMA SIX BACK

Champagne Tony Lema, who also had a 68 Friday, stood at 143, six shots behind Palmer, along with British Open champion Bob Charles, Dave Marr and Don Finsterwald.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus played the long par three poorly and finished with a 73 for 144, seven strokes back.



Eleven other players also had 144, including three-time winner Jimmy Demaret and amateur Billy Joe Patton.

The field was cut to the low 44 players and ties. It took 148 to make it.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener was the only Canadian to survive the cut. His opening-round 71 and a 77 Friday left him just inside the cutoff point at 148.

Canadians who didn't make it were Al Balding of Toronto, 75-75—150, Nick Weslock of Toronto, 73-78—151, and Vancouver's Stan Leonard, 77-76—153.

A two-engine plane circled the course trailing a streamer with big red letters reading: "Go, Arnie, go."

Pop's Faith Never Shaken

TIMMINS — There were times in the Toronto-Montreal semi-final series when it looked as if the Leafs would not make the final round.

But there's one Timmins fan who claims he never doubted the strength of the Leafs and a mouth ago booked his holidays for the two weeks of the final series. He had seen the Leafs win the Stanley Cup the two previous seasons and looking forward to being a spectator in Toronto and Detroit during the Cup battle.

He's Ere chief William Stanley, father of Allan, veteran defenceman with the Leafs. He says he remained confident even after the game in which Allan gave away a pass to Henri Richard which the Montreal burned into a winning goal.

A Bungalow With "ROOM TO SPARE"
"THE FREMONT"

For the family interested in the most house for the invested dollar, the Fremont fills the bill.
Notice if you will the large overhang and covered entrance way generally characteristic of only the most expensive models.
Probably the most sought after feature in any home, a centre hall, is a feature of this model. The centre hall affords entry to the house without direct entry to any room.
The large living room is accessible from one side of the centre hall, and kitchen dining area is from the opposite side.
The living room is so designed to provide the ultimate in wall space for furniture placement. More than adequate lighting is provided by the large patent double glazed picture window.
The kitchen is of practical California design with ample cupboard area and large dining area. The basement is entered through the kitchen and provides for future rec. room.
The three airy bedrooms are found at the rear of the house in complete privacy from the living area.
The bath is ceramic tiled and has vanity.
Comfort, utility, and privacy of areas are combined to the utmost to make the Fremont the house for the prudent purchaser seeking the modest home.

Hart's Bat Sparks Giants To 7-0 Win

By MURRAY CHASE
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Jim Hart is as good at getting hits as he is at getting hit, he could help cure the anemic hitting of San Francisco's infield.

First, however, the Giants' rookie third baseman will have to cure himself of getting in the way of pitches. Hart was hit so often in his brief 1963 stay with the Giants he must have felt like a human milk bottle at an amusement park.

Last July 7, Hart's first day in the majors, St. Louis Cardinals' Bob Gibson hit him with a pitch. Result: A fractured shoulder blade.

Shortly after he returned to action, Aug. 16, Curt Simmons, another Cardinal, struck him on the head. Result: His season was finished.

Resuming his battle with pitchers this spring, the 23-year-old has been hit several times but has escaped injury. Despite the continuing ordeal, Hart has batted .375.

He continued his pace Friday, hitting his third home run and a single in the Giants' 7-0 victory over Cleveland Indians even though suffering from a toothache.

Result: He has entrenched himself at third base, enabling veteran Jim Davenport to move to second. Jose Pagan again will be at shortstop.

Last year's second-short-third combination of Chuck Hiller, Pagan and Davenport hit a collective .237 and knocked in an average of 36 runs.

Hart, with Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League last year, batted .312 and knocked in 86 runs in 83 games. Willie Mays and coach Hank Sauer have helped Hart.

"Willie's helped me to learn to roll with I'm batting," Hart said. "Hank's got me learning to be ready to move instead of locking myself in at the plate so I can't move."

In other exhibition games Friday, Cincinnati Reds downed Chicago White Sox 5-3 and Chicago Cubs beat Boston Red Sox 9-1. Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Philadelphia Athletics 3-1, New York Yankees blanked Washington Senators 4-0 and Milwaukee Braves whipped Denver of the Pacific Coast League 8-0.

ROMFORD, England (CP)—Because of the increasing number of families who take camping holidays, a Romford firm is catering for the pets who might otherwise have to be left behind in kennels. It is manufacturing tents exclusively for dogs, all made to measure.

REPORTS STEP AHEAD

LONDON (AP)—The British Medical Journal reports a step forward in the search for a cure of leukemia — cancer of the blood. An Italian - born scientist, Dr. G. Negroni, has isolated a virus "whose frequency with leukemia is remarkable," the journal says. But it is not yet known whether the virus is actually the cause of leukemia or just travels along with the disease as a passenger.

PLAQUE RECEIVED

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—A 4,500 - pound rock bearing a plaque has been shipped here from Edmonton. It is a replica of a cairn unveiled when the U.S. Army turned over the Canadian section of the Alaska Highway to the Canadian Army. The plaque will commemorate the latter's maintenance of the highway, a duty to be assumed this spring by the public works department.

"I am not the least bit shy, Madame . . . I merely detest your stupid parlor games!"

NFL Cards Deny Move

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinal management quickly denied a published report Friday that their National Football League team was considering a move to Atlanta.

Sports Editor Fred Russell of the Nashville, Tenn., Banner said in a story from Augusta, Ga., that the Cardinals were interested in transferring their franchise to Atlanta in the belief attendance would pick up.

"I'd rather not comment on it," said the Cardinal vice president, William Bidwell, whose brother, Stormy, is president. "We're not planning to move. I haven't talked to Russell and I'm sure Stormy hasn't either.

"I think it comes from the fact that we're playing an exhibition game at Atlanta this year and that they're building a new ball park down there."

Another Cardinal spokesman expressed surpise in the report attendance was the reason for the possible move.

"Last year was our best in attendance since the club came to St. Louis from Chicago in 1954," he said.

OLDS-down-to-earth action styled to make your spirits soar!

Take off! Cut loose! Olds is one car you just can't be blasé about. Every time you slip behind the wheel and turn the key, you'll get a lift you thought no car would ever give. The gratifying pleasure of sheer beauty and superb comfort. The heart-pounding excitement of Rocket power. The satisfying confidence of sure response.

That's the Oldsmobile feeling, and it sticks with you; mile after mile, year after year, regardless of which Oldsmobile model you choose: a low-priced Jetstar 88, a popular Dynamic 88, a spirited Super 88, a sporty Starfire or an elegant Ninety-Eight.

You ready to take off and cut loose from the ordinary? Ready for new challenges, new experiences, new fun? Then get down to your Oldsmobile dealer and get yourself into an Olds. That's where the action is!

Gallantry Seems to Have Left 'Disgusted' Behind

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A letter which appeared in your column recently hit home. I refer to the woman whose best friend's husband made a pass at her. Last week I had the same revolting experience for the second time.

One night my husband's rang the doorbell at midnight. He said he had been visiting in the neighborhood and his car door was jammed. He asked if my husband could help him. The rat knew that my husband was out of town.

ANN LANDERS

Before I could say "Drop Dead" he was inside the house — grabbing me. I let him know he had the wrong number.

I later told my husband but refused to name the fellow. He was furious — but not because he wanted to punch the guy in the nose. He said gallantly, "I'd give anything to know who the louse is. I'd like to go to his house and pull the same thing on his wife."

Men? You can have 'em. — DISGUSTED

DEAR DIS. — Great little group you're running around with — including your husband.

One of the comforting aspects of this column is that it makes some women feel lucky if their husbands only fall asleep in front of the TV or leave wet towels on the bath room floor

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please give me your opinion of parents who will not allow a 13½ year old son to be left alone for the evening — even when they are only four doors away?

I am this boy's 17-year-old sister. Last night I had to cancel a date because I had to baby-sit with my brother.

Ann, this kid is old enough to be a baby-sitter!

Please print your opinion. — VANCOUVER GIRL

DEAR GIRL — Unless your brother is retarded, or physically ill he should not need a sitter.

The boy should be in high school within a year. If he has not been left alone for an evening by then your parents will have an emotional cripple on their hands.

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Richard Chamberlain Plays First Motion Picture Starring Role in "Twilight Of Honor," Absorbing Courtroom Drama

Richard Chamberlain, who has become the idol of millions of television viewers as Dr. Kildare, plays his first starring role in a feature motion picture in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Twilight of Honor." Opening Monday at the Park Theatre.

In this intense and absorbing courtroom drama, based on the best-selling novel by Al Dewlen, Chamberlain's role is a far cry from that of his famous doctor portrayal. He plays David Mitchell, a small town attorney who is appointed to defend a man accused of viciously murdering the community's leading citizen.

Together with Chamberlain, the Perlberg-Seaton production; filmed in Panavision, stars Nick Adams as Ben Brown, who faces the murder charge; Claude Rains as Art Harper, an elderly attorney to whom Mitchell turns for advice and encouragement; Joan Blackman as Susan, the latter's daughter; James Gregory as Norris Bixby, the prosecutor; and Pat Buttram as Cole Clinton, the murdered man. In the role of Laura Mae Brown, teen-age wife of the accused, the talented new discovery, Joey Heatherton, makes her motion picture debut.

As the story opens with the arrest of the young hitch-hiker Ben Brown, who has been turned in by his wife and who has to be protected from a mob eager to lynch him, the tension and suspense gradually begin to mount. Then as Mitchell starts his questioning of the principals and accumulates his evidence, we begin to see into the characters of Brown, his two-faced, avaricious wife, the hypocritical Cole Clinton and a number of other persons involved, including Clinton's tragic widow.

As the trial proceeds and the varying witnesses give their testimony, flashbacks unfold what happened when Clinton picked up Brown and his flirtatious wife in his Cadillac and contrived for all three to spend the night at a motel. It is here that his body was found. He had been bludgeoned to death and the large bankroll he carried disappeared along with the hitch-hikers he had picked up.

What actually took place? Brown claims he killed Clinton when he found him in a compromising position with his wife. The artful Laura Mae denies any indiscretion on her part, claiming that her husband had murdered Clinton for his money.

The second adventure thriller, "The Hell Fire Club" stars Keith Michell, Kai Fischer and Peter Cushing. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

Edwards Thinks 'Ben Casey' Can Regain Former Rating

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can Ben Casey make it back to the upper reaches of television audience ratings? Vince Edwards thinks so.

"I'll pull a Cassius Clay," says Edwards. "I predict we're going to whop 'em."

Casey got whupped in the ratings this season, thanks to a disastrous network maneuver. In its second season, Ben Casey was second only to Beverly Hillbillies.

So why not, thought the ABC minds, pit our surgeon against CBS' cornballers?

Ben Casey skidded from No. 2 to 36 in the audience poll.

"I knew it was a mistake from the start," Edwards said. "I fought against it, but I got nowhere.

"It was tough enough to face the top comedy show. The president's assassination made it even worse. People didn't want to look at dramatic shows; they needed comedy.

"The admission of error on the part of the network is apparent in our being shifted back to our former Monday night time.

"I predict that next season we will have the highest rating of any dramatic show on the air."

ONTARIO IS BIG COUNTRY

AND it's your country, for one of the biggest vacations of your life.

Did you know Ontario is 415,000 square miles of sheer fascination? Why, a quarter of a million lakes are practically at your doorstep. Some are small and calm for boating, water-skiing, swimming, wading. Others are rocky and deep and bulging with fish.

Stay outdoors and pitch a tent in one of your 86 Provincial Parks. Or if it's pampering you're after, Ontario has close to 8,000 resorts and hotels that will pamper you so you'll want to stay on forever.

Ontario is a place where you can forget about organized living in free fresh outdoors. And Ontario is much more. Ontario is the thunderous roar of an opening night cannon at the Stratford Festival. Ontario is art galleries and castles, night clubs and sidewalk cafes, mighty fortresses and silk gowns in shop windows.

Ontario is a thousand and more things, for one of the biggest, most exciting vacations of your life.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 12

Aries (Mar. 13 to Apr. 19): New Moon spotlights added independence, new contracts. Stress originality. Show off wonderful Aries charm, daring. Breaking away from past. Aspects indicate exciting future.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle moves up. You are due to make new friends. Notice that many are attracted to you. Member of opposite sex can offer stimulating companionship. Attend church of your choice.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Friendships will prove of paramount importance. Practise Golden Rule. Go out of your way to be pleasant. You gain if you are receptive. Absorb knowledge. Form definite opinions.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Expect some restrictions. But don't permit them to cast shadow of gloom. You can easily find ways, means of overcoming obstacles. Restrictions to be of curious or humorous nature.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): New Moon spotlights spiritual enlightenment. You can gain inner strength. There is opportunity for change, creative expression. You are better able to make deep impression on important people.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Go forward with plans. Say yes to challenge. New Moon emphasizes practical affairs. Includes budget, contracts. Day to review these departments of life. Then come to definite conclusions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You require greater degree of privacy today. There are some emotional conflicts which should be settled. This is done by personal effort. Don't clutter day with "wandering" thoughts.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Opportunities appear to abound. Be confident but not over-optimistic. Be selective. Don't commit yourself without first examining all relevant facts. New Moon highlights expression of gratitude.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Wonderful day for self-discovery. Know where you are headed . . . in relation to where you want to go. Do some honest soul-searching. What you find may help you to greater happiness.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Aspects favorable. New Moon spotlights home, love, expression of creative abilities. Don't be afraid of the new, the uncharted courses. Show pioneering spirit. Day to explore!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Conditions tend to settle. Pattern will emerge from recent confusion. Be grateful. Key is once-more learning to relax. Accept compliment. Don't become victim of false modesty.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): New Moon continues to emphasize financial situation. But pressure is due to be relieved. You will find ways of "cashing in" on abilities. In personal life, relax, be entertained.

If today is your birthday . . . you are versatile . . . sometimes too much so for you own good. Strive to finish what you start — realize that quality means more than quantity. Year sees you gaining greater recognition.

General Tendencies: New Moon coincides with news-making actions by Aries, Taurus individuals.

For April 13

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Excellent for "catching up" on hobby, special interest. Good to check financial opportunities. Consult with expert. Find out where budget is leaking. Good news due regarding money.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle high. Spotlight: humor, versatility. You can now appeal to wider segment of populace. No time for holding back. Give your all! Response will prove gratifying — and profitable.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Fortunate time for work with groups, institutions, charitable organizations. Especially good for asserting yourself, expressing your side of story. Attend to details.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Realize that pleasure, relaxation are necessities. You have been pressing hard. Now, basking in some of the limelight, that is to be easy-going, calm. Tonight good...for "light" entertainment.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Spotlight on on career, aspirations, ambitions. But if you push too hard, you could fall back. Time to do more listening than talking. Seek advice from trusted friend. Avoid impulsive actions.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Self-denial is indicated. But not necessary. You are progressing . . . despite lack of immediate "proof." Maintain confidence. Review possibilities. Evidence you seek is available. Dig deeper.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Persons who previously were cold, distant now seek your friendship. You will be viewed in new light. Turn on charm! You have upper hand. Encourage air of mystery!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Answer to pressing question is in you. But be patient! There may be some pressure for immediate decision directed at you. Hold off. Answer due soon, but wait for another day!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Begin process of stimulation. Get rid of deadwood. Day when emotional clutter can be thrown off. Requires faith, determination. You will feel much better by night.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Favorable lunar aspect coincides with chance to express true feelings. The more you give . . . the more you will receive. Applies especially in dealing with member of opposite sex.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Moon-Jupiter conjunction promotes activity, correspondence. Ideas abound. Key: to expansion. Reach out for something better. Don't be satisfied with second best.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Excellent for making advances through communication media. Includes telephone, theatre, newspaper. Good for financial study, advertising. Time to speak up. Others will appreciate honest information.

If today is your birthday . . . you are frank, a fighter for truth, and one who would never desert his convictions.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Taurus. Scorpio must exercise self-control.

CHICAGO (AP) — Quandes Semrow decided to have a party.

The four-year-old girl and a playmate stuffed invitations into envelopes, scribbled addresses on them with crayons and stamped them. To make sure there was no mix - up, Quandes marked each envelope with her parents' address stamp.

The letters were returned. The post office said they were addressed with first names only. And stamped with trading stamps.

They were returned marked "postage due." The girl's father paid the 20 cents due.

The girl's father, Harry H. Semrow, is Chicago postmaster.

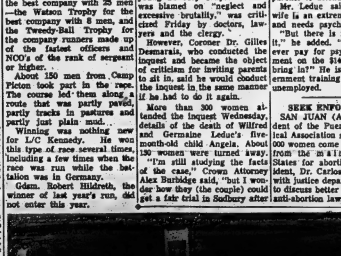
Lance Corporal Wins Guards' Harrier Race

PICTON (Staff) — Lance Corporal John W. Kennedy of the First Battalion Canadian Guards, is the fastest man in Canada at cross country running.

He proved this without a doubt on Friday afternoon as he covered the cross country course in 36 minutes 18 seconds to take the boy honors for the Fifth Company Cup which he is a member.



Not far behind him, Captain Bowater covered the distance in 37.53, followed by Gdsmn. Fox, Grove whose time was 38.16.

Number five company proved to have the largest number of best cross country runners as it swept the three trophies — the Senior Major Trophy for the best company with 25 men — the Watson Trophy for the best company with 6 men, and the Tweedy-Ball Trophy for the company runners made up of the fastest officers and NCO's of the rank of sergeant or higher.

About 150 men from Camp Picton took part in the race. The course led them along a route that was very paved, partly tracks in pastures and partly just plain mud.

Winning was nothing new for L/C Kennedy. He won this type of race several times, including a few times when the battalion was in Germany.

Gdsm. Robert Hildreth, the winner of last year's run, did not enter this year.

About 150 members of the Canadian Guards participated in a 5.8 mile cross country run on Friday afternoon. The race was a team effort, with seven companies of the Regiment being represented. Pictured above, Major William Remple fires the starting gun.

Successful Living

Some Inspiring Thoughts To Lighten Our Routine

TO NIGHTMARE, WITS' END, DESPAIRING, AND ALL GALLANT SOULS — Here's a bright thought or two from Newfoundland's newsletter to her Welfare Officers:

JUST FOR TODAY

Just for today I will try to live through this day only, and not tackle my whole life problem at once. I can do something for twelve hours that would appal me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will be happy. This assumes to be true what Abraham Lincoln said, that "Most folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be."

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own desires. I will take my "luck" as it comes, and fit myself to it.

Just for today I will try to strengthen my mind. I will study. I will learn something useful. I will not be a mental loafer. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentation.

Just for today I will exercise my soul in three ways; I will do something for others, for which I will receive no pay, but for which I will be paid well; I will do at least two things I don't want to do — just for exercise, I will not show anyone that my feelings are hurt; they may be hurt, but today I will not show it.

Just for today I will be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk low, act courteously, criticize not one bit, not find fault with anything, and not try to improve or regulate anybody except myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I will not follow it exactly, but I will have it. I will save myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour by myself and relax. During this half-hour, some time, I will try to get a better perspective on my life.

Just for today I will be unafraid. Especially I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful, and to believe that as I give to the world, so the world will give to me. — AUTHOR UNKNOWN.

Our thanks to you, Mr. J. A. Clancy, Editor of News and Views in Welfare, St. John's.

Assail Coroner For Way Probe Was Conducted

SUDBURY (CP) — An inquest, in which the death of a young Sudbury couple's infant was linked to "neglect and excessive brutality," was criticized Friday by doctors, lawyers and the clergy.

However, Coroner Dr. Gilles Desmarais, who conducted the inquest and became the object of criticism for inviting parents to sit in, said he would conduct the inquest in the same manner if he had to do it again.

More than 500 persons attended the inquest Wednesday, details of the death of Wilfred and Germaine Leduc's five-month-old child Angela. About 130 women were turned away.

"I'm still studying the facts of the case," Crown Attorney Alex Barbidge said, "but I wonder how they (the couple) could get a fair trial in Sudbury after that . . . that inquest Wednesday."

He said no charges have been laid, and "we don't really have any evidence on which to base a charge."

ARE CRITICAL

Other lawyers used the terms "travesty . . . fiasco . . . cruel and unusual punishment" in discussing the invitation to parents to attend the inquest.

Rev. Gerard Pelletier said Friday his wife is an extremely ill woman and needs psychiatric help.

"But there is no way to get it," he added. "How could I ever pay for psychiatric treatment on the $140 a month I bring in!" He is taking a government training course for the unemployed.

SEEK ENFORCEMENT

SAN JUAN (AP)—The president of the Puerto Rican Medical Association said Friday 10,000 women come here each year from the mainland United States for abortions. The president, Dr. Carlos Bertram, met with justice department officials to discuss better enforcement of anti-abortion laws.

Northend Bank Opens Monday At New Home

Belleville's north-end "mobile" bank at the corner of North Front and College Streets next week will be open for business in its new permanent quarters.

Friday evening records from the nearby "trailer" bank were moved to the new quarters and Monday morning the North Front-College Street branch of the Bank of Montreal will open the doors of its new building.

Construction of the one-storey brick structure was commenced last fall and was continued throughout the winter months. It has two entrances, a main entrance off North Front Street and the other opening onto College Street.

For the time being the new bank will operate with the present staff, but on May 1st a new manager, Albert Kroejsch, of Perth, will take over and at the same time bank personnel will be increased.

Bob Young, in charge of the mobile bank since that unit's opening will return May 1st as accountant to the downtown Bank of Montreal.

After May 1st the North Front - College branch will open on its own and completely separate from the main downtown bank.

Need

that no water-level improvement is likely this year or next and that the commission will do what it can to minimize the hardship that may occur.

The commission considered a number of applications for new air pollution, the proposed Lake Champlain waterway and ice areas in the Niagara Falls area. It decided to hold public hearings shortly to consider development of a huge ice boom at the foot of Lake Erie to prevent recurrence of last year's ice damage in the Niagara Falls area.

Roncallo said air pollution on the lakes has declined. For the third year in a row vessels had co-operated to cut down the anti-pollution performance in a decade.

The commission's study of the proposed ocean-going ship lanway from Sorel, Que., to New York via Lake Champlain is still a long way from completion, he said.

SPECIAL CONFERENCE

The Great Lakes water situation has grown so serious that a conference of 10 U.S. senators, representing states in that area, called Roncallo into a special private conference during the day to explore with him what could be done.

Roncallo said the only long-term solution appeared to be one of diverting streams and rivers that feed into Hudson Bay or other neighboring areas into the Great Lakes basin. There was a limit as to how much diversion would be feasible but some major new plan had to be considered or the lakes basin would face more trouble in future years.

Campbellford News

Mr. George Potts, Seymour, Celebrates 98th Birthday

CAMPBELLFORD — One of the oldest residents of Seymour township celebrated his 98th birthday on April 8th. The nonagenarian, Mr. George Potts, was born in Brighton township in 1866, son of Stephen J. Potts and Harriett Stollery.

Mr. Potts' family moved to Potts' Island, Seymour township, when he was ten years of age, where he has spent the remainder of his life.

In those years education was not compulsory, and while Mr. Potts has had a satisfactory, successful life he attended the English Line school for two winters only at the age of ten and eleven. Despite this limited academic training Mr. Potts is a well read and well informed, interesting conversationalist. His keen mind is well informed in current politics, sports and he maintains a genial philosophic view of life. His handwriting is also exceptionally clear and artistic.

In his early life Mr. Potts was employed in characteristic Canadian shanty work in winter in North Bay and in the season river driving to bring the logs from Bancroft and other northern points to the River Trent where the logs were boomed at what is now called Percy Boom. These booms were later trailed farther by a boat called the alligator. Following the river drive Mr. Potts would trap and fish. Fishing was done with nets, the fish mostly muscaki and eels, were shipped to Buffalo.

Later Mr. Potts bought a farm at Bradley Bay and at the age of thirty nine he married Caroline Adams of Belleville, deceased in 1927. He has never owned nor driven a motor car.

Mr. Potts recalls many interesting amusing incidents, one of Captain Canoe, another Seymour pioneer who paddled not for sport but of necessity from Canada's Island to Rickory Island a distance of about 200 yards in a wash tub. Another instance, Mr. Potts worked for a farmer in the harvest season at eleven years of age, here God for two weeks for $3.00. He ran home, gave the money to his mother who bought him shoes, a shirt and a pair of shoes and had some money left.

In the family were three brothers, two of whom are deceased, three sisters all of whom have passed away. Chas. Potts, 90 years old is still living.

Asked to what he attributed to his unusual good health, both physically and mentally, Mr. Potts replied that he had tried to practise temperance in all things, he had taken care of his health, he had never worried and his married life had been very happy. In his own words "My wife's wish was my pleasure."

Mr. Potts make his home now with his nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stephens.

Those who know him best admire his kindly humor, his generosity, his consideration for others. He enjoys conversation with his friends, the radio and television.

Among many recognitions of his 98th birthday he was very pleased to receive letters from Prime Minister L. B. Pearson, Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and the local member, Miss Pauline Jewett.

A reception is being held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stephens on Sunday, April 12th where his many friends will meet to wish him well.

TORNADOES HIT, AT LEAST SIX KILLED

Key Sets for Ten Montreal Banks Secured in Raid

MONTREAL (CP) — Detectives disclosed Sunday they found key sets for 10 Montreal banks in raids here that led to the arrest of three men for a major bank robbery in Niagara Falls, Ont.

Not only did we find keys to gain entrance to the banks but ones for safety deposit boxes as well," one officer said.

The three were to be taken to Niagara Falls today to be charged with a robbery the weekend of March 22 at a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce there.

Loot from the job has been variously estimated between $400,000 and $1,000,000.

Picked up were Henri-Joseph Lizotte, 46, of St. Laurent, Que., a Montreal suburb, Robert (Bobby) Simpson, 43, of Toronto and Joseph Kinsley, 39, of Hamilton.

Det.-Insp. William Fitzpatrick said $9,000 cash, $36,000 in travellers' cheques and an undetermined amount of stocks and bonds were recovered in the raids Friday.

Another $250,000 in securities was recovered Thursday.

The keys found were for bank branches in Montreal shopping centres. A police spokesman said it appeared the keys were made after impressions of the bank locks were taken while the buildings were under construction.

There was no elaboration.

Also found by the raiding parties were a cache of burglary tools, two loaded pistols, a woman's wig and a radio to monitor police calls—along with a movie camera that police believe was used to "case" targets.

Those arrested were also to be questioned concerning the major bank burglaries here.

Arraign Two For Robbery

MONTREAL (CP)—Two suspected members of the armory-raiding l'Armee de Liberation du Quebec are scheduled to be arraigned in court at St. Jerome, Que., today on charges of armed robbery.

A third suspect, a juvenile, appeared in social welfare court Saturday and was ordered held along with the other two without bail pending formal arraignment.

The trio, Jean Gagnon, 26, Jean LaSalle, 22, and the juvenile, were arrested Thursday at Mont - Rolland, Que., shortly after a $5,000 bank robbery staged by five men in that Laurentian Mountains community.

Meanwhile, the combined forces of the RCMP, Montreal and Quebec Provincial Police continued their efforts to smash the ALQ with a series of 28 weekend raids in which one man was taken into custody and then released.

Police said they are looking for the brother of a man sentenced for his part in the terrorist bombings of Le Front de Liberation Quebecois in Montreal last spring. The Flag was smashed after a 10-week nightmare of bombings that killed one man and maimed another.

CHARGED BROTHER

Gaston Lapierre Francois, 19, was among the 18 FLQ members charged with terrorist activities. He was sentenced to three years in prison.

Police have been working around the clock since the arrest of the trio and the subsequent recovery of a large cache of arms that were stolen Feb. 20 from an armory in Shawinigan, Que., by the ALQ.

No trace has been found yet of a similar arsenal stolen from the Montreal armory of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal Jan. 30.

One police officer said the trio's custody may be taken to Shawinigan, 75 miles northeast of Montreal to face charges, arising from the armory raid there.

Seized from a garage in northeast Montreal after their arrest were 34 FN semi-automatic rifles, 3,280 rounds of FN ammunition in 164 magazines, three portable radio receivers, a radio transmitter and army uniforms—almost all of the weapons taken at Shawinigan.

JOINS TOURISTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson interrupted a quiet stroll around the White House grounds Saturday to order the Secret Service and a flock of tourists admitted to join him on his trek. The president exchanged comments with an RCAF officer and others who could not be identified in the rush on the lawn.

Slash Through Kansas, Iowa And Missouri

One Twister Sucks Up Line of Traffic on Road

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dazed survivors picked through the rubble of homes and business buildings today in the wake of tornadoes that slashed through eastern Kansas, western Missouri and southwestern Iowa.

Six persons were killed and at least 50 were injured.

Most of the twisters snaked out of thunderstorms that could be seen for miles in the late afternoon — otherwise the toll could have been greater.

Two lines of the storms bracketed Kansas City—one to the northwest, the other southeast—and rolled rapidly to the northeast.

One twister sucked up a line of traffic on U.S. 59 five miles south of Garnett and hurled a 50,000-pound truck, a pickup truck and six cars in all directions, killing the Kenyans and Mrs. Wilson and injuring eight other persons.

"It felt like the truck was lifted up off the highway," said Stephen A. Miller, 28, of St. Joseph, Mo., who was hauling 25,000 pounds of meat to Dallas.

DESCRIBES INCIDENT

"It could see the trailer sticking straight over my head as I looked out of the cab," Miller said. "But I don't know if it was really up there or whether I was up there and just didn't know where the ground was."

The truck was dropped upside down in a 40-foot-deep ravine about 25 feet from the pavement. Miller suffered only a slight scalp cut.

The pickup truck was flung a quarter-mile. The driver, Christopher Lewis, 54, Parsons, Kan., suffered a knee injury.

Right behind Miller's truck the Kenyan car was hurled 60 feet to one side. Another landed 600 feet on the other side of the road. The cars were smashed into twisted bits of metal.

Blinding dust kicked up by the twister caused at least 15 cars to ram together in one pileup on the Kansas Turnpike. Eight persons were injured, none seriously.

SAW IT COMING

Students at the University of Kansas saw the twister coming directly toward Lawrence, Kan., from the southwest.

Then it veered to the north," said Robert Jones, a senior. "We saw it hit some houses and saw it hit more houses and there was debris at the base of the funnel."

At least 14 homes were damaged or destroyed by that tornado, and three persons were

Rhodesian Premier Resigns

By BRIAN CHARLESWORTH

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Winston Field resigned today following a split in his ruling Rhodesian Front party over t he question of Southern Rhodesia's independence from Britain.

The 59-year-old Field was succeeded by Ian Smith, a 43-year-old farmer who was finance minister and deputy premier.

Field, considered a moderate in the party, was reported to have been forced to resign after a number of meetings of the party caucus and cabinet.

Field's opponents were dissatisfied with his handling of constitutional affairs, particularly his moderate attitude in the face of Britain's refusal to grant independence to a white-dominated government in the central African country.

Smith leads the dominant right wing of the party which won a majority of five in the 65-member Parliament.

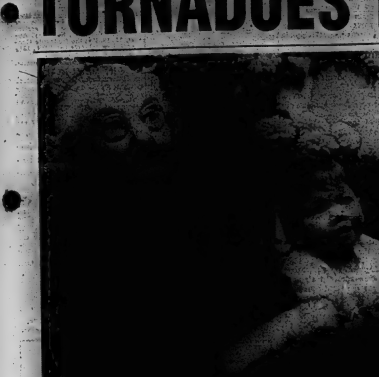
MAY ASK RECALL

Sir Edgar Whitehead, leader of the Opposition Rhodesian Nacional party, was expected to ask for an immediate recall of Parliament which adjourned last Friday until July.

British Govt. called on Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs shortly after 8 a.m. and delivered the resignation.

Smith drove to Government House shortly afterwards to take over the government.

Smith becomes the first Rhodesian-born premier of the country.



Political observers here said the removal of Field could bring a complete break with Britain by the extreme right-wing element in the party, some of whom have called for a unilateral declaration of Southern Rhodesian independence.

Southern Rhosesia was in the Central African Federation with Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland before the federation broke up Dec. 31, 1963, after 10 years of existence.

There are 103 years difference in the ages of Mrs. Laura Weller of Carrying Place and her one-year-old great granddaughter, Laurie - Ann Weller, caught together by cameraman yesterday at Granny's 104th birthday celebration.

Mrs. Laura Weller of Carrying Place Honored on Her 104th Birthday Sunday

TRENTON — Seven years older than Confederation, Mrs. Laura Weller of Carrying Place celebrated her 104th birthday yesterday by sitting down to a family dinner of 30 at the home of her son, Everett, and the originally greeting well over a hundred relatives and friends who dropped in for a piece of birthday cake and a cup of tea and to congratulate this Grand Old Lady of the County. Mrs. Weller could keep up the "I remembers" with the best of them and displayed her renowned sense of humor when a photographer asked to take her picture by saying, "You'll break your camera."

Almost as much attraction as "Grandma" at the party was little Miss Laurie Ann Weller, named for her great great grandma, and the year - old daughter of Mrs. Weller's grandson, Jack Weller and Mrs. Weller of Carrying Place. Laurie celebrated her first birthday on Saturday. Youngest guest was two - months' old Kimberley Ann LaFleur, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross LaFleur of Trenton.

Among the many guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wilkins and Fred, Robbie and Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. John Brown and Miss Carol Fetlis, all of Toronto.

In excellent health, Mrs. Weller lives with her daughter Myrtle, next door to her son Everett. Myrtle and Everett are the two surviving of a family of ix born to Mrs. Weller and the late James Weller. Mrs. Weller received many congratulatory cards, cut flowers, potted plants and gifts and enjoyed the general party in the full. Mrs. Weller still helps out with the housework in her home, reads the newspaper with the aid of a magnifying glass and generally takes an interest in current affairs and the political scene.

Born near Laura, Roberts in Mount Zion, Murray—Township, Mrs. Weller was the daughter of Daniel Roberts and Evelyn Fraser of Chicago. Her paternal grandfather came to Canada from Wales.

Marrying a Prince Edward County farmer, James Weller, in 1885, Mrs. Weller has spent most of her long life in Carrying Place. The couple were married in Bethesda by the Rev. C. Clark.

Mrs. Weller is grandmother to 11; great grandma to 28 and Laurie Ann, the only great great grandchild, to date.

General Strike Threatened

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Federation of Labor (CLC) has threatened the Quebec government with a possible general strike of its 133,000 members unless changes are made in a labor bill now before the legislature.

The threat of a work stoppage by the largest union group in the province was contained in a resolution passed by an emergency convention of the federation in Quebec Sunday. In addition to a general strike, the executive was given authority to use mass demonstrations, rotating slowdown strikes or similar devices to enforce demands for changes in the labor code.

The first reaction from Premier Jean Lesage came here later when he told a televised press conference that his government has decided to amend a number of "vital points" in the controversial legislation. But he said the groups "must accept ce-

Session Now In 9th Week

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Today the second session of the 26th Parliament rolls into its ninth week. So far it hasn't produced a single item of government legislation.

Even some of the preliminaries remain.

Today and Tuesday will be taken up with the completion of the Commons' traditional six-day budget debate.

If nothing unexpected happens—and the unexpected has become almost normal in this snarling session — the House Wednesday will launch its main debate on the Canada Pension Plan bill. It's up for second reading—the key stage involving approval in principle.

This debate will almost certainly run to the end of the week and could spill over into next week. The contributory pension bill is the government's star item on the legislative program.

SIT 40 DAYS

In the 40 sitting days so far, the MPs have spent 18 sittings on the $6,000,000 supplementary spending items for the 1963-64 year that ended March 31.

The main speech debate took up the eight days provided in the House rules before a government motion to refer the Columbia River treaty to the external affairs committee required five days of talking.

Three days were spent on second reading of the government bill to establish independent commissions for redistribution. That debate had to be adjourned until later with no progress made.

The budget already has occupied four days. Single days have been devoted to opening ceremonies, a Cyprus resolution approving the dispatch of Canadian troops there, a troubled island, a resolution to introduce the pension bill and a procedure motion to ensure Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux. The motion didn't Judging from the lack of speed, this session could last until well into autumn. There already have been questions from MPs about the likely timing of a summer recess.

Gangs of Youths Converge On Tweed to Settle Feuds

TWEED (Special). — This village was turned into turmoil for nearly two hours Saturday as gangs of youths converged on the area to settle feuds with fists.

Provincial police rushed reinforcements to the scene as hardpressed local officers tried to stem the wave of violence.

Before the rumbling died down early Sunday morning 13 people had been arrested.

Police Chief Joseph Paquette blamed the disturbances on gangs of youths "just coming into town looking for trouble."

They came from Belleville, Madoc, Stirling and other communities north of here.

"They head for here because it's (geographically) right in the centre of things," said the chief.

"It all started Saturday afternoon and continued until about one a.m.," he reported.

"There was tension in the whole village and we could tell it from about 3:30 p.m."

SPREAD TO COUNTRY

However, the fighting was not confined to the village. It also spread out to the country side roads outside.

In town, it broke out on the main street where Chief Paquette broke it up and took part of four disturbers to the police station.

Later, a crowd collected outside, the chief said, and more fighting broke out.

The disturbances apparently were not responsible for injuries to the various combatants, resulted in no property damage, the chief reported.

OPP officers were dispatched from Madoc to help the chief restore order.

Of the eleven charged, three were taken to Hastings County jail in Belleville.

The counts laid by police were mainly charges of assaut and disturbing the peace.

Some of them will be heard in magistrate's court here Thursday.

Husband Stabbed Watching NHL

TROUT CREEK, Ont. (CP)— A 56 - year - old woman was charged with capital murder after her husband was apparently stabbed to death Saturday night while he watched the Detroit - Toronto National Hockey League contest on television.

Ivs Osborne was taken before a justice of the peace at nearby Powassan Sunday to be formally charged, then was remanded to Parry Sound.

The body of Robert Osborne, 63, was found in bed in his modern bungalow in this community 40 miles south of North Bay.

He had been a school bus driver since retiring several years ago from a service station he operated.

Break in Doctors' Strike Seen After Belgium Mobilizes Them

CP from AP-Reuters

BRUSSELS — The government announced today about 94 doctors in the Mechelen area, midway between Brussels and Antwerp, have ended their strike.

Premier Theo Lefevre's office said the Mechelen doctors signed an agreement with local health insurance associations, thereby breaking with the striking medical union.

At strike headquarters in Brussels, a spokesman said: "We believe it's another trial balloon like the one of last week in Seraing, near Liege.

Today's Chuckle

The automobile did away with the horses. Now it is doing away with the people.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—A shift to cooler northwesterly winds tonight and give partly cloudy skies and temperatures some 10 to 15 degrees cooler on Tuesday.

Twenty-four hours later, the so-called agreement had blown up again, and things remained unchanged."

The possible dent in the united front of Belgium's 12,000 striking physicians and dentists came after the government's decision to consider the government's next moves in the walkout.

The defence ministry announced 1,172 of the 1,800 doctors affected reported to their military units.

The defence ministry had ordered all key doctors refusing to answer mobilization orders. But distribution of individual orders was reported slow.

Many doctors reported with their uniforms but left behind their cars and medical instruments. This forced the government to provide them with transportation and equipment.

The strike began 13 days ago as a protest against revision in the government's national health insurance system. Almost all of the doctors and dentists went on Easter vacations with their families at the start of the walkout.

The traditional Easter vacation period ended Sunday, and this week will show how many doctors return to normal practice.

The strike leaders threatened a complete shutdown of medical services but left physicians continued emergency service in hospitals. However, all the doctors called for make house calls or examine patients in their offices except in the most critical cases.

Some of the mobilized physicians are part of the strikers' emergency force. After talks with the government broke down early Sunday, the doctors' union said it would leave it to the government to man the emergency stations.

In addition to announcing the Canadian Troops Strive in Vain To Bring Peace to Kyrenia Pass

NICOSIA (CP) — Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots fought on yet another again today in the rocky mountains overlooking the Turkish-held Kyrenia Pass, while Canadian troops made renewed efforts to bring about a cease-fire.

As gunfire sounded for the third successive day, Lt.-Col. Robert Boyle of Sarnia, commander of Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment, surveyed the situation from since their arrival three weeks ago as part of a United Nations peace - keeping force.

"It is evident that we are not going to spend three months doing nothing," he said.

There was a grave risk that the island would experience "blood bath."

Col. Woodcock planned a personal visit today to the scene of the fighting.

The firing started about 7 a.m. at a spot about two miles from the camp of the Royal 22nd's Company commanded by Maj. Patrick Tremblay of Chicoutimi.

About 9 a.m. a platoon from the company was flown into the mountains by helicopter in a re - effort to arrange a cease-fire.

Both Saturday and Sunday, the Canadians moved into the area after fighting about 10 miles north of Nicosia. It stopped while they were there but resumed as soon as they withdrew to return to their camps.

A UN peace force spokesman in Nicosia said a UN spotter plane flying over the craggy hills between the two sides is entrenched reported a lot of activity.

But there was still no indication that the Greek side was making a determined onslaught on the last Turkish fortifications and strongpoints to take the pass itself.

Col. Woodcock said the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots had first

Residents Work on Lawns As Spring Weather Arrives

Has Spring really sprung?

Well, with the temperature soaring into the low sixties, a great many Belleville residents seemed to think so over the weekend.

For instance, Sunday morning church goers for the first time this year, had full encouragement from the weatherman to wear their new finery.

As result the feminine members of the family sported the new hat and spring coat as the case may be.

And Sunday afternoon many city home owners took advantage of the warm temperature to get out the garden rake and tidy up their lawns.

For hundreds of other residents the warm bright afternoon meant a call to the open road and district highways were flooded with 'cars as families took their first really enjoyable trip into the open.

And the younger fry throughout the city really put the stamp of approval on the return of warm weather.

Daily brought their skipping ropes out of mothballs and the boys dug out the marbles and allies. Some boys even went swimming.

Trucker Dies Of Injuries Received Friday

A 58-year-old Belleville trucker, injured in a crash on Highway 401, north of Marysville, early Friday, died in hospital early Sunday morning.

Donald Trumpour, 34 Gilbert Street, and father of four, was believed hit by a road transport on the two-lane stretch of the superhighway opened last fall. Hauling gravel from a nearby pit to a Highway 2 extension project, had stopped his truck and was standing by the side of the highway when the accident happened.

A Calgary man, Leonard Gorman Greal, was charged several hours later with leaving the scene and later released on $500 bail.

Mr. Trumpour, found unconscious beside his truck, lingered three days in Belleville General Hospital with severe chest and limb injuries.

He was born in Hillier township, son of Mrs. Miss Catherine Trumpour and the late Wilfred L. Trumpour. He had lived in Belleville the past six months, and before that in Picton.

He was a member of Tabernacle United Church, and is survived by his mother; his wife, the former Ella Jeanne Tucker; one son, Paul; three daughters, Diane, Katherine and Deborah, all at home; his grandmother, Mrs. Marshall Trumpour of Hillier; three brothers, Harold Trumpour of Oshawa, George and William Trumpour of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Douglas (Doris) Minaker of Milford and Mrs. Ralph (Mary) Besley of London.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home, with interment in Belleville cemetery.

Horse-Drawn Milkwagon Hits House Verandah

A milkwagon horse crashed into the verandah of a Bridge Street West residence this morning when a trace strap snapped.

For milkman Thomas McAvella it was the second mishap this year on his morning delivery route.

Police say the wagon, jogging down the West hill when a backstrap broke, pushed the vehicle against the home of James Street, the horse—from custom—attempted to make a left turn. However, the pressure of the wagon forced it off the verandah and into the yard at 294½ Bridge West.

Lattice work and a post were damaged.

About 10 weeks ago Mr. McAvella received a minor injury when a horse bolted briefly in the Church Street area and his leg was jammed against a hydro pole.

Roy Madden, Excise Officer, On Retired List

A social evening was held Friday evening in H. Corby Distillery recreation room to honor Mr. L. G. (Roy) Madden of the Belleville Customs staff on the occasion of his retiring from the Civil Service.

Several presentations were made to Roy during the evening. These included a Certificate of Service, presented by Mr. L. J. Lessard, Collector of Customs, Belleville. Mr. Lessard recounted the loyal service of 39 years given by Roy with the Department of National Revenue.

A mantel radio was presented by Mr. J. Ling on behalf of the Customs and Excise Officers of Belleville and Trenton. A beautiful piece of silverware was also presented by Mr. George MacDonald, manager, on behalf of H. Corby's Distillery.

In an address liberally sprinkled with sage advice Roy thanked everyone for the gifts, and for the many friendships acquired during his years as a Civil Servant.

Among the many guests present were Mr. G. Scott of the Customs' Inspection Branch, retired officials of H. Corby Distillery and superannuated Civil Servants from this district. Mr. Ed Wille, retired Chief Officer of Belleville, welcomed Roy to their ranks.

Spring Is Coming With Hazard Of Forest Fires

Spring is coming to the north in part and already now Lands and Lands and Forests officials at Tweed are getting ready to wage their annual battle against forest fires. The Ontario Intelligencer will be reporting fires as they occur and will be extinguished, and will carry regular reports on the forest fire hazard throughout the district.

A flock of geese landed on Stoco Lake near Tweed yesterday and for the first time this season. The geese stayed only a few hours, in the open water where the river flows into the lake, then headed north again. Geese have been heard flying south over Tweed for several days now. Ducks have been back for a week.

More than three inches of snow remain in the northern part of the district, up around Palmer Rapids, but the Madawaska River, and patches of snow remain in deep bush areas farther south. Lake ice throughout the district is unsafe for traffic. Given a few more days like Sunday, Lands and Forests personnel say, most lakes will be open and the snow will be gone.

But warm weather is not a total boon to the Lands and Forests people. Lake ice thereby exists already in open grass lands, and if the warm weather comes overnight rain, the hazard will be considerable in tinderbush, too. Fire permits, issued free by lands and Forests personnel, are required now in fire-control areas.

Foxboro Woman Is Assaulted

A 60-year-old Foxboro woman is in Belleville General Hospital after she was assaulted by an intruder in her bedroom Saturday night.

Provincial police, investigating the incident, say Mrs. Olive Christie was attacked by an unknown man, who broke into her home around midnight. She was alone in the house at the time.

Police were called after Mrs. Christie climbed down a verandah post to the outside of her home and sought help from a neighbor. She suffered cuts and bruises in her flight.

Trenton Airmen Given Trophies At Banquet

TRENTON — The CPR Hall on Campbell St. was the scene Saturday night of the annual Trenton Flying Club banquet and presentation of prizes. This year, other teams in the league were moved under the Trenton Airmen, who took the O'Keefe's League Trophy and the Carling Playoff Trophy. Members of the winning team were: Ed Jackson, captain; Thomas Cooper; Ray Allen and Cooper; J. Beland; A. MacDonald; Reg. Jones. They were presented with individual trophies, desk pen sets, by Eugene Donnelly, William Smith, past president George Leeman and secretary, Ernest Greene. Trophies were presented by William Christie, area O'Keefe's representative and Jack Smith in the absence of the Carling area representative.

Special prizes went to Elwood Burrows of Ted's Asbestos, for the high score, 160; to Charley Chard for a high 157 in the playoffs and to Ted Chorney of the Antennas, injured in an accident, recently.

At the banquet, the toast to the Queen was proposed by president William Smith, who also introduced the head table guests, which included Mr. and Mrs. "Bud" Young, Legion Branch 110 trustee; William Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Greene, Edward Nicholson, Labatt's representative, Mr. and Mrs. George Leeman and Mr. Christie.

In presenting the O'Keefe's Trophy, Mr. Christie said that the ten-year old trophy was the best kept cup he knew of. He complimented the league members for their good care of the "almost new" cup.

The dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the United Church Women's Association from Consecon and they were given a standing ovation after the banquet.

Daffodil Day Marks Opening Of Fund Drive

TRENTON — Sunday was Daffodil day in Trenton. Churches were decorated with the flowers, symbolic of the Canadian Cancer Society.

This starts off the Cancer Society Drive for funds which will continue for the rest of the month in Trenton and area.

The objective for Trenton and district is $6,000 and canvassers will be out in full forces on April 16th, 17th and 18th. Co-chairmen of this year's drive are Elmer Bonter and Robert Ramson.

Mount Pelion Grass Burns, No Damage

TRENTON — Children playing with matches are thought to have started a spectacular blaze on Mount Pelion Hill here on last night. Firemen stood by and let the mountain grass burn—as it should—after the first reports from the surrounding areas had Champlain Trail Volunteers alerted.

TWO CHILDREN HIT

Two Graham's baricade were involved in accidents in Trenton on Saturday. A cab, driven by Albert Tripp, 96 Division Street, struck and knocked to the ground at Isbdown's child in front of the Centre Theatre when the young girl ran in front of the vehicle. Both the driver could get out of his cab, the child had run away and was lost on the opposite street. The accident happened at 2.15 p.m.

At 3.35 p.m., a cab driven by Joseph Rigg, struck five-year-old Margaret Ann Hall on Warren Road, when the child darted in front of the car. Extent of injuries to the child, a nose at the hospital and a passage in the cab, Mrs. Richard Hall, 307 Front Street, for a sprained finger.

Police say the child came out from behind a tipped car in a line of traffic on Dundas St. West, near the Chainey Store and the driver had time to stop in spite of the fact he jammed on the brakes. Kevin was taken to Dr. Ward's office and knocked to the ground. He was taken to the hospital in a taxi.

Body of Man Drowned Oct. 20 Found on Beach

TRENTON — Two American tourists, Raymond Gilbert and Theodore Kreuber both of New York State, walking along the beach between Consecon and Consecon with a Consecon resident, William Kerr, recovered the body of 52 - year - old James Childs of Toronto on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Childs drowned in Lake Ontario off Harcovan Beach last October 20th.

Childs was presumed drowned October 20th after his small outboard had been seen going in circles at full throttle off Harcovan Beach by Roland Cooper of Brighton.

At that time an intensive search was made by Brighton OPP while an RCAF helicopter from Trenton scoured the area from the air.

Mr. Childs owned a cottage at Gosport near Brighton and had come there for the week-end.

CAN TREAT MORE

CHICAGO (AP)—A new artificial kidney can give life-saving treatment to 15 persons at a time, a medical team from Seattle reported Sunday. It promises to cut the cost of treatment sharply—from the present $10,000 a year for each patient to perhaps $6,000 or $7,000. Machines now in use can treat only one person at a time.

District Assessing Officers Hold Peterborough Meeting

The new Ontario assessors' manual to be available this year, is complicated, but with experience and the use of intelligence and common sense, a better and more equitable assessment of property will be possible.

This was told to district members of the District No. 5 Assessing Officers of Ontario as they held their annual spring meeting at Peterborough last week.

Thirteen assessing officers from Belleville and the County of Hastings attending the session with Clarence Bird, Thurlow township, being named secretary-treasurer for the district.

James Gaynor, county assessor for Peterborough was named district chairman. Urban vice-presidenst is Norman McBain of Peterborough, and rural vice-chairman John Fergus, of Haliburton.

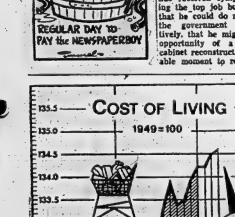
EXPLAINS MANUAL

Ralph Malcolm, Department of Municipal Affairs, Toronto, gave a detailed report on the new provincial assessment manual explaining the cost approach which he said deals with five factors — design type, character of construction, quality of construction, shape and size.

"If he said that as a rule, as the size of a building increases, the cost per square foot decreases.

With use of the new manual assessed value will be 1960 value which is much more realistic than the 1940 value which assessors have been using.

Mr. W. Parnell, representing the Institute of Municipal Assessors spoke briefly on the new assessors' course starting at Queens University in September which will be open only to those with at least Grade 12 unless the student has at least two years actual assessment experience.



ASSESSORS ON BAND

Attending the spring meeting from Belleville and the county of Hastings were the following assessors: Clarence S. Bird, Thurlow; J. A. Bailey, Sidney; Lorne Weese, Tyendinaga; Don Wass, Carlow; A. W. Ramsbottom, Mayo; Clayton Price, Dungannon; Hogarth Sahlen, Marmora Village; Clayton Burkitt, Rawdon; G. Leighton Thompson, Clifford Matthews, Jack Kane, Frank Howard and Wm. Ferguson, all of Belleville.

Cabinet Changes Advocated by Young Tories

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home is under pressure to give his cabinet a facelift for the forthcoming general election campaign, it was reported Sunday.

The Tory prime minister was said, however, to be resisting demands — particularly from younger elements of the party —for drastic changes in the cabinet largely inherited from former prime minister Harold Macmillan.

The Labor party made impressive gains in local elections in London and elsewhere last week while Douglas-Home announced that the long-awaited general election will be delayed until autumn.

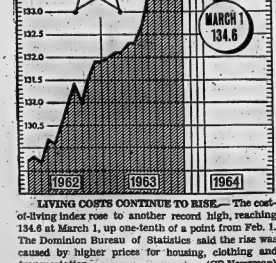
Labor Leader Harold Wilson in a Northampton speech Saturday spoke scornfully of Douglas-Home's decision and of the Tory party for its "unfeigned relief at being blessed with a general whose one quality is his ability to run away."

Anxious Conservatives, meanwhile, were hopeful that the budget scheduled to be brought down Tuesday by Reginald Maudling, chancellor of the exchequer, will improve the party's popularity.

They were not optimistic for tax cuts — indeed, some increases are possible—but rather looked to the 46-year-old chancellor for long-term proposals that will underline Tory economic wisdom and stability.

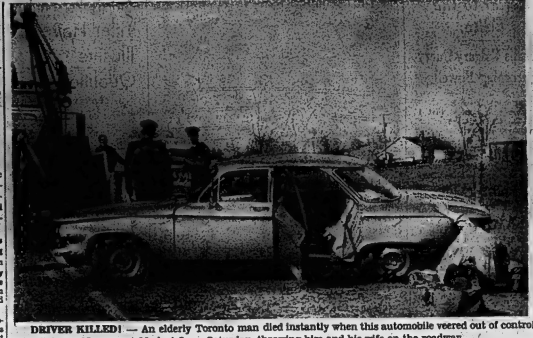
HAS A COLD

Douglas-Home, although suffering from a cold, was expected to attend a cabinet briefing on the budget today.



Despite restlessness among younger ministers, the cabinet Douglas-Home appointed last October had an average age of 57 — a few months over Macmillan's younger than Labor's "shadow" cabinet.

It is considered highly unlikely that Sir Alec would undertake anything like the purge inflicted by Macmillan on his colleagues in July, 1962, when he sacked seven ministers. But if any of the older men now would like to retire, he would probably be ready to give bright young men a chance.



Backbenchers were dismayed by reports of disagreement between ministers, notably Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler and Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys.

The Conservative Sunday Telegraph says "increasing and severe comment" is heard about the "negative" attitude of Butler, who was Sir Alec's chief opponent for the prime ministership.

The newspaper says Butler has received sympathy at losing the top job but many feel that he could do more to help the government or, alternatively, that he might "take the opportunity of a pre-election cabinet reconstruction as a suitable moment to retire."

LIVING COSTS CONTINUE TO RISE.— The cost-of-living index rose to another record high, reaching 134.6 at March 1, up one-tenth of a point from Feb. 1. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the rise was caused by higher prices for housing, clothing and transportation. (CP Newsmap)

DRIVER KILLED! — An elderly Toronto man died instantly when this automobile veered out of control on a Highway 37 curve at Mudcat Lane Saturday, throwing him and his wife on the roadway.

Wheat Program Ushered in By Johnson

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has ushered in a new national wheat program which authorities say will tend to reduce the heavy United States surplus without rocking world wheat prices.

To that extent, they add, Canadian growers and exporters who traditionally compete against the south for world wheat markets may find the program somewhat beneficial.

The great U.S. wheat surplus, at a high of 1,400,000,000 bushels in 1961, is expected to drop to about 800,000,000 bushels by mid-1963, following a decline of about 100,000,000 bushels in the new crop year starting next July. U.S. wheat production averages about 1,200,000,000 bushels a year.

The new program is complex and includes minimum price supports, certificates that can be converted into cash and federal payments for diverting land from wheat production.

WILL AVERAGE $2

Farmers still will get an average of $2 a bushel for wheat sold for domestic consumption but on wheat sold for export, total production payments will drop to about $1.35 a bushel from $2 received last year. This support on exported wheat will be more in line with world prices and will reduce heavy U.S. export subsidies.

New Club For Chronic Alcoholics

HALIFAX (CP) — The EDI Club, formed by men who knew they were one drink away from becoming drunks all over again, is flourishing here in anonymity.

Those who attend are all chronic alcoholics trying hard to curb the urge to have that next drink. They want their identities kept secret, but are seeking new membership.

EDI stands for "easy does it." And that's the club's slogan. "We have to keep in mind," says the club secretary, "that we must retain our composure as best we can and not lead into anything that could lead us to drink."

The members—72 of them, including six women—have recreational facilities at their club quarters, where they exchange views and talk of experiences.

A priest, two doctors, two lawyers and a professor are among the members. "We still consider ourselves alcoholics," says the secretary. "We know there is no cure for this sickness—just ways of arresting it."

Toronto Man, 73 Is Killed In Accident on Highway 37

A 73-year-old Toronto man was killed on Saturday afternoon, about 10 miles north of Belleville, and his wife is in Belleville General Hospital suffering from severe shock.

Dead is Arthur Edward Lee of 161 Coleman Avenue. Police say he was killed instantly.

Ontario Provincial Police who investigated the accident, said the Lees were southbound, on Highway 37, when the driver, Mr. Lee failed to negotiate a curve near the intersection of County Road No. 8, more commonly known as Mudcat Lane.

Police said the compact vehicle left the road, crashed into the east ditch, bounced back to the road and rolled over, coming to rest on the northbound lane.

Damage was estimated at $1,500 to the car. The accident occurred about 3:00 p.m.

Th dead man's wife, 67-year-old Mrs. Rachael Lee, was taken to hospital by LaSalle Ambulance of Belleville. She is reported to be in good condition.

The family's dog, a spaniel, in the car at the time of the accident, escaped injury.

The accident was investigated by Ontario Provincial Police Constable H. S. Basiren.

Says Hunting Is Outmoded Like "Tribal Warfare"

HAMILTON (CP)—D. C. Sadler, a vice-president of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, says hunting is an outmoded thing, like tribal warfare, and is no longer justified.

Mr. Sadler, speaking during a panel discussion at the federation's annual meeting Saturday, said "hunting was justified at one time but it is a poor thing today for people to go out shooting things for the sake of it."

However, C. H. D. Clarke, chief of the fish and wildlife section of the Ontario department of lands and forests, took another view, claiming that naturalists benefit from those who hunt in provincial parks.

"I see the naturalist's desire to restrict all hunting in parks as an attempt to thrust a protective hand out into the landscape where it may not be needed, is probably ineffective and may even be irrational," said Mr. Clarke, a hunter himself.

SPOIL FEW PLACES

Bulldozers and dragline have destroyed many places for naturalists, he continued, but hunters have spoiled few if any. There have been cases, he added, in which the landscape after it may not be needed, is probably ineffective and may even be irrational," said Mr. Clarke, a hunter himself.

a badly stripped of certain types of trees by deer populations that were overprotected.

Allan F. Helmsley, supervisor of park interpretation for the provincial parks branch, said recreation wilderness such as Algonquin Park could provide for a proper harvest of forest resources such as timber, pulp and furs, but those would be considered secondary uses.

Such uses, he said, are not necessarily incompatible with wilderness recreation which he defined as primitive travel, hunting, fishing, solitude and inspirational enjoyment.

Correspondent Released, Held For 29 Hours

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Bert McCabe, correspondent of Newsweek, was released by Indonesian military police today after being held incommunicado for nearly 29 hours.

He told reporters he was questioned about an advisory message he filed to his head office in New York which quoted "Rumors circulating strong troubles Sunday wake Sukarno's speech made rally which I am covering."

McCabe said the military police wanted to know the source of his information. He said he was adequately treated by the military police.

He said the police insisted he had not been arrested—simply taken into custody for questioning.

He said one officer told him he had been detained for his own protection against "subversive elements." These elements were not identified.

McCabe was released on an order from President Sukarno.

U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones lodged a protest with the government against McCabe's arrest.

Earlier Foreign Minister Subandrio said McCabe had written "false and inflammatory news."

SEATO Holding Secret Parley

MANILA (AP) — The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization's 10th anniversary ministerial conference went into secret session today for what was expected to be the most penetrating analysis of the eight-country pact since it was formed.

The two Asian members, Thailand and the Philippines, indicated today the time has come for some hard talking on the alliance's ability to halt Communist aggression.

France, which recently recognized Communist China and advocates the neutralization of Southeast Asia, also said the time has come "to do away with myths, to eliminate ambiguities and squarely to face realities."

France will face some candid questioning on its neutralism proposal, which has been rejected by the United States, Thailand and the Philippines.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, in his opening address, called such major problems of the area as South Viet Nam's war, the ineffective neutrality of Laos, Indonesian confrontation of Malaysia and economic problems of the whole region.

CAUTION CBC

MOOSE JAW (CP)—A resolution cautioning the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to "stay within the bounds of decency" was approved by Lutheran Laymen's League delegates Saturday. Delegates were asked to write the CBC and CTV networks, individual stations and sponsors when programs which offend are shown.

Belli Takes Verbal Swipes At Dallas

TORONTO (CP) — Melvin Belli, former defence counsel for Jack Ruby, said Saturday that variety of thought—even tolerance—is the spice of any healthy society.

Mr. Belli, addressing Canadian journalists at the National Newspaper Awards dinner, reviewed the trial in Dallas early this year of the killer of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

In his review, Mr. Belli took some verbal swipes at Dallas as "a sick city — a festering sore" in America.

He said the variety of things wrong with Dallas boiled down to the fact "that there is too much conformity in the Texas community.

The trouble with Dallas, he said, is "inbreeding—too much similarity of thought."

Dallas, he said, unlike other great cities of North America is no melting pot. He said that of 178 prospective jurors called in the Ruby case, there were but two Jews, two Negroes and two Roman Catholics. "All the rest were Protestant, Republicans."

Not that there is anything wrong, necessarily, with Protestant Republicans, he added, but in Dallas they all think alike.

Mr. Belli said sometimes dissenting persons are necessary features of a healthy community because they make the world reach "TOO MUCH MONEY"

He said Dallas has too much money, too much smug civic pride. Mr. Belli suggested Dallas call Jack Ruby on trial — transferred its collective guilt to him.

Mr. Belli criticized many persons connected with the Ruby trial, from Judge Joe D. Brown — whom he described as making a comic book during an important part of the trial—to the local prosecutor's office, which he said was proud of having sent 26 of the last 25 accused killers to the electric chair.

On his own statements, following the Dallas verdict in which he called the jury bigots, Mr. Belli said that a lawyer has a duty to speak out in the interest of justice and social rights.

The eight National Newspaper Awards, announced earlier, went to Anthony Westell of the Toronto Globe and Mail for editorial writing; Robert Hill, Edmonton Journal, spot news reporting; Robert Turnbull, Globe and Mail, feature writing; Alexander Ross, Vancouver Sun, staff correspondent; Kent Stevenson, Calgary Herald, news photography; Doris Spreeman, Globe and Mail, feature photography; Jan Kamienski, Winnipeg Tribune, cartooning; and Gary Lautens, Toronto Star, sports writing.

Museum Busy Over Weekend

This has been a very busy week at the Hastings County Museum. On Monday evening, more than 30 visitors toured the museum prior to the April meeting of the Hastings County Historical Society in the Corby Library Auditorium.

On Wednesday, classes from S.S. No. 2, Rawdon and S.S. No. 6 Rawdon, were brought by their teachers — Mrs. Grace L. Morton and Mrs. Fay Dunham.

Also Wednesday, the museum entertained members of Hastings County Council, followed by a Belleville Cub Pack.

Attendance was good on Saturday and on Sunday afternoon, 41 visitors were present from Stirling, Picton and other centres. Also, the museum served as the meeting place for a very successful walking tour.

Tonight (Monday), there is a workshop at the museum and interested workers are invited.

Letter to the Editor

Recalls Calgary Query Concerning Bowell

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

It was with interest that I read the letter to the editor re Mackenzie Bowell.

It is note, however, that Mr. Boyce states that "few people know that the stone cairn in front of the Armouries commemorates this distinguished citizen".

At this time, I am almost hoping that this information does not reach the Calgary Herald, as ten years ago, when the Mackenzie Bowell stamp was issued, Mr. Ken Liddell of the Herald asked the question, "Who is this man on the stamp?", in his "Furrows and Foothills" column.

As I was happened to be in Belleville when the cairn was unveiled by Prime Minister St. Laurent, and as I was interested also in Canadian stamps, I decided to answer his question.

I wrote to him and quoted from "The City of Belleville History" published by W. C. Mikel in 1916.

It seems that he received other replies but in a subsequent column he wrote, "For much of the information that I now know, I am indebted to Mrs. C. B. Blaker, of R.A.F. station, Penhold, Mrs. Blaker comes from Belleville, Ontario, where Bowell is held in high regarded as a native son that there is a cairn on the Armoury lawn in his memory."

I'm afraid that I gave him the impression that all Belleville knew of the cairn.

Perhaps, now, more people will remember Belleville's distinguished person, as schools are not quite as readily overlooked as either cairns or stamps.

UN Handicap in Cyprus

British troops in Cyprus are now under UN orders.

Recently a detachment of Britons were held hostage by Greek Cypriots.

This has annoyed many Britons. The London Times says that British troops should be withdrawn unless they "can be assured of a useful and dignified role in keeping the island's peace."

This sound reasonable enough.

But Carman Cumming, a staff writer for The Canadian Press, says that such assurance is impossible.

"It is the nature of UN peace-keeping activity that success is usually built on compromise rather than toughness," he writes.

In other words, troops which serve with the UN have to accept humiliating experiences as part of their job.

If this is the price of peace, it is well that it should be paid, though always with the proviso that the men of whom it is demanded should be compensated for such humiliations by being freely given the esteem of their countrymen and of other members of the UN whose interests they are serving.

One cannot help wondering, though, whether there may not be something wrong with this formula.

Is it true that toughness has been tried and found wanting all around the globe in the past couple of decades. The French in Indo-China and in Algeria, the British in Kenya, all learned this lesson the hard way. There is small reason to believe that initial toughness would have brought a quicker peace to the Congo. Here the UN was not because it was willing, time and again, to bend rather than attempt to stand stiff and risk breaking.

Surely, though, there must be some limits to the effectiveness of this attitude. The UN appears to have recognized this fact in the Congo—it finally did "act tough" with Moise Tshombe and his white mercenaries in Katanga and it was not until it did that the wounds of that unhappy country started to heal. One wonders whether Cyprus is not another spot where toughness will eventually be unavoidable and whether, with its recent history, it is not a spot where it will prove easier to get tough sooner than late.

The UN quandary is that it comes on the scene late in the drama, after earlier acts have been enacted without its intervention but by troops which come from a portion of its forces. It can only pity that it has been possible to replace the British, well-hated by the Greek Cypriots and, in all probability, nurturing their own prejudices against their old foes, by new troops. Peace-keeping is difficult enough, without the unique handicaps under which the UN labors in Cyprus. Would it have been possible to establish peace in the Congo if Belgians had made up the bulk of the UN contingent? What chance would the UN have had of policing the Sinai peninsula if part of its troops had been British or French—or, even worse, Arabs?

The Prejudiced North

Campaigning on a platform opposing the proposed U.S. civil rights bill, Alabama's segregationist governor, George C. Wallace, received about 25 per cent of the vote in Wisconsin's presidential primary.

The winner, Wisconsin Governor John W. Reynolds, had a facile explanation for Wallace's strong showing.

"It just goes to show what we have known all along," said Reynolds. "There are prejudiced people in the north as well as in the south."

There seems to be no room for argument on that point. Most people, though, (and certainly most Canadians), will be surprised at the number, which was well over double what Reynolds had earlier considered possible.

It makes one wonder what would happen in Canada if we had a similar vote here—and whether, if our record proved to be better than that of Wisconsin's, that might not be more accurately ascribed to a scarcity of Negroes than to an abundance of common sense.

The result, though, far from providing any reason why the civil rights bill should be dropped, merely emphasizes the urgency of adopting it.

The only places where civil rights bills are unnecessary are where everybody is in favor of them.

Where is the man who owes nothing to the land in which he lives? Whatever that land may be, he owes to it the most precious thing possessed by man, the morality of his actions and the love of virtue.—Jean Jacques Rousseau.

Wild West Will Be Back

Windsor Star

The Wild West, with its bad men and bad Indians, has survived down to these times as a piece of romantic fiction. Now the wilds are on the doorstep and Indians are about to fade into the sunset, for keeps.

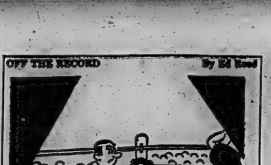
Yet if you are inclined to disbelieve it, time may prove you right. The demand for Western scrip is still very much in this century, but at its recent peak the flow never was strong. Yet, in the past few years, besides sleek, prancing horses, splendidly dressed riders, simple plots and scenic backgrounds, Nothing, really, but nothing more was left out but human interest. This was the new knighthood, this was the flower.

Most of those who watched on movie screen or TV, were little people at an imaginative age when cheap, fast thrills to time enjoyed "good corn." Perhaps the polls show heroism has died out, but human nature doesn't change much from one century to the next.

The Wild West films will be placed in their cans and stashed away. At some indefinite date sociologists will show renewed public interest, as horses bounce around again and hero beats villain. Then there'll be as deathless as Camelot, Sherwood Forest and Dodge City.

May Use Mail For Census

Saint John Telegraph Journal



Washington is toying with the idea of conducting the 1970 United States census by mail, and Canada will doubtless watch developments with close interest.

The experiment will be tried in Louisville, Ky., this spring. Instead of sending out house-to-house canvassing, special forms will be mailed to all householdrs. The information will be entered by marking the proper circles, and the completed forms will be mailed back to the Census Bureau in Washington.

If the experiment is a success — if enough forms are mailed back properly filled out — the technique will be applied to the 1970 national census.

If the plan works, the Census Bureau will need to hire fewer people, and money can be saved.

There's another potential benefit, if a small one. Most householders are already bothered by so many callers — bill collectors, fund raisers, poll takers, and salesmen of all ilk — that even one fewer knock on the door every 10 years would be welcome.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 13th, 1944.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Whalen of Thurlow, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary this week. A few intimate friends and relatives gathered to wish them congratulations on this grand occasion and to spend a social evening.

Miss Jean Allere who is attending Loretto Abbey in Toronto, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barrett of Grove St. have received a cable from their son, Jack, telling of his safe arrival in Great Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Boody (nee Hilda Reid) of Johnson St., will be at home to their friends and neighbors who wish to call Wednesday and Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whytock of Madoc, have received a cable from their daughter, Lesie (N.) at Camp Borden, stating she had arrived safely overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson entertained a few of their friends at their home, 8th Con. of Thurlow, it being the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. George H. Griffith of Toronto, formerly of Belleville was in town yesterday.

Miss Hilda Cryan, Reg. N., after spending several weeks vacation with her parents, Dr. J. H. and Mrs. Cryan in Picton, returned to Belleville this week.

Ken Colling, well-known baseball umpire of this city has been offered a place on the staff of umpires in the Michigan - Ontario League and he has the offer under consideration.

Maple syrup was offered in large quantities for sale on the market today. The ruling price was fifty cents per quart or 25 per gallon. Maple sugar sold at 25 cents per pound.

The annual sale of Holstein cattle under the auspices of the Belleville District Holstein-Friesian club which was held here was a great success. Eighty head of cattle were sold at a total of $2,805 of which the sum of $210 was for calves. The highest price paid was $300 for Pontiac Artis Spofford which was consigned by William Bros., of Bloomfield and sold to W. Preston of Frankford. J. J. Wilmot of Wilmot Centre was the harmest buyer. He bought twelve head. Geo. O. Tice was the auctioneer and James A. Caskey was sales manager.

The Illustrated London News of London, England, which has a world-wide circulation, issued on March 28th, a special Canadian supplement in colors with pictures and articles included photogravures of Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district, thirteen in number, including the avenues, city hall, market square, Albert College, Massassaga Park, fair grounds, private residences and gave facts about the town generally. More views will appear in a later edition of the publication. The committee in charge consisted of our Board of Trade on the success of this factor in their publicity campaign of Belleville and Hastings County.

Mr. Frank Pantter of Lindsay spent over the week here with his parents.

Mr. George R. Vanblaricom of Toronto spent yesterday here with his mother, Mrs F. M. Vanblaricom.

Is Nikita Converted?

London Free Press

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will find little cynicism and considerable response in the Western world to his latest posture on peaceful co-existence. Either the Russian leader is searching more deeply than ever for new friends in his power struggle with the Chinese Communists or his own concept of world statesmanship has reached a high degree of maturity. Perhaps it is a combination of both.

Some days ago, U.S. Senator J. William Fulbright sparked off a new reassessment of U.S. international attitudes by his speech calling for a new spirit and the banishment of "myths" from U.S. policy.

Mr. Khrushchev has now made his own "Fulbright speech" and has perhaps gone even beyond the U.S. senator.

Said Mr. Khrushchev: "We do not want war, and we do not want to interfere in the internal affairs and questions of other countries. Who will win will be decided in the economic sphere . . . we are not asked by the workers, peasants and intellectuals of capitalist countries to interfere in their affairs."

The late President Kennedy said more than once that if the Soviet Union would adopt a policy like that there was no reason why there should be another world war. It will, of course, still be incumbent on the Russian leader to back his words with deeds. The West must remain vigilant at the same time it explores all the avenues of peace. But whatever the reason for Khrushchev's words, let us be encouraged that he feels that way.

Could it be that the long and constant contacts the Russian communists have had with the ideas and aspirations of other peoples, the endless tedious and frustrating "dialogue," are beginning to pay a delayed and tremendous dividend. If so, could a like result be achieved through greater communication with the Communist Chinese? It is something we must not fail to consider.

Strictly Personal Titles Have Illusive Qualities

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Where do titles come from? The question arose the other day, when I was preparing to send a sheaf of columns to my publisher for a new collection in book form, and I was stumped for a title.

Shakespeare and the Bible, of course, are by far the most popular sources for book and play titles. The one speech in "Macbeth" beginning "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow . . ." is responsible for nearly a dozen titles in as many days.

Offhand, I can recall books named "This Sporting Pace," "All Or Yesterdays," "Dusty Death," "Brief Candles," "Told By An Idiot," and "Sound and Fury." Perhaps no other speech in English literature has been so richly mined for titles.

There is a great fetish nowadays for thinking up a "selling title." The book marketing experts insist that a provocative title is enormously helpful, while a dull or prosaic one is fatal — as may hurt a book's sales. This may be true for inferior works, but I am sure it has no effect upon greater ones.

Shakespeare himself paid absolutely no attention to the titles of his plays. He might have called "Hamlet" "Revenge Is Sweet," or "The Prince's Revenge," if he were looking for immediate popularity.

If the modern hucksters had been in charge of the Globe Theatre, they would have insisted that he change the title of "Macbeth" to "Who Murdered The King?" or "Lady Macbeth's Passion on a Pillow-Case." If such titles "Measure for Measure" and "Troilus and Cressida" were published by a contemporary producer, they would ruthlessly be discarded. (Incidentally, when a Shakespearean theatre was started in Texas a few years ago, the production of "The Taming of the Shrew" was changed to "The Original of 'Kiss Me, Kate!'")

What with the Wind" was not the title that Margaret Mitchell submitted with her manuscript of the novel. It was thought by the publishers, who plucked it from a line in Ernest Dowson's quite long poem, "Cynara," long beloved by all adolescents.

Arthur Train's first title for his play, "Death of a Salesman" was "The Inside of His Head." His producer objected vigorously when he changed it, pointing out that titles with "Death" in them were poison at the box office, unless they were mysteries. He persisted, and proved the Communists wrong — as he usually is again. "Death of a Salesman" became possibly the most successful play of the decade.

Nobody really knows what the public will take to, until after it has come out. "Don't call your story, 'Frankenstein'," Mr. Scully — we suggest "Monster From the Grave" if you really want it to grab people.

Petrov's wife was accorded asylum April 20 and three days later Australia broke off diplomatic relations with Australia.

Cheat Gets Worst of It

Galt Reporter

A young lad knocked on the door of a woman's home and asked her if she would like to buy some of the berries he had just picked.

"Yes," she said, "and I'll take your pail in the kitchen and measure out two quarts."

The boy stood outside and played with the dog. "Why don't you come in and see that I measure your berries right?" inquired the woman. "How do you know that I may not cheat you?"

"I am not afraid," he replied, "for you would gat the worst of it."

"Get the worst of it!" questioned the woman. "What do you mean by that?"

"Why, Ma'am," said the boy, "I would only lose the berries you would make yourself a debt."

Injury to Coccyx Can Cause Great Deal of Discomfort

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: About six months ago I broke my coccyx. I cannot sit very long, even on a soft seat, and I have pain in the area if I strain in any way. Is it possible that the broken bone could have caused an infection? My doctor said the bone should have healed in a bout two weeks. I am 40-year-old.—J. C. M.

The coccyx (pronounced Kok'siks) is a vestigial tailbone. I don't know that it is good for anything now, but it can cause an inordinate amount of discomfort when it is damaged, usually by a sitting fall, as in your case.

The fracture is unlikely to have caused an infection, and your doctor is correct about the usual time required for healing.

The pain on occasion can last a long time. For one thing, you don't get a chance to forget it. It reminds you every time you down.

However, there are reasons for this long-continuing tenderness. I will set them out and the things you can do to help the problem.

Sometimes certain nerves ca. be injured, and they recover very slowly.

Irritation may have developed at the juncture of the coccyx and the bone to which it is attached (the sacrum).

Spasm of muscles attached to the coccyx may be a factor.

Pain seldom is present when you are standing, but unfortunately we can't always stand.

You mention that it hurts even when you use a soft seat. Well, a soft seat isn't best, strange as it may seem. A firm seat is best because then all the buttocks bear the weight. With a soft seat, they don't and some of the pressure is on the coccyx.

A straight chair is better than a lounge chair because it encourages you to sit more erectly. A cushion or pillow behind the lower back (not under you) will help you sit straighter, too, and your posture is highly important in this matter.

Heat (including hot baths) can be relaxing and if muscle spasm is involved, this can produce the pain considerably. In some cases massage helps.

If pain is unbearable, amputation of the coccyx is at times necessary, but this is an extreme measure. Usually the other methods (and the passage of time) do the job successfully.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been treated since August, 1962, for a prostate gland infection. I am 41. The condition will clear up and a few days later a discharge will return. What do you suggest? Four doctors have treated me.—L. R.

The intermittent discharge indicates that the infection is in a chronic stage. Sometimes clearing up such an infection is difficult. A culture of the discharges will show what germs are present and which antibiotics should be used.

With such a chronic infection, consult a urologist — and then stick with him. It is usually wasteful and inefficient to switch from doctor to doctor, especially in a case like this. A doctor can become familiar with an idea of how your case does or doesn't respond, then off you go to another else, to do the whole thing over.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've read articles advising parents to get measles shots for small children. What about my daughter who is 12 and has not had measles? — Mrs. E. K.

A good measles vaccine has been developed. Age is of no special consequence. If a child of any age has not had measles, it is worthwhile to get such a vaccination.

Sixty Seven To Be Lively

Hamilton Spectator

Make no mistakes, 1967 is going to be a really big year if some of our more imaginative citizens have their way. As Canada will be officially 100 years old on July 1 of that year, many communities have pretty much in mind that should make the year something to remember.

Most of the projects are of a serious nature. Cultural centres, monuments, and that sort of wonderful thing.

But some of them are "fun" projects. Hootenannies, for instance. Sudbury — loving Canadian has suggested a national sing - song to take place on the night of June 30, 1967, complete with bonfires, marshmallows, and all the rest.

But some of them are "fun" projects. Hootenannies, for instance. Sudbury — loving Canadian has suggested a national sing - song to take place on the night of June 30, 1967, complete with bonfires, marshmallows, and all the rest.

For instance, one citizen is urging the government to sponsor continuous bell ringing by all people who own bells, from January 1, 1967, to December 31, 1967.

Another wants to see a tug of war between citizens of Montreal and Toronto.

Yet another wants every person to dress up in costume and say "How" at twelve noon (local time) on July 1, 1967.

There's also the suggestion that there be a world-wide log - rolling contest, in honor of Canada's Lumberjack heritage. In this regard, someone is bound to suggest that the Canadian Intellectual Exhibition should award a large sum of money to the first person who log - rolls around the world.

Another sensible suggestion comes from a man who would like to see a cross-Canada marathon with runners passing the baton.

Then there's the woman who would have every citizen of Victoria and Toronto speak only French for a week, while the citizens of Quebec City and Montreal are speaking only English.

Another Canadian pleads with the government to place lighted crosses under the St. Lawrence River off Morrisburg and to leaving foreign ship would see Canada was a Christian country.

A really formidable idea comes from an Albertan who would have the Dominion Parliament meet alternately in each provincial capital during 1967. He would have a particularly stubborn, no other words, that might eventually bring the country.

Last but not least, there's the rugged pioneer type who would give us all back to the Indians, scalps and all. Each, of course, he's a pessimist and shouldn't believe everything he hears.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The ticker was running 15 minutes late at 11 a.m. today, swamped by some of the heaviest trading on record on the stock market.

Share volume was 2,320,000 shares compared with 2,703,000 at the same time Friday. Total volume Friday reached 13,425,600 shares, short of the 15,500,000 share record set during the 1953 uranium boom.

Most of the trading has been the result of rumors of a copper strike in the Timmins area of northern Ontario. Texas Gulf, the only company drilling in the region, has reported it will carry out further exploratory drilling on its copper property.

PCE Explorations, with land near Texas Gulf, was ahead one cent to 45 cents on 526,000 shares.

The industrial board was slightly higher, with papers as leaders. Fraser Companies, Great Lakes Paper and MacMillan Bloedel all advanced ¼.

Noranda was up ¼ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting down ¼ among senior base metals.

On index, the Exchange index rose .01 to 138.32, industrials .02 to 148.73, base metals .01 to 67.32, golds .13 to 120.62 and western oils dipped .16 to 87.83.

Ontario In Longest Boom Says Treasurer

CHATHAM (CP)—Provincial Treasurer James N. Allan said Saturday that Ontario is currently in its longest boom period since the Second World War and is in the fourth year of its present expansion period.

Mr. Allan, a 32nd degree Mason and deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, was speaking at a dinner meeting of the Chatham Lodge of Perfection, Scottish Rite.

He pointed to climbing employment, record-breaking steel, pig iron and automobile production as signposts of an expanding economy.

Since 1950, he said, provincial revenues have climbed from $271,000,000 to $1,159,000,000 for the fiscal year and noted the major revenue sources as gasoline, personal income, corporation and retail sales taxes, the liquor control board, motor vehicle licensing and succession duties.

Despite the revenue increase, he said, "the task of finding required revenues is becoming increasingly difficult."

Present tax sharing arrangement with the federal government, when fully implemented, will provide only one fifth of the personal and corporation income tax fields.

Because of Ontario's expanding responsibilities "we cannot regard this as a just or adequate recognition of our growing revenue requirements."

"The present share of these tax fields . . . simply does not reflect the special problems that exist in a growing urban and highly industrialized province like Ontario."

But, he continued, the government is encouraged by the federal government's recent proposal to review the nature and extent of federal-provincial taxes and it is hoped a more equitable and satisfactory division of tax revenues will result.

Socred Chief R. Thompson Wants National Government

Special by Richard Jackson

OTTAWA — Social Credit leader Robert Thompson wants national government.

Only such a non-partisan, all-party government, he says, now can hope to cope with the crisis of Confederation.

He sees trouble on all points of the political compass—the fiscal and financial field, federal-provincial relation, foreign policy and trade, defence, social security—and believes another election could only make things worse, with the voters either being apathetic or confused.

The only solution, then, he insists, is National Government.

As Mr. Thompson projects it, such a non-partisan administration would be recruited from "among what he calls "the men of great talent" of all five parties, not excluding the Quebec Nationalists who follow Real Caouette.

He is convinced that within this very parliament there are the required men of goodwill and ability who could, if convinced of the urgent need, the "absolute necessity to forget old labels and old formulas," form a government with the strength and character to rally the nation as it hasn't been rallied in a hundred years.

It would be a government of men of all parties, united on the bedrock basis of finding and doing, as Mr. Thompson puts it, "what's best for Canada."

In the opposition, as he sees it, would be the foot-draggers, the doubters, the frightened ones and the partisans who decide their policy and behavior in parliament on the spur-of-the-opportunist-moment of what's best for the party.

Even if such a National Government could muster no better than a minority, it could go without hesitation to the country, believes the Socred leader, secure in the sure knowledge that it would win in a landslide of votes from a people newly-inspired and determined on their national destiny.

Mr. Thompson, of course, would like to get a call for cabinet duty in just such a National Government.

And he thinks that this sort of a non-partisan administration could come about, if as he puts it, the men of decision, particularly Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, put nation before party. It's just possible, he begins to suspect, that events may force the Prime Minister into it, unwilling as he may be at the moment to accept it.

Such an event would be the disunion of the Liberals, with a breakaway within the party's Quebec ranks. Then, only a realignment along National Government lines could save parliament, and, as Thompson sees it, "in the long run, the nation too."

BEATLE FANS QUEUE

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Screaming Beatle fans stampeded Monday in Sydney and Melbourne to get tickets for the long-haired British quartet's appearances in June. Hundreds of teen-agers, most of them girls, camped all night in front of the ticket office in Sydney. Nearly 200 in Melbourne lined up at noon Saturday.

Ethel Kennedy Has Keen Sense of Humor, Is Fine Mother of 8 Children

WASHINGTON (CP) — When you're the mother of eight children, it helps to have (a) a sense of humor and (b) a husband with a few million dollars.

Ethel Kennedy has both.

An irreverent wit is reflected in many of the stories about the wife of U.S. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy.

One of the best is about a dinner she gave one night at Hickory Hill, her Virginia home, for the dowager Duchess of Devonshire.

As the guests crowded at the table, elbow to elbow, Ethel concluded grace by saying:

"And please, dear God, make Bobby buy me a bigger dining room table."

At various times, Ethel Kennedy has been described as "an authentic American primitive," bouncy, artless, vivacious, happy, spontaneous and high-spirited.

That she is high-spirited is evident from an incident that occurred during the Kennedys' 1962 world tour.

She was given a motor scooter by reporters in Rome. With a whoop, she drove it out of a restaurant and circled a square until she bumped into a moving vehicle. Later she blithely explained that it was the first time she had ever been on a scooter.

SET IN CANADA

Mrs. Kennedy will accompany her husband on a one-day trip to Ottawa Tuesday. They'll spend several hours in Ottawa and then fly to Toronto where Kennedy will address the annual dinner of The Canadian Press.

The Kennedys have reason to feel warmly about Canada. It was while skiing at Mont Tremblant, Que., during Christmas 1944 that Ethel Skakel met Robby. They were married in 1950.

When she can find the time, Mrs. Kennedy, a slender five-foot-five, still goes skiing in winter. She's also an accomplished horsewoman, swimmer and tennis player.

And she's proud of the fact that she has taught her children to swim before the age of three, starting with 13-year-old Kathleen, eldest of the eight. Nine-month-old Christopher, one of five boys, is the latest candidate for the course.

Although she is married to an heir to one of the world's great fortunes, Mrs. Kennedy has chosen to shun opulence, perhaps because having money is not a novelty. She is the daughter of the late George Skakel of Greenwich, Conn., a wealthy mining industrialist who was killed with his wife in a plane crash in 1955.

VETS IN THE HOUSE

While the Kennedys travel widely and often, their heart is at Hickory Hill, the century-old white-brick mansion set in the gently rolling hills 10 miles from Washington.

Visitors are likely to encounter the Kennedy children, among others, wandering all over the grounds while animals scurry about indoors.

There are pets to suit the tastes of all the Kennedy youngsters — ponies, dogs, cats, pigeons, rabbits, pheasants, turtles, pollywogs, even a seal. And friends are stretched to see how much time the Kennedys manage to devote to their children, despite political and social obligations.

The parents take their children to participate with them in competitive sports—including touch football, the Kennedy family favorite—and keep in touch with them daily on long trips away from home.

Informality is the word that describes life at Hickory Hill where hosts of youngsters are entertained at the swimming pool, a gathering place that has often been mentioned in the society columns of U.S. newspapers.

DUNKED IN POOL

At one time or another such celebrated figures as former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger, historian Arthur Schlesinger and even Ethel herself have been dunked in the pool during parties.

But there's another side to sandy - haired Ethel Kennedy. She is deeply interested in her husband's work and used to push to Congress daily to watch her husband in action as Senate counsel waging battle against labor racketeers.

She is involved with charity projects to raise funds for churches, hospitals and orphanages. While in Asia she was deeply moved by the poverty she saw—the mothers without diapers for their children; the sick children in hospitals without beds.

"They must get help," she told her husband with strong emotion. "We must give them all the help we can."

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The last meeting for March of the Women of the Moose was held in the Moose hall, with Dr. Regent Gladys Ritch presiding. Before the meeting opened a potluck supper was served to the officers and members of the White Cane club by the co-workers.

After the supper the club members were escorted to the front hall where an entertainment was put on by Wayne and Frances Shandrew, and Manly Ray on their instruments. Donna Laney and Vivian Cox gave a tap dance number.

Mrs. Coleman in the absence of Mrs. Rollins expressed thanks for inviting the White Cane club and their escorts to the banquet. Pat Baverstock also thanked the chapter and introduced Helen Wardhaugh, president of the White Cane Club, who also spoke briefly.

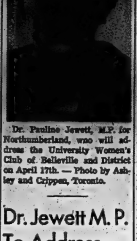
Secretary Joy Rollins thanked the Women of the Moose on behalf of the men's lodge for inviting them to supper.

Mrs. Coleman was then escorted from the altar by the guides and presented with a cheque to be used for the White Cane Club entertainment.

The meeting was then brought to a close.

APRIL 9, 1964

On Thursday night the Women of the Moose held their regular meeting with the Dictator Regent Gladys Ritch presiding. Business was discussed and passed that bills be paid. The girls will go for their Friendship degrees on May 3, 1964. The auditing report for the three months was read by the recorder. A draw, donated by Ida Lake was awarded the lucky winner.



A thank-you letter was read from Mr. Nicks. A bake sale is to be held at the next meeting. All co-workers are to donate home baked goods. A euchre is to be held in Moose hall for the chapter next Thursday afternoon. All co-workers wishing to attend are welcome.

Refreshments were served by Ida Lake and her committee.

The winners of the draw for the Fay as You Pull tickets, drawn recently were: 1st prize, Mrs. Ina Lloyd; 2nd prize, Mrs. Annie Hamilton and third prize, Mrs. Pearl Welch.

Dr. Jewett M.P. To Address Club Meeting

Dr. Jewett who will speak to the University Women's Club on April 17th on the subject of "The role of an M.P. - - in Parliament and out," is the daughter of Mrs. F. C. Jewett, a direct descendent of Northumberland County's first settlers, and the late F. C. Jewett, C.B.E.

In 1946 she obtained her B.A. in politics and philosophy at Queen's University, and in 1945 her Master's degree. In 1950 she was awarded a doctorate at Radcliffe College, Harvard University, and went on to post-doctoral studies at the London School of Economics and Oxford University.

OUTSTANDING CAREER

Dr. Jewett has had an outstanding career as a University lecturer at Wellesley College, Queen's University and Carleton University. In 1960-1961 she was chairman of the Department of Political Sciences at Carleton.

Dr. Jewett has been an active Member of Parliament, and was a member of the Canada-U.S. Inter-parliamentary group that held discussions in Washington in January this year.

Dr. Jewett is a member of the provisional executive of Exchange for Political Ideas in Canada; chairman of the Parliamentary Association of World Federalists of Canada; and a member of the Board of Trustees of Queen's University.

Awards Given to Winners At Close of Curling Year

The Quinte Ladies' Curling Club concluded a most successful season with a pot-luck supper and a general meeting with 90 members attending on Thursday evening in the club house.

Mrs. A. Bannon, president called for general reports which were most encouraging and noteworthy. Mrs. G. Livingstone, treasurer, reported a good financial return from the club's effort. Mrs. W. Pape reported for the catering group and Mrs. Walker's hospital report showed an excellent job well done.

Mrs. R. Graham in the absence of Mrs. D. McMorris awarded prizes to the Belle Cleaners Trophy winner Mrs. McCorquodale, Mrs. S. Reston, Mrs. D. Blair and Mrs. J. Loynes. Mrs. T. Carruthers presented the prizes for the event.

Mrs. K. Pinder's rink of Mrs. Livingston, Mrs. C. Lowther and Mrs. P. Dybie were the next in line and were awarded prizes.

SEASON'S TOP SCORES

The top scores were won by Mrs. P. Acton for the total, Mrs. Baber for the vices, Mrs. J. Soetaert for the seconds and Mrs. M. Monson for the leads. This was for the entire season and these curlers are to be congratulated.

There were two prizes awarded to two players who did not make a scheduled game all season, namely Mrs. R. Booth and Mrs. W. Clare.

Mrs. D. Duffy as social convenor gave her report mentioning the December bridge, the Christmas party with 230 attending and the bonspiel tea and closing party.

Mrs. W. Cook gave her report as head of the house committee and Mrs. Stanton as publicity one.

Mrs. G. Wambold was commended for her excellent convenorship with Mrs. D. McMorris as the Sportswomen's Spiel.

ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. P. Acton and Mrs. G. Wambold the nominating committee brought in a slate of officers for next season:

Past president, Mrs. A. Bannon; president — Mrs. H. Mott; vice-president — Mrs. G. Livingston; secretary — Mrs. J. Binning; treasurer — Mrs. T. Carruthers; bonspiel convenor — Mrs. D. Blair; games chairman — Mrs. R. Benny; co-convenor — Mrs. C. Neill; house committee — Mrs. P. Dybie; social committee — Mrs. R. Booth; catering convenors — Mrs. A. Bannon, Mrs. E. Gowsell, Mrs. C. Neill; publicity — Mrs. M Sheppard.

An appropriate close to the meeting was made when Mrs. G. Wambold presented president Mrs. A. Bannon with a past president's pin.

WEDDING

BURROWS — ELLIS

Rev. J. T. Irwin of Kingʼs St. United Church in Trenton officiated at a quiet wedding in the church on Saturday, when Beatrice Ellis of Toronto became the bride of Grant Burrows, also of Toronto and formerly of Trenton.

Attendents were the brother of the bridegroom, Elwood Burrows of Trenton and Mrs. Burrows.

A reception was held later at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Burrows.

SEWS QUILT

Auxiliary of Medical Society To Visit CARS Patients

The Women's Auxiliary of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. J. S. Stock, 174 Bridge Street East.

Plans were completed to sponsor a concert by Mr. Gregory Butler, pianist, to be held in the auditorium of the Belleville Collegiate on October 7. Mrs. J. S. Stock will convene this event.

Mrs. D. A. McKinney in charge of volunteers at the physiotherapy treatment centre at the Belleville General Hospital Tuesday and Thursday evening, said that more volunteers were needed.

It was discussed and decided to contact the Vocational Guidance teachers at the high schools in the city, to inquire if students interested in physiotherapy as a career, might like to work as volunteers in assisting at the treatment centre.

Mrs. A. A. Gemmell gave a detailed report on the coffee party which was held at the YMCA in March and thanked all those who had helped, and those who donated to the home baking table.

Mrs. E. David, convener of the public relations, was pleased to say that the members of the Women's Auxiliary of The Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society will visit the shut-in patients. This will be appreciated by many, and will be a real service.

She also reported two patients are in hospital from this area: Mr. Alex Armstrong is in Belleville General Hospital and Miss Velma Rollins of Madoc, is in Toronto General Hospital.

At the close of the meeting the hostess and Mrs. D. A. McKinney and Mrs. C. A. Campbell served refreshments.

Congregational Meeting

PARK DALE BAPTIST

Park Dale Baptist Church held its half yearly business meeting on Tuesday evening, in the absence of a pastor, Mr. Lee Foster chaired the meeting. Those in charge of various aspects of the church program presented reports.

The Sunday school has continued to grow, reaching a record attendance of 230. The greatest increase was in the junior department where there was a 50 per cent increase.

Mr. Angus Hannah, the superintendent of this department, has been encouraging the people and leaders to visit the absentees and to invite others to Sunday school. The "Andrew Prize," for the student being the most children, was awarded to Joyce Nails, who is a member of the Junior Department.

A Sunday school class for retarded children was started last fall. Mrs. Angus Hannah teaches this class on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Children's church has been divided into primary and junior church. Numbers in both departments have been high, with about 30 in primary church and 40 in junior church. One of the aims of children's church is to prepare children for the adult worship service. Included in each department's program is a short worship service which follows the order of the adult service, but is geared to the age of the children.

The Sunday school bus now provides transportation both on Sunday and on Friday evenings for the Sky Teen and Sky Cadet programs. Under the direction of Mr. Stew Blake this organization has had an average attendance of 75 children each Friday night since it was started in January.

The choir has presented two cantatas under the direction of Mr. Lamont Parks. Both cantatas were written by John Patterson.

Choir gowns and collars were made by Mrs. Pat Kammer, and Mrs. Anna Nichol.

Other reports included missions, Young Adults, Ladies' Missionary Fellowship and the Sunday School.

The church has been without a pastor since January, but members are confident that this vacancy will soon be filled.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

UNASKED-FOR ADVICE IS RESENTED

Friends of ours have decided to build a swimming pool behind their house and innocently mentioned this to some visitors.

They don't plan anything grand, just an economy job with an area for the little children to paddle in and enough space for the older members of the family to have a healthful swim without rubbing elbows at every turn.

Well, you should have heard the tidal wave of opinion the comment generated. One said it was ridiculous to go to all that expense, and why didn't they take the kids to Europe on vacation? Others immediately started discussing filters, skimmers, type of construction and the like, and offered all kinds of advice, most of it inexpert and without any basis in research.

By the time the idea of the pool had been thoroughly hashed over, our friends were about to ditch the whole idea and head for Tahiti, where swimming is ready-made and filters are out of the fashion.

Didn't they know, asked the visiting experts, about the sort of expense involved in keeping up a pool, that taxes would likely be valued upward, that concrete could crack and that youngsters could crack a hole in concrete that you had to put up a six-foot fence around it and what sort of insurance coverage was need? Also, there was much discussion of so-called hidden costs, including fencing, if any, the builders hit rock. And wouldn't they have to go to a lot of time, trouble and expense emptying and painting the pool each year, then refilling it the next?

IMPOLITE VISITORS

It went on and on, and our friends had the impression that their impolite visitors thought they were complete idiots. The pool had been no sudden inspiration, they had thought it over, it for several years, researched several reputable contractors, looked over installations in the area, talked to people who owned them, looked up local ordinances, and also compared the savings of having at-home vacations as opposed to taking the youngsters on expensive trips that left everyone in need of a rest when they were over.

When thoughtless and impolite people start talking expertness, it's hard to convince them you really have your wits about you and know what you are doing.

By the time the group left, our friends felt they had perpetrated a horrible crime on the neighborhood and were all set to build a badminton court instead.

Taking apart someone's plans and dreams so callously, just to have something to say, does tend to take some of the lustre out of a project. The visitors probably thought they were being helpful, but they did leave our friends with a sinking feeling.

Now that the project is going through, they've regained their optimism and enthusiasm and, as my friends say, once the pool is built their doubting visitors will come around to a more favorable viewpoint. One thing is certain. As soon as the weather gets warm, you may be sure they'll be coming around, period.

Dorcas Assoc. Enjoys Scenic Travelogue

The Dorcas Association of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, held their annual "open night" in the Sunday School auditorium.

President, Mrs. C. Campbell called the meeting to order, and extended a cordial welcome to all members and visitors.

Mrs. A. Wells was in charge of the devotional, based on "The Missionary Call."

Rev. Gordon Woodcock introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Don Charlton, who showed a colored sound film "The Wide, Wide World."

In his opening remarks the speaker said this travelogue should really be called "The Wonderful World" or "The Beautiful Wide World."

The starting point of this colored film was Ottawa with its red coated Mounties on horses, in front of the parliament buildings, from there across to London, England, and then again scenery, Venice, with its quaint canal system; Rome, with its old world architecture and the entertainment of the colorful bull fights. Then on to the western countries, Egypt and the Moslems, India with its bazaars, beggars, multi-color silks and the historic Taj-Mahal, Thailand with its eastern craftsmanship, Hong Kong and Japan, Africa with its tribal dances.

From here to Australia, South America, Argentine, Mexico City, Peru, the Inca tribes and head hunters, over to the Golden Gate, San Francisco, the Canadian Rockies and Vancouver, ending up at the Chateau-Frontenac, Quebec — truly a wonderful world and a fine educational film.

On behalf of the Association, Mrs. R. Goodman expressed thanks to Mr. Charlton for a most informative evening, enjoyed by all.

U.C.W. Meeting

MARMORA U.C.W.

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's U.C.W. was held in the ladies parlor on Tuesday afternoon, April 9th.

Mrs. Ira Stetson, president, opened the meeting and the devotional period was conducted by Mrs. J. M. D. McLeod and Mrs. H. G. Parkin.

Roll call was taken by the secretary, Mrs. R. McCreary and minutes of last meeting read.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. G. Rowden.

Correspondence was read by the secretary which showed that the 75th year class for officers of U.C.W. will be held at Eastminster United Church, Belleville on April 20th. It was requested that as many as possible attend.

The program convener was Mrs. J. Murphy, who gave an interesting talk on "The World of Indian Women" and pointed out the tremendous part they are beginning to play in the life of their country.

She used to be bothered by backaches and tired, aching feelings. When she learned that irritation of the bladder and urinary tract can result in backaches and tired feelings, she took Dodd's Kidney Pills. Smart girl. Dodd's Pills stimulate the kidneys to help relieve the conditions causing the backaches and tired feelings. Soon she felt better—started feeling fine. Don't be bothered by backaches. Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's.

Ring Around Bathtub No Substitute for Engagement

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter Sarah is 27 years old. She has a good job as secretary to an executive in a shoe factory. For the past four years she has been going with a fellow who works there as a foreman. I will call him Ralph although that is not his name. In fact he doesn't work at the factory either. I just put that in to disguise him in case this letter shows up in the paper.

Ralph lives in a rooming house. He comes here for dinner three nights a week and uses our bathtub. He says it is almost impossible to get into the bathroom at the rooming house. When he does get in, there is no hot water.

ANN LANDERS

We don't mind except he never cleans the tub after he uses it. Once my wife placed a can of scouring powder right in the middle of the tub, but he didn't take the hint.

We wouldn't care if we were sure Ralph was going to marry our Sarah but he hasn't proposed to her even though he never takes out anyone else. What do you think? — WEDDING BELLS WANTED.

DEAR BELLS — I'm afraid the only ring Sarah will ever see is the one Ralph leaves around the tub.

A fellow doesn't go steady with a girl four years and not declare his honorable intentions — if he has any. Sarah should have a frank talk with Ralph regarding the future. If he isn't interested in marriage she should — if you will excuse the expression — pull the plug on him.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are ready to admit we are failures, too, because we were going to be perfect parents. It should have been easy. Our own wants are few and we were willing to devote ourselves totally to our children.

We are an average family, with an average income. We live in an average home and drive an average car. We taught our children to swim, fish, hunt, bowl, golf, skate and dance. We've taken them picknicking, camping, on sightseeing trips and given them everything they need. Yet, ever since they learned to talk all we've heard is "But the neighbor kids have nicer bikes, better guns, more spending money . . ."

Now it's, "But all the other kids can go steady. I'm always the first one to leave a party. Everyone has more fun than I do."

You might say they are just spoiled, but how did they get that way? We take them to church regularly, insist on weak nights for study, and set their allowances at a reasonable minimum. They can have the car occasionally — we always know where they are, and with whom. Yet they seem discontented, misunderstood and dissatisfied with their parents? Why? — THE FAILURES.

DEAR FRIENDS — I refuse to call you failures because I don't believe you have failed. There is no such animal as a perfect parent because there is no perfect people.

You have invested a great deal of time and energy in your children and believe me, it will pay off handsomely in the long run.

Your children may seem to you to be discontented and misunderstood, but I don't buy it. They may gripe, bock for more freedom or rebel against authority. But so what? Every kid feels for soft spots. Every kid vies for position.

At times all parents feel they are failures, but your letter contains no sign of failure — only a report on their gripes. You sound as if you are unquestionably in control. And when parents are in control the children feel secure. They know that parents love them enough to keep an eye on them and to insist on decent standards of conduct.

Mental Health Talk Given at Assoc. Meet

The April meeting of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children was held recently at the school, 281 John St.

The vice-president, Mrs. Tom Stovell, was in charge of the meeting in the absence of the president. Committee reports were presented by the various chairmen. Mr. John Rose reported that plans for the annual campaign were well under way. This campaign will take the form of a Bits Night on April 30th. The education chairman, Mrs. Don Maddocks, reported that two new pupils were to start school within the next week and another would be starting some time during the month, bring the total number of pupils to 27.

The guest speaker was Mrs. W. Thompson, vice-president of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association. Following an interesting film, "To Serve The Minds," Mrs. Thompson gave a brief history of the formation of the CMHA. She went on to outline the aims of the association and told how they were being fulfilled. The Belleville branch, though young, is an active one. Its main interest at the present time is the staffing of a Mental Health Clinic in Belleville. Mrs. Thompson mentioned the minimum staff required and told a little about the functions of such a clinic.

A discussion period was followed by the serving of refreshments.

Glenhyrst Gourmet Desserts

by Mary Moore

There is room in one column for the last two Glenhyrst Arts Council desserts. These are to be served at the Antiques Show and Sale in Brantford the first week in May. Two years ago I said I would give four of them in four instalments. Because these two are shorter than the first two, they comprise the third and last instalment of this series.

CHOCOLATE SOUFFLE

1¼ cups sweet sherry, 5 eggs, separated, ¾ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 envelopes unflavored gelatine, 1 cup heavy cream, lady fingers.

Soften gelatine in ½ cup cold water for 5 minutes. Place over boiling water and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat and add sherry. Cool. Chill for 30 minutes or until mixture begins to thicken. Meanwhile, beat egg whites until foamy. Add ½ cup of the sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add lemon juice and beat until mixture is stiff but not dry. Beat egg yolks until frothy. Add remaining ½ cup sugar gradually and beat until yolks are thick and lemon-colored. Add slightly thickened wine gelatine slowly to egg yolks and continue beating until thick and light. Fold egg whites into gelatine mixture until blended. Whip cream and fold in. Pour into a dish lined on bottom and sides with lady fingers (a straight-sided souffle dish is preferable). Pour souffle mixture flows between cracks. Chill for 2 hours or until deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes or firm.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Empress's Macaroni (an egg souffle with olives, green pepper and cheese — March 5/64); Cheesy Mushroom Sauce; Julienne Green Beans; Criss Cole Slaw; Baked Spy Apples; Pouring Cream; Coffee.

PEARS IN WINE

6 firm ripe pears, 1 cup red wine, 1 cup sugar, 1" piece cinnamon stick, ¼ teaspoon cloves (or 4 whole cloves), ¼" slice lemon, few drops red coloring.

Wash pears, stand in halves, pare and core. Combine all other ingredients in flameproof lge. casserole. Heat syrup to boiling point, add pear halves, cover and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes or until pears are soft. Discard cinnamon and lemon peel and serve whole pears, 2 halves per serve warm, with or without cold custard.

BLANC MANGE SOUFFLE

1¼ cups sweet sherry, 5 eggs, separated, ¾ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 envelopes unflavored gelatine, 1 cup heavy cream, lady fingers.

Soften gelatine in ½ cup cold water for 5 minutes. Place over boiling water and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat and add sherry. Cool. Chill for 30 minutes or until mixture begins to thicken. Meanwhile, beat egg whites until foamy. Add ½ cup of the sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add lemon juice and beat until mixture is stiff but not dry. Beat egg yolks until frothy. Add remaining ½ cup sugar gradually and beat until yolks are thick and lemon-colored. Add slightly thickened wine gelatine slowly to egg yolks and continue beating until thick and light. Fold egg whites into gelatine mixture until blended. Whip cream and fold in. Pour into a dish lined on bottom and sides with lady fingers (a straight-sided souffle dish is preferable). Pour souffle mixture flows between cracks.

Chill for 2 hours or until deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes or firm.

Fuel Pumps Not Immune To Trouble

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Today's fuel pumps are really efficient and rugged, but they're workhorses too, and you can't expect them to be forever immune to trouble. Many things such as wear, looseness, distortion binding, leakage, can cause it pump failure. Symptoms vary, too. Starting difficulties, missing, lack of pep or engine cut-out at certain speeds. A faulty fuel pump once stalled us on a railroad track when we attempted to slip across.

It is possible, of course, that what may seem to be pump trouble is actually due to a clogging, loosened or leakage at ith. fuel filter bowl. Check this first.

Although weak pressure is usually the case, fuel - p u m p trouble can show up via excessive pressure. This is generally traced to binding linkage or fuel seepage that causes the pump diaphragm to swell.

From C. M.: "Under 20 mph my car engine is rough, but at high speeds, it runs as smoothly as can be. What's the reason?"

Poor carburetor idle adjustment or dirty carburetor i d l e passages are the likely causes.

R. L. writes: "Since both my muffler and tailpipe are fairly new and the connections tight, I'm baffled by a very noticeable exhaust odor seeping into the car. Can you help?"

Look for a cracked exhaust manifold connection or a defective manifold gasket.

T. R. asks: "I hear a rattle from under the hood, even at very low speeds, but never when I idle. My gas station hasn't been able to find out what the trouble is — if any."

A loose carburetor air cleaner, or a batter that's loose in its cradle, will vibrate and cause a rattle when the car is in motion.

From P. K.: "My '30 sedan with automatic transmission does not hold when I shift to park unless the emergency brake is on, too. Is this 'normal?'"

The car should hold in park even with the emergency off . . . which means you should have the transmission checked out by a qualified expert.

CREDIT RATING GOOD

BRACKNELL, England (AP) Opening time came and went at the Midland Bank Branch Friday while officials tried in vain to get the vault open. Finally a messenger went across the street and borrowed enough money from rival Barclays Bank Branch to serve waiting customers. A safe expert eventually neared the balky lock and calm returned to financial circles in Bracknell.

doned their stronghold.

A Turkish lieutenant said no Greek-Cypriot force — not even 60,000 men—could force them off the ridge.

The Turks refused to allow a 10-man Canadian patrol to the top. "What good will they do?" the lieutenant asked.

Since fighting started Saturday, the Greek-Cypriots have been claiming their action was confined to pushing the Turkish-Cypriots back from a number of peaks and other vantage points on a ridge running west of the pass from where the Turks were threatening the all-Greek village of Dhikomo, two miles from the pass itself.

The Greeks have overrun all Turkish vantage points but one, immediately before the pass. They claim they can take the pass any time they want to if they are ordered to do so.

PUT UP POST

A UN spokesman said the Turks appeared to have put up a new Turkish post about 1,000 yards from Kato Dhikomo.

In daring manoeuvres, 2nd Lieut. Pierre Nicholls of Montreal led patrols of the Royal 22nd Regiment up to the firing sites at three different times during the weekend. The Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots ceased fire when the Canadian patrols appeared but resumed shortly after.

Lt.-Col. Andrew Woodcock of Sarnia, commander of the Royal 22nd Regiment, described the encounter as "the most violent clash between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots since the arrival of United Nations forces" in late March.

The UN reported firing early had broken out in the vicinity of the all-Turkish village of Temblos at the foot of medieval Saint Hilarion castle which is the main Turkish stronghold in the area and now is being threatened by a Greek advance on the Kyrenia pass.

REPORT SHOTS

A few shots were also reported heard during the night in the large south coast port of Limassol, and at Ktima in western Cyprus, but there were no reports of any casualties.

Reliable sources in Nicosia said today the Austrian government has agreed to request by UN Secretary-General U Thant for the five nations with peace force contingents in Cyprus to send civilian policemen to the troubled island.

The sources said an Austrian police contingent is due to arrive in Cyprus soon.

It is believed here the requested policemen will be used mainly in the main towns, perhaps on joint patrols with Greek- and Turkish - Cypriot members of the Cyprus police force.

injured.

A tornado roared over Leavenworth, Kan., not quite touching down, but close enough to damage about 75 homes, smash windows in the business district and uproot many trees. Seven persons were injured there.

Tobacco barns were flattened near Weston, Mo.

Farther on, at Yorktown, a community of 146 persons in southwest Iowa, a tornado killed one woman and injured six others.

Blonde and 25 Meet Marlene of the Mounties!

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — The pretty blonde strode under the twin towers and up the front steps of the old agriculture building, now the RCMP's West Coast crime detection laboratory.

She said hello to the NCOs on duty, pulled on a white smock and went to work with microscope and a sheaf of notes in a darkened room under ultra-violet light.

Her investigation finished a few hours later, she left for the airport.

Marlene Pearce, serologist for the RCMP, was off again to describe the result of her investigation in another witness box, one of scores she has spoken from in towns and cities of four western provinces and the Yukon during 3½ years as a civilian member of the Mounties.

Marlene, fulfilling an ambition born in high school to work with the RCMP, travels more than some airline stewardesses.

STUDIES BODY FLUIDS

Her business is studying blood and other body fluids, isolating and identifying them in vastly varying circumstances and sometimes against high odds.

At 23, she is an old hand in court of justice and jury. Her evidence often adds substantially to a net of incriminating facts or a significant doubt on a suspect's guilt.

"But the funny thing is, you usually don't know anything about a case," she says in reference to the fact that her job rarely involves only one facet of a complex web of evidence.

The crime lab has handled data on 50 major cases since it was moved to Vancouver from Regina last Aug. 15, she says.

"You couldn't keep track of them all if you wanted to."

But some of her cases do come easily to mind, even though her part in them was the routine matter of identifying a blood stain by group.

HELPED CROWN CASE

Her evidence in an Edmonton trial was part of the Crown case which convicted two men for the murder of golf professional Frank Willey. Stains matching Willey's blood group were found in a car trunk, on a tire and in a house under construction.

A Saskatoon break-in artist pleaded guilty when confronted with Marlene's evidence about bloodstains near a window he had broken and about glass fragments found in his clothing.

On another occasion, the Crown won its appeal against the acquittal of a man for leaving the scene of, an accident when Marlene's evidence reversed the blood-group findings of a hospital test.

The crime lab, established here by S. Sgt. Edward James, has facilities for firearm identification and some ballistics work and for identification of tool marks, hair, fibres and documents as well as body fluids.

STUCK TO PLAN

Marlene decided as a teenager in her native Keremeos in the Okanagan Valley that she wanted a career with the RCMP and she stuck to her plan.

She studied at University of British Columbia and Vancouver General Hospital to qualify as a registered medical technician.

She says she finds travelling the best feature of her job and agrees that she encounters numerous interesting young men among her colleagues in the RCMP.

The latter subject is the only cause for concern about Marlene and her work, says her boss, S. Sgt. James, because in his experience young women last about two years before abandoning travel and the serology lab for marriage and the kitchen.

At that rate, Marlene's 3½ years with the force are stretching the average.

Male colleagues, perhaps with suspect motives, agree that "we keep telling her she is overdue for the transition from career to marriage.

PRETTY CRIME BUSTER — Marlene Pearce, 25, has spent 3½ years as a serologist at the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver, travelling more than some airline stewardesses. She is a veteran at giving evidence in criminal cases. (CP Photo) pect to obtain all that they demand."

The 2,104 delegates attending the emergency session heard speaker after speaker denounce the code on grounds it undermines the right to strike and the right of association. One section of the bill that was bitterly attacked provides for the settlement of strikes in civil courts.

The labor federation represents a little more than half the organized labor in Quebec and two-thirds of the members are in the Montreal region.

A general strike would be illegal, said Jean Gerin-Lajoie, a member of the executive, but when a government "misdirects its democratic process . . . we have no choice but to use the same tactics ourselves."

Federation President Roger Provost said if calling a general strike is necessary "we will do it."

The bill currently is awaiting detailed study in the legislative assembly but the resolution—which Mr. Provost said would be sent to the government—asks that it be shelved until fall so that recommendations of a special legislature committee studying the public service sections of the bill can be reviewed.

Mr. Lesage, speaking on the CBC's French television network, said his cabinet had decided on the amendments but would not elaborate on what changes are contemplated.

"The government will try to satisfy the greatest number of persons possible in doing its duty," the premier said.

The code is generally an amalgamation of existing labor relations laws but the union charge changes have been made that eliminate some hard-won union rights.

CYCLONE KILLS 75

DACCA (AP)—At least 75 persons were killed and more than 500 injured in a cyclone that ripped through northern and southern parts of Jessore, according to official East Pakistan figures. The cyclone struck Saturday.

Garden Notes

Choosing Your Garden Plan

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The Queen's Printer has a useful book for the new home owner to choose who are planning to build or build it in by R. Warren Oliver, Plant Research Institute, Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The price is $1.00.

The book traces briefly the origin of gardens, Chinese, Persian and Greco-Roman. Chinese art was based on the belief that man was part of nature and influenced his orderly design of his garden. This influence travelled to Japan, to Europe and back to the North American continent. The Persians surrounded by sand and constantly assaulted by wind, built walled gardens to provide shelter and shade for plants and man. The gardens were copied in Spain and spread to California.

OTHER IDEAS

Our Western civilization springing from Greece and Rome had other ideas. This resulted in the formal gardens of France, built to impress rather than a place for seclusion and relaxation. Present day gardens may pick and choose the best from these original plans.

Design — the main principals of good design are unity, propriety, variety, scale and harmony. Unity ties the parts together. Variety — too much variety is confusing. Propriety — choosing the right material for the space it will fill. Scale means relative size and guides the gardener in choosing garden plant and furnishing to suit the size of the lot and the house. Harmony is the blending of color, texture and form.

After covering these points the book tells you how to choose a lot and place the house. It suggests how best to divide the property into approach, service area and private garden.

There are plans for these areas. Framing the house with trees and shrubs, fences, uses of plant material, retaining walls, shrub borders, climbers and ground covers, perennials, roses and bulb are touched on too, with hints on their use. How to plant a lawn, grading, terraces, garden steps, how to plant trees and shrubs and a note on pruning is included.

GIFT PLANTS

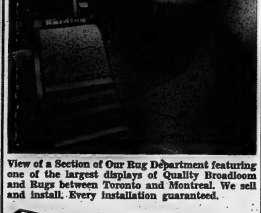
Azaleas need good light, cool temperatures, about 60 degrees. Water generously while in flower. In summer sink pot in semi-shade and keep watered. Bring in before frost.

Cineraria, keep cool under 60 degrees, water frequently to prolong bloom. Plants cannot be kept over, to bloom again.

Cyclamen need cool position and good light 50 to 65 degrees. Keep crown dry. Set pot in pan of water and allow water to seep up through the soil until top is damp. Sink pot in cool place for summer. Not easy to keep over.

Hydrangea — water generously until bloom fades. A large plant may need water twice a day. Cut back blooms when faded. In mid-May sink pot, or take out of pot and plant in semi-shade. Many hydrangeas will winter over with a light mulch, or a basket filled with straw turned over them after soil freezes.

Easter lily — keep cool and out of direct sun. Plant in garden in mid-May. Bulbs may bloom again in August and if in a protected place may bloom again for several years.



Miniature roses need strong sun and may need daily watering while indoors. Cut back halfway and transplant to garden or outdoor planter in mid-May.

Ivy needs good light at least one hour a day, or place in full sun one hour a week. Keep surface clean by sponging, or spraying with tepid water.

Grass Fires Keep Depts. Quite Busy

PICTON (Staff) — With the coming of spring, the fire departments around the country are keeping busy with grass fires.

Picton's fire department, under Fire Chief J. Nelson Bell, answered two grass fire calls on Saturday, one at the rear of the Brewer's Warehouse off Main Street, and the other on Bridge Street.

In both cases the Fire Chief allowed as much grass to burn as possible, so that danger from further fires from the same area would be lessened.

No damage to property was caused in either fire.

"With the grass as heavy and as dry as it is right now, a fire can get quite a start, and it is everyone's responsibility to see that these fires do not get started. They can be really dangerous," the Chief said.

"Even when ordinary precautions are taken, these grass fires will be out to a minimum," he added.

Minor Hockey Finals Start At Arena

PICTON (Staff) — Did you manage to get what your boy wanted with himself every Saturday morning all winter? Sure, you know he went to the arena, and you know he was playing hockey, but how many parents have actually seen their sons in a hockey game.

Judging by the number of parents seen in the ice palace each Saturday morning, a guess of about two percent could be close to correct.

On Monday night, starting at 7 p.m., all that will be changed. It gives a chance to see just how good their boys are at Canada's national sport. Monday night is the time, Dad, for you to see just how good that equipment you bought for "Junior" really is, and also why it was necessary to buy him all those hockey sticks.

Monday night, the finals of the Prince Edward Minor Hockey Association will be played, teams from every league participating.

At 7 p.m. the Atoms lead off with Wampos taking on the Royals; at 7.40 p.m. the Pewees take over with the Bisons tangling with the Aces; at 8.45 p.m., the Bantams go at it, with the Canadiens and the Rangers striving for the top spot. Finally, at 9.40 p.m., the Midgets play with the Tigers playing the Lions. Times are approximate.

The Leafs and the Red Wings are playing off for Lord Stanley's battered old mug, but the excitement at the arena on Monday night will make the battle in the NHL seem like a game of tiddley-winks. At least to these youngsters it will. They give everything they have, and have the sportsmanlike qualities all admire—is that they can lose—gracefully.

For 25c it is doubtful if you will ever see so much hockey. "Take your children to the arena—don't send them."

of independence under the present constitution.

Both African spokesmen and the white opposition welcomed Field's resignation.

The white opposition was critical of Field's softness toward the British government but the Africans saw his downfall as an opening for greater African representation through a constitutional conference.

Field said in a statement: "Serious disagreements have arisen between my party in the House and myself, in relation to policy, and I have been requested to retire in order to make way for someone else."

At one time he was leader of the opposition to Sir Roy Welensky, the former federal prime minister of the Rhodesian Federation.

His moderating influence and personal stature was believed to have been a major factor in his party's first election victory at the polls in a Rhodesian election in December, 1962.

mobilization the government invoked a 1948 law extending governmental control over all doctors with hospital connections. The law was originally enacted to be used in serious industrial disputes.

Although these steps appeared to be having some effect, the strike leaders insisted the government had made a negotiated settlement impossible. They urged the strikers to continue the walkout except where they risked legal action.

No new talks with the doctors are planned. The government says it is up to them to take the initiative in resuming negotiations.

The Belgian Roman Catholic primate, Leon-Joseph Cardinal Suenens, joined the country's bishops in issuing a new appeal to the strikers.

Chinese Communists Called 'Splitters' by Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev Sunday denounced the Chinese Communists as "splitters" of the world Communist movement and renounced previous Kremlin claims to be the infallible teacher of the Red bloc.

He claimed Mao Tse Tung Stalin who had imposed Moscow's rule on world communism and charged it was now the Chinese who demanded a "special role."

In a speech televised directly to viewers in both East and West Europe, Khrushchev declared it was necessary to give the Chinese a "resolute rebuff."

Khrushchev, reporting on his just concluded trip to Hungary, was stern but used mild language in his condemnation of Peking.

He apparently considered that his words could be heard as spoken by millions of Communists abroad who have not yet taken up a firm pro- or anti-Chinese position.

Moreover, sweet reasonableness as opposed to Chinese intransigence is the line he has been taking in the dispute and he seemed determined to project that image.

Most non-Communist European networks taped the speech and used excerpts as part of their regular newscasts which, nevertheless, enabled him to get across his main points.

Khrushchev dropped any mention of a world meeting of Communists to take up the Chinese issue—a proposal which has yet to meet with strong support in either Eastern or Western Europe—but plugged for a series of bilateral meetings such as he has just had with the Hungarians.

Khrushchev also threw another sop to non-Soviet Communist parties—he abandoned the Soviet party's claim to infallible dominance of the world movement. He blamed this claim on Stalin and said:

"We have banished forever all elements of inequality, of imposing the experience and policy of one country on other fraternal countries.

"In the present community of socialist nations, there should be no great nations and small, no infallible teachers and submissive pupils."

Until the world Communist meeting of 1960 all Communist documents proclaimed the infallibility of Moscow. At that conference, under Chinese pressure, this was dropped. The Russians, however, insisted on keeping a clause in the final declaration reiterating itself claim to leadership as the most experienced and successful Communist party.

He said the Soviet and Hungarian parties have agreed that the Red Chinese are following a "special course which is a blend of petty bourgeois adventurism and great-power chauvinism." He added:

"On a number of issues the Chinese splitters in effect are slipping into Trotskyite positions."

ROSLIN

F. U. Local 183 Holds Meeting

ROSLIN — The March meeting of the Ontario Farmers' Union, Local 183, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Howes, with a good attendance.

The president, Mr. Carman Gibson, was in charge and the meeting opened with a singsong after which the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Wes Sprull. Several items of business were discussed.

Mr. Orno Sharp of Stirling, was guest speaker and showed slides on his recent trip to the British Isles, the Netherlands and France, at representatives of the Toronto -Whole Milk Producers. These were much enjoyed by all.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bates.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Portugal Expels Toronto Lawyer Bent on Probing Penal System

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer, expelled from Portugal Saturday after he had begun to investigate the country's penal system, was greeted by a group of Portuguese-Canadians when he arrived in Toronto Sunday.

Raymond Radford, 34, and three other lawyers, had been in Lisbon for four days on a side trip from a meeting of the International Association of Democratic Lawyers in Budapest.

They were told to leave the country on the next plane. A government spokesman said they abused the country's hospitality and he accused them of intervention in Portugal's internal affairs."

Mr. Endicott said in an interview here police called on him in Lisbon after he had sent invitations to Portuguese and foreign newspaper men. They told him press conferences were forbidden.

The lawyers met reporters to tell them the conference had been cancelled by government order. Immediately afterwards, police lifted their passports and escorted the lawyers to Lisbon airport.

LEARNS OF PRISONERS

They said he learned there are from 1,500 to 3,000 political prisoners in Portuguese jails, that Portuguese law allows imprisonment for "dangerous thoughts" and that prisoners can be held 18 months for interrogation.

He added that three-year sentences can be imposed on persons who have been acquitted by a court, and that prisoners can be kept in jail indefinitely.

Mr. Endicott said he started investigation at the request of a Paris lawyer who had been in touch with a Portuguese refugee colony in France. He interviewed wives and relatives of prisoners, Portuguese lawyers and the ministry of justice.

Brilliant Movie, Tom Jones, May Pick up Many Oscars

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's Oscar night tonight and the brilliant movie Tom Jones is expected to avenge the Boston Tea Party for the British.

It will be very British at nearby Santa Monica Civic Auditorium with or without the bawdy 18th century farce which most movie people call the best movie since Citizen Kane.

Tom Jones won 10 Academy Award nominations and is expected to win a goodly share. Most experts call it a cinch for the best picture and best director for Tony Richardson.

Also odds-on favorite to win best actor is Albert Finney, who played the title role of the Henry Fielding classic. But he will have potent competition from Sidney Poitier, the great Negro actor of Lilies of the Field.

Others up for best actor are Richard Harris, the British football player of This Sporting Life; Rex Harrison—he was the one who acted while Marc Mc-Ilton) Antony and Liz (Cleopatra) Taylor wooed and Paul Newman of Hud.

IS FAVORED ACTRESS

Patricia Neal of Hud is the favorite among top actresses but Hollywood likes voting on past performances.

That makes Shirley MacLaine (Irma la Douce) and Natalie Wood (Love with a Proper Stranger) potent contenders. Anyone among the actresses could win without causing an upset. Leslie Caron (The L shaped Room) and Rachel Roberts (This Sporting Life) are other nominees.

Miss Roberts is also Mrs. Rex Harrison. A pair of His and Her Oscars would look nice on any mantle.

One of the most interesting races is for supporting actor. Hugh Griffith gave the greatest performance yet of a drunken country squire in Tom Jones. But was it all acting?

Griffith's love of the grape is legendary on both sides of the Atlantic. The Cameras just kept turning on his antics, setsiders report.

Director John Huston, who also loves a nip, played a sober cardinal in the picture of the same name. His father, the late Walter Huston, couldn't have done it better. Huston is the favorite.

ADAMS IS CONTENDER

Others are: Nick Adams (Twilight of Honor); Bobby Darin (Captain Newman M.D.) and the veteran Melvyn Douglas (Hud).

Among best supporting actresses, Margaret Rutherford of The V.I.P.s virtually makes this race no contest. The British comedienne faces three from Tom Jones — Diane Cilento, Joyce Redman and Edith Evans.

Lilia Skala of Lilies of the Field is the fifth.

Competition for Tom Jones as best picture is How the West was Won, Lilies of the Field, America, America and Cleopatra.

ABC-TV will broadcast the show starting at 10 p.m. EST. The ceremonies will last an approximate two hours and there will be plenty of stars on hand, hopefully, some of them winners.

Miss Janey O'Connor of Orillia spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Madoc St.

Leo Meehan who has served his five years in the Canadian Navy has retired from same and is visiting in Hamilton.

CANADIAN DIES

MANAGUA (CP-AP) — Word of the death of John F. Marley, a Canadian whose family lives in Bartow, Fla., was received in this Nicaragua capital today. He was killed in a mine mishap Wednesday. Marley was working 780 feet underground in the Carvi gold mine when he was overcome by gas from an engine.

One's Credit May Depend Upon SIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadians may soon use SIN as an integral part of their lives from the cradle to the grave, a Toronto businessman said here.

Arthur Bullied, general manager of the Associated Credit Bureaux of Canada, said in an interview soon it will be possible to live almost by our SIN-code.

He said SIN was the abbreviation for the social insurance number, for which Canadians recently were asked to apply.

Mr. Bullied saw the day when babies would be issued with a social insurance number at birth.

"They would have the number for life," he said, "and it could be used to identify them on all credit purchases. The person's number would be obtained wherever he bought on credit, and the number forwarded to the credit bureau."

Five Districts Will Integrate All Schools

ATLANTA (AP) — School rooms in the southern United States, early targets of civil rights demonstrators, move from gradual integration to open classrooms for all in at least five school districts in the fall.

Southern School News, a Nashville, Tenn., publication, reports the five districts would end gradual desegregation which Negro leaders have criticized, as too slow.

The publication says desegregation in all grades would become effective in September in the districts of Knoxville and Knox County, Tenn., Little Rock, Ark., Reidsville and Randolph County in North Carolina.

Little Rock, where integration once brought violence, is completing desegregation one year ahead of schedule.

BAR REPORTERS

PHNOM PENH (AP) — All American and British reporters have been barred from Cambodia because of unfavorable articles, the government announced Sunday. Prince Norodom Sihanouk, chief of government, said there would be no exceptions. The official announcement said the decision "was taken after virulent attacks and calumnies in newspaper and magazine articles."

HONORED WITH PRESENTATION AND BREAKFAST — Associated with the Knights of Columbus for over 50 years, A. B. (Bernie) Collins is seen above with His Excellency, Bishop William J. Smith, after presentation made by F. Domenico, left. Mr. Collins also received a past-president's pin. Presentation was made at breakfast held at Knights of Columbus Hall Sunday in honor of Mr. Collins.

A. B. Collins, Past State Deputy of K of C, Honored

A communion breakfast in recognition of a past State Deputy of the state board of directors of the Knights of Columbus, A. B. Collins, was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall Sunday morning.

Present for the occasion was His Excellency, Most-Rev. William J. Smith, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Pembroke.

Mr. Collins was honored by his fellow Knights having served the order for over 50 years. He was presented with a memento of appreciation by Lecturer F. Domenico.

Mr. Collins, referred to as "A. B." or "Bernie" was presented with a past-president's pin by the Ontario past state deputy, E. J. Wolf.

Speaking to the gathering, Bishop Smith said that all faiths should strive for unity.

The speaker went on to describe his journey to Rome, where he went to further his studies in the laws of God.

Bishop Smith was introduced by Monsignor J. P. Sullivan, chaplain of the Belleville Council of the Knights of Columbus. He was introduced by State Deputy, Vincent Kelly.

Members of the board of directors were introduced following the breakfast by chairman, Grand Knight, Jack Lumsden.

The State Board met in Belleville about seven years ago. They met at the Hotel Quinte on Saturday and on Saturday night the Belleville club hosted a ladies' night at the hotel. The meeting concluded with Sunday's breakfast in honor of Mr. Collins.

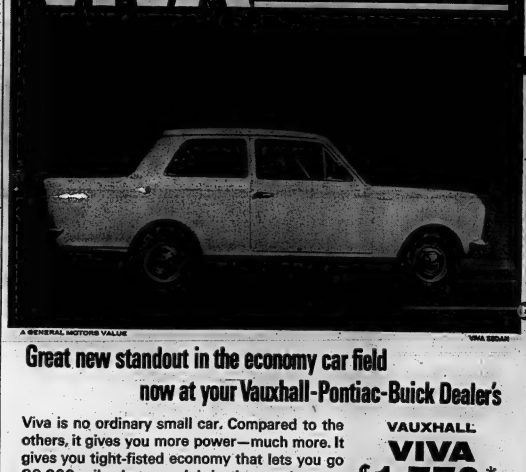
Building Value Showed Climb In January

OTTAWA (CP) — Value of building permits issued by Canadian municipalities in January increased 52 per cent to $136,530,000 from $128,675,000 a year earlier, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.

Residential construction led the way, rising 8.8 per cent, to $65,000,000 from $60,473,000 in January, 1963. Non - residential construction was up 4.1 per cent to $70,900,000 from $68,202,000.

The building picture in January by provinces, with year-earlier figures in brackets:

Newfoundland $1,711,000 ($1,802,000); Prince Edward Island $7,000 ($22,000); Nova Scotia $2,986,000 ($3,864,000); New Brunswick $880,000 ($725,000); Quebec $30,380,000 ($30,932,000); Ontario $5,095,000 ($38,343,000); Manitoba $11,970,000 ($3,705,000); Saskatchewan $2,408,000 $2,104,000); Alberta $18,068,000 ($13,419,000); British Columbia $18,865,000 ($12,748,000).



MAY START CONTROLS

HAMILTON (CP) — Alan F. Helmsley, a senior parks official, said Saturday so much garbage is left behind by campers in Algonquin Park that controls may be introduced. Mr. Helmsley said in an interview at the annual meeting of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists that he saw a pile of garbage as high as a man's shoulder on one camp site in the park.

Ghosts of Suez Have Risen To Haunt Britain's Thin Line Across Middle East

LONDON (AP)—The ghosts of Suez have risen again to haunt Britain's thin line across the Middle East.

Two weeks ago British planes shattered a mud-walled fort in the Arabian Desert, retaliating against Yemeni forays. As a result Araba arraigned Britain in the United Nations Security Council on charges of launching "a barbaric attack" and killing civilians. They demanded that Britain quit its Aden base.

PRESIDENT MAKARIOS

President Makarios last week-end acted to cancel the Cypriot-Turkish - Greek alliance. The move chilled London with the fear that Makarios eventually will scrap a treaty which lets British troops and H-bombers base in the island.

The kingdom of Libya will ask Britain April 30 formally to withdraw troop and air bases from the country. This would bar the Middle East for British military planes bound for Asia.

The RAF might have to fly around most of Africa to reach its Persian Gulf and Southeast Asian outposts.

MAY BE ousted

The upshot, if all goes sour—and London recognizes it might —would be Britain's virtual elimination from the Middle East as an effective military power.

What lies behind the flash flood of discontent with a British aim that has shed power in the Indian subcontinent, wound up most of her empire in Africa and begun hauling the flag down in Southeast Asia?

As the British see recent developments, the key man helping to mastermind and exploit such situation is Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The president of the U.A.R. has neither forgotten nor forgiven the British for their part in the 1956 invasion of Egypt.

In the Persian Gulf Nasser is deeply committed to support Yemen's revolutionary republican regime in efforts to take over the whole of the British protected South Arabian Federation and Aden colony. With an estimated 30,000 Egyptian troops in Yemen, Nasser is thought to have blamed if not to have instigated the series of raids that led the British to hit back.

ARMS GREEK-CYPRIOTS

In Cyprus, Greek-speaking irregulars have been receiving arms from the U.A.R. even while the peacemaking process has been going on.

Finally, the demands of Libya's King Idris for annulment of American and British base agreements are considered to have been inspired by Nasser.

Accordingly, the British expect Cairo will seek to mobilize pan-Arabian passions against continued British presence in the whole region. If he achieves this, London reckons it will enable him to pose as a champion of Arab and African nationalism.

Different Arab governments and people view these matters differently.

Some countries which have shed their colonial status regard foreign military bases as a badge of underdevelopment. Essentially is why the Libyan Parliament has voted to end the base agreements.

And that is why Makarios and Idris are almost sure, when the troubles in their island settle down, to demand British military withdrawal. The political wisdom or otherwise of such an attitude is transcended by issues of national pride and prestige.

Eight Groups To Compete in Drama Festival

OTTAWA (CP) — The eight groups to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival finals in Charlottetown May 18-23 were announced Sunday by the DDF executive.

The eight in order of appearance:

Monday, May 18—North Kamloops (B.C.) PTA Theatre Wing, Chips With Everything, by Arnold Wesker.

Tuesday—Les Compagnons de Gil, Montreal, La Quintrala, by Gil Harcbour-Vuilleume.

Wednesday afternoon — The Freelance Players of St. John's, Nfld., A Taste of Honey, by Shelagh Delaney.

Wednesday evening — The Reginald Academy, 47, chancellor of the exchequer, is generally expected to take a firm election-year line in the 1964-65 budget he is to present to the House of Commons Tuesday.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's decision, announced Thursday, to postpone the general election until autumn will make Maudling particularly cautious as he must do nothing that will seem correcting on the eve of the election.

It is recalled that in the last two pre-election budgets Conservative chancellors made concessions. But in both cases economic difficulties ensued, forcing the withdrawal of some of the tax reliefs.

Maudling, bringing down his first budget, is expected to take recent months expressed concern at inflationary trends and in particular at the rise in wage rates to five from four per cent, thus applying the brakes on spending.

PREDICT TAX RISE

Economists predict the new budget will increase taxes by between £100,000,000 and £200,000,000, but there is some hope this will be countered by a reduction in personal income tax.

Some experts calculate that by increasing indirect taxes on cigarettes and whisky, and perhaps other consumer goods and road licences as well, Maudling could chop income taxes to seven shillings 4xpence ($1.12) in the pound and even six shillings inspence ($1.16) in the pound, or $3.

In this thinking, Maudling would be able to give a sweetening purchase tax while hitting at cigarettes against which the government has directed a health-hazard campaign.

Another proposal commended to the treasury is a uniform betting tax on all forms of gambling, including card games, bingo and slot machines as well as the turnover of off-track betting shops.

The hard-pressed Tories are looking hopefully to their young chancellor for proposals that will underline the party's economic wisdom and stability.

Sterling Hayden Arrested As Major Sitdown Staged

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A civil-rights organization set May 4 as the date for a national protest against a major automobile concern after 226 persons were arrested during showroom sit-ins at San Francisco.

Herbert Hill, labor secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, announced the date at Indianapolis.

He said a demonstration would be organized at the General Motors headquarters building there to protest what he called discriminatory practices in employment.

General Motors denied the charges and said in a statement that non-white employment rose 13.2 per cent last year while over-all employment went up 4.1 per cent.

The statement said GM was an early signer of the president's Program for Progress under which the Committee for Equal Opportunity was instituted.

START IN 'FRISCO

Hill said that while the national program would be launched by 4 local demonstrations started Saturday night in San Francisco.

The 226 persons taken into custody at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler showrooms were released later on bond of $76 each. Sterling Hayden, film actor and author, was among those arrested and carried to a police van.

Dr. Thomas Borbridge, president of the San Francisco NAACP chapter, said his group's local program now has become part of the national auto company protest.

He said the attack in San rancisco was broadened because negotiations over hiring practices have been with the city's Motor Car Dealers Association, of which most agencies are members.

Quake Rocks Belgrade Area

BELGRADE (AP)—An earthquake struck a wide region of northern Yugoslavia and part of southern Hungary today, killing at least one and injuring more than 100 persons. Panic spread in the two neighboring countries and damage appeared widespread.

Downtown buildings swayed and some cracked in downtown Belgrade, where thousands fled into the streets on a warm, sunny morning. Schools and many factories and offices closed. The Budapest radio said the Hungarian capital also was shaken.

41 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic mishaps in eight provinces accounted for 32 of the 41 accidental fatalities recorded in roads during the weekend.

Only Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island reported no deaths in a survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times. There were five fire deaths, four drownings and one in a playground accident.

Ontario led the list with 14 highway fatalities, two drownings and the death of a boy when a playground slide fell on him, for a total of 17.

Quebec had nine traffic deaths and one drowning.

Manitoba had nine deaths—five in a fire in Winnipeg, three in traffic and one by drowning. New Scotia reported two traffic fatalities and New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia one each.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, known suicides or slayings.

The Ontario dead:

SUNDAY

Michael Law, 53, London, in hospital of injuries received in a two-car collision in London Friday night.

Cecile Sarginson, 26, of St. Catharines, when the car in which she was riding crashed into a ditch on the Queen Elizabeth Way northwest of Hamilton.

Donald McDonald, 23, Exeter, after a two-car collision in Exeter, 30 miles north of London.

Alfred Glenn Pennell, 6, Chatham, when a playground slide toppled on him, fracturing his skull.

David Priest, 20, West Flamborough township, in a two-car collision on the highway at Guelph.

William Murray, when pinned under his car after it overturned near his home in Lanark, 14 miles north of Perth.

Loretta Lewis, 10, Hamilton, in a two-car collision at a downtown intersection.

FINDS FLYING DEVINE

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Harry Devine got all his flying lessons in one day. Anxious to start using the plane his employer recently bought, Devine made 70 takeoffs and landings at St. Cloud Airport Friday between 8 a.m. and 7:15 p.m., when he completed two required solo flights. Devine, 20, and the father of four, is a salesman.

Four Children, Mother Die In Apt. Fire

WINNIPEG (CP)—A woman and four children died in a fire at an apartment fire brought under control by firemen 15 minutes after they arrived.

The pre-dawn blaze took the lives of—Mrs. Irene Nekwinda, 30, her son Michael, 6, and two daughters, Susan, 4 and Louise, 3.

Fifth victim is Liza Quickfall, 10-month-old daughter of Mrs. Carol Quickfall.

The fire swept the second-floor Quickfall bedroom. Fumes, smoke and heat from the blaze apparently caused the death of the sleeping Nekwinda family in the top floor of the three-storey frame building.

Mrs. Quickfall was taken to hospital with minor burns. Another daughter, Kimberley, 2, was also injured. She was reported in good condition in hospital.

Fire Chief Dave Dunnett said he believed faulty electrical wiring caused the blaze in the central Winnipeg building which contained several living units.

Husband of the dead woman was reported to be in Thompson, Man., 400 miles north of here.

The fire caused the fire death toll in Manitoba since Christmas to at least 27.

Chaplin Glad He Is Not An American

LONDON (AP)—"Thank God I'm not American," Charlie Chaplin said Sunday.

He was interviewed by The Sunday Times at the Irish fishing village of Waterville, where he was working on his memoirs before returning to Switzerland with his 75th birthday party Thursday.

The British-born star recalled his U.S. film days fondly, however.

"Hollywood was wonderful," he said, "A marvellous place in those days. You used the camera like a pen."

Talking about the assassination of president Kennedy and the subsequent murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, he said he is sure both killings were engineered by "haters."

"Thank God I'm not American," he said.

Chaplin also recalled his own law troubles. He was acquitted in 1944 for charges of transporting Joan Berry across state lines for immoral purposes, but later lost a paternity suit Miss Berry brought.

The comedian left the United States in 1952 after being charged in the U.S. Congress with extreme left-wing affiliations. He vowed never to return and never has.

World's Most Unusual Club Made up of Leaders Tumbled From Power, Cast Into Exile

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — When Brazil's ousted President Joao Goulart flew to neighboring Uruguay he joined one of the world's most unusual clubs. It elects no officers and never meets. Although fashionably exclusive, most of its members would rather not belong.

It is made up of national leaders, tumbled unwillingly from power and cast into exile. The roster includes kings, presidents, prime ministers and even an emperor.

What do these men do after the acclaim dies down? Do they dream of the day when their nations will recall them?

Juan Domingo Peron still cherishes the dream, even though he has been a political refugee since Argentina's army hurled its back on his dictatorship nine years ago. A resident of Spain, Peron says of his exile:

"I am very happy here, but I will never give up hope of returning some day to Argentina."

BATISTA TRAVELS

The man driven out of Cuba by Fidel Castro lives in neighboring Portugal in exclusive Estoril, home of many royal and highly successful political exiles. Cuba's 71-year-old ex-president Fulgencio Batista dictates much activities of the posh European playground, but has become a great tourist. He emerges often from his ten-guarded villa for car trips to Spain. At home he writes profusely to justify his unelected-ised former regime but refrains from public pronouncements, on orders from the Portuguese government.

Will he return to Cuba?

"Those day perhaps," he has told friends.

Italy's ex-king Umberto lives in almost regal splendor in a great mansion in Cascais, another Lisbon suburb.

Umberto's friends describe him as a lonely man. His wife, former princess Marie Jose, lives in Switzerland, and his son and three daughters are rarely with him.

Egypt's ex-king Farouk seeks solace in exile by drifting among the resorts of France, Italy and Switzerland, but diminished funds and perhaps boredom have curtailed his free-spending habits.

Still fat and now 44, the monarch of the Nile has sunk into obscurity completely 12 years after his flight. He has sold his last yacht.

Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib, who became a victim of the Egyptian revolution he helped create, was once sentenced to death by his old associates but has been allowed to live in "permanent isolation" under guard at a suburban Cairo villa.

At 65, with graceful gray hair and a kindly smile, Naguib is still regarded with nostalgic affection by many Egyptians. He was their first president after Farouk was driven from Egypt. Romantic ex-king Mihail has achieved success in another area since the Communists formed him to abdicate in 1947.

AN ENGINEER NOW

At 42, Mihail is regarded as a highly competent automobile, aviation and electronics engineer and is frequently called in as a consultant. He lives in a villa outside Geneva with Princess Anne and their four daughters.

By title, Bao Dai, Viet Nam's former emperor, must be considered the ranking member of the exiles' club. Once noted for his playboy ways, Bao Dai now spends his time quietly in France, avoids the public eye and refuses to make any statements about the war in his homeland. He seems to have plenty of money.

Syngman Rhee, once one of the strongest of Asian leaders, is now too ill to carry out his wish to return to South Korea. He has been in a self-imposed exile in Hawaii since he was toppled from the presidency in 1960. He is 89.

Sixteen Days Used to Pass Supplementary Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—After 16 days of parliamentary slogging to pass $240,800,000 worth of appropriations for the fiscal year, Commons sources are speculating on what really it was all about.

The yearend appropriations normally take two days of the House's time, however, 12 years ago when an election was imminent and every item had the makings of a full-dress debate by the time stretched to eight days.

Why should it take 16 days this year? What does this mean for the future?

Some insight into the situation was given in the House during a brief exchange Friday night when Opposition Leader Diefenbaker rose to answer charges that the Conservatives were practising obstruction.

HAVE A RIGHT

"We have a right to information, and we have not been able to get information," he said. "Complaint is made . . . that we have been obstructing the business of the House. We have been doing nothing of the kind."

Then he noted that there were reports leaking out from various parliamentary corridors that the long time spent on the appropriations might prompt the government to call a snap general election, hoping to come out of it with a comfortable working majority.

It was, in fact, reported that on Wednesday the Liberal Liberals met on the anniversary of the 1963 general election for their regular weekly caucus. there was talk of a spring 1964 election. But the sources who gave out the report made it clear that the discussion merely canvassed the subject and didn't come near a conclusion.

The Conservatives started the close examination of the yearend appropriations three weeks ago, noting that they applied to departments of government which had only recently had an administration by Parliament before the end of the last session in the pre-Christmas rush.

WOULDN'T CONSENT

Then came the tangled Easter weekend session, because a formal decision hadn't been taken earlier, the House found itself called into session on Good Friday because Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton Strathcona) wouldn't give unanimous consent to an adjournment under the pressure of work. The government counts that day, when in fact nothing was done as a day devoted to the appropriations.

During Easter Week when Parliament would normally have been in recess, the Conservatives showed signs of willingness to move along but an NDP makings of a full - dress debate and (Skeena), began hearing down on the money votes.

Subsequently the government found that nearly every item before it would be subject to controversial subjects.

British Budget Likely To Hike Taxes on Liquor, Cigarettes and Gasoline

LONDON (CP)—Probably tax increases on such things as cigarettes, liquor and gasoline are forecast for the British budget which came under review by senior cabinet members today.

Reginald Maudling, 47, chancellor of the exchequer, is generally expected to take a firm election-year line in the 1964-65 budget he is to present to the House of Commons Tuesday.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's decision, announced Thursday, to postpone the general election until autumn will make Maudling particularly cautious as he must do nothing that will seem correcting on the eve of the election.

It is recalled that in the last two pre-election budgets Conservative chancellors made concessions. But in both cases economic difficulties ensued, forcing the withdrawal of some of the tax reliefs.

Maudling, bringing down his first budget, is expected to take recent months expressed concern at inflationary trends and in particular at the rise in wage rates to five from four per cent, thus applying the brakes on spending.

PREDICT TAX RISE

Economists predict the new budget will increase taxes by between £100,000,000 and £200,000,000, but there is some hope this will be countered by a reduction in personal income tax.

Some experts calculate that by increasing indirect taxes on cigarettes and whisky, and perhaps other consumer goods and road licences as well, Maudling could chop income taxes to seven shillings 4xpence ($1.12) in the pound and even six shillings inspence ($1.16) in the pound, or $3.

In this thinking, Maudling would be able to give a sweetening purchase tax while hitting at cigarettes against which the government has directed a health-hazard campaign.

Another proposal commended to the treasury is a uniform betting tax on all forms of gambling, including card games, bingo and slot machines as well as the turnover of off-track betting shops.

The hard-pressed Tories are looking hopefully to their young chancellor for proposals that will underline the party's economic wisdom and stability.

Mekong Delta Scene of Heavy Fighting

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—South Vietnamese forces suffered about 150 casualties and apparently inflicted approximately the same number on Viet Cong guerrillas in two fierce fights Sunday in the Mekong River delta.

Both fights continued all day, and U.S. airstrikes and supporting went on into the night under the light of flares dropped by planes.

The heaviest engagement was in Chuong Thien province, 140 miles southwest of here, where Communists mounted a heavy attack on the district capital of Kien Long.

In pre-dawn hours Sunday, guerrillas attacked their way through the town defences, overrunning many positions and moving in 4 105-millimetre howitzer position.

Local defenders went on fighting, but had to withdraw from the artillery piece, leaving it in Viet Cong hands. A heavy air strike was called in, and air force fighter bombers smashed the position and the gun to pieces, apparently killing many of the Viet Cong.

Some 600 government troops were rushed into the fighting, including 450 parastroopers dropped over the battle area.

Have an edge

The final official tally at the end of the day in the Kien Long fight listed 46 persons killed on the government side, including 10 civilians, 30 wounded and 20 missing. Thirty Viet Cong bodies were counted, and many more were believed to have been carried off.

Sixty miles north of the Chuong Thien battle, a second fight began in Kien Phong province when a large Saigon force engaged a large Viet Cong unit. In a running firefight that followed, at least 17 government troops were wounded and "numerous" Viet Cong were killed, American authorities said.

Douglas Not Favorable to National Govt.

SASKATOON (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, Saturday rejected a Social Credit proposal for the formation of a national government in Ottawa.

Mr. Douglas was asked, during an interview, what his views were on a proposal by Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, who said earlier Saturday a national government should be formed from the best talent available. Mr. Thompson said it was the only solution to the critical problems now facing the federal government.

Mr. Douglas said: "I don't think there is any crisis facing the country, although there are some very real social and economic problems."

He said he didn't think a five party coalition would result in better solution of the problems except in a time of war or some other national emergency.

Civilian Pilot Rescued After Plane Crashes

HALIFAX (CP) — Brock H. Fredericks of Churchill, Man., a civilian pilot whose single-engine Norseman crashed Wednesday on Baffin Island, was rescued Sunday, search and rescue officials reported here.

Parsons was spotted and picked up by an RCMP Otter aircraft, one of seven planes taking part in the search. He was taken to Frobisher Bay, 100 miles southeast of the crash scene where his condition was described as good after three days and four nights on the island.

It was not immediately known if Parsons suffered any injuries in Wednesday's crash, or if he had suffered from exposure. The area is about 100 miles below the arctic circle.

Parsons, on a flight from Frobisher Bay to Cape Dorset on the western side of Baffin Island, crashed during a snowstorm. Before going down he radioed a distress call.

Thursday, he used a portable emergency transmitter to send out further distress calls.

The Norseman, reported badly damaged in the crash, is owned by Arctic Airways of Churchill.

Pulford Gets Big One ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Leafs Come To First; Win Opener 3-2

By DAVE BETTS

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Pulford, described by his coach as the only member of Toronto Maple Leafs who never takes a night off, jolted a sleepy Stanley Cup game awake Saturday night long enough to end it.

As the Leafs and Detroit Red Wings were drifting aimlessly toward overtime, the 28-year-old penalty - killer jabbed the puck from between two careless Wings, burst down the ice and drove a backhander into the top of the net before goalie Terry Sawchuk realized what was happening.

The timekeeper fumbled with the switch and the clock stopped at 19:58, although the goal was scored about three seconds earlier.

If the clock was off, the scoreboard was accurate: Toronto 3, Detroit 2. The win gave Toronto a 1-0 lead in the Cup finals.

For most of the game—especially in the second period—both of the National Hockey League clubs looked tired.

Captain George Armstrong scored the first two Toronto goals while his team had a man advantage. Then MacGregor opened the scoring while each team had a man in the penalty box, and Gordie Howe, with his first goal against Johnny Bower this season, scored on a power play.

Pulford's burst of boyish enthusiasm could be a big factor in the mental attitude of both squads for Tuesday's second game here.

"It's a tough job to try to win four of six games," said Detroit coach Sid Abel. "That goal was a big blow."

Howe blinked nervously as he assessed the damage. We had it over them in the final 10 minutes. If you lose because you're outplayed, it's not as bad. You hate to lose after you have them reeling, makes it hard to take."

In the Leaf dressing room, Armstrong warned against assuming the Leafs would be crushed by the sudden turn of events. "Remember Henri Richard last us in the last minute (of the semi-finals). That had the opposite effect on us. It got us up and we bounced back."

Pulford tried to describe his feat to successive waves of questioners, but finally confessed his recollection was fuzzy.

"I hooked the puck away from Norm Ullman. I think it hit my chest and bounced ahead of me. I knew Howe was chasing me and someone else was coming from the other side, but I kept my eyes on Sawchuk. I didn't want to get too close, so I flipped a backhand and that was it."

With Allan Stanley off for holding, the Detroit power play had things humming in the Toronto end until Ullman hesitated on a pass to Alex Delvecchio. While the two Wings did a polite "after-you-Alphonse" act, Pulford made his game-saving break.

"I thought I had him," Howe said later. "If he had taken one more stride to the left I would have checked him, but he stopped to the right and I would have had to earn a penalty shot to bring him down."

In an effort to shake away the cobwebs, Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach used every man in his lineup and even threw out a makeshift fourth forward complement of rookie Jim Pappin, American League recruit Gerry Ehman and chronic bench-sitter Billy Harris.

Harris dazzled the Wings with his classy stick-handling for two shifts but admitted later he was tired by his third turn.

Howe and Ullman held the somnolent Wings together. Apart from MacGregor, most of the others looked as if they had forgotten their skates. The Leafs were no livelier.

The smallest Maple Leaf Gardens crowd of the playoffs—14,075—sat silently waiting for something that never happened. Pulford finally made it happen. Several Toronto partisans applauded later they cheered more for Pulford's goal because it eliminated the overtime because it clinched a home-team victory.

Both coaches expressed disappointment with the calibre of play.

"I may try my lines differently Tuesday," said Abel. "I didn't like the way they were working out there tonight."

"Well, we won and that's about all you can say," said Imlach as he made a horrified departure and tried to circle away from reporters. "Yes, I'd certainly say I played better against Montreal — or we wouldn't be here."

Toronto used Larry Hillman in place of defenceman Carl Brewer, who was hospitalized in the Montreal series. Al Arbour was dressed but was used only once, and Brewer is expected back Tuesday.

Third and fourth games will be played in Maple Leaf Gardens and Saturday. If further games are necessary, the fifth will be played back here next Tuesday, the sixth in Detroit two days later and the seventh in Toronto Saturday.

Ed. Adamson Heads Minor Hockey Body

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association held it's annual spring meeting yesterday afternoon and named it's slate of officers for the 1964-65 season.

Ed Adamson was elected president, Ross Soule, vice-president, Fred Jones 2nd vice president, Grant Hickle 3rd vice president and Paul Wall secretary.

Norm Carter was appointed registrar and Les Williams also received appointment as referee-in-chief.

President Adamson announced that convenors for the various groups will be appointed at a later date.

The B.M.H.A. will be represented at the annual meeting of the Belleville Minor Sports Association tonight. This meeting is slated for 7.30 at the Recreation Centre.

Four Referees To Alternate

Udvari Obeys Orders; Gets Imlach Blast

By DAVE BETTS

TORONTO (CP) — A man who is supposed to be neutral continues to play a headliner's role in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Frank Udvari, senior referee of the National Hockey League, got more attention than most of the players Saturday night as Detroit Red Wings opened the final series with a 3-2 loss to the Maple Leafs.

Udvari called two misconduct penalties against the Leafs as he followed league orders to enforce certain sections of the rule book and he drew another blast from another NHL coach.

Although Detroit's Sid Abel was fined $200 last week for sounding off against Udvari, manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto showed little hesitation Saturday when he described him as "the worst referee in the league."

"I don't care whether newspaper guys are here or not," Imlach said between periods as he watched film of team captain George Armstrong being given a misconduct. "That guy is the worst referee in the league."

Udvari said he penalized Armstrong because he had come off the bench to start a discussion and that alternate captains Bob Pulford and Allan Stanley queried Shack's sentence.

The Leafs insist that Udvari is wrong on the first point, that Armstrong was on the ice all the time, but Pulford admits making an early complaint.

Stafford Smythe, president of the Leafs, says he is in favor of the four-referee system for the finals.

Imlach may not get as many chances to watch Udvari's work as he had expected.

WILL USE FOUR REFS

Saturday night Clarence Campbell, league president announced four referees will officiate at the first four games of the finals, a departure from the usual practice of having the two senior men officiate.

Vern Buffey, No. 2 man, will referee here Tuesday. John Ashley will work the third game in Detroit Thursday and Art Skov the fourth game Saturday.

Udvari, named the most reliable man in a heated dispute in the semi-finals when he swatted a disputed goal to Chicago Black Hawks, drew more criticism Saturday for the misconducts he assessed Armstrong and Andy Bathgate.

Although it probably will never be settled whether Abel was justified in his complaints about the Chicago goal, the rule book is on Udvari's side in the Toronto hassle.

At the beginning of the final series, Campbell ordered the referees to crack down on two sections of the regulations on misconducts; one directing that a misconduct be assessed against any player who does not proceed immediately to the box after he is given a minor penalty and another which directs that only the team captain or alternate captain on the ice at the time has the privilege of chatting about the rules.

Bathgate was thumbed down for high-sticking in the third period. When he asked the reason, Udvari immediately imposed the 10 - minute misconduct which calls for an automatic $25 fine.

BANISHED ARMSTRONG

In the first period Armstrong started to question a minor penalty to Eddie Shack. Udvari immediately made the hands-on hips signal that signifies a misconduct.

"I was too scared then to even ask him what it was for," Armstrong said later. "I was afraid he'd give me a game misconduct."

Udvari said he penalized Armstrong because he had come off the bench to start a discussion and that alternate captains Bob Pulford and Allan Stanley queried Shack's sentence.

The Leafs insist that Udvari is wrong on the first point, that Armstrong was on the ice all the time, but Pulford admits making an early complaint.

Stafford Smythe, president of the Leafs, says he is in favor of the four-referee system for the finals.

Lead Series 3-0

Marlies Edge Baby Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — Marlboros' Barry Watson scored a tie-breaking goal at 15:30 of the final period and fired another into an empty net four minutes later to spark Toronto to a 6-4 victory over Montreal Junior Canadiens Sunday in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A final playoff.

Toronto now leads the series 3-0 with one game tied. A tie or a victory for the Marlies in Toronto tonight will give them the series.

Before this burst by Watson, the Torontonians had succeeded in climbing from a 3-1 first period deficit to a 4-4 tie in the third period.

The other scorers for Toronto were Ron Ellis, Rod Selling, Andre Champagne and Grant Moore.

Jacques Lemaire tallied twice for Canadiens and Bob Charlebois and Yvan Cournoyer got one each.

Toronto appeared to be walking away with the game as they outscored Montreal in the first frame despite a smaller number of opportunities at the net.

Going into the second period, Canadiens coach Yves Nadon replaced goalie Andre Gagnon with substitute Rocky Farr and the two teams kept their rivalries at their respective scoring positions as they traded goals.

In the final frame goals by Lemaire and Cournoyer brought Montreal to a neck-and-neck position with Toronto but Marlboro goalie Gary Smith kept Canadiens off the scoresheet.

Curtain Goes Up Today

Yankees, Dodgers Flag Favorites

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — A new baseball season opens today with new hopes, new faces, new managers, a new stadium and a new president throwing out the first ball. But the general forecast is the same—Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees to meet in the World Series.

The professional oddsmakers have installed the Dodgers as 5-to-5 favorites to win the National League pennant. They have made the Yankees an overwhelming 2-to-5 choice to walk off with the American League championship.

Leading challengers to the Dodgers are San Francisco Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, and Cincinnati Reds in that order.

Nobody expects any club to challenge the Yankees seriously but those considered to have an outside chance include Minnesota Twins, Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers.

Here's the way the clubs stack up.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Los Angeles: Pitching—Excellent. Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale form the best pitching pair in baseball. Ron Perranoski and No. 1 among the relief men. Hitting—Fair. Team lacks power but makes up for it with short hits and fancy base running. Speed is the biggest factor. Fielding — Finished sixth last year. Doesn't figure to be better.

San Francisco: Pitching—The staff is aging. Juan Marichal is the only certain big winner. Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell were only fair last season. Bob Shaw must pick up the slack in the bullpen. Hitting—Overpowering. Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda are the nearest thing to a murderers' row. Rookies Jesus Alou and Jim Hart add speed and line drive hitting. Fielding—The defence wasn't good last year. The switch of Jim Davenport to second and the installation of Hart at third may help.

St. Louis: Pitching—Outstanding. Starters Bob Gibson, Ernie Broglio, Curt Simmons, Ray Sadecki and Lew Burdette and relievers Roby Shantz, Roger Craig and Ron Taylor give the club the deepest pitching in the league. Hitting — Best in the league for average. Short on power. The loss of Stan Musial leaves only Billy White, Tim McCarver and rookie Johnny Lewis to provide left handed strength. Fielding—Best infield in league. The only trouble spot is the outfield which is without a strong arm.

Cincinnati: Pitching — Potentially the best but a lot depends upon the condition of Bob Purkey's ailing shoulder. The bullpen could be stronger. Hitting—The power was muted last year by the slump of Frank Robinson, the club's big gun. The infield's hitting is weak. Fielding —Below average. The infield is leaky.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York: Pitching—Secure. Jim Bouton, Al Downing, Whitey Ford and Ralph Terry give the club a blend of youth and experience. The bullpen is questionable. Hitting — Solid. There are no weak spots. Fielding—Rated at the top. All can field, throw and move with the best.

Minnesota: Pitching — Improved. Camilo Pascual potentially the best in the league. Jim Kaat, Gerry Arrigo and Jim Roland have improved. The bullpen is adequate. Hitting—Loaded with power but the high number of strikeouts by Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison and Jimmie Hall last year is alarming. Fielding—Poor. The team was seventh last year. Moving out-fielder Allison to first place of fancy fielding Vic Power won't help.

Chicago—Pitching—Solid. Sox had best staff last year. Could be again if Gary Peters and capes sophomore jinx. Hitting—Lacking in power, with speed the biggest plus. Fielding—very good. A rookie flash, Don Buford, has taken over at second for the departed Nellie Fox.

Detroit — Pitching — Most vulnerable in the bullpen. The loss of Don Demeing is bound to hurt but can be offset if Frank Lary returns to form. Hitting—Improved. The addition of Don Demeter and Jerry Lumpe and the development of Bill Freehan are the big factors. Fielding — Lumpe should straighten out the second base muddle. Dick McAuliffe looks like a vastly improved shortstop.

The controversy that has split the harness-racing division of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club into two factions has developed into what seems to be open warfare.

Some time ago a number of members of the then Driving Club broke away from the association and formed what is known as the "Belleville Raceway."

It passed a new system of operation and administration by which the "Raceway" would be governed by a board of directors (11) selected from those who purchased a $50 membership. Those not wishing to pay this amount could become "$2.00" members with restricted voting privileges.

Other members of the Driving Club, apparently satisfied with this procedure joined forces with the proviso the association be known as the "Belleville Raceway, operated by the Quinte Driving and Riding Club."

Then out of a blue sky, the latter decided to break away from the "Raceway" and adhere to the Driving Club constitution. It formed a separate association, naming Mr. Bill Frost as president.

The old Driving Club charges the "Raceway" is operating under illegal procedure. It claims the board of directors are not qualified to operate harness racing; that they have been selected because of $50 memberships. It believes all members should have a say in voting matters.

Representatives of both organizations have waited on the city Parks Board in efforts to obtain the racing privileges on coming summer. Thus far, no decision has been handed down by the board.

Things came to something of a head last week when the Driving Club Association issued an ultimatum to the "Raceway" organization.

It demanded the former Driving Club bank account and membership dues collected be turned over to them. That those "Raceway" be shobbed and return to "Quinte Driving and Riding Club"; that Driving Club members ($2.00) be afforded equal voting rights; that certain profits reverted to the Driving Club and $20 members be able to take $50 at season end if available; that starter Evan Wills be retained at status quo and before end of the race secretary be appointed for 1964, at the rate of ($25 weekly), as in Mrs. E. Edwards.

The ultimatum declared that unless the above seven points are agreed on in writing there will be no negotiating.

The Belleville Raceway at a subsequent directors' meeting unanimously voted to reject the ultimatum and to state definitely (newspaper advertisement in Saturday edition) that it has no affiliation with the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, and would not be responsible for debts incurred by the club after April 11.

But while this fencing, dueling and quarrelling is going on, nothing is being done about harness racing this summer. And some 500-600 racing addicts are beginning to wonder why.

It looks from here as though the issue lies in the hands of the Parks Board. I understand both associations will make further efforts to secure the race privileges and I shall go on record from officials.

The inaugural sixteen-meet season last year, I understand was a fairly successful one. It augured well for the future of harness racing here.

I am informed that internal dissension arising from personalities criticism last season did nothing to help the success of the then Quinte Driving Club.

Popularity of, and interest in, harness racing is enjoying an upsurge in this district. Belleville is too small a city to have its sports spoiled by opposing factions.

If harness racing is to be a success here, what is needed is a strong single governing body working harmoniously for its own good and that of the sport without resort to petty bickerings and personalities.

If this is done, then harness fans can look forward to improved racing in the future, the success of which could result in added attendance and increased purses which are necessary if the sport here is to attract the calibre of horses that compete on Kingston and Peterborough tracks.

In passing it is noted the annual "Horsemen's Ball" is being held at the Club Canara, Friday, April 17th, under the aegis of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club.

"I don't think a man can be at his best when he works every other game in the series. Also, you get the players playing the referee, not the other team . . . we've got four men capable of working the finals, so why not use them all?"

Neither Smythe nor NHL officials would confirm a rumor that the change was brought about as a result of criticism of Udvari in the semi-finals.

One peculiar result of the new system is that it will keep Udvari out of Detroit where fans are still burning about the disputed goal which led to a fracas against the Wings.

If the series goes past four games, Udvari will work the fifth game back here next Tuesday and Buffey will be in Detroit for the last game there.

Palmer Wins Masters-And $20,000

Cowan, Top Amateur

By JIM BECKER

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Not so long ago, there was a golf champion everybody liked. He won the big tournaments and did impossible things.

Soon he was rich and famous. Then he didn't win any big tournaments or do any impossible things for a while, and people said he didn't know how to any more. They said he was too rich an' he couldn't putt like he used to.

Even Arnold Palmer heard the stories.

"The question mark was as big in my mind as in anybody else's when I stepped up to the first tee here," Palmer said, after he won his fourth Masters golf tournament over the Augusta National course Sunday.

"It was like checking out an airplane with new spark plugs. I wasn't sure how they would function."

They worked, Palmer shot rounds of 69, 68, 69 and 70 for 276, and achieved the following results:

—He led all the way.

—He had the second lowest total in the 31-year history of the Masters.

HAS SIX-STROKE MARGIN

—He had the second largest victory margin, six strokes. Defending champion Jack Nicklaus was second at 282, along with touring pro Dave Marr.

—He didn't three - putt a green until the 30th hole of the final round, when the issue had already been decided.

—He won $20,000 in prize money, and struck what should amount to a $1,000,000 blow for Arnold Palmer Enterprises, which manufactures almost everything but baby foods.

—He became the first man ever to win the Masters four times—1958, 1960, 1962 and 1964.

And he struck a big blow to cigarette smoking.

Palmer quit smoking Jan. 27 and his resultant struggles were almost as public as the courtship of Elizabeth Taylor.

"I had a block about quitting. It seemed to affect my play around the green. Now I've licked that."

Palmer's next drive will be at the U.S. Open, scheduled for Washington, D.C., in June. He won in 1960.

And if he wins there, he will go on to try for the professional grand slam, which includes the British Open and the Professional Golfers' Association event.

A reporter asked Palmer if he still wants to win the grand slam.

"I'm not dead yet," was his answer. He meant he will try for the grand slam until he can't walk 72 holes any more.

Palmer opened play Sunday with a five-stroke lead over young Australian pro Bruce Devlin and six over Marr.

Nicklaus, the big Ohioan who won two of the four big titles last year and just missed a third, hadn't got started in this tournament and was nine strokes back after rounds of 71, 73 and 71. He ripped off a final-round 67.

Marr scratched to within three strokes of Palmer at No. 10, but had to make a 25-foot twisting putt on the last hole to tie Nicklaus for second.

The putt was worth $2,000 to Marr, who would have collected only $8,000 for third if he had missed.

Devlin made $6,100 for finishing fourth with 284.

Gary Player of South Africa, the winner in 1961 who will have his tonsils out in Augusta today, was among four players who finished at 286. Others were Paul Harney, Bill Casper and Jim Ferrier.

Old Ben Hogan, at 51 flashing some of the form of old, finished with 287 on a final 72. He had a 67 Saturday.

Amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, the only Canadian who lasted past the halfway cutoff, finished with a 73 Saturday and 71 Sunday for a 291 and a tie with Dean Beaman of the U.S. for low amateur honors. Beaman had Cowan by five strokes Saturday but had a 78 Sunday.

Tweed Entry Lifesaver!

Tottering on the brink of elimination prior to the meeting, the Belleville and District Softball League may survive another season with a surprise entry from Tweed providing the lifesaving transfusion.

Tweed representatives told yesterday's gathering that, "We are very interested in entering your league and if we can iron out a few minor problems, you can almost be assured that Tweed will have a team."

One of the "minor problems" is the matter of lights, lacking here in Belleville and in Tweed as well.

However, both the Tweed team, which will be known as the Tweed Cardinals, and the B. and D. League felt that arrangements can be made for day-light games.

The Tweed team would like to play home game in Tweed but if the Belleville clubs can not make it back there for early games, the team would likely be willing to play all games in Belleville. This will be ironed out if and when entries are finalized.

Belleville teams, Joyce Realty, Trudeau Motors and the Juniors, plus Tweed would form a four-team grouping.

League president Harold Reeden told those in attendance yesterday: "There is not much point in all these meetings and now we must make our decision. We will set an entry fee today and make next Sunday the deadline for entries. If we have four entries or more, we can operate, if not we will fold it up," he said. Everyone agreed.

The entry fee was set at $25 per team, the same as last year. A meeting has been set for 2.00 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, April 19, and teams wishing to enter must do so then. All four teams represented yesterday appeared satisfied with these arrangements.

Elmer Woods and Dick Ellis, representing the junior team, advised hope that as many of the city's junior age players as possible turn out with their team, "in order to give us a strong, competitive entry against the more established senior clubs."

Everything now depends on next Sunday's response to the call for entry fees but at the league executive put it, "things look a great deal better now than they did before this meeting."

It was also noted that the Belleville and District Umpires' Association will hold a meeting at the Belleville Field next Sunday afternoon, also at two o'clock.

Trenton 1964 Champions

Trenton Legion Juveniles have captured the 1966 Ontario Minor Hockey Association Juvenile "A" Minor championship.

The Legion crew won the Ontario title in St. Thomas yesterday afternoon, when they downed the hard-fighting St. Thomas squad by a 5-3 count.

Yesterday's 3-2 victory gave Trenton the Eastern section, a three-of-five set, three games to two and climaxed a close, zip and back series.

Trenton won the first game of the series in St. Thomas, lost the second there, both games being played last weekend.

Switching back to Trenton for the third and fourth games, St. Thomas took an overtime win on Friday for a 2-1 lead but Trenton nipped back to tie the set at home Saturday night, then rapped it up in St. Thomas.

Right-winger Bert Garrett paced the winners in the final contest, scoring two goals. Singletons were scored by Andy Teeple, Don Morrison and Al Ferguson.

The team:

Goal, Dennis Orr and Wayne Bonter; defence, Bob Brazier, Jim Lange, Bob Fraser, Jon Gibbons; forwards, Dave Johnson, Bert Garrett, Jim Allen, Andy Teeple, Al Ferguson, Terry Hutchison, Don Morrison, Ken Reynolds, Jim Johnson, Jim Shoe.

May Meet Feather Champ

Ortiz Decisions Lane

SAN JUAN (AP) — Lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz, fresh off an impressive title defense against Kenny Lane in this Puerto Rican city, is expected to choose his next challenger within a month.

Bill Daley, manager of the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker, said Ortiz is considering three possible opponents. He has been offered $100,000 to defend against featherweight champion Sugar Ramos in Los Angeles and $60,000 to fight Willy Quatier in Berlin or Johnny Bizzaro in Pittsburgh.

Ortiz, who had won three previous defences by knockouts, turned crafty Saturday and carefully carved out a unanimous 15-round decision over Lane.

Ortiz dropped his man with a stinging left hook in the 14th round, but Lane bounced up before referees Peter Fantaies could start a count.

Minor Teams Split Wins In Kingston

Belleville minor hockey teams split a pair of exhibition games played in Kingston on Saturday as part of the season-ending ice show at the Constantine Arena.

Crests of the Fort Henry Heights team, Belleville Odd Fellows' Bantams defeated their hosts 6-1, while Belleville Macdonald-Brownes lost a narrow 2-1 decision.

In the Bantam game, the Odd Fellows tied it after the first period before Odd Fellows scored five without a reply in the second to wrap up the win.

P. Fleming and Cal Wilson scored two goals each for Belleville, L. Hotchford and John Holgate netting the others; C. Scott, Hotchford, P. Bishop and Holgate adding assists.

MacCormack's scored the first goal of their game but Fort Henry tied it before the end of the first period and scored with a man advantage in the third to get the nod.

Terry Meagher was the Belleville marksman, assisted by Don Beecher.

MacCormack's may play an exhibition game in Ottawa against the Ottawa Twin Pines team this coming weekend if ice arrangements can be made there.

Figure skating and other ice displays were part of the Fort Henry show on Saturday and the Belleville teams took part by invitation.

MOVE OFFICES

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— Offices of the International Leagues will be moved to Rochester from New York, league president Tom Richardson announced Saturday. Richardson said directors of the eight-team baseball league had requested the offices be moved to a member city.

Defeat Wellington 9-3

Belmont Midget Champs

WELLINGTON — A powerful Belmont squad defeated Wellington 9-3 in Belmont on Saturday to annex the OMHA Midget "D" championship. The new champions won the series in two games winning the first 5-1.

The heartier homester crew swept into a 2-0 first period lead and never relinquished it.

They fired home four more in the second frame before the ironclad Drakes broke the scoring egg late in the period.

Belmont outscored their opponents 3-2 in the frame.

Norm Abbey, a powerful youngster was the outstanding player of the game scoring twice for Belmont and assisting in others. Fred McLachlan also stood out with a pair of goals.

Gary Shower scored the first goal for Wellington in the second period, Bob Burley and Bobby Lavender adding singles in the final chapter.

The game was a rugged affair officials handing out 21 penalties, 11 to the home team.

The winners received the A. F. McAvoy Memorial Trophy for the second year in a row while the Wellington squad was presented with the G. V. Simmons Trophy as runners-up.

Blades Win Semi-Final

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP)—Toledo Blades shut out Fort Huron Flags 3-0 Saturday to win the best - of - seven International Hockey League semi-final series 4-3 before 2,709 fans.

Moe Mortiemo, a 6-goal scorer in the regular season, fired his first two playoff goals, while Walter Bradley notched his sixth.

The Blades meet Fort Wayne Komets Tuesday in the opener of a best-of-seven series for the IHL championship and the Turner Cup.

Siskins Square London Series

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Waterloo Siskins forced a seventh game in the Ontario Hockey Association provincial Junior B semi-finals Saturday by defeating London Nationals 7-6 in overtime.

Seventh game will be played tonight at London.

Hero of the Saturday game was Ron Beaupre who scored the tie-breaking goal at 2:30 of the overtime session.

The Allan Cup Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics will have more than a passing interest when Ottawa Montagnards meet Windsor, N.S., Maple Leafs in Ottawa tonight.

The two teams meet in the final game of their best-of-five Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-final, and the Athletics will take on the winner to decide the Eastern representative in the battle for amateur hockey's top award in Canada.

Windsor deadlocked the series 2-2 Saturday with an easy 5-2 victory after losing two straight games to the Montlea.

A Windsor triumph tonight will mean Woodstock will move 1 to Nova Scotia for the entire series. But if Ottawa takes the series, the first two games will be at Woodstock.

Meanwhile, in Western Canada, Baltimore Quakers and Winnipeg Maroons have all week to rest after easy Western semi-final series. The best-of-seven final opens in Winnipeg Friday.

Both teams wound up their semi final series in straight games last week, Quakers disposing of Kimberley, B.C. Dynamiters and Maroons eliminating Fort Arthur Bearcats.

King of the Hill

Bud Pelican turned back a stiff challenge by Ron Saylor to keep intact his title of "King of the Hill" crown for another week at the Bowl-O-Drome on the weekend.

Saylor won the qualifying round with 1332, on games of 257, 306, 230, 226 and 303. Champ Pelican was second with 1289, followed by Jack Canning with 1156 and Jim Begley with 1130.

Pelican then came up with 726 and Saylor fell just short with 713 in the very close challenge round.

Saylor and Jim Bayley took turns at the eight-in-a-row "pot o' gold" but fell short. Each bowler was stopped after six strikes in a row.

BEAT YOUR AVERAGE

Frank Duclos retained his "Beat Your Average" title on the weekend by bettering his 170 average by 34 pins per game over the four-game match.

Ross McCoy was his closest contender. He best his 170 average by 2.75 of a point per game. All others bowled below their averages.

Top Players May Get Life Ban

Betting Scandal Rocks British Soccer

By COLIN FROST

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) Police investigations start today into a soccer betting scandal that threatens a major disaster for Britain's national sport.

Soccer authorities launched their own investigation alongside the police investigation. Football leaders were saying it seemed inevitable that several top players will be barred from the game for life.

The storm erupted with an article in The People, a Sunday newspaper with a circulation of 5,000,000, charging that a big money betting ring had corrupted nearly 30 players in its bunk for large profits.

The People named three players.

Tony Kay, Everton and former Sheffield Wednesday halfback, a key man in the England international squad.

Peter Swan, Sheffield Wednesday's centre half and veteran of 19 international matches.

David Bronco Layne, Wednesday's high scoring forward.

SACKED OPPONENTS

These three, The People said, banked £3,000. Sheffield Wednesday in less against Ipswich in a first division match in December, 1953. Kay then still was a member of the Sheffield side.

Wednesday lost. The three players were hastily, but could do so, The People said, only because their bet was coupled with other matches which the betting ring had fixed.

This coupling with other matches was essential because under single bets bets on a single match are barred.

Sheffield Wednesday immediately suspended Swan and Layne and dropped them from tonight's match against Aston Hotspur. Kay was due to meet with Everton directors. He told reporters he denies the newspaper's charge in entirety.

The News article charged that the ring's main fixer was Jimmy Gauld, former Scottish international inside forward who last year was fined £60 ($168) on six charges of bribing soccer players.

Swan denied that he himself had fixed or thrown any games. But he added: "I do admit that I have been betting on matches which I knew in advance were fixed."

Millions of pounds changes hands each week in betting on British football, either through bookmakers or the soccer pools. The reputation of the British game has been so honest that many foreign countries base their pools and lotteries on the weekly British results.

TRUDY

"Think you can break through the sound barrier and find out what time we're having dinner?"

Owner Charles O. Finley of Kansas City Athletics should have insisted on a money-back guarantee when he purchased his pennant porch.

Based on a Sunday trial, the porch isn't about to win the Athletics any pennants.

Six home runs were hit at Kansas City's Municipal Stadium Sunday as the Athletics downed St. Louis Cardinals 9-7 on the last day of the exhibition circuit.

That made eight homers in all, three by the Athletics and five by the Cardinals, in the two-game series that inaugurated the porch, a fence that cuts the right field corner to right field from 338 feet to 296, matching the distance in Yankee Stadium.

All the homers missed the porch.

Of the two home runs hit Sunday, George Williams' two-run blow that won the game for Kansas City went to left center while Johnny Lewis legged out an inside-the-park homer to St. Louis. Five of the six hits in the Cardinals' 9-7 victory Saturday came to left field. The sixth went to centre.

GENTILE BLANKED

Jim Gentile, Kansas City's new first baseman who bats left, is supposed to benefit from the porch. But he went hitless in nine times at bat.

The exhibition championships went to San Francisco Giants in the National League and Minneapolis Twins in the American. The Giants nipped Cleveland Indians 7-6 while the Twins downed Detroit Tigers 3-1 Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Los Angeles Angels blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 5 - 0, Chicago White Sox beat Cincinnati Reds 9-15, Chicago Cubs whipped Boston Red Sox 6-3, Philadelphi Phillies edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Washington Senators rallied for an 8-7 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League nipped Milwaukee Braves 6-5 and Richmond of the International League defeated New York Yankees 2-2.

Results of the Saturday action, Milwaukee squeaked by the Yankees 2 - 1, Cincinnati defeated White Sox 7-6, Pittsburgh thumped Philadelphia 15-3, Baltimore trounced New York Mets 11-0, the Angels defeated the Dodgers 4-3, the Twins edged Detroit by the same score, the Cubs won 12-3 over Boston, San Francisco defeated Cleveland 12-7 and Oklahoma of the Pacific Coast League edged Houston 4-3.

SOX LOSE PITCHERS

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)— Pitchers Tom Hoagland and Bob Gurzek of Chicago White Sox were claimed by other American League clubs for the $8,000 first-year waiver price Saturday. Hoagland was picked up by Los Angeles Angels and Gurzek by Kansas City Athletics.

'Y' Juveniles Win Eastern Cage Title

Two Belleville YMCA teams took part in the Eastern Ontario "Y" Basketball championship tournament in Ottawa on the weekend and one of them brought the championship back on home.

Belleville Juveniles won the Eastern title by registering three victories in as many games.

The team defeated Brockville 37-31 and Ottawa twice, 39-33 and 38-36.

Belleville Midgets did not fair as well, losing 41-28 to Brockville and 39-22 to Ottawa.

Ottawa later defeated Brockville to win the midget title.

The winning juvenile squad came up with a good team effort, paced by Ron Welch and Murray Hall in the scoring department. Others who played major roles in the victories were Bob Dunsmore, Byron McKibbon, Dave Anderson, George Pugh, Dave Tempier, Dave Hurst and Tom Lyrnie.

This team will be travelling to Kitchener this Saturday to represent the Eastern Zone in the Ontario YMCA champion ships.

Belleville Midgets ran into much larger teams back to back but gave it a good battle despite the twin defeats.

Jim McCreary was top scorer for Belleville, aided by team mates Norman Harman, Bill Hoard Dave Hiuser, Peter Lloyd, Ron Olsen and Gary Swan.

SURTEES TAKES RACE

SIRACUSA (AP)—John Surtees of Britain drove a new Model Eight Ferrari to victory Sunday before 70,000 fans in the Grand Prix of Siracusa, Sicily, a warm-up for the International racing season. Lorenzo Bandini of Italy was second in a 1953 six-cylinder Ferrari and Peter Mitchell of Britain was third in a Lotus.

Fifteen Others Dig Selves Out

Avalanche Kills Ski Stars

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP)—Buddy Werner, the hardluck American ski star, lost a desperate race with an avalanche Sunday and was killed under tons of snow.

The 29-year-old Olympian was taking part in the filming of a ski fashions movie with other top skiers when the vast spring snow thundered down an Alpine slope at Samedan, a village two miles outside of this winter resort.

The avalanche also killed Bernhard Hug of Switzerland, 22, one of West Germany's top women skiers. Fifteen others in the ground dug themselves out or were freed by rescuer.

"It was a nightmare," said 27-year-old Fritz Wagnerberger, a veteran German racer.

"We were crossing the slope in a fir while the crew was filming when all of a sudden the snow gave way under our skis. It was about 10 o'clock in the morning.

"Pandemonium broke out. It was terrible. We were yelling and the screams could be heard over the thunder of the snow.

RACED SLIDE

"Buddy Werner raced down in front of me trying to get away. He was a little lower down and probably though he had a chance to race away from the slide.

"Perhaps he could have done it, who can say? He got to the bottom, but then he slipped, somersaulted and was lying in the snow as the second arm of the slide crashed right on top of him.

"I think the same happened to Barbi."

Wagnerberger said those who dug themselves out rushed to where Werner and Miss Hasenberger were buried and dug into the snow with bare hands. Other skiers from a nearby lift came quickly.

"In the end there were hundreds helping us," Wagnerberger said, "but for Bud and Barbi it was too late."

Miss Hasenberger's body was found in eight feet of snow three hours after the slide. Werner's body was discovered an hour later in 10 feet. Both had suffocated.

CLOSE VICTORY

AUCKLAND (AP) — World mile record holder Peter Snell of New Zealand ran a mile in three minutes; 58.5 seconds Saturday at Western Springs stadium. Snell defeated John Davies, also of New Zealand, by one-tenth of a second. Davies has beaten Snell twice this season.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Some excellent scores were turned in as the Quinte Trap and Gun Club held its opening shoot for the season yesterday.

Shooting will be held each Sunday morning from now on, at 10.30 a.m. Mid-week shoots will be announced later.

Jack Rutan captured top honors yesterday with a 49 score in the 50-target, 16 yard event.

Other good scores were: Earl Marvin 48, Dick Thomson 47, Doug Johnston 47, Denny Roselle 46 and Bert Singer 46.

In the double events, Gardner and Doug Johnston were tied with 94 out of 30.

In the regular events, 15-year-old Bill Nugget had a perfect 25 round and Bob McPherson also registered a 25. Other good scores were: George Haggis 24, Cliff Hart 23, Chester Singer 23, Garnet Hart 23 and Ted Hennessey 22.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Uppercut, with only one victory to show for six previous starts, brought Mongo's bid for the handicap division title up short Saturday with a three-length triumph in the 37th running of the $27,500 Excelsior Handicap at Aqueduct.

Mongo, favorite in the field of six for the 1¼ mile, race, after winning the Widener and Campbell Memorial handicaps was fifth.

Bearing top weight of 129 pounds and giving 17 pounds, Uppercut, Mongo distilled in the early lead and then found the crushing weight too much to handle.

Johnny Sellers held William L. Harmonay's Uppercut near the back of the field during the early running and then took him to the rail for his drive in the last eighth of a mile before a crowd of 56,362.

Rocky Link closed fast for second money, finishing a head in front of Morry E. PAID $21

Uppercut stepped the distance in one minute. 50 seconds and paid $4.20, $3.80 and $3.60. Rocky Link paid $6.80 and $4.50. Morry E. was $3.30 to show.

Meanwhile, at Laurel, Md., Montpeiller's Sheldrake, three-year-old stablemate to Mongo, won the $25,000-added Senatorial Stakes.

Sheldrake took command under Ronnie Ferraro at the final turn and won by two lengths from Star On High, who was the same margin ahead of Twice As Gay at the end of the mile race.

Ferraro had permitted Sheldrake to cut sharply to the rail as the top two in the field had to withstand a foul claim before paying $9.20, $4.80 and $3.60. Star On High paid $13 and $6.40 and Twice As Gay returned $6.20.

LOST PROTEST

Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., rider of Star On High, complained his mount was impeded by Sheldrake at the quarter pole, but the officials didn't find the offence severe enough to warrant a disqualification.

Winning time was 1:38 3-5.

At Lexington, Ky., Blue Norther, a leading candidate for this year's three-year-old filly championship, romped to an easy three-length victory in the $25,150 Ashland Stakes at Keeneland race track.

The W. R. Hawn filly was taken off the early pace by Bobby Wilhite Shoemaker, but took command as the field of 10 made the turn for home and was eased up at the finish of the six furlongs.

Silver Dollar, who made most of the early pace, finished second with Roman Goddess third.

Blue Norther's winning time was 1:09, just two-fifths of a second off the track record.

Blue Norther returned $3, $2.80 and $2.20. Silver Dollar was $5 and $2.60. Roman Goddess, an entry with Miami Mood, returned $2.20.

TITLE FOR EMERSON

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Roy Emerson of Australia captured his sixth Florida-Caribbean tour tennis title Sunday, defeating Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., 8-3, 6-4, 8-1 in the St. Petersburg Masters. Emerson has lost only one tournament since being suspended by the Australian Lawn Tennis Association for not returning to play in home competition.

Barons Oust Bears In 3

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Cleveland Barons scored two first period goals in 26 seconds and went on to defeat Hershey Bears 4-3 Saturday night to sweep the semi-final American Hockey League Calder Cup series in three games.

Cleveland, third-place finisher in the Western Division, now moves on to the AHL-run finals for the 26th time, facing the Eastern Division champion Quebec Aces. The best-of-seven series open Wednesday at Quebec.

Jim Mikol locked up the issue for Cleveland, firing a 10-foot shot into an open net with 54 seconds to play. With Hershey trailing 3-2, goalie Ed Chadwick had been removed for an extra forward.

Elizabeth Taylor And "Cleopatra" ... The Biggest Box Office Attraction In The World

Elizabeth Taylor is the most irresistible female box office attraction in the world.

This is not a compliment to be treated lightly. For in the highly competitive business of producing and selling motion pictures, a revered status like Miss Taylor's is unconquered. Her films have attracted movie audiences in picture after picture all over the world. Only after the totals were in and the profits estimated was Elizabeth Taylor contracted for her present Olympian perch.

Although it's hard to believe, Miss Taylor once has been acting in films for 20 years. She is currently starring in the title role of 20th Century-Fox's $40,000,000 romantic spectacle "Cleopatra," continuing its successful engagement at the Belle Theatre.

For many years, however, the trail of her career was more frequently strewn with rocks than roses.

Tied at childhood to a long-term contract with MGM, she often found herself playing second fiddle to a procession of four-footed screen stars. Lassie being one of her most frequent co-stars. But she was determined to continue her development as a serious actress. Eventually, she did.

Miss Taylor's determination has played an important part in her movie career right from the beginning.

"When I was up for the part of the girl jockey in 'National Velvet,' they told me they needed an actress three inches taller and 10 pounds heavier," someone else. I went home, grew three inches and got the part."

Unlike most other child performers, there were no lean years for Miss Taylor as she grew up. Perhaps because she matured so quickly, she was soon the hottest lady for sundry MGM actors.

"The roles were as various as Gaynor's in 'A Star Is Born' and cringing on the one hand and unprepared," she candidly admits.

But those contract years were utilized by her as a kind of dramatic finishing school. "I worked with actors and won't working _ the Gables, Tracys, Hepburns, Garsons and Crawfords. But I never stood to model myself after any one of them. It always annoys me to hear someone referred to as a younger somebody else. I've always known that I had to be myself."

But she really wasn't permitted to be herself until the studio loaned her to Paramount for George Stevens' "A Place in the Sun."

"People have told me," she says, "I looked different and sounded different in that movie even though it was my first truly adult role. Remember, I was still a teenager."

She recalls, somewhat grimly, that her home studio kept quiting her "in some awful things and I felt like diving under the seat when I saw most of them."

Miss Taylor confesses she never cared that much about being a good actress. But her indifference changed after "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

The film provided one of four Academy Award nominations, culminated by the Oscar for "Butterfield 8." One of these nominations was for "Suddenly Last Summer" and perhaps the closest professional relationship she has built during her career is the one she shared with its director, Joseph L. Mankiewicz, who also scripted and directed the De-Luxe Color epic, "Cleopatra."

"Joe is my favorite director. All he has to do is give me a look or make a gesture and I understand what he's telling me." Mankiewicz calls this method their "verbal shorthand" and refers to her as "a Charming Mossy type of actress, a real primitive who always gets deeply involved in scenes."

PRODUCING FILMS — Saskatchewan-born Neil McCallum's desire for financial security has taken him into the film production after nearly a dozen years as an actor. Now 34, he lives on a farm in Berkshire, England, when not acting or producing films.

Saskatchewan Farm Boy Turns From Acting to Producing, Makes Money

By DAVE PIKE

TORONTO (CP)—The hectic goings and goings of Neil McCallum, a Saskatchewan farm boy who packed his bag for London 15 years ago to study music, belie his contention that an actor's life is dull.

But then, McCallum hasn't confined his career to just acting. His hunger for financial security has guided him into the production end of the business.

"Unless you've got some means of employing yourself," says McCallum, who feels his acting career went extremely well for a few years and then seemed to fizzle artistically, "well, nobody wants a has-been actor."

About a year and a half ago, McCallum and Jack Parsons formed Farroch - McCallum, a British film company which always signs off boasting a real money-maker. McCallum has his fine artistic and and Parsons the business details. They have produced six films to date and plan to continue turning out about one a month.

"The kind of movies we're making now are low - budget means to an end—better quality films that the public will like and we can be proud of."

FORM COMPANY

As added security, McCallum recently pooled resources with other members to form a stage production company. They hope to mount six plays in London's West End over the next two years. "Anything good of its kind—not rubbish or sex exploitation—that's what we want to do."

"It all sounds very grand," says McCallum, who worries about people getting the idea that his ventures have gone to his head. "I'm still broke and very insecure, like everyone else in this business is."

McCallum faces the fact that unless he learns how to do without sleep altogether — 20-hour working days aren't uncommon —he'll have to cut down on his acting, although he doesn't intend to give it up entirely. He expects to act in several of his own films and do a few TV plays each year in both Britain and Canada. A familiar figure on CBC-TV, he has been in upwards of 30 productions on this side of the Atlantic. — he's proud it about a dozen times in the last year—since 1960.

Seen recently in a Playdate production with Heather Sears, with whom he made a movie in Australia a few years ago, McCallum will be featured in at least two more CBC-TV productions this season.

He co-stars with Paul Massie, another Canadian who scored successfully in Britain, May 13 in The Private Memoirs and Confessions of a Justified Sinner on Festival. Later in the season, he co-stars with Brett Somers, Canadian actress of deep sensitivity who comes from New Brunswick and now resides in New York, in the actor - director Jack Klugman, in Epiphany, the longer half of a double-bill Festival in the theatre of the absurd genre.

LOST VOICE

One of four children, McCallum comes from the remote Hanley area of Saskatchewan. He left the farm at 18 to work at the Weyburn, Sask., mental hospital. He might be a singer today if he hadn't lost his voice while studying music in London. After deciding to become an actor, he eventually did bit roles, "starved in attics and all that rubbish," and gradually established a reputation. Now 36, he feels the turning point in his life came 10 years ago.

He had obtained an option on The Rainmaker for West End production.

"The night it opened I think I had $6 in my pocket. For the life of me, I don't know what made me take that gamble, but it ran nine months and it was enough to get myself started and able to make a living and ensure no something in the theatre."

McCallum's fortunes, both professionally and financially, have been up and down like a yoyo since then, but at least he's had the finger in almost every pie, acting, producing, directing, writing and managing. Despite his film, TV and stage commitments, he has managed to visit Canada two or three times a year for a number of years now.

He hopes to take his wife Judith, whom he married in 1957, on a month-long coast-to-coast tour of Canada, which she has never seen, this summer.

Judith, who had been a musical comedy actress, had just obtained her own TV series when she became pregnant with their five child. Three children and a miscarriage haven't left her much time for a career, but she's become reconciled to being a housewife.

They live on a farm in Berkshire, where Neil changes easily from producer to family man playing with his children, feeding chickens, taking long walks, writing a little and listening to Brahms.

"All I want is to make a good living for my family doing the things I want to do, that are worthwhile doing. If I can do that, I'll be a happy man."

SWANS MAY EMIGRATE

STRATFORD ON AVON (AP) California's swans appear to get some of Queen Elizabeth's swans. The city fathers of Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford, have discovered there are too many swans on Avon and are thinking of exporting some to Buena Park, near Los Angeles. First they must get royal permission, since by ad ancient law all swans in England belong to the Queen.

Carnival World Explored With Affection and Humor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The wonderful world of the carnival was explored Sunday night by NBC with affection, humor and imaginative photography.

The armchair visitor to a half dozen fairs carnivals picked up a smattering of culture and considerable incidental information.

For instance, we were informed by our guide, dancer Sally Rand, that fire eaters always breathe out while doing their act, and that sword swallowing is "really very easy" if you can conquer a tendency to gag.

The amusing hour was a short urse on one of the oldest forms of show business. Starting next month, The Red Wagon of trucks and railway cars will start rolling through the country and play state and county fairs all summer and fall.

The carny world was not glamorized. Miss Rand told of working all day and travelling all night, of poor food and primitive living conditions.

CBS' excellent coverage of the final round of the Masters' tournament, live from Augusta, Ga., showed a lot of wonderful golf. But winner Arnold Palmer's big lead took away any suspense it might have had.

Successful Living

Afraid of Hurting Him No Basis for Marriage

DEAR DORIS — I have gone with a boy for two years. The problem is I don't love him any more, but he still loves me. You see, he has given me so much: big gifts like a desk set, guitar, expensive jewellery, that I can't hurt him.

I haven't been out with too many boys so I feel that I don't really know what I want. I am 18.

Sometimes I think he's pretty selfish. He gets nasty with his sister. He gets mad when I won't let him fool around. I want to go in for teaching after high school, but he wants to get married.

But we have had good times. I don't want to hurt his feelings and have his family turn against me because I like them all — WHAT TO DO?

DORIS CLARE.

DEAR WHAT —Would you marry a man you don't love, to keep from hurting his feelings? That would be the greatest hurt of all.

He has not tied you to him for life with material things. You have given him your company and your appreciation as you went along. Set yourself to correct your present deception by having a serious talk with him. You are only wasting his time as well as your own.

DEAR DORIS — Just a simple thank you for your wise insight offered in a recent problem. It helped to clarify my mind and give me assurance on a very important matter.

All has been working out well. I am very grateful to you, as I know countless other must be. God bless you in your work.— LAWYER IN LOVE.

DEAR LAWYER — Sometimes the man at the top in the community, has no one to turn to when it's his own affairs of the heart. I'm delighted that my letter helped. The fact that you and your fiancee are both highly intelligent and willing to communicate has something to do with it too, you know.

DEAR DORIS — My first wife passed away and five years later a girl married again. My new wife, who divorced her first husband, has two girls in their teens.

The girls rely on their mother or me to clean up the mess they make. I have come to the point where I'm fed up with this. The other day I told them to clean things up, but they just gave me a sarcastic grin.

When I explained this to my wife she said she would speak to them but she never did. Any time I mention the subject she tells me that she is tired and goes to sleep.

I'm a worried man about our marriage as the girls now have no respect for me and I feel they don't like me. Personally I think that children must respect older people and the parents must see that it is carried out. — WORRIED WILL.

DEAR WILL — And so they should. A stepfather's lot is not an easy one!

Daughters may resent the new Master of the House, especially since their previous experience of a father was probably poor. But I wonder whether you loved them first before you started with the discipline? It's the only way.

Are you wondering about the right thing to do? Doris can help you decide. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Defies League With 'Porches'

That Man Finley Again!

KANSAS CITY (AP)—It's a matter of principle, Charles O. Finley says of his short home run porch, "to finally bring the Yankees in line."

The outspoken Kansas City Athletics owner plans another move today with the same goal.

Finley means to bar he has no intentions of giving up the effort to demonstrate — with fences, paint and temporary bleachers—that there is room in the inequities of New York's Yankee Stadium.

"Certainly, my porch is against the intent of the rule, but what about the Yanks? The rule says 430 feet to the nearest fence, and I'm within rule. I can't operate on intent."

Frick indicated it was a matter of principle with him, too, as he declared, "there's only one interpretation and I would think there's no hearing, no appeal, no nothing."

Finley's new 296-foot right field porch would be 24 feet closer than the Yankees' 314-foot right field fence.

Commissioner of baseball, and Joe Cronin, president of the American League, ordered Finley, his attorneys, to take down the extra home run porch, "to finally bring the Yankees in line."

Urges Churches Revise Policy On Colleges

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP)—Reassessment of the church's traditional policy in regard to higher education was advocated Friday at a conference of Ontario Anglicans at the Canterbury Hills Conference Centre near here.

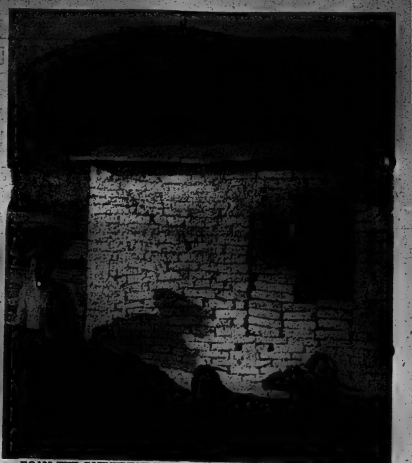
John Pettigrew, registrar of Trent University, Peterborough, urged establishment of multi-faculty, multi - denominational colleges in the Canadian university community similar to those at Yale, Harvard, Oxford and Cambridge.

The conference brought together about 40 churchmen concerned about the church's role in higher education.

Speaking on Religion and the University, Prof. Pettigrew asked whether the creation of church colleges was in the best interests of the church or the university.

"More and more Canadians are beginning to understand the educational value of residence and I believe that the refusal of provincial governments to support them financially will not be long continued," he said.

He favored development of a college system with teaching and residential facilities mostly integrated.



Prof. Pettigrew suggested churches work together to provide religious centres for universities and staffs. Such centres could be architecturally distinctive and include a house of worship as the central feature.

CIRCULAR FORT — Medieval Nicosia, capital city of the Mediterranean island of Cyprus, was a circular fort with high walls and a now-dry moat. One of the ancient buildings of the city is shown in this picture, taken for The Canadian Press by Paul Taillefer of the Montreal Star. (CP Photo)

Oh Yeah??

Oh, to Be on Cyprus Now That Spring Is Here

By DAVE McINTOSH

NICOSIA (CP)—Canadian soldiers with the United Nations force on Cyprus are basking in the warm Mediterranean sun and chortling over reports of a slow-moving spring back home.

This island is lush and green now and fields of red soil like Prince Edward Island's are strewn with poppies and buttercups among the wheat and barley.

The memory of Canada's chill and the mess of the Royal 22nd Regiment is fading fast as temperatures since their mid-March arrival here have reached into the 80s. Soon the searing heat of the Cypriot summer will drive the temperature to 110.

The island's few streamsized rivers, torrents in the rainy winter, are already bone dry.

Cyprus, with an area slightly short of Cape Breton Island's, is only 40 miles south of Turkey at the nearest point. Sixty miles of Mediterranean separate Syria from Cape Andreas, the head of a slim peninsula jutting from the northeast corner of Cyprus.

SOME REMINDERS

Despite the exotic location, there are reminders of some parts of home in the broken, rocky coastline — never more than 30 miles away to north or south—with stretches of sandy beach and farmland in the interior.

Flowerings to eastern Canadians in the Van Doos are the narrow range of limestone Kyrenia Mountains along the north coast and the wild Troodos Mountains of the southwest, covered with pine, cedar, cypress and desert oak and culminating in the 6,400 foot Mount Olympus.

Between the mountains lies the broad Messaria Plain, with Nicosia at its heart holding one-sixth of the population of 450,000 Greek - Cypriots, 105,000 Turkish-Cypriots and about 45,000 of other racial backgrounds.

Along the mountainous coastlines, often on curve-stretching roads of one lane without guard rails, the scenery is among the world's most spectacular.

On the plain or in the towns, life has features unfamiliar to the Canadian.

TRAVEL TO FIELDS

Cypriot farmers do not live on the land but cluster together in villages of earth - brick houses, travelling to the fields and back each day by bus or bicycle or on foot.

Orange groves and lemon orchards and vineyards, producing some of the island's most important exports, abound. Sheep and goats, another staple of farm life, roam the island with shepherds.

In the villages—some 600 of them dot the farming areas—the centre of communal life is the cafe, where the men gather for apparently tireless discussion.

In newer villages and outside the walled warren of streets that form medieval Nicosia, the houses of cement and sandstone, the movie theatres and the western dress worn by all Cypriots seems closer to the North American's idea of home.

TO COMPENSATE VICTIMS

BELGRADE (AP)—The Yugoslav government has decided to pay damages to Yugoslav survivors of Nazi concentration camps who were disabled as the result of so-called medical experiments by the Nazis. The amounts will be fixed later. Yugoslavia is continuing to protest the refusal of West Germany to victims of Nazi terror.

BORDERED BY MOUNTAINS — The north coast of Cyprus is bordered by a narrow ridge of mountains the Kyrenia Range, seen in the background of this rural area where a member of Canada's Royal 22nd Regiment stands guard against violence between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots who populate the small Mediterranean island. The picture was taken for The Canadian Press by Paul Taillefer of the Montreal Star. (CP Photo)

CITY DIVIDED — Two members of Canada's Royal 22nd Regiment, on United Nations police duty in Cyprus, chat with an armed Greek Cypriot civilian guarding the Greek side of Nicosia. The city is divided between Greeks and Turks by the "green line," seen in the middle of this picture taken for The Canadian Press by Paul Taillefer of the Montreal Star. (CP Photo)

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 14

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Don't be in too great a hurry regarding financial deal. Misunderstanding could block the way. Strive toward more virtuous approach. Advice offered by associate may not be reliable.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Domestic harmony should be present goal. Cycle high. But mate requires special consideration. Set fine example. Follow Golden Rule. Push forward with original ideas. Lead the way.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): You have asked for opportunity. You are due to receive it. But you must be ready to make basic changes. Holding on to past will prove costly. Social, important exchange of ideas indicated.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Hold something in reserve. Includes emotional strength. If you tell all, you may regret it. Evaluate situation objectively. Don't be caught in middle of dubious scheme.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Intuitive flash can provide valuable clue. Know truth when you encounter it. Usual sources may "dry up." Reach far afield. Check various methods. Key could come from "eccentric" person.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Handle responsibility in authoritative manner. You needn't be perfect. But you must go ahead with enthusiasm. Don't be afraid of failure. Indications for [illegible] are strong. Act accordingly.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Recent "victory" paves way for greater success. Extend boundaries. Reach out for added information. Important correspondence highlighted. Others are impressed with your sincerity.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Get at truth! Strive for facts. Are you seeing persons, situations in light which is obscured? Don't be victim of false flattery. Stability. Expand circle of friends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Cycle has been higher in past. Now, take time to investigate. Be diplomatic — a good listener. Express true feelings. But do so in manner calculated to offer encouragement.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Friend who means well may come up with misleading information — unless you double check. Obtain hint from Aries message. Be thorough. Bit of extra effort puts you "over the top."

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Day of surprises, opportunities. Especially good for selling, creating, making impression on important people. Evening favors romance, expression of feelings, creative endeavors.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Don't believe everything that comes your way today! Communication received regarding property may not be valid. Concentrate on security. Remember past resolutions. Read Cancer message.

If today is your birthday . . . you are dynamic, creative, and would excel in the dramatic arts.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Gemini. But Sagittarius must walk fine line between frank approach and diplomatic statements.

Omaha Whips St. Paul 7-4

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Germain Gagnon scored three goals Sunday to lead Omaha to a 7-4 victory over St. Paul in the Central Professional Hockey League's championship play-offs. The victory put Omaha ahead 3-1 in the best-of-seven series which resumes Tuesday at Omaha.

Gagnon's third goal broke a 3-3 third-period tie and cleared the way for a flood of Omaha goals.

The game was delayed in the second period for 20 minutes while St. Paul goaltender Marcel Pelletier was treated for severe back bruises and abrasions suffered when he was slammed into a goal post by Omaha's Keith Walsh.

Canadians Try to Bring Truce Between Shooting Greeks and Turks in Cyprus

Gerard Alarie, member of the French-language staff at Montreal bureau of Canadian Press, now is in Cyprus to report on activities of the Canadian peace-keeping force.

By GERARD ALARIE

KYRENIA, Cyprus (CP)—Troops of Canada's Royal 22nd Regiment continued Sunday to try to bring about a truce between Greek and Turkish-Cypriot rioters firing at one another throughout the weekend in the Kyrenia mountain range, 30 miles north of Nicosia.

There were no Canadian casualties as 2nd Lieut. Pierre Gadbois of Montreal led a patrol up to the firing areas at three different times during the weekend. The Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots ceased fire when the Canadian patrol appeared but resumed shortly after.

Lt.-Col. Andrew Woodrock of Sarnia, commander of the Royal 22nd Regiment, described the encounter as "the most violent clash between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots since the arrival of United Nations forces."

Operating from a base established at the foot of the Kyrenia mountains, the Royal 22nd patrols went to the top of the mountains twice Saturday and once Sunday.

"It's becoming a little more nerve-racking," Lieut. Gadbois said after the third patrol. Machine-guns fired towards the Canadian troops twice early Sunday.

"I told my men to lie on the ground. The firing ceased and we were able then to proceed to the Greek-Cypriot camp."

A captain met the Canadians in the Greek camp. "I spoke to him in French, Lieut. Gadbois added.

The Turkish-Cypriots opened fire on the Greeks Saturday afternoon when they said they saw mules approaching towards the position on the summit of the Kyrenia mountains. The Turks said the mules were carrying arms to the Greek-Cypriots.

Firing resumed in the same area Sunday morning. Lieut. Gadbois rode up a mountain road in a jeep.

Maj. Patrick Tremblay of Lancaltini, Que., commanding the Royal 22nd Company which provided the patrols, said the helicopters are being used only for "very serious incidents."

FIRE WAS HEAVY

"Our patrol didn't climb right to the summit Sunday because the exchange of fire was too heavy," said Lieut. Gadbois.

At one stage during Sunday's patrolling, he said, his detachment was near a house in which 200 families live. "Then rounds were fired at us there," he said.

Canadians going to any Greek- or Turkish-Cypriot encampment carry a large United Nations flag, but officers explain that the combatants hide on behind rocks often don't notice the flag before opening fire.

Cpl. Ernest Babcock of Sackville, N.B., said he saw bullets hitting the ground near his jeep Royal Canadian Dragoons' car both Saturday and Sunday.

"We didn't fire back," the corporal said, "because we didn't know from which direction the shots came. It might even be that the bullets we saw hitting the ground had ricocheted from somewhere."

Maj. Tremblay said he hoped they don't start firing during the night." Until now all action has been in daylight.

After Saturday's patrolling, Lieut. Gadbois said he first went to the Greek-Cypriot positions in the morning.

"In the afternoon we went to the Turkish-Cypriot encampment where we were greeted by a lieutenant, and firing ceased," he said.

"The Turkish-Cypriot lieutenant nevertheless insisted that we visit the Greeks."

"We hadn't taken 20 steps towards the Greek positions before Turkish machine-guns opened behind us and fired over our heads."

Lieut. Gadbois said the Turkish-Cypriots were trying to get the Greek-Cypriots to open fire on the Canadians "to create a bad incident, but one favorable to the Turkish-Cypriots."

Couple Files Suit After Baby's Death

OTTAWA (CP) — An Eastview, Ont., couple Friday filed a suit for damages in Ontario Supreme Court here against Kledytown Limited of Ottawa and the Medline Manufacturing Company Limited of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dumais are seeking damages for the death of their infant son claiming it was caused by "the negligence of the defendants . . . in manufacture and sale of a defective and dangerous baby's crib."

The child died about six weeks ago.

U.S. Air Force General Wants Gigantic Bomb

Lemay Believes Russia Has Reduced U. S. Lead

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — Gen. Curtis E. Lemay says he believes Russia has narrowed the gap of U.S. military superiority and the United States should develop a 100-megaton nuclear bomb.

And, hinting indirectly into the missile reliability battle between Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Senator Barry Goldwater, the air force chief of staff says he "would probably not give as optimistic a picture" of U.S. missiles as McNamara.

"I think probably the chance of planned war is less," said Lemay in censored congressional testimony made public today. "That does not mean we cannot drift into it."

His curtain of war was delivered before the House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee. The transcript shows that McNamara and Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert did not support Lemay's call for a 100-megaton bomb. This would be equivalent to the force of 100,000,000 tons of TNT.

As Lemay's views were made public, statements by both McNamara and Goldwater added fuel to the dispute.

ARMS NEW WEAPONS

In a paper on "defence strategy for the space age" put out by the Goldwater-appointed committee, the Arizona Republican argued "we cannot put safe reliance in missile systems." He said "not a single new weapon system has been augmented since 1961."

Lemay, a strong backer of manned bombers, said in his testimony reliance on unmanned missiles in the future would put the United States "in a muscle-bound position . . . you are endangering the defence of the country by depending on this weapons system alone because you have no flexibility."

Goldwater, running for the Republican presidential nomination, questioned the reliability of Minuteman, a solid fuel — "despendability gap" while campaigning earlier this year.

His comments brought a prompt retort from McNamara, who spoke with pride upon U.S. nuclear and conventional forces. And in testimony made public today by the appropriations subcommittee, he made a new rap at Goldwater without mentioning his name. McNamara said:

"It is absolutely irresponsible" to tell Americans and Russians that missiles are not dependable. "This is the way to erode confidence in the strength of this country, the force that is deterring the Soviets from nuclear attack on this country."

STILL SUPERIOR

In his testimony, Lemay said he thought the U.S. military strength is "definitely superior" to Russia's now.

"But I do not think it is as international trade.

Because of recent large wheat sales, was looked on as a friend in that country, Davidson said, Canada had a competitive advantage and was in a position to help break the log jam of goods in the West.

He said he was attempting to get Canadian businessmen to grasp the opportunities presented to them to meet Chinese demand for tremendous quantities of farm machinery, fertilizer, paper and minerals.

Communist China was willing to become a regular customer for Canadian wheat and he would associate in the House of Commons that the government's accord China the privileges given a traditional customer.

Witness Not Aware Of Beating

By STRAUN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal C. Banks' defence opened its case Monday with evidence by five witnesses who took sharp issue with testimony by prosecution witnesses in the trial of the former president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) on a conspiracy charge.

Evidence by Jack Casper, 32, heard at a closed weekend reformatory commission hearing in California, was entered in the court record following completion of legal formalities.

Casper is named in the warrant with Banks, Eldon Richardson and Paul Crnik as conspiring to assault Capt. Hedley Walsh seven years ago with intent to wound, maim or disfigure. . .

Capt. Walsh, then an organizer for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC) was beaten up in a hotel parking lot in Owen Sound, Ont.

Casper denied time and again by that Banks had ordered him to assault Capt. Walsh. The six-foot-two, 200-pound former professional heavyweight boxer was in Montreal in 1957 as a troubleshooter for the SIU of North America.

DENIES PAYMENT

Casper did not recall hearing Capt. Walsh's name, said he was not paid $1,000 for the assault and added that he was even aware Banks faced any criminal charges.

The witness said after consultation with his lawyer, John Paul Jennings, that he would not come to Montreal to testify at the trial because a warrant is out for him in the conspiracy case.

Rogatory commissions are used to hear evidence in other countries for persons who will not, or cannot, testify in Canada.

Casper said he had sent Mr. Jennings a statement the RCMP asked him to sign in December but added that he has not seen the document since.

Crown witnesses Richard Greaves and Michael Sheehan had testified Banks had called Casper, Richardson and Crnik to his Montreal union office and ordered them to assault Capt. Walsh because the latter had criticized the SIU. Sheehan said he was in Banks' office when the union leader counted out $1,000 cheque made out to Casper.

Casper, employed by the SIU from 1957 to 1958, said he had made no trips to Owen Sound.

Cameras In House Are Out

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — If Parliament were televised, just what kind of a show would it be? And how would it affect Parliament?

For an hour Monday, members of Parliament took a coy hour break from the budget debate—it continues today—to talk about the possibility of becoming television performers.

Would it improve the public's understanding of Parliament? Would members resort to grandstanding? What would be the effect on national unity? Would it increase the quality of debate?

Two key questions came from Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) who wondered would want to carry the proceedings of the House of Commons day after day. ? How many viewers would there be?"

He suggested there would be more television when not many people would bother watching.

WANTS STUDY

The debate arose with a private member's motion by Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) that a Commons committee should be formed to consider the idea of equipping the Commons chamber with TV cameras. The motion was "talked out" and won't likely come up again at this session.

"This House is not a private club or debating society," said the Toronto lawyer. "This is the forum in which the great issues affecting the country are discussed. . .

"If the House of Commons let us, the Canadian people would see us, warts and all. They might not like us all the time, but parliamentary democracy is substitute for civil war and they would more likely share our moments of passion that mock us for showing them. At any rate, they would be judging us by what we are and not what others, for their own purposes, want to make us out to be."

It would contribute to national unity, he argued. "In times of crisis their attention is upon local heroes, the people of Canada would have the opportunity to see the great statesmen of other provinces and regions. . .

CLEARED TO STOMACH :

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said: "Our government and our Parliament are something which I am proud. Between elections they probably function more than you are led to believe of their beefs."

Maurice J. Moreau (L—York Humberside) said the danger of increasing the role of such a controlled media as television is Somewhat philosophical" but he backed the proposal as a means of educating the public on parliamentary procedure.

Louis - Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette - l'Assomption - Montcalm) said the latter would result in far better attendance from the $13,000-a-year members of Parliament.

But Mr. Woolliams said this wouldn't necessarily be good. "There is a feeling across the country, which I think might grow if our proceedings were

Sidney Poitier First Negro To Win Best Actor Award

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sidney Poitier, brilliant Negro actor who had trouble getting started because of his West Indies accent, has become the first of his race to win a best-actor movie Oscar.

The 37-year-old son of a tomato farmer in The Bahamas was named best actor of 1963 at a modest awards ceremonies Monday night for his ingratiating portrayal of an ilitserate Baptist construction worker who helped nuns build a Roman Catholic church in Lilies of the Field.

Patricia Neal, 38, whose career has included down as well as ups, made it a comeback story by taking best actress honors—her winning role was as the slovenly housekeeper in Hud.

Tom Jones, a racy, rollicking tale of 18th century England, was selected best picture at the 36th annual festivities.

Melvyn Douglas, once Greta Garbo's favorite leading man, picked up a trophy as supporting actor for his performance as the patriarchal father in John Huston's The Cardinal and Hugh Griffith of Tom Jones had been co-favorite.

Margaret Rutherford, dowdy duchess of "The, V.I.P.s, and a hr favorite "walk" became supporting actress.

Poitier, another winner in the audience, trotted beaming up the aisle amid wild cheering

Biculturalism Committee Hears Pleas From Acadians

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism heard pleas from Nova Scotia Acadian leaders at both ends of Nova Scotia Monday.

In simultaneous informal meetings at Sydney and Yarmouth the commissioners and some were told the province's 88,000 Acadians face complete assimilation with the English-speaking majority.

English-speaking participants called for more study of the problems of French in public schools to promote understanding and raise racial levels.

Acadian spokesmen fear their group, with Nova Scotia roots that date back to 1604, will disappear gradually unless changes are made in the education system and broadcasting, of which nearly 37,000 Acadians had lost their language and cultural heritage.

Rev. Ernest Chiasson of Glace Bay said French is the language of instruction in early grades but students must switch to English in high school. He said this was the case in Acadian villages and not everywhere in the province.

Delivery of NONG Shares Brings Conflicting Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — Contradictory evidence concerning delivery of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company shares came out Monday in the inquiry of the NONG President Ralph E. Farris, Q.C., of Vancouver.

Wilbur Cramp, who had difficulty remembering the years when he was mayor of Orillia and when the municipality awarded a gas franchise to NONG, said he received the NONG shares through the mail. He said they were delivered to his home in his absence.

Earlier, G. Kelly McLean, former assistant to Mr. Farris, testified he delivered 200 shares to William L. Moore of Orillia in the spring of 1957 at the Barrie home of Mr. McLean's aunt, Mrs. Marjorie Kelly. Hal was to go to Orillia.

Mr. Moore, who with his former law partner Archibald Carter now a Simcoe County judge, acted as town solicitor for Orillia, contradicted Mr. McLean's evidence Monday.

He said Mr. McLean gave him 100 NONG shares in 1957, handed to him in his Orillia office. He said he was given 50 additional shares for his part-

Keep Patients Waiting

CP from AP-Reuters

BRUSSELS—The Belgian government claimed today that about 4,000 of Belgium's 10,000 doctors were practising again, the most since their strike against socialized medicine began April 1.

The interior ministry announced that 2,900 doctors had answered the government orders putting 3,600 doctors holding military reserve commissions on active duty.

About 1,300 others had either resumed private practise or returned to staff jobs at hospitals, the announcement said.

However, many doctors back in uniform were reported their displeasure by making patients wait unusually long, belaboring administrative details and showing up for duty minus any equipment—even a pen to write prescriptions.

PATIENTS WAIT

Government sources charged the mass walk-out of doctors were staging "a kind of a go - slow strike" in hospitals. Patients waited up to three hours to be treated.

Strike leaders confirmed there was a glut of patients in hospitals and long lines of sick people waiting.

Dr. J. Donzin, a member of the National Federation of Medical Unions which organized the strike, told reporters:

"If all the uniformed officers now brought into the hospitals appear idle, this is primarily because they are not getting the necessary instructions from the government, which is now responsible for running its emergency services.

CLAIMS NO EQUIPMENT

"This situation is due to the lack of equipment which should have been supplied by the authorities."

The defence ministry said individual sets of equipment would be distributed immediately to the doctors working under emergency services set up by the army.

Moscow Denies Khrushchev Has Died

LONDON (AP) — The Khrushchev rumor swept around the world within minutes Monday night before it was shot down by a Moscow denial.

The origin of the death report was wrapped in some thing of a mystery today.

The rumor, it officially between an inquiring Japanese reporter and a Soviet news agency man in Moscow may have caused the trouble. But confirmation of this was not forthcoming, and there were other versions.

Larger School Grants Keep Increase Down

Boost Would Be .8 Mill on Old Valuations

Thanks mainly to increased educational grants from the Ontario Government, the 1964 tax fab for the average home-owner in the city of Belleville will be little changed from last year.

City council yesterday set the commercial rate at 34.3 mills and the residential rate at 30.7 mills.

Due to the new assessment figures which this year increased assessments about three-fold, the above rates may not be completely understood by many property owners, but in the main this year's tax rate is approximately one third of the mill rate in 1963.

Last year's commercial rate was 103 mills while the residential rate was 91.9 mills.)

If the same assessment figures had been used this year that were used in 1963, the commercial rate would have been 103.1 mills and the residential rate 27.7 mills.

LIST INCREASES

In other words there would have been a .1 mill increase for commercial property owners and .3 mills for residential owners.

City manager, J. R. Reynolds said that for a residential property, assessed at $4,000 last year which had its assessment three times, this year's rate will mean a tax increase of about 60 cents.

On a house formerly assessed at $3,000 and on which the assessment was increased four times, this year's tax will be $368, or an increase of $92.70.

On a commercial property formerly assessed at $10,000 which had a four-fold increase in assessment, there will be an increase of $42. in taxes.

BUDGET UP $180,000

Budget estimates approved last night by city council total $4,253,534, an increase of about $180,000 over estimates for 1963.

The city's total tax rate is 4.3 mills-commercial and 5.6 mills residential. The public is 7.5 mills commercial and 6.7 residential.

City council discussed, the mill rate for close to an hour yesterday before passing the estimates.

The budget discussion was a continuation of that of last Thursday, when councillors were idle to reduce only by three or four thousand the figures presented by the city manager.

In moving for adoption of the estimates Alderman Ben Corke, as chairman of finance, said he was grateful there was no need for any no tax increase for most properties.

FRANKES OFFICIALS

He said that a magnificent job had been done by the city officials and department heads in preparing the budget.

Mayor Jack Ellis also had commendation for the city

Pension Plan May Be Altered

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is likely to make changes in the Canada Pensions Plan to bring it into line with the provincial plan proposed by Premier Lesage of Quebec, a highly-placed political source said Monday.

Prime Minister Pearson was reported to have reviewed the federal plan with Mr. Lesage the weekend after details of Mr. Lesage's plan were made public.

However, it was understood, the federal government plans no wholesale revision of the basic terms of the federal plan at the moment. Rather, it will permit — and perhaps even encourage — amendments of the federal proposals by a parliamentary committee during the next few weeks.

Government sources indicated that the prime minister and his advisers have been impressed by features of the Lesage plan not included in either the original federal plan or the revised one now before Parliament.

MAY ALTER CONTRIBUTIONS

Chief among these is the graduated rate of contribution suggested in the Quebec plan as opposed to a flat rate of contribution in the federal plan and the formula suggested by Quebec City that benefits might be geared to major changes in the cost of living index.

While the federal plan has undergone some revision since its first inception the federal government—for political purposes —is said to be not anxious to advertise the fact that it is subject to further major alterations. The Liberal administration has been criticized for vacillation on a number of its proposals.

So changes the government

Turkish Regulars Give Warning They Will Return Greeks' Fire

CP from AP-Reuters

NICOSIA — Turkey's army regulars on Cyprus were firing back today at their enemy cache of Nicosia and warned of retaliation unless the shooting ceased, UN officials reported.

In Nicosia itself, the communal warfare between Greek and Turkish Cypriots erupted with two hand-grenade attacks, killing at least one person and wounding two others.

A report to UN peacekeeping officials from the Turkish regulars said a burst from a light machine-gun position was fired at their encampment at Orinhoy. The Turks said the firing came from Greek-Cypriot positions at a racetrack southwest of the capital.

Turkey has warned that an attack on its 650-man contingent, stationed by treaty on Cyprus, will be considered an act of aggression.

Like the Greek army contingent of 900, the Turkish force has kept out of the communal fighting. Both Greek and Turks, however, moved out of their enclaves to camps near Nicosia after the Turkish and Greek Cypriots erupted in battle last December. The announced aims of the Turks was to protect the Turkish - Cypriot minority if necessary.

The sniper fire came without warning in the capital's market.

Shoppers scattered in panic as bullets zipped through storefronts. Lower and taxi drivers dashed the 10-minute barrage on a busy street dividing the hostile Turkish and Greek sectors of the capital.

Stavros Demetriou, 43, was trying to drive his car out of the firing zone when a bullet struck him. Two other persons were wounded.

Troops of the United Nations peace force, along with Greek-Cypriot police and national guardsmen, moved into the market place quickly and began patrolling, keeping along the buildings. One British UN soldier said he was shot at while entering the area.

UN headquarters said officials were investigating the two grenade attacks reported from both sides to prevent a recurrence.

Greek shopkeepers in the area complained to the UN Monday that Turks had threatened to fire on shops facing the Turkish sector unless they were closed. Some Greeks closed their shops but reopened this morning. The shooting started minutes later.

Hamilton Says Chinese May Buy Canadian Machinery, Fertilizer

DAVIDSON, Sask. (CP) — Communist China wants immediate tremendous quantities of farm machinery, fertilizer, paper and minerals from Canada and is prepared to become a regular customer for Canadian wheat, Alvin Hamilton, minister of agriculture minister, said Monday night.

Just returned from a trip to mainland China, Mr. Hamilton said China's government had made a "fundamental decision" to feed, clothe and house its 700,000,000 people.

The Chinese leadership realized that an attempt to lift the nation in isolation by its bootstraps had failed. Now "hungry for friends," China was anxious to move into the mainstream of

Retail Appliance Business In Service for 50 Years Has Been Sold by PUC

After close to 50 years in the business of selling electric stoves and refrigerators, the Belleville Public Utilities Commission is going out of the retail appliance business.

The commission is taking the step for three reasons:

1. The retail sales operation is losing money — and has been for several years.

2. It needs the space taken up for appliance display for general office purposes.

3. The Commission doesn't want to compete with other appliance dealers in the city.

The local utilities have been talking of getting out of the retail sales field for many years and their decision was finalized at a meeting Monday afternoon.

Tenders have been called for the sale of store stock and yesterday at its monthly meeting, the commission refused to accept the offer of Ireland's Appliances for the entire stock.

REASON LONG PAST

Commissioner Harry Rollins said the reason for the utilities getting into the retail sales field in the first place had long since passed.

That original reason was, of course, to help build up electricity sales at a time when few dealers in the city sold electrical appliances.

It was a case of getting more electrical appliances into use so as to sell more electricity.

Former Utilities manager C. H. Scott, now retired, said the Hydro store was started shortly after he came to Belleville, back in 1912. The Hydro office at the time was on Bridge St. where Adams Furniture now is located.

But over the years the operation of the Hydro store has been accepted by private store owners also in the appliance field. They claimed the Hydro store was unfair competition.

And occasionally a commissioner has been elected on the platform that he would work to do away with the Hydro store.

Then after the commissioner got himself elected, he would see the Hydro store was prospering and the issue would be forgotten.

But in recent years it is claimed the store has been losing money and the decision of the commissioners has been to pack it up.

Labor Council Endorses Plan Of Parks Board

Parks and recreation facilities in Belleville are among the poorest in the province, Parks Board chairman Donald Joss told a meeting of the Belleville and District Labor Council last night. Invited to speak to the council's regular monthly meeting, Mr. Joss turned up with Parks Board member, Frank Murray, to explain the plan for improvement of the city's parks during the coming summer. The plan calls for improvement of the parks by the citizens themselves. The plan had been endorsed by city council at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

The Parks Board does not have enough money, Mr. Joss told the labour council meeting, to make needed improvements to the parks this year. Board demands of the city budget had purposely been kept low, he said, to minimize tax increases.

The plan proposed is that local industries and their management be asked to donate materials and equipment to parks, and that private citizens should provide volunteer labor. Mr. Joss asked for labor council's endorsement of the plan, with the suggestion that union locals might be encouraged to accept responsibility for specific projects. Work required, he said, includes painting, tree planting, sodding, planting of trees and the building of baseball dugouts. Full public credit will be given, he said, for donations.

Discussion of the proposal included a question put by Cecil Keffer, about labor representation on the Parks Board. Mr. Murray told the council that labor could probably be represented on the next Parks Board.

On a motion by Eileen Loucks, seconded by John Harris, labour council agreed to endorse the plan. Further action will be up to union locals.

County Health Plans Re-open For Enrollment

The P.S.I.-sponsored Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Community Health Plan re-opens for enrollment on April 15th. Residents will recall the initial enrollment last year when for the first time individuals were offered an opportunity to subscribe to P.S.I.'s comprehensive group coverage.

The enrollment this year will be for a short period only, Wednesday, April 18th, to Saturday, April 28th. Plan headquarters will be located in Belleville at 240 Front Street, telephone WO 2-9125. Offices as well will be opened for day each in Bancroft, April 16th, Picton, April 16th, and Trenton, April 17th.

Charlie Stone, P.S.I. spokesman, says application forms, descriptive literature and a self addressed return envelope have been mailed to all householders in the two counties. Residents wishing to enroll must first complete the application and return it, together with their payment covering three months coverage will be effective May 15th, 1956.

Physicians' Services Incorporated, or P.S.I., as it is more commonly known, is a non-profit organization sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association as a means of providing low cost medical and hospitalization to the residents of this province.

The Plan covers surgery, home, office and in-hospital care by a physician, unlimited X-ray examinations, laboratory inoculations and vaccinations and many other services.

There is no age limit for enrollment and no enrollment fee. No medical examination or statement of good health conditions is required and there is no exclusion for chronic or pre-existing conditions.

Residents wishing to enroll or desiring further information should contact their nearest information centre.

Identical Bids Unacceptable To City Council

City council yesterday refused to accept identical bids from two suppliers tendering on requirements of asphalt for use on city streets.

The tender price submitted by both the Canadian Bitumuls Co. Ltd. and by Flintcote Co. Ltd., was 23.1 cents per gallon.

The recommendation by the city purchasing agent was that requirements be purchased equally from both suppliers, but council turned this down, and asked that new tenders be called.

Alderman Ross Bailey wanted to flip a coin to determine which supplier was to get the contract but Alderman J. Allin asked for new tenders.

Alderman Donald Joss commented that if there was collusion between the two firms, giving the contract to one firm would solve nothing.

"Each company would receive half the contract anyway", he said.

Council Asked to Approve Curtailing Evening Buses

Curtailment of evening bus service could result in an annual saving of approximately $6,000 to $8,000 according to the Belleville Transit commission.

And with approval of city council such a policy would be put into effect by the Commission.

Last night city council was asked to approve of the move, but the matter was referred to the city council finance committee for consideration.

The commission request to city council is for approval of discontinuation of bus service on all routes at 9.45 p.m. effective May 15th.

Air Survey Of the City To Cost $5,400

The tender of Pathfinder Air Surveys Ltd. last night was accepted by city council for an aerial topographic survey of the city at a cost of $5,400.

The Pathfinder tender was the lowest of four received, the highest bid ranging up to $6,890.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said the aerial survey would materially reduce the amount of field work necessary for the city engineering and planning departments.

He said the total cost of the survey would be recovered by savings in the rebuilding of Pinnacle Street following the removal of the railway tracks.

Bus Terminal Lease Turned Down by Council

City council yesterday turned down renewal of the Belleville Transit Commission lease with Fred Rawson for rental of its bus garage on Bleecker Avenue —and referred the matter back to the commission for re-negotiation.

The recommendation was for renewal of the lease for a three year period with option for further renewal at the end of the period.

Several city councillors wanted the lease for a two-year period, apparently taking the view that a new city owned garage might by then be erected.

Four Charged After Burglary

Provincial police at Belleville have charged four youths with a weekend burglary at McCall's service station in Marysville.

The break-in — and theft of a battery and cigarettes — was reported yesterday morning. Several hours later OPP officers from Belleville had charged the four after a car had been stopped near Cobourg.

In custody are Brian Cain, 17, of Toronto; Brian Murray, 18, Parker Gratto, 17, and 16-year-old Raymond Malette, all of Kingston.

Police say a quantity of goods have been recovered.

Mayor Defends Council Meeting In Caucus

Belleville city council is still divided on its opinion as to whether council should go into caucus to discuss budget matters.

Last week council voted to exclude the press and radio from a caucus meeting at which this year's budget was discussed.

And last night members were still talking about the criticism, which resulted from their action.

Mayor J. R. Ellis led off the discussion in his remarks concerning the proposed budget, and in doing so defended the caucus meeting.

In the first instance discussions would have been boring for radio listeners, while at the same time he said he cannot see justified because in some instances personalities would be mentioned, and more direct answers were obtainable at a meeting accessible to the public when the press was not present.

PUBLIC ENTITLED TO KNOW

On the other hand, Alderman Whalen said the public was entitled to know what went on at such meetings.

Ald. Jack Allin defended the caucus. "Never in my recollection of 20 years in public has been allowed in at a budget discussion," he said.

Alderman Ross Bailey said it was wrong to consider a caucus as a secret meeting.

"It is not a meeting at all," he said. "It is only a discussion of members in order to agree and occurs at all levels of government."

New Telephone Directory Is Off Press

The 1956 telephone directory is off the press and should be in the hands of customers by April 17.

Milton Sweeney, Bell Telephone company manager in Belleville said the 1956 edition has a new look in color and illustration this year. A drawing of the Wellington Park and Memorial Gates, replaces the 1955 illustration of the Prince Edward County War Memorial, in Picton. The drawing was commissioned from the famous Canadian artist, Lorne Bouchard, A.R.C.A. Mr. Sweeney will present the original April 30, to the Reeve of Wellington, Mr. Robert Ross.

In the directory's introductory pages, customers will find complete information on telephone services provided. A table of contents lists handy information on long distance usage. New this year is a concise local calling guide for Belleville, Picton, Trenton and vicinity. Instructions on long distance calling and a list of Area Codes for North America are also featured.

Speaking of changes since last year's issue, Mr. Sweeney pointed out that Wellington customers will have dial telephone service coincident with directory delivery, that Bloomfield will have its own dial exchange due to the large increase in customers in that region and that local distance charges will be removed between Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington.

Mr. Sweeney also emphasized the importance of keeping emergency numbers handy and up-to-date. Customers will find blanks on the first page of the new book for police, fire and family doctor numbers.

Mr. Sweeney said that total circulation this year will be about 42,804 copies. In Belleville, circulation will reach 17,450, an increase of some 800 copies from 1963. The circulation in Trenton is expected to total 8,713 copies, compared with 8,450 last year.

Similar increases are anticipated in the neighboring communities. In Brighton for example, the 1964 circulation will be about 1,722 compared with 1,610 in 1963. Bancroft circulation will increase to 1,589 from 1,468; Tweed to 1,511 from 1,435 and Madoc to 1,240 from 1,210.

Paving on North Front St. To Start Soon

With the city's 1964 budget now approved, motorists using the North Front St. artery leading out of the city, can expect a definite date before last season for a proposed street resurfacing program.

The question of when the North Front Street artery would be re-paved was raised during the enquiry period at council yesterday. Alderman Don Whalen said that motorists and bus drivers were complaining of the bad holes left in the street as result of sewer excavations.

Mayor Ellis said that with the passing of the budget, funds would now be available for re-paving and a schedule could be expected to be set in the near future.

And Alderman J. Deacon wanted to know if anything was to be done this year about track removal on Pinnicle St.

"Pinnacle Street is in a terrible condition," he said.

Mayor Ellis said the last trains would run over the Pinnacle Street track on the weekend of June 27th.

Following this the works department would be used to get a definite date for removal of the tracks.

IN MEMORIAM

LOUIE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Fred who passed away April 24, 1962.

You are not far away from me,
You are not lost to me;
For I can follow the road you took
We never thought when you left us that
We would never say goodbye.
Sadly missed and remembered by wife Edna.

LOUIE — In loving memory of my dear father Fred Louie who passed away April 24, 1962.

Dearest Dad you have left us,
Your loss we deeply feel;
But God who has taken you
In His own time will heal.
Sadly missed but lovingly remembered by son-in-law, Norman and son-in-law, Chester.

CARLETON — In loving memory of a dear husband, Stanley Morley Carleton who passed away, suddenly, April 14, 1962.

He died alone
No one near
He died his own garden pea row near at rest.
You left suddenly, your thoughts unknown.
You left us memory we are proud of
It was sad
For a day that comed with out warning
We must live with the world but you'll never Forget you are remembered by Mother, Raymond Sharon, Eleanor and Glenn.

CARLETON — In loving memory of our dear brother, Harold Morley Carleton who passed away suddenly April 14, 1962.

His little know when we woke that
The sorrow the day would bring,
The silent sudden, the deep unseen pain.
To part with one, we loved so dear
Is hard to bear.
Sometimes its hard to understand,
Why many suffer pain,
In this wisdom God has planned.
Lovingly remembered by sister Hazel, brother-in-law Bill, sister Marilyn, brother-in-law Bye and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Roscoe Holden, wish to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and neighbours for the kind expressions of sympathy shown in their bereavement in the recent loss of their dear wife. Special thanks to Wray and Nephew and staff of the turkey intelligencer and the many friends for all the lovely flowers, cards, letter, gifts and phone calls that I received while in hospital.

Told of Protest Of Increased Hospital Levy

Increase of Ontario Hospital Insurance premiums by 54 per cent is being protested by the Ontario Federation of Labor, Belleville and District Labor Council, meeting last night in the Club Cesare. It was given formal notice of the Federation's protest with a copy of a letter sent by D. F. Hamilton, secretary-treasurer of the Federation, to Premier John Robarts.

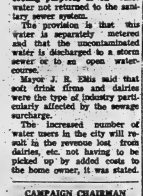
The letter maintains that the increase will fall most heavily on those who can least afford it—on young couples with children just starting out, and on old people.

The suggestion that older people can duck the premiums by declaring themselves indigent is, according to the letter, morally and socially unacceptable. The letter calls on Premier Robarts to review the Commission's decision.

The Labor Council took no formal action on the letter.

Ronald Jordan, 12, can justly be proud of the 14 badges he wears on the left sleeve of his Cub sweater. With the guidance of Akela Miss Marian Gelthorpe, at the 8th Belleville Cub Pack, Ron has earned the highest number of badges possible in Cub work; the last of which was presented to him at the recent Father and Son banquet held at Queen Mary School. Ron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jordan, 154 University Street.

Light Industry Owners Get Break on Rates



Owners of light industry which use large amounts of water for products and cooling purposes in the future will not be assessed the commercial sewage surcharge on water rates.

Council yesterday passed a resolution that the surcharge not apply to water used for cooling purposes or on whether water not returned to the sanitary sewer system.

The provision is that this water is separately metered and that the uncontaminated water is discharged to a storm sewer or to an open water course.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said that soft drink firms and dairies were the type of industry particularly affected by the sewage surcharge.

The increased number of water users in the city will result in the revenue lost from dairies, etc. not having to be picked up by added costs to the home owner, it was stated.

Two Vehicles Nearly Hit by Passing Train

It was a startling second of insecurity for two automobile drivers at a Belleville level-crossing last night.

It happened at the CPR tracks crossing Dundas Street East near the Bakelite plant, where, police say, a car driven by Arthur Ross Lusk, 196 Pine Street, knocked off an automobile owned by Alberto Pavan, of Downview.

Pavan had stopped for a passing freight train.

His car was pushed toward the tracks while Lusk's vehicle, because of the angled crossing, swerved even nearer the moving freight.

No one was injured, but total damage was estimated at $300.

Error in Script Annoys Local Labor Council

Belleville and District Labor Council was disturbed.

The bone of contention is a program called "Employment Directory" carried as a public service for the National Employment Service, by Radio Station CJBQ twice daily. The Labor Council maintains that at least one of these broadcasts carried a request for carpenters with a specification that they be non-union carpenters. The labor council objects to the specification "non - union" sparks flew first at a labor council executive meeting March 16.

Support to the objection has come in a letter from Thomas R. Ward, director of the Department of Provincial Federations and Labor Councils of the Canadian Labor Congress. Mr. Ward's letter, read at a general meeting of the Labor Council at the Club Cesare last night, asks for proof of the offense. The letter promises "strong remedial action".

On motion by Cecil Keller, seconded by Rexford Brough of Picton, the council will write the local N.E.S. office demanding an explanation. On suggestions by Mr. Keller, executive Secretary Nokes of Peterborough, the council will approach the radio station, informally, and ask closure co-operation in determining responsibility for the alleged incident.

Cecil Hiuser, manager of the local N. E. S. office, said this morning that he had already been contacted on the matter, by the carpenters' union. He said the specification "non-union" had been included by error in the script of the broadcast.

Officer Not Required to Give Name

A motorist whose automobile dislocated hydro and telecommunications circuits after striking a pole at a Belleville level-crossing early Saturday, today was fined $125 for impaired driving.

William Fraser McEwen, of Richmond Hill, pleaded guilty to the charge before Magistrate T. Y. Wills then asked the identity of a man police said witnessed the accident.

The question followed testimony by detective sergeant Harold Reid who said that McEwen was not with his car when police arrived at the CPR East Dundas Street crossing.

However, said the sergeant, after officers secured information from someone at the scene, McEwan was picked up at nearby Bayview School.

When the accused queried the name of the person, the detective replied: "I don't think I have to tell him that."

The magistrate concurred, adding: "As far as your information goes somebody did witness the accident."

Juvenile 'A' Champions Welcomed by Town, Council

TRENTON — The Trenton Legion Juvenile "A's" came home from St. Thomas in style yesterday after Sunday's winning of the provincial Juvenile hockey crown in the fifth and deciding game in a series against St. Thomas.

A cavalcade, led by Mayor James MacDonald and members of town council, and which included two fire engines and Fire Chief Cecil Ellis' car, with sirens screaming, and cars driven by almost every important businessman in town, proceeded from the Quinte Machine and Repair plant on the Frankford Road, down the main town streets and across the river to the Community Gardens.

As the triumphal parade was held in the noon hour, hundreds of school children and their elders from shops, offices and factories lined the streets to give the boys a hand.

The hockey players, 18 years and under, with Terry Hotchkiss, team captain; Jack Bonn, manager, and Victor Burtt, Legion representative, were transferred from a through bus on Highway 401, to a Rathbun bus, and arrived at Quinte Machine around 12.15 p.m., just as the welcoming parade was forming up. A police escort was provided and Ken Wannamaker, complete with fancy uniform and a false nose, and riding a "put-putt" motorcycle, provided "special" police protection. The conquering heroes rode in the parade atop the aerial ladder truck.

Women Attend Inter-Club Meet at Napanee

TRENTON — On Saturday, Mrs. Doris Webb, president, Mrs. Violet Kennedy, vice-president, Mrs. Nola Davis and Mrs. Helen Cotterjohn, all members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, attended an inter-club B. & P. banquet, in the Superior Restaurant in Napanee, at which the members of the Napanee club were hostesses. Around 50 members from Napanee, Kingston and Belleville were in attendance.

Guest speaker at the event was Miss Hilda Stagg of the Kingston club, who told the ladies present of her recent trip to Ghana, and showed colored slides of the emerging African nation. Ghana is "going ahead in a rather habhazard fashion, said Miss Stagg, pointing out that while there are magnificent colleges in the country, there is a lack of teachers and of students who have reached the university stage.

Mrs. Mary Finch, president of the Napanee club, had a special word of welcome for the Trenton members and Mrs. Webb thanked her on behalf of herself and her fellow members.

He said Richardson had given him to New York to see Paul Hall, SIU of North America president, in August, when the boating took place. He changed the date later in the testimony to the end of September.

Anne de Bellefeuille, former SIU bookkeeper, took issue with Mr. Sheehan's testimony that she had made out the $1,000 cheque for Casper, saying she did not work for the union at the time. Chartered accountant George Lindell identified the cheque as one he could not find any $1,000 cheque made out to Casper in 1957 when he went through the files after the SIU hired him in 1962.

Don Swait, SIU secretary-treasurer since 1961, produced 24 SIU cheques of $1,000 each made out to Banks in 1958, 1957 and 1956. He could find none made out to Casper but said he had no personal knowledge of the events in 1957.

Investment Problem

Premier John Roberts has given every indication of favoring a provincial pension plan over the federal scheme.

However, he says that if Ontario establishes its own pension plan it will not necessarily follow the pattern of the Quebec scheme.

"I'm certainly not going to get into competition with Quebec if Quebec puts money into risk capital for developing industry," he says.

We applaud that decision. Under Ontario's circumstances, we believe it is the right one. That does not necessarily mean that Premier Lesage, who is likely to take a contrary course in Quebec, is wrong. As we pointed out the other day, the situations in the two provinces are not analagous.

But if the money from an Ontario-funded pension plan is not invested as risk capital, then it must be invested in some other manner. It cannot be left idle. Not only would that be depriving contributors to the plan of their proper reward, but it would be inviting economic disaster. One could not withdraw such a large amount of money from the economic bloodstream of the province without danger of anemia.

How, then, is the money to be invested? Mr. Roberts says that the fund, which could amount to as much as three billion in ten years, could be used for loans to municipalities at low interest rates.

Municipalities would like those low interest rates. But would prospective pensioners? If they are going to be forced to save for their old age, should the province also force them to accept less than the going rate of interest on these savings? In effect they would be compelled, under the Roberts plan, to provide cheap money for various municipal projects. This would be a form of taxation which would bear no direct relationship to the benefits which these prospective pensioners would derive from these projects. There would be no guarantee that the monies borrowed by municipalities at low interest would be distributed in proportion to the pension contributions received from the same area. Or, alternatively, if there were some provision for such proportionate loans, there would be no guarantee that the low-interest loans would go to the municipalities most in need of them. It would be impossible to meet both conditions.

Somewhat the same difficulty would arise under the federal pension plan, under which a proportion of the contributions would be available for use by the provinces. But provincial projects, in the main, are likely to benefit a wider segment of the population.

The only kind of pension plan where this problem would not arise would be a plan which was not "funded," but in which a pay-as-you-go policy was followed, with today's contributions paying today's pensioners.

That was the sort of plan the Federal Government first proposed. It was later amended, presumably to meet pressures for a "pot" from which provincial governments could draw to finance necessary projects.

It is by no means certain that the amendment was wise. It may well be that in this case first thoughts were best.

Just 30 to 50 A-Bombs

Two U.S. newspapermen have published interviews allegedly given by General Douglas MacArthur ten years ago—and withheld from publication until after his death.

Amongst the things MacArthur is alleged to have said is that he was convinced his communications with Washington were being shown by the state department to the British, who in turn were relaying them to the Chinese Reds.

He is also said to have made a number of uncomplimentary remarks about an assortment of U.S. generals and politicians.

Most of the fuss about these interviews has centred on these remarks.

Scant attention has been paid to his alleged plan to win the Korean war. This involved the use of atomic bombs to destroy Red Chinese bases and radioactive cobalt to seal off Korea from China.

How many atomic bombs?

Oh, just thirty to fifty.

Fifteen to 25 times the force which laid waste Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Of course the death toll might have been smaller than in Japan.

But does anybody suppose that, after 30 or 50 atomic bombs, any white man could have safely shown his face in Asia for a generation?

In their literary prepartions so many of the students seem to have gone straight from Enid Blyton to "Lolita."—Professor Ian Watt of the University of East Anglia.

Quebec - - Prima Donna, or Bad-Tempered Problem Child?

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Seems an uncommon amount of political dust is flying over the troubles Prime Minister Pearson and the Federal Government are having with Quebec Premier Lesage and the provincial administration.

So what else is new?

Ask Parliamentary old-timers like Senator Tom Crerar and Senator C. G. "Chubby" Power.

Both are Liberals who served in Mackenzie King cabinets. Both are ageing in the public service, Crerar's seniority of nearly 50 years — alright, to be strictly accurate, 47 years — on Parliament Hill.

Ask either of these Parliamentary deans and chances are they'll ask you to return; just when hasn't there been grave stress and strain between Ottawa and Quebec City?

There have even been times when the situation was a whole lot more explosive than it is right now — like in the years of the First Great War, when there was bitter fighting in the streets of Quebec in the conscription riots.

"BEEF-BRAIN" THEN, TOO:

French Canada was "different" in those days also. It wanted to "opt out" of the war effort, with Bourassa as the province violently arguing with fists and even guns that Quebec was "a nation entirely independent" from the other provinces and shouldn't be involved in something it considered exclusively English Canada's business.

The same situation arose, although with less violence, in World War II, and English Canada again was unwilling to accommodate French Canada on the explosive issue of compulsory military service.

But those were special situations, you say, restricted to the war years.

That is so, of course.

But English and French Canada have been constantly quarreling over who's - going - to-take - what from the Taxpayers through the years.

And Premier Lesage has yet to actually walk out physically on the Federal and other Provincial Governments at a tax conference.

And Prime Minister Pearson still hasn't gone, hat in hand, down to Montreal to sue for peace.

Both those things happened before.

These tax conferences have been going on with regularity the late '40s when the provinces opened the still - continuing negotiations with the Federal Government for surrender of some of the taxing powers they gave up in the emergency of the war years.

The late Premier Maurice Duplessis — a much harder nut than Jean Lesage — walked out on both Prime Ministers Mackenzie King and, later, Louis St. Laurent.

PEACE CONFERENCE:

On one occasion he walk-outs, Le Grand Maurice stayed out long enough to compel country old - "Uncle" Louis St. Laurent to make a peace pilgrimage to Quebec.

Each time Duplessis took his walk, it broke up the conference, and there was angry talk about Quebec's intransigence.

He had an air about him, and when he picked up his hard stick hat and shrugged into his black coat with the velvet collar, he looked more like he was walking out of Confederation.

Then came the day that omissaries from Quebec City let it be known on Parliament Hill that if the province withdrew from the conference to Montreal, the premier would deign to confer with him at a secret rendezvous, the time and place of which, of course, he himself would designate.

So off went Mr. St. Laurent, by special train, to unsuccessfully try shaking off the eavesdowing reporters and meet the Mighty Maurice in the privacy of a telephone booth while guarded by the premier's own special Provincial Police bodyguard.

And when the conference was over, in grand Premier held his press conference while the press lounged around, cooled, even humbly by and listened to what Quebec had imperiously laid down in the line of ultimatums, ukases, decrees, proclamations and assorted demands.

Then kindly old "Uncle Louis" returned in his special train to Parliament Hill, and Confederation continued crawling and squeaking along pretty much in the same way with Quebec as ever, playing the prima donna — or is it the bad-tempered brat, kicking and screaming and biting the hand that feeds it?

Cuba Embargo Will Not Work

Christian Science Monitor

The dilemma of the United States' economic embargo against Cuba is an especially embarrassing one for Americans. To them it is a good idea that stubbornly refuses to work. They feel it is greatly needed to discourage the spread of Castro communism in the hemisphere, yet they cannot even persuade their cities British allies to support it, let alone enforce it. Instead they have been unable to out-maneuver Mr. Khrushchev, who is bent on breaking the quarantine.

There are all the ingredients of American political frustration in this picture. The United States carries the prime responsibility for blocking the spread of any kind of communism in the Americas. It is laboring to develop joint — it's a possibility among the nations of the hemisphere through the OAS. This would be impossible if the United States used military weapons to invade Cuba. But the Latin Americans are willing to use economic pressure. This is how the dictatorship of Trujillo was brought down by joint action.

But a lot of bullshitarians and liberals forget, the concept of economic pressure has an honorable history in their school of thought. They hasten to approve its use against fascists. It has long been considered by most fair - minded kind of pressure when pressure has to be applied, and in the world at large, ideal supplies are made an exception for humanitarian reasons.

Yet in the case of Cuba it manifestly does not work, and shows no sign that it will be made to work. The price of sugar has boomed. The Russians are willing to do the necessary. In the face of such resources and what Cuba can produce for itself (and more), it is not possible to depress the Cuban standard of living to the point of revolt against a Communist type of police rule. Castro is making a virtue out of the inefficiency boycott, using it to rally Cubans against the United States and persuade them to accept sacrifices. And in the face of this obviously unsatisfactory situation Americans like Britain are not going to forego trade which is more vital to them than the United States realizes.

Americans can console themselves with the fact that this military quarantine fully stands. And that this, rather than economic pressure, is the key question in restraining communism, even in the case of the powerful Soviet Union. This is a second best position for the United States because it doesn't end communism inside Cuba. But it can prevent spread. And it could, in the end, make friends instead of enemies out of the Cuban people.

Adventures In Far North

Toronto Star

Since the days of the Vikings venturing into the Far North have always considered an uncertain and hazardous business. The disappearance in recent record of Arctic gains and losses is about par for the course.

In the data column must certainly be recognized the Dawson City Gold Rush Festival of 1962. Launched with great fanfare by the Diefenbaker government, it was designed to draw hordes of tourists to the Yukon to visit the ever-gay city and to attend performances in one of the old miners' dance halls and generally revive — with all modern conveniences — the "Days of '98."

But despite every publicity gimmick in the book, the tourists failed to show up, and Ottawa is now ruefully counting the cost. The government spent nearly $500,000 on the festival and now the cabinet has earmarked an additional $225,000 to recompense individuals who were persuaded to invest in the project and lost their shirts in the process. Far from helping Dawson City, the failure of the festival may well have given the town its death blow.

To add final bitterness, the musical which was put on in Dawson, "Foxy," was translated to Broadway and has become a hit. The government, however, turned down an opportunity to acquire an interest in the show, and will gain nothing from its success.

By way of contrast, there is the saga of Oakpik. This little Eskimo doll vaguely resembling an Arctic owl, was casually shown in the United States by officials of the Department of Trade and Commerce. And most at once it became one of the hottest items in the U.S. toy industry and now it promises promptly to bring the tribe which thought it up. Oakpik, by the reckoning of the pinnacle of fame — he has become the hero of a folk song.

All this is according to the tradition of northern gold rushes. The best-equipped and most prepared expeditions always seemed to perish miserably in the wilderness, while the gold was usually discovered by people who were looking for something else.

Strange Way To Give Help

Victoria Times

Premier Bennett has likened the present distribution of federal equalization payments to the case of a farmer who "spends all his money on the rocky land." He adds: "That's no way to run a farm or a country."

Mr. Bennett may be right in regard to the farm. Obviously a farmer should devote his money and labor to the portion of his land which will produce the most in return. But a country is not the same thing at all. A country is human beings, not topsoil. The federal equalization payments are designed to raise the standard of living in the less well - supplied provinces so that there shall not be too much disparity between the ways of Canadians living in different parts of the country.

Mr. Bennett then comes out with the preposterous notion that the richest parts of Canada should receive the largest payments from the federal treasury. On this basis he presumably would have channelled through a Community Chest and give it to the rich citizens instead of to the needy.

To Your Good Health

Essential Older People Drink Plenty of Liquids

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is dehydration in older persons? Is it because they don't drink enough water? — Mrs. M. R.

Yes, essentially.

The tongue and skin become dry. Urine output is decreased. Nitrogen in the blood increases, which is a sign that waste products are not being removed by the kidneys.

The drinking of water is pretty much a habit — until we get downright thirsty. Some people wait until they are thirsty; others drink water regularly, and this is a good thing. You don't wait for a wheel to squeak before you oil it, and you shouldn't wait until you are parched before you drink some water.

For whatever reason, some old people get into the habit of drinking very little liquid, just sips of them now and then, about eating what they really need.

Sometimes, I suspect, an older person just feels that it is too much effort to go get a glass of water. Or arthritis or some such ailment makes it difficult to move about.

Another question, some of them, from much the same reason, try to drink very little because it is an added matter of effort to go to the bathroom.

If you have an older person in your home, be aware of these problems. A vacuum bottle or pitcher of cold water can be placed beside the bed, or beside an older's favorite chair during the day.

Also use a few little tricks like establishing the idea of a cup of tea in the afternoon, a midmorning glass of juice, perhaps a soft drink early in the evening. Because liquid is necessary from the intake of food, digestion is reached it is time to look for further troubles, stemming from this lack of water getting through the system, particularly the kidneys. Kidneys don't function well when they don't get enough liquid, along with other organs, when impurities begin to pile up instead of being washed away.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has been advised to have a portion of his prostate removed to prevent more serious trouble later. Will this end all sexual activity? Some friends say yes, others say no.

He has also been having a bout with kidney stones. Is this the same thing? Is it unusual for stones to cause bleeding? The doctor seems unconcerned, but we fear cancer, since he has had cystoscopic examinations. — J. C.

Some people insist that a prostate operation has halted sexual activity for them, but this is not true. For them, psychology is the cause. In most cases sexual activity afterward is about the same as before. It is natural that worry and the expectation of trouble is the real cause of sexual vigor declines afterward.

The kidney stones are basically a separate matter. They can cause bleeding but don't necessarily do so. Watchfulness (by cystoscopy) is the safe course.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the cause and cure (or removal) of scrotal "liver Spots." Can I cover them up with cosmetics? — Mrs. S. B.

"Liver spots" as you obviously surmise, have nothing to do with the liver. Nearly all of us have a scattering of brownish spots as we grow older.

These are merely accumulations of pigment or coloring matter in the skin. You can either ignore them or cover them with cosmetics.

'Wonderful' Husbands Do Not Exist

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A recent paragraph of mine, in which I suggested that a woman who gratuitously tells strangers how wonderful her husband is may be preparing to betray or abandon the marriage, has drawn a number of acid comments from feminine readers, the kindest of which accused me of being soft in the head.

At the same time, however, the paragraph also brought my way a clipping sent by a doctor from an issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, which clinically tends to confirm my viewpoint.

"If a woman patient repeatedly tells you during history-taking that 'my husband is just wonderful, doctor' — especially when you haven't asked about problems in that area — you're dealing with a neurotic," observed Dr. Leonard L. Lovshin of the Cleveland Clinic, at a medical meeting. "I figure that the marriage in such a case is likely to be on the rocks in a year or so."

One of the reasons for his conclusion, Dr. Lovshin explained, was "because I'm a husband, and most of my friends and associates are husbands, and I don't know of a 'wonderful' one in the lot. If your patient will admit to herself that she's married to a typically inconsiderate man, the chances are that she's normal."

Actually, my own aperçu into this delicate matter was prompted by an old friend in New York, with whom I was lunching one day. A professional comedian, who has catered incessantly from one woman to another in the last 30 years, he is talking about his prodigious number of affairs.

"When I meet a married woman," he said, "I can almost immediately tell if she is going to be interested in extra-marital adventure. But how does she know? The first thing she does is give me an unsolicited testimonial about her husband — how good he is, how much in love they are, how fine and stable marriage it is.

"This is the absolute psychological tip-off," he continued. "A woman who really is happily married, and does care for her husband, simply doesn't have to mention it. She doesn't have to — you can see it in the way she behaves. Her vigor declines afterward.

"It's about the lady protesting too much was the truest one he ever made.

I don't want to belabor the point — it isn't really that important — but here is a rather dramatic example of what Pliegel has called "topsy - turvy ethics" as presented to children but more concealed in adults. For example, when a little girl insists that such - and - such a certain boy, and goes on to relate how mean and offensive he is to her, it is usually a sign that she is moderately attracted to him. Sometimes, the only way we can find to express a truth is by its opposite.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices of active speculative issues were generally easier although volume remained over the 2,000,000 - share mark this morning in trading on the stock market today.

PCE Explorations fell four cents to 48 cents, Farwest four cents to 24 cents, Cam Mines two cents to 68 cents and Bunker Hill nine cents to 56 cents. Convest Exploration was ahead 25 cents to $4.85.

Industrials were mixed.

MacMillan-Bloedel rose ¼ to a high of 30 and other Lake Paper ¼.

Steels were mixed to higher. Dominion Foundries and Steel rising ¼ and Algoma ¼.

Geco Mines and Noranda both dipped ¼ and Denison ⅛ while Falconbridge advanced ¼ among senior base metals.

On index, the Exchange index moved ahead .02 to 139.70, industrials .39 to 168.32, western oils .23 to 86.26, base metals were off .29 to 67.02 and golds .39 to 130.32. Volume at 11 a.m. was 2,264,000 shares compared with 4,530,000 at the same time Monday.

The market volume eased off Monday with final turnover reaching 10,790,000 shares, down from the 12,436,000 shares traded Friday.

Floor traders were going wild as the volume at 11 a.m. hit 4,500,000 shares—highest mark so figure was 3,934,000 shares in April 5, 1956. The ticker was running 15 minutes late at that point, but turnover eased to a relative trickle by 1 p.m.

PCE Exploration, the speculative leader for the past few days, remained out front with a gain of five cents to 87 cents on 1,179,981 shares. Bunker Hill was up four cents to 61 cents and Consolidated Sannorm three cents to 18 cents.

Cam Mines declined 11 cents to 40 cents and Farwest nine cents to 28 cents on profit-taking.

The speculative copper boom started just over a week ago on rumors of a major copper strike by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. in the Timmins area.

RESULTS "INCONCLUSIVE"

However, a spokesman for Texas Gulf said drilling near Timmins has been inconclusive to date.

"The work done to date has not been sufficient to reach definite conclusions and any statement as to size and grade of ore would be premature and possibly misleading," the spokesman said.

Industrials moved ahead with papers and automotive issues pacing the market. MacMillan-Bloedel rose one point to 29¾ and Great Lakes Paper ⅛ to 23⅜ among the former, while Chrysler advanced 3¼ to 32¾, Ford U.S. 1⅛ to 60 and Ford Canada ½ to 130 among the latter.

The base metal index was off fractionally, but major producers were generally ahead on the day. International Nickel gained ⅛ to 83⅝ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Noranda and Rio Algom ¼ each. Brunswick Mining and Smelting rose ⅛ to 10½ among junior metals.

The exchange index advanced .07 to 139.84, industrials .53 to 149.27, golds .52 to 130.81, western oils .36 to 88.08 and base metals declined .11 to 67.30.

FIESTA ARRIVES

NEW YORK (AP)—Michelangelo's Pieta, one of the most perfect marble manifestations of all time, arrived Monday aboard the liner Cristoforo Colombo en route to the New York World's Fair.

TWO CLASSES OF SQUARE DANCERS celebrated their graduation last night with a dance at Quinte Secondary School. Thirty-six single dancers graduated from the "Beau Knots" class taught by Robert Williamson of Belleville, and about 30 married couples graduated in a class taught by Norman Wilcox of Belleville, to form their own club, "Hits and Mrs." Members of three other Quinte Twirlers Square Dance Organization clubs and from some out-of-town cubs attended the dance, making a total turnout of more than two hundred dancers.

Tobacco, Alcoholic Drinks Taxes Raised in Budget Presented in British House

LONDON (Reuters) — Treasury Chief Reginald Maudling announced in his annual budget today that duties on tobacco and alcoholic drinks would be raised by 10 per cent.

The announcement came as he presented the House of Commons with a 1964-65 national budget containing the biggest deficit — £858,000,000 ($2,574,000,000) — in British peace-time history.

The estimated deficit in the 1963-64 budget was £587,000,000 ($1,791,000,000).

Maudling said the deficit in the 1964-65 budget included loans to nationalized industries, local authorities, and colonial governments.

Sir Winston Churchill, in a wheelchair, was present for the first occasion—his last budget day in Parliament. Churchill has announced his decision not to run for re-election in the next general elections.

Maudling said the theme of his budget was the same as last year—"expansion without inflation."

Describing the economic situation, he said trade was buoyant, business confidence was high and investment in industry was gathering pace.

The purpose of this year's budget, he said, was to achieve a smooth transition from the recent exceptional rate of growth to a long-term growth rate of four per cent.

After announcing a series of minor tax changes, mostly of a technical nature and bringing in only about £65,000,000 extra revenue, Maudling said there was something in the argument that the basis of indirect taxation in Britain would have to be widened.

But he said he did not think it possible to do it this year.

The biggest absolute increase in the 1964-65 budget was the £185,000,000 for defence, the equivalent of about nine per cent.

Maudling said all indications were the economy would continue to grow vigorously this year. The trend of exports was up, he said.

With expansion continuing, personal incomes and spending power must also be expected to go on rising strongly, he added.

KEEPS CONTROLS

Discussing the recent rise in ports, the chancellor rejected controls on import of manufactured goods. It was not practical policy, he said.

Planning up Britain's financial prospects, Maudling referred to the risk of a worsening balance - of - payments position this year. But provided this was temporary, it should cause neither alarm nor dismay, he said.

He said Britain had very large first- and second-line reserves.

"We cannot however be confident that a worsening in our overall balance will be temporary unless we keep control of our own costs and export prices," he said.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League — Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are planning a trip to Washington to visit President Kennedy's grave in Arlington National Cemetery. Is there any information you can give us concerning this visit. We are planning a group tour.

ANSWER: Tourists planning a weekend visit to the national cemetery can expect to wait in line considerably longer than the half hour required for a regular weekday. On an average weekend a visitor may expect to wait from one to two hours or more. During Cherry Blossom Festival it may be longer.

It is reported that more than 1,500,00 people have visited the "Eternal Flame" at the Kennedy grave in nearly four months since his assassination.

The AA, which has received an unusually large number of requests from its members for information about the site, says a limited number of passenger cars are permitted to enter and park inside the cemetery. Buses are not allowed to enter the grounds, but parking space is available outside both the Main Gate and Fort Myer Gate. Each is about half a mile from the Kennedy grave. While not discouraging cemetery visits by bus convoys, the cemetery and special events division, Military District of Washington, told the AA that such groups create considerable traffic and pedestrian congestion in the area. It was suggested that large groups planning a trip to the grave write in advance to the Military District of Washington indicating the date of the visit, the size of the group and the number of buses. No special dispensation is made for large student groups in Washington, military officials said.

All correspondence should be addressed to: Major General Philip C. Wehle, Commanding General, Headquarters Military District of Washington, Washington, D. C. Attention Ceremonies and Special Events.

QUESTION: When do the series start running at Cape Vincent on Wolfe Island, and how much is the fare? — Miss J. Bath.

Answer: Car and driver -1.25, passenger, 50 cents each. There are three to eight trips daily, April 1 to Dec. 20.

QUESTION: I understand that at Niagara Falls there is a helicopter sightseeing service. Could you please tell us something about it and if this is available all year round. — M. C., Belleville.

ANSWER: Niagara Helicopter Limited operates sightseeing flights from its Greater Niagara White-spot which is the busiest and most unique heliport in the world.

It is situated adjacent to the Whirlpool at the junction of Victoria Avenue and the Niagara Parkway.

This company is the area's most experienced helicopter operation, having made approximately 10,000 flights since it started in May, 1960.

Several tours are available, the most popular is the flight over the Whirlpool, Lower Rapids, up - river to the Rainbow Bridge circling the American and Horseshoe Falls.

Flight service is provided from 8 a.m. to dusk the year round. Free parking; take your camera.

QUESTION: We are making a trip to Europe this summer, and are taking the car. Can we drive in all the European countries with our Canadian driving licence or do we have to have a special permit? I also have been informed I should have my licence translated into the language of the country I will be driving in. Could you please help me in this matter? — T. T. Belleville ANSWER: If you contact your office, we would be glad to give you all the particulars pertaining to your trip. Your best plan would be to obtain an international driving permit, but you have to be a member of a recognized motor club, such as ours, with world affiliations to obtain one. This is a motorist's driving licence which is recognized internationally and is valid in over 200 countries around the world which have signed the 1949 Convention of International Road Traffic. Since Canada has not yet signed this agreement there is not a Canadian International driving permit available to the Canadian public nor is the international valid in Canada. However, through the world-wide affiliation of the Canadian Automobile Association, members of all CAA clubs across Canada may obtain an international permit through their local clubs. The international driving permit is valid from one year from date of issue. It cannot be past dated, or renewed. Cost is $5.00. Applicant must be 18 years or over. If you have a driving licence, A translation of a driver's license is good for only one country where the translation is of the same language spoken in the country you plan to visit.

Scouting activities

8th BELLEVILLE BOY SCOUTS

During the winter months the 8th Belleville Scout troop have been playing various Scout troops in the district at hockey. Starting on November 16th at 6-RD, Trenton, the troop have played every two weeks during the season, and have been as yet, undefeated.

Last winter they went with just one tie game with the 3rd Belleville, the rest were to the 8th's favor.

Matches to date were with: 17th, 14-0; 12th, 10-1; 12th, 11-9; 3rd, 10-0; 2nd, 11-0; 3rd, 8-3; 19th, 8-2; Sigma C, 14-2, with one very close game with 1st Tyendinaga troops, 8-7, all these games were won by the 8th.

A special thanks to Arnie Fowell at 6-RD for his splendid co-operation in making these games possible and the boys put all their effort into the games.

Not forgetting the poor old leaders with all their tireless efforts in arranging these games, and transporting your sons, and feeding the bills.

WINTER CAMP HELD

A winter camp was held at Pringle Lake, near Madoc, on February 15th and 16th with 13 boys in attendance. A cold weekend, but the boys did very well.

Some of the boys spent Easter weekend at the Sagnasta camp, which turned out to be a great success.

Visitors to the camp were Mrs. Ward and family, from Thomasburg, who spent Saturday at the camp, fire. Pat and Dick Ward of 1st Thomasburg troop, stayed as guests of the 8th for the whole camp.

David Ward, Rodney Lee, Ron Rappel, Bill Sweet and Richard McHugham obtained their camper's badges at the rifle range in March with some excellent shooting. Various other proficiency badges have been presented to Joe Schamerhorn, Ron Rappel, Wayne Muir, Rod Lee, Jack Shortt, Bill Arnott, Dave Muir, Kipton Hawley, Brian Fitzgerald, Rickey McHugham, Joe Scott, which included leather workers, three archers, 4 camp cooks, 2 starmen, athlete, gymnast, musician, entertainer.

To these things they have a pretty talented troop and hard workers.

NEW PATROL FORMED

A new patrol has been formed by David Muir as patrol leader, to accommodate the many 8th coming up from the 7th and 16th Cub packs which has proved a great asset to the troop and to the Cubs themselves.

David Muir and Rodney Law, who is also a troop leader, spend many tireless hours with their Cub patrol in teaching them their tenderfoot, etc. They have chosen the Raven patrol, and are going great guns in the patrol competitions.

Their next ball game will be held on April 16th at 2 p.m. We would like to see every dad at least once.

A good camping summer is in the planning for the troop, and possibly a ball team, if we get the support needed.

NEED ASSISTANCE

The Cub leader badly needs assistance and also help. Have you got a spare hour to help him? He has 30 boys who are listed to get about 15 of them, but without help it is pretty disappointing for the boys.

The 8th thanks every Scout, Cub and leaders the very best in Scouting for the future. We can, with just a little co-operation from Belleville be the best Scouting district from here to Timbuctoo. How about it, fellows?

The District Committee for all Associations held a meeting at Mrs. J. Black's, on April 9, final arrangements were made for the public supper at the Consecrate - United Church on Tuesday, May 12th, at 6.30 p.m.

Scout shirts and hats are badly needed and Cub sweaters and caps also. If any one has any used uniforms please contact Mrs. L. Reynolds, WO 2-2327.

It also was announced that 1st Belleville was having a bridge and euchre at St. Thomas' parish house on Tuesday, April 21.

ETNA ERUPTS

CATANIA, Sicily (AP)—Thunderous explosions inside Mount Etna's main crater sent molten rocks 300 feet into the air Monday night and showered hot sand and ash on communities on the lower slopes of the volcano. There were no reports of any immediate danger to the population.

manager who he said had put a great deal of work into the budget preparations.

"It is fortunate that we have a dedicated staff at city hall," he said.

Continuing, Mayor Ellis said that the auditor's report for 1963 contained no criticism whatever, while the $200 surplus showed how close department kept to their respective budgets.

He said that the auditors' report as well as the year's budget could be examined by ratepayers at any time at city hall.

WHALEN OBJECTS

Objection to the proposed budget was voiced however by Alderman Don Whalen who said that the substantial grant increases given by the provincial government should open the way for a show of reduction . . . not merely hold the line.

He objected to the industrial commissioner's budget of $19,000 for what he said amounted to "another seven months."

Neither could he see the reason for an amount of $25,000 for "miscellaneous" which he said would not be used until 1967 and then was dependent on the housing development of the area in question.

Alderman Ross Bailey defended the proposed budget, noting that while provincial grants for education had been increased, the extra money had not seen fit to come in with reduced budgets.

CITY SERVICES

He said council could take $100,000 out of the public works budget but that the residents wanted the services and were willing to pay for them.

Alderman Douglas Boyle felt the $25,000 site cost for the industrial park should be debentured instead of paying the amount out of current revenue.

Alderman Enos David believed, however, that more consideration should be given debenture costs. "Soon our debenture debt charges will be more than our budget—when I was a few years ago," he said.

Alderman Frank Murray did not feel that council should try to cut the tax rate merely because of increased education grants.

"Grants mean that we can do more for the people. When we have the opportunity to do things done, we should do so," he said.

He defended the $19,000 industrial commission budget, saying that money was needed to acquire new industry.

MUCH TO BE DONE

Alderman Jack Williams urged council not to be overly sighted in its budget approach. He pointed out that some years ago the tax rate was lowered and necessary work neglected. He said it was recommended.

BUDGET BREAKDOWN

Of total estimates expenditures of $853,354, the cost for protection to persons and property, $290,816; protections to persons and property, $847,704; public works, $332,000; education and waste removal, $178,100; conservation of health, $60,896; social welfare, $440,625, education, $1,238,815; recreation and community services, $290,950, and debt charges and special items, $987,228.

Fire protection this year will cost an estimated $256,502, an increase of about $34,000 over last year. Of the increase about $11,000 is due to salary adjustments, and the balance for the purchase of new equipment, including a car and pumper.

The police department will cost $291,251 an increase of about $18,500. Salary adjustments account for $12,381 of the increase, the balance being due to improvements to the radio system and adjustments to staff benefits and workmen's compensation.

CUBAN COINS SHORT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban Economists Association in exile said Tuesday that virtually all coins have disappeared from circulation in Cuba. Alvaro Dias, president of the association, said the Cuban government is getting 20,000,000 pesos worth of coins of lighter metal to replace those withdrawn.

superior relatively as it was a few years ago. In other words, the gap is narrowing. . . .

"The gap has narrowed, and I do not think it was necessary to let it narrow, at least to the extent it has, because we dropped off on our testing program. If we had had a more aggressive testing program, I think we could be farther ahead of the Russians in atomic weapons than we now are. So it was inevitable that Russia would get into the atomic business, yes, but it was not inevitable that they would close the gap as much as they did."

Lemay said he's in the air force have always been in favor of developing a large weapon." I think we should develop it. WHAT ABOUT BAN?

Representative George H. Mahon (D-Tex.), subcommittee chairman, said "this is the first part of a two-part hearing stage, is it not, in view of the test ban treaty?"

"I believe we should go ahead and develop it," Lemay replied.

Lemay did not say in the continued testimony whether he thought the big bomb would have to be tested in violation of the limited ban against nuclear weapons tests in space, in the atmosphere and under water.

Before the test ban treaty was signed, Russia exploded a 50-megaton bomb and said it could produce a 100-megaton bomb. The biggest U.S. nuclear weapon is believed to have a 20-megaton warhead.

The nod for best song went to Sammy Cahn and James Van Heusen for Call Me Irresponsible, sung by Jackie Gleason in the film "Papa's Delicate Condition." Van Heusen claimed the Oscar, saying "Sammy just didn't feel like showing up." Cahn's wife divorced him Monday.

Miss Neal, a slender big-eyed blonde, is in England awaiting the birth of her fourth child. She is married to writer Ronald Millar. Born to Hollywood in the 1950s from Broadway, made a few films, then returned. Some said she was because producers felt she didn't appear sexy enough.

Douglas was one of Hollywood's top leading men in the 30s. In recent years he has devoted more time to television and the stage than to films.

televised, that unless members are warming the green leather seats in the House of Commons they are not performing their functions as members of Parliament. I do not agree that this is the sole function of a member. . . ."

SENATORS ANNOYED

While the Commons was discussing its photogenic qualities, annoyed senators were looking at some of its other qualities.

No move, declared some desk-banging senators, would they agree to waive the rules of their chamber for the purpose of whipping through legislation to please the Commons.

This blast of anger from the upper chamber grew from the April 3 stalling of a supplementary estimates bill by Senator M. Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario), who, along with several other senators, warned then that they would not continue to give unanimous consent to waiving the rules so such bills could go through first, second and third readings in one sitting.

Another bill of supplementary estimates came before the Senate Monday—the Senate was called especially for it—and although Senator J. J. Connolly, government leader, didn't ask for all readings in one day, Senator O'Leary said this was clearly the burden of his argument.

Because the bill was part of the same supplementary estimates that had been discussed earlier, said Senator O'Leary, he would not oppose its passage. But never again. And he called on other senators to state their views if they felt the same way.

Senators from both sides of the chamber did, serving notice that they intend to take their own time in examining legislation in the future.

Beatles Wrote Song Which Topples Them

LONDON (AP) — The Beatles were knocked off the top of the British hit parade today, toppled by a song they gave away.

The new pop idols are 19-year-old Peter Asher and 18-year-old Gordon Waller, both members of a folk-song group. Their hit is World Without Love, written by Beatles Paul McCartney and John Lennon.

Peter, whose sister, actress Jane Asher, is a frequent companion of Beatle McCartney, explained how he and Gordon got the song:

"Jane invited all the Beatles to our house after she first met Paul. John and Paul started World Without Love one evening and gave it to us for our first record.

"Song a Week would say they're crazy. But somehow I don't think the song is quite their style."

Manager Got Rid of Bandit At Cheap Price

TORONTO (CP)—The manager of a bank who was threatened with death by a holdup man Monday told police he got rid of the bandit at a discount price.

Wilfred B. Burbidge, 43, manager of a bank on Nova Scotia branch in the north end of the city, said he gave the man $1,700 instead of a requested $15,000.

He said a man with one hand entered his bank at 11:30 a.m. and handed him a two-page note which said he would kill Burbidge unless he got the money right away.

While the bandit stood at the office door Burbidge took the note and a bag to teller Christine Young. He put $1,700 in the bag. The manager handed the bag to the man, who fled on foot.

Woman Held In Possession Of $10,000

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — Vancouver woman has been charged with possession of stolen currency following recovery of $10,000 which police said they believed is part of $28,000 stolen from a National Employment Service office in Vancouver March 26.

Mrs. Gordon Lyons was arrested at the coastal pulp and paper town 60 miles northwest of Vancouver. She was remanded to April 21 when she appeared in magistrate's court.

Earlier this month police seized $5,000 believed to have been from the same robbery staged by an armed man.

Mr. and Mrs. Denton G. Burkitt are pictured cutting the cake following their recent marriage in Springbrook United Church. The bride is the former Marion Elizabeth Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Matthews of Bonarlaw. The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Burkitt of Springbrook.

BURKITT — MATTHEWS

BONARLAW — Baskets of mixed gladioli and mums formed a pretty background setting in Springbrook United Church, recently, when Marion Elizabeth Matthews of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Matthews, Bonarlaw was united in marriage to Denton Garland Burkitt of Oshawa, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Burkitt, Springbrook. The Rev. H. E. Beare, assisted by Mr. H. Pilton officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. George Williams of Springbrook, who accompanied the soloist, Miss Linda Weldman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of white velvet and carried a bouquet of white carnations centred with a solitaire maeve orchid.

Miss Alice Matthews as maid of honor wore a pink chiffon dress with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of pink mums. Miss Carol Rogers as bridesmaid was dressed in blue chiffon dress with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of pink mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Arthur Matthews of Bonarlaw, while the ushers were Messrs. Ross and Kenneth Matthews of Bonarlaw.

A reception following the marriage was held in the church parlor where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue crepe dress with beige accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a brown jersey dress with white accessories.

For the wedding trip to Florida the bride chose a blue knit suit with white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Burkitt will reside in Whitby.

Guests were present from Bonarlaw, Springbrook, Marmora, Madoc, Belleville, Frankford and Peterborough.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

The Social Department of The Ontario Intelligencer requests that notices of weddings be should be sent in as soon as possible after the ceremony. Wedding forms are available at this office and should be completed and returned within one week.

Spring Fabrics Most Costly Ever Employed

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—New textiles are overshadowing silhouette interest throughout the Paris fashion collections this spring.

Trends toward supple, flat-finish fabrics suitable for pleating and gathering stress the new era of softer fashions.

Spring fabrics are among the most costly ever employed.

Raw yarns for pastel tweeds were imported from Ireland and woven here under Chanel's personal supervision.

Five months, La Grande Mademoiselle, as Chanel is called here, kept samples of the multi-colored yarns within handreach. Day and night, she kept idly twisting different colored strands together until she finally obtained the desired effects.

The result is fabrics in which shades of pink, blue, yellow and verdant greens merge with the innate harmony of a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Another dominant trend this season is the extensive use of waterproofed fabrics. Every designer featured rainwear in some individual manner.

Even the most delicate materials, such as barathea, silk ottoman, and crepe now are both stain and water repellent. Prices have increased, but so have the fabrics' practical properties.

RAINDRESS APPEARS

Balenciaga stressed cavalry twill, gabardine and cotton poplin in a series of raincoats comprising a flared skirt, long jacket, and matching sou'wester hat.

The "raindress" also made its first appearance in many collections. Usually cut on sober lines, it was featured in brightly colored, lightweight wool gabardine. Rain ponchos looked newer than the classic raincoat when worn in a dressier fabric like printed taffeta.

Fabric contrasts were dominant. Pink Lanvin put a sporty jacket in chevron or herringbone woollen fabric with a dark grey or solid toned flannel skirt.

The effect, combined with white shirtwaists and a dark red carnation clipped to one revere, is neat and jaunty. Castillo featured suits in two tones of the same shade. The skirt is one tone darker than the accompanying jacket.

Couple Honored With Shower

Zed SIDNEY — Mrs. Paul Reid, assisted by Mrs. Ben McMurter were co-hostesses at a shower held on Friday evening in honor of Richard Clement, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clement of the 2nd of Sidney, and Joan Sharpe, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Sharpe of Campbellford, who were married on March 23 in Campbellford United Church. There were between 50 and 60 close neighbors and relatives as guests from Napanee, Odessa, Marmora, Belleville, Trenton and Campbellford.

The shower was held in Harder's school.

Euchre was played in the early part of the evening.

Mrs. Paul Reid read an address to Richard and Joan, wishing them much happiness and a long life together.

They received many beautiful gifts, for which the happy couple thanked all very warmly. A lovely lunch was provided by Mrs. Reid and Mrs. McMurter.

NURSING ORDER

The first religious order devoted solely to nursing is considered to be the St. Augustine nuns, organized about 1155.

Mr. and Mrs. Alistair Camelford are shown cutting the wedding cake at the reception following their marriage in Holloway Street United Church. Mrs. Camelford was formerly Inge Suykens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Suykens of Belleville. Mr. Camelford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Camelford of Belleville.

CAMELFORD — SUYKENS

Rev. C. W. Coleman was the officiating clergyman for the March wedding at Holloway St. United Church, when Inge Suykens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Suykens of Belleville, became the bride of Alistair Camelford of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Camelford.

Traditional wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. Angus McLeod. The guest pews were decorated with white satin bows, and baskets of shastas and daffodils were used to decorate the church.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a classic bouffant gown created in misty Renoir fabric with a chapel train of hand-slipped Chantilly lace. Her headpiece was made of seed pearls with a bouffant veil, and she carried a bouquet of red Sweetheart roses with white gardenias.

Mrs. Janet Suykens was the matron of honor, wearing a shrimp-colored street-length dress of rayon chiffon over taffeta with an overskirt. She wore matching shoes and headpiece and carried a bouquet of white mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Peoples of Belleville, attired in a mint green dress, and Miss Marilou Henn wearing a maize-colored dress. Both dresses were styled in identical fashion to that of the matron of honor. Both attendants carried bouquets of white mums.

The flower girls were Miss Annemiek Thymyer of Port Hope, and Miss Jane Orton of Belleville, who were dresses of white nylon over taffets, with white gloves and shoes, and carried little baskets of yellow, green and pink mums.

Mr. Glen Camelford of Oshawa was groomsman and the ushers were Keith Suykens of Ottawa, and Bob Suykens of Belleville. The ring bearer was Johnny Camelford of Sidney, B.C.

A wedding reception was held at the Four Seasons room of the Trees Motel where the bride's table was decorated with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and white candles.

The bride's mother received wearing a turquoise dress with matching jacket of linen shantung, matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a dress of dark blue taffeta covered with lace, matching accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

For a trip to Quebec City and the Eastern Townships the bride chose an aqua double knit Jersey suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Guests attended the wedding from Ottawa, Port Hope, Oshawa, Toronto, Peterborough, and Sidney, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Camelford will reside at 217 John St., Belleville.

A miscellaneous shower in honor of the bride was given at the home of Mrs. D. Eyans. Miss Sandra Peoples entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. M. Peoples. A dinner and shower were given at the El Rancho restaurant by the office staff of International Hardware prior to the wedding.

Anti-Social Father Shows Signs of Mental Illness

DEAR DORIS — I want to ask your advice about a problem which is destroying myself and my four children. My husband has no friends, no outside interests, absolutely refuses to have anything to do with any community work or with any of the neighbors. He will be most rude to them if they drop in.

DORIS CLARK

Now that our children are older I find it hard to stand and very lonely. He goes out of his way to belittle me in front of what few friends we have had. My oldest son, who is 14, tries to stay out of his way.

I was quite upset about four months ago when we had an argument and he called me a schizophrenic, but he also calls his boss this when they disagree. I think I could stand this if I could get out, but he gets so angry and shouts and yells that it is too embarrassing to face the neighbors the next day. It certainly isn't good for the children, so I simply stay home.

Should I leave him and try to raise my four children on my own? This is really worse than prison. I know he has no feelings for me. He said so right in front of the children and he also said he has a will in which the beneficiary is his mother. When my oldest son questioned him about this he said to him, "Why should I care what happens to you if I'm six feet under?" — ASHAMED.

DEAR ASHAMED — So he calls you (as well as his boss) a schizophrenic. Some people are prone to label others with the descriptions which fits their own shortcomings. Does he know what the word means?

Whether a separation from this rude, anti-social, unnatural father is the answer, or whether you might try to save your marriage, will have to be decided through discussion with a family counsellor.

DEAR DORIS — My hands and nose are constantly red. It is very embarrassing when people ask me why, and I certainly can't tell them. Is there anything I could do to get them back to normal? — RED HANDED.

DEAR RED HANDED — Hard to say — from here! It could be the soap you use. It could be an allergy. It might be a form of acne or other skin disease, and related to diet. If dishwashing is doing some of it, get waterproof gloves — for your hands; and get cream for hands and nose. Get to a skin specialist.

U.C.W. Meeting

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

The April meeting of Cannifton U.C.W. afternoon group was held in the church, with an attendance of 14.

The president welcomed all and reported that UCW allocations all over Canada had gone well over their objectives. The objective for the Bay of Quinte Conference area was $171,150 and $180,900 had been received.

Mrs. Julia Brenton, welfare and supply secretary, reminded all of the bale soon to be packed. Men's and boys' blankets were needed, soap, Christmas gifts for mothers, and for children from one to 16 years.

The ladies are planning a bus trip to Toronto to visit the Victor Home. If same can be arranged a little later.

It was decided to purchase tables for the church at an estimated cost of $300.

The devotional for the afternoon was taken by Mrs. Paul Peckham with the theme "The Making of a Christian Home" and on this she gave a most interesting talk.

Home is the oldest institution in the world and is the basic unit on which society is made. A home where God is the head, and is recognized as such, will make for a happy home for both parents and children.

Mrs. Packman closed with prayer and a poem.

Mrs. Roy Pound with Mrs Helen Brenton as commentator, showed slides of India and Pakistan.

Skill Versus Dough

by Mary Moore

Hordes of girls whose budgets will not stretch are expert cooks.

We are aching to help them so they can entertain proudly but at low cost.

Yesterday afternoon from one batch of tender pastry and one mixture of ground chuck beef we made 15 little beef turnovers and one large meat pie.

The large meat pie served a hungry family of four as the main meat dish for dinner. It would be perfect for a small meat meal. The individual beef turnovers were designed for buffet service or for a supper or lunch or late snack.

These are reputation-building items and I want you to add this recipe to your bulging hamburg file.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Pork Sausages Baked on Scalloped Potatoes; Brussels Sprouts Polonaise; Cucumber and Carrot Sticks; Peach Butter Pudding; Spice Sauce; Tea.

MEAT PIES—Large and/or Individual

1¼ lbs. ground chuck beef or lean hamburg, 2 medium carrots grated, or ¾ c shredded, 1¼ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ cup finely chopped mild onion, ¼ cup milk, ½ teaspoon sweet basil, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley or parsley flakes, pastry (see below).

Mix meat filling ingredients together in a large bowl by hand.

Make Pastry:—Three cups flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 cup shortening, ¼ cup butter, 6 tablespoons cold water. With pastry blender cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until all is mixed to peas. Divide with water, one tablespoon at a time, tossing it with fork until all the flour is dampened. (Decide now if you are going to make 1 large pie and 15 individual turnovers, or 2 large pies; or about 30 individual turnovers. I will describe what I did.) Roll out half of dough to make lower and upper crust to fit 8 x 8" pie plate. Line pie plate with 1 crust. Fill with a little more than ½ of the meat mixture. (Note: If desired a little more—about ¼ cup—milk may be added to this half of the meat filling to make it a little moister when baked.) Seal on gashed top crust very well, being sure seam edge is tight. Glaze by brushing top carefully with 1 egg beaten just enough to mix. Bake at 425 deg F. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg F. for 30 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 for the last 15 minutes. It required 45 minutes in all. Serve with mustard relish or chili sauce.

Individual Turnovers

Roll out remaining pastry to oblong 3/16" thick. Cut into about 15 squares. Put 1 heaping tablespoon (more) remaining meat mixture on each. (This next step takes patience and finesse.) Moisten edges (Moisten edges and seal, shaping them into triangles. Place on cookie sheet and prick tops with fork, brush with beaten egg and bake same as pie but don't cut open first. Bake the last 15 minute period at 300 deg—only ½ hour in all.

Freezer-wrap and freeze little turnovers for your next party.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

—BY pegg rogers

FROM THE MAIL BOX

Dear Pegg Rogers: I need a spring outfit to go with black shoes and purse. I am 36 years old, fair hair and fair complexion. Although I like to have several colors in my wardrobe, I think my best shade is a neutral color. I have worn beige for years and am tired of it. I don't like navy, so my choice is narrowed down to black and white checks. Should I buy such a coat for after five wear?

Are the pastel coats that seem so popular this spring, to be worn over colors, or do they require neutral dresses and suits? I am thinking of buying a light aqua coat to wear with a pink suit, if I cannot find a more neutral shade. This coat must be dressy, but practical as I will have to wear it at least three years.—Signed, M. H.

Dear M. H.: No wonder you are a bit confused. This is a good year to be shopping for a coat because there are so many choices in style, fabric and color.

First of all, provided the style and fabric of the black and white checked coat are not too tailored, it would make a good after-five wrap. Should you be fortunate enough to find a smooth-surfaced fabric, made in a soft-coat silhouette, it would be most versatile. However, most black and white checked coats are quite tailored in style, and the material used is often a tweed. You might try looking for such a coat among the raincoats, as often these are made of novelty fabrics.

The only difficulty with buying a black and white checked coat is that you are limited to the number of colors you can fashionably wear with this color scheme. Ideally, a black and white coat looks best when worn over a white or a black dress. There are also certain shades of red or bright rust which are complemented by black and white. But black and white combined with nothing but the beige family and most greens, blues and browns fail miserably. I'm afraid you with a definite check of this type.

The currently popular pastel colors, but great care and judgment must be used when selecting one. If you have a light pink suit, why not try a grey pink coat? It is neutral and a pretty color combination. As you say, fair, it is possible that you might feel that grey is not for you, but certain shades of grey — those with a blue base — are usually flattering to most complexions.

If you do decide on a pastel coat, I would advise against combining aqua with pink. Rather, why not repeat the pink theme of your suit in your coat? Select a darker pink and don't try to match the coat and the suit exactly as it would be almost impossible to do. Just make sure that the pinks balance each other. If your suit has more orange than red in it, look for the same tones in your coat.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Reception Held On Anniversary

STIRLING'— On Wednesday afternoon over 200 guests from Watertown, New York, Bramalea, Toronto, Barrie, Bancroft, Frankford, Belleville, Trenton and nearby points gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Morrow, River Valley Farm, Frankford Road on the occasion of the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morrow.

The lawn was resplendent with bouquets of golden roses, chrysanthemums, and carnations, all tendered a special floral gift from the members of St. John's Anglican Church.

The Lonsord couple received their guests in the living room and Mrs. Morrow wore a spotted green summer suit with a corsage of yellow pompon roses. The guests were received at the door by their grandsons Jimmy and Stanley Morrow. The Misses Helen, Ruthe, Lois and Margaret Morrow, granddaughters, contributed several vocal selections. Mrs. Harry Morrow and Mrs. Reginald Coombes were in charge of the guest book, and invited the visitors to the tea-room.

The dining table was centred with a tiered anniversary cake covered with white and gold, flanked by the candelabra and gold candles, silver vases of yellow roses and gold mums. The four granddaughters and two nieces Misses Linda Anne Morrow and Carol Morrow served refreshments assisted by Mr. William Rouse, River Valley and Mrs. Norman Brough, Bancroft. Those who poured during the afternoon and evening were Mrs. George Striker, Frankford; Mrs. M. Rose, Toronto; Mrs. M. Reynolds and Mrs. M. Brough, Bancroft; Miss Isabel Archdekin, Toronto; Mrs. Harold Morrow, Frankford; Mrs. Stanley Archdekin, Mrs. Harold Archdekin and Miss Margaret Archdekin, Brampton; Mrs. Reg. MAIL CALL

Question: I recently gave a small shower for a friend. But, instead of giving small individual presents, we decided to put our money and give her a stitched set of towels, mats and shower accessories for the bath. I bought the ensemble on my charge account, and all, except one gift, arrived. I sent a personal floral gift from the members of St. John's Anglican Church.

Question: When I get married in a couple of months I'd like to invite a small group from my office — including my employer, for whom—I've worked almost four years. Should I be married, but I've only met husband and wives at our annual Christmas party and a few at two semi-business functions. My question is: Should they be included in the invitations to both wedding and reception? How should invitations to business associates be addressed, and should they be sent to the office or to their home? — C. E. B., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Answer: Husbands and wives of business associates invited to the wedding also should be included in the invitations. They should be addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones," and mailed to each individual's home address, not to the office.

Question: When setting the table for an informal dinner, where is the napkin correctly placed? Also, if a shrimp cocktail is the first course, where is the seafood fork placed, on the right or at side? I've been told by a friend it should be placed on the left, or fork side, of the plate, but I've been unable to find illustrations in any of he magazines that actually show this arrangement. Would you please clarify? — Mrs. B. N., Columbus, Ohio.

Answer: The dinner napkin may be placed on the dinner plate or, if preferred, to the left of the forks. The seafood fork goes to the extreme right of the dinner plate, next to the knives and spoons, if any.

Question—If a hostess does not supply coasters, is it safe to assume you can put a glass down on a nearby table without damaging it? I'm always reluctant to set a glass on a table unless I know the surface is protected and there's no danger of leaving a ring. Is it necessary to ask permission first?—P. C., Philadelphia, Pa.

Answer—If the hostess were worried about her table tops, she'd automatically put coasters around. However, if she doesn't, it's still polite to ask. "May I put my glass here," just in case the lack of coasters is an oversight.

Honor Pastor On 90th Birthday

WELLINGTON — The Rev. J. U. Robins, a former minister of the Wellington United Church, celebrated his 90th birthday on Sunday, April 11. His family, Miss Marjorie Robins of Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. M. S. T. Hodson and Keith of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hodson of Montreal, all joined him in a family dinner party.

Later in the afternoon and evening Rev. Robins was "At Home" to his many friends of the district, who came to offer their best wishes and congratulations. Tea and dainty refreshments were served to the guests by Mr. Robins' family.

Among the guests were two former Wellington United Church ministers, Rev. and Mrs. Lane of Oakwood, and Rev. and Mrs. Poulter of Belleville, also the present minister, Rev. J. N. and Mrs. Truax.

PARK DALE LADIES' FELLOWSHIP

The April meeting of the Ladies' Missionary Fellowship of Park Dale Baptist Church was held at the home of Mrs. Lillian Blake.

Reports were made for a missionary rally to be held on May 7th, at which time the Ladies' Fellowship from Foxboro, Picton and Trenton will be present. Rev. Leander Robinson, president of the American Baptist World Evangelization Society will be the guest speaker at the evening service. Many curios of his trip to Peru, where he visited the Greenside family that the Ladies' group are helping to support.

One extremely interesting curio will be a violin made by an illiterate Ticuna Indian, who wasn't aware of even the name of the instrument. He simply copied it from another violin that he had had some access to. Despite his lack of knowledge regarding the proper dimensions, or the importance of selected types of wood to be used, the violin has a surprisingly true, sweet tone.

A special feature of the meeting was the quarterly Dollar Day collection for the Greenblades. The "Lives" fellowship, represented by eight ladies, spent an afternoon visiting at the County Home. This was the most rewarding and much appreciated by the inmates there.

Miss Josephine Francis, area director for Child Evangelism, gave the devotions.

A time of fellowship followed.

BISHOPS GATHER

CANTERBURY (AP)—Forty bishops from various parts of the world arrived at this old English cathedral city Tuesday for a conference called by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the church unity. They represent Anglican and other churches. The conference lasts until Friday.

U.C.W. Meetings

RYLSTONE U.C.W.

The members of Rylstone United Church Women held their April meeting in the church, on April 9th with a good attendance of members and several visitors from the surrounding churches, Springbrook and Stanwood. United church greeting and ladies from the Gospel Hall.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, vice-president was in charge of the devotional part of the meeting. She also conducted the meditation, assisted by Mrs. Jim Milne, Mrs. Jack Spencer, Mrs. Bob Spencer, Mrs. Chester Meiklejohn, Mrs. Cecil Fleck, Mrs. Ross Dickie. A generous Thanksgiving was collected by Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and Mrs. Bob Spencer.

Mrs. Ray Stewart, secretary read thank-you letters from Mrs. Lindsay Finch, Mrs. Wesley McKenzie and Mrs. Williams. An invitation from Springbrook United Church Women to attend their May and June meetings was also read.

Mrs. Harold Pitten conducted the Bible study period with Mrs. Lloyd Anderson assisting. Answers to the Missionary contest on "missions."

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ross Dickie with Mrs. Bob Spencer and Mrs. Jack Spencer as program committee.

ST. JOHN'S U.C.W.

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of Unit 8 of St. John's U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. M.S. Rutherford on Tuesday evening with 15 members present.

The president, Mrs. H. Pierce opened the meeting with a suitable poem, Mrs. Frederick Ridge assisted by Mrs. J. Rankin conducted the devotional service based on an article, "The Open Mouth" The idea which Mrs Brackenridge wished to project was that Christians should by speaking openly, portray the Christian belief.

The treasurer's report showed that $196. has been given on the allocation leaving a balance on hand of $6.20. There are 17 paid up members in the Unit. Ten calls had been made in the homes as well as three hospital calls. Mrs. C. Irwin agreed to help with the general calling of the general U.C.W. of St. John's Church

A film, "Jamaican," based on mission work in India was shown by Mrs. J. Cheynoweth with a brief recording done by Mrs. Cheynoweth.

A letter was read from Mrs. M. Pelbetham, missionary president, outlining suggestive policy for Units and also reminding the members of the Co-operative Sale to be held in May.

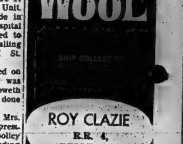
The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Pierce with Mrs. Preston Hall and Mrs. J. Begg in charge of lunch.

COLLEGE HILL

The April meeting of the afternoon unit of College Hill U.C.W. was held on Wednesday in the ladies' parlour of the church, with leader Mrs. A. Dickens in charge. After a welcome to the ladies present the business was dealt with, thank you notes read and roll call answered reporting 23 sick calls. The social convener announced two catering events for May and Mrs. Veasey rounded the assistance of the ladies in the month and the season parties for the months' children's groups.

The cook books made up of the favorite recipes of the College Hill Church ladies just arrived in time for the meeting and created considerable interest. These are most attractive and the ladies feel well rewarded for their efforts in the project.

Mesdames C. Bailey and R. Veasey in charge of devotions used as their theme "God" Creation," which pointed out how much a profusion of chrome and neon lights divert attention from the beauty of nature's flowers, moon and stars, and the sounds of motors and radio drown out the harmony of bird song and other peaceful sounds of nature.



WOMEN OF INDIA

The Bible study was conducted by Mesdames Belcour, Dickens and Neal continuing the study of India. The world of Indian women has changed more than any other land. Only a few years ago the woman was voiceless in public affairs, but now, participate actively in elections. They stand for office in the municipal elections as well as for the State Legislature. It is said there are more women in public life in India than in any other century. While in the past the greater percentage of women labor force was in agriculture, they are now turning in greater numbers to obtain college education and clerical work.

The afternoon was brought to a close with the social half hour with delicious refreshments by Mrs. D. Watson assisted by Mrs. C. C.

Home and School News

The general meeting of Glen Miller Home and School Association was held on April 9th.

After the business meeting, interesting and informative discussion was held which consisted of some distinguished visitors. Mr. Ed Hutchinson, principal of the school, presided over the panel of five: Mrs. Stas, teacher; Rev. D. F. Dunning, pastor of Stirling Pentecostal Church; Mr. S. Brougham, Scouting administrator; Mr. Aitkins, probation officer of Trenton, and two students, Judy Johnston and Michael Poirier.

The subject was "Permissiveness—its effect on the child in the family and society. Are we allowing our children too much too soon?"

Mrs. Stas opened the discussion by saying that discipline is learned as a guide for the child, however, parents should only expect from a child according to his age.

Judy Johnston noted that in olden days children were ruled by fear, and thinks that the permissiveness of today's child is taking advantage.

Mr. Brougham dealt with the Scriptures to emphasize many issues. He said: "All parents must diligently adhere to the good code of behavior to set an example for their children. As a child learns the rules disciplins gradually changes to wise permissiveness."

Michael Poirier, by using, as an example a boy who told his parents he would run away unless they let him have what he wanted, shows how often a child tests his parents to see if they will carry out needed authority.

Mr. Broughton mentioned the family as a unit could not exist in a happy state without a sense of loyalty, and that it is the duty of the parents to instill this sense of responsibility.

Mr. Atkins spoke of how important are the early years. These can be fit in a child's life and stressed the need for training and guidance to ensure that a desirable behavior pattern is developed so that the child will fit into society without frustration. The child who does not get this care may often grow up with feelings of hostility and aggression for all society. Weakness in administration of authority can lead to delinquency.

Mr. Broughton also spoke on the importance of Scouting for boys, and the hope that more people in the area would take an interest. He spoke out against the materialistic values of today as he feels the public would do more out of life by taking an interest in youth. "The boys are the hope of the future, let's help them grow in to independence with the ideals and achievements that Scouting can give them."

It was a memorable evening, but regrettable that more people did not turn out to hear these fine speakers.

The date for the Spring May-Pole Fun Fair was set, which is to be held at the Glen Miller hall, sponsored by the Glen Miller Home and School Association. All proceeds will be used for new teaching methods, books and school supplies.

W.M.C. MEETING

FRANKFORD — The April meeting of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle was held in the church on Thursday evening, April 9th, with president Mrs. E. Strome in charge. The meeting was opened with the singing of choruses and prayer led by Mrs. J. Reichert.

The president welcomed everyone and read a portion of Scriptures. The secretarial report was given by Mrs. K. Helm. A work report read paper was read by the vice-president Mrs. G. Grant. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. G. Smith. Testimonials and prayers were given.

The message of the evening was brought by Mrs. K. Wright of Wallbridge who spoke of "Treasures in Christ" and closed her message with a gospel poem. Refreshments were served and a time of fellowship enjoyed.

Christ Church W. A. Holds 'Quilters Tea'

The Afternoon Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of Christ Church held a "Quilters' Tea' in the Parish Hall recently. The women demonstrated their skill as quilters, and displayed 21 different patterns of quilts they have made over the years. A beautiful heirloom bed spread was displayed of woven wool, from the sheep raised on Mrs. Horace Wright's father's farm, and woven in Napanee a number of years ago.

The theme of the tea was carried out in the decorations of the tea table and guest tables. The tea table was covered with a beautifully embroidered quilt, with cross-stitched roses, bordered with rosebuds. The centrepiece was of whitened branches topped with silver thimbles, amongst apple blossoms, surrounded with blue and white hawbor buttons and pink rosebuds at the base, and spools of pastel shades of sewing cotton. Candles of pastel shades set in silver candelabra completed the effect.

Pouring tea from silver services were Mrs. Kenneth Kerr, Mrs. J. Fletcher, Mrs. Beeby, Sr., and Mrs. P. Harris. The tea room hostess was Mrs. R. Goddes, while a number of the W.A. members served and refreshished the tasty refreshments.

The rector's wife, Mrs. R. Fleming, and the president, Mrs. W. Ashton, greeted the guests at the door, while Mrs. G. Winter and Mrs. F. Ling acted as treasurers for the afternoon. Mrs. C. D. Fuzzen was the tea convener.

DISPLAY TABLES

The variety table was taken care of by Mrs. C. Hayes, Mrs. C. Chapman, Mrs. F. Ether, Mrs. Mitchell and Miss B. Thomas. The homecooking table was served by Mrs. R. Stewart, Mrs. Hinchey, Miss S. Berry and Mrs. L. Lennox.

Mrs. Ling had the work done by the Junior Auxiliary was shown consisting of five crib quilts, linen picture books, a variety of handicrafts; the Junior Auxiliary uniform was displayed, and literature and badges used in their activities of the year.

Women's Institutes

KENNEBECKVILLE W.I.

ALBURY — The March meeting of Kennebecksville W.I. was held March 26th at the home of Mrs. Hubert Townsend with 30 in attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. Clarence Candler with welcome and members and guests. It was noted that Mrs. John Goodrich is a patient in the Trenton hospital. A letter from Mrs. Trivers was read; also a letter from Lee Kwok Yuen in Hong Kong, the W.I.'s adopted boy, and an invitation to attend the Quinte Institute euchre at their hall in April. It was announced that the Institute's next banquet would be the home economist for Prince Edward County. The nominating committee include Mrs. Harry Adams, Mrs. Harmon Montgomery and Mrs. Kenneth Green. A blanket donated by Mrs. Earl Ondersdonk was won by Sandra Green and the proceeds from tickets amounted to $34.25. Mrs. George Rollin gave a report of the executive meeting held at Picton recently. The district annual meeting will be held May 27 in Bloomfield.

Mrs. Cecil McFaul, health convener was in charge of the program when several readings were given. Mrs. Ronald Giles gave a demonstration on how to fold serviettes. Miss Nancy Townsend concluded the program by contributing two vocal selections.

A vote of thanks was extended to the hostess, the program convener and to all who had helped with the program; also to the lunch committee.

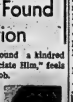
Ann Landers



Mrs. Contentment Has Found The Art of Relaxation

DEAR ANN LANDERS — At last I've found a kindred spirit. The wife who signed her letter, "I appreciate Him," feels just as I do. Please count me as another happy slob.

I hate housework and I make no secret of it. My husband is a casual person, too. In fact he encourages me to be relaxed about things. He says he got enough of the perfectionist, nitpickin' routine when he was in the Army.

So, Ann, we really live in our home and it looks it.

Last week a guest found a stale doughnut under a sofa cushion. It must have been there for a month. I was not the least bit flustered.

ANN LANDERS

My husband thought it was the funniest thing that had happened in ages.

So, Ann, please print my letter in support of relaxed, tension-free living. It's great. — MRS. CONTENTMENT.

* * *

DEAR MRS. CONTENTMENT — Happiness is a stale doughnut under the sofa cushion. Well, I've heard everything. But if that's the way it is at your house and everybody's relaxed —my congratulations and best wishes.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 17, a high school senior, and worried sick. Five months ago I became engaged to a boy I've been going steady with for two years.

Rich is a kind, sweet, wonderful person. I think I love him but as the wedding day draws near I become more unsure and frightened — almost panicky. I have just about decided I am not ready for marriage.

I always dreamed of going to work after high school, saving my money and travelling in Europe. The Orient fascinates me. I want to go there, too. My friends say I am crazy, that I shouldn't give up Rich for a foolish dream that will never come true. I'm so afraid they are right, yet I hate the thought of getting married and being tied down without having seen the world.

Am I a dreamer who is searching for glamor? Or am I sensible and realistic? — 17.

DEAR 17 — I hope you will recognize your feelings of panic and storm warnings. If Rich is the one for you, he'll be around in two or three years — after you've had a chance to grow up and fulfill some of your ambitions if he won't wait, then you're lucky to have lost him.

Too bad you can't read the stacks of pathetic mail I get from married teen-agers who feel trapped. They'd give any thing to turn the calendar back a couple of years and stand at the crossroads, right where you stand now.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A very good friend of mine came back to the office after a two-week vacation. She looks like a million dollars — after taxes. I could scarcely believe my eyes when I saw her. She lost 14 pounds!

When I asked her how she did it she said, "Easy. It's not what people eat, but the combination of foods that makes them fat. In other words, if you stick to just one food for a 12-hour period you will not put on weight — no matter how much you eat."

This makes a lot of sense to me. Does it to you? — GIRDLED AND JEALOUS.

* * *

DEAR JEALOUS — No. It's ridiculous. If that "one thing" is a vat of macaroni you won't lose weight. You'll gain.

Fad diets can be dangerous. If you are really interested in losing weight, see your doctor and get his advice.

Affable Native of Quebec Noted European Conductor

By JANET HASE

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Beaudry might be mistaken for one of those sleek gentlemen one sees on Rome's Via Veneto. He drives an Italian sports car, belongs to an exclusive order of wine tasters in France and looks like the hero of some "new wave" film.

But Beaudry is a Canadian—an affable native of Sorel, Que., and known abroad as one of Canada's most talented musical exports.

He returned to Montreal from France early this year to appear as guest conductor on CBC television's Concert Hour. His flew back to Europe in mid-February to fulfil engagements in Czechoslovakia and France. Next season his tours include Poland, Russia, Switzerland — "and of course, France."

These European tours have become a way of life for the 39-year-old conductor, although he has done his share of work with Canadian orchestras.

Beaudry insists that he's a "Canadian first," but at the mention of France, he talks with enthusiasm of a devotee about the wine, food and countryside — as well as the high quality of orchestras and operas — of that land where he spent last fall and winter.

FIRST IN RUSSIA

He returns to his beautiful Montreal home for the summers. "It's one of the things that brings me back," he says.

Beaudry has enjoyed a distinguished career abroad. He says he was the first North American conductor ever to perform in the Soviet Union.

That was in 1957. He conducted several Russian orchestras and was invited back in 1959 and 1963—the last time with the Montreal Symphony Orchestra.

To decide on a musical career in Canada is to take a risk, Beaudry feels.

"There isn't enough demand for soloists—or even conductors —to have careers in Canada alone. There still isn't enough work for musicians—even those who want careers in orchestras. Musicians cost money.

"Germany, for instance, has some of the world's best musicians who have never played outside Germany. They don't need to.

"There's another thing. The prestige and culture of a country comes from its artists. We haven't realized that in Canada yet."

CREATES SPARKLE

The ministry of culture in France, he said, is an important one, "with a budget to make the artistic life sparkle outside its borders."

The Russians also have a large budget to educate their artists and send them abroad as ambassadors.

He found his experience with opera a challenge.

"With a symphony, one deals with an orchestra; with an opera, one is both accompanist and conductor, and must direct halfway between singers and orchestra."

It involves being able to feel the singer's breathing and his personality—"plus all the unwritten traditions that go with opera in different countries."

Beaudry himself took the risk of a musical career. He was the son of a well-to-do Sorel merchant who wanted him to carry the family business.

FAMILY COOL

"My family wasn't sold on the idea of my becoming a musician—and they were right," he said. "It didn't look very secure."

He says he became interested in music when he went away to school in Montreal. "I think I was 11 at the time. We had several religious ceremonies, so one day I started playing the organ."

He went on to study the piano. After graduation from the University of Montreal, he studied at the Brussels Royal Conservatory of Music with his wife, also a musician.

He tries, he says, to organize his work "as much as possible in France."

But he feels there is a change in Canada's artistic climate. "It has developed a lot in the last few years and improves all the time."

"And I still think Montreal is the most interesting city in North America — maybe because it has the French touch."

MUSICAL EXPORT — Jacques Beaudry, a native of Sorel, Que., is known abroad as one of Canada's top musical exports. The 39-year-old conductor returns to his Montreal home each summer but does most of his work in Europe. He says he was the first North American conductor to perform in the Soviet Union, a feat he accomplished in 1957 and repeated in 1959 and 1962, the last time with the Montreal Symphony Orchestra. STORM HITS MANITOBA

WINNIPEG (CP)—An intense storm swept into southeastern Manitoba Monday, crippling highway travel, communications and power facilities. Three weeks earlier a storm dumped 12 inches of snow, bringing traffic to a virtual standstill. Monday's storm roared into the province from Minnesota with winds of 80 to 70 miles an hour and heavy wet snow.

You Tire of Hearing These If You Are Middle-Age

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a middle-aged man gets tired of hearing:

"You go first. Age before beauty."

"Take it easy going up those stairs. Remember you're not as young as you used to be."

"Isn't it a scream? He says he never heard of the Beatles. He even asked if they were something like Bing Crosby and the Rhythm Boys."

"Don't forget your muffler, dear. It may turn cold."

"No Joe, I don't think you should have any dessert. You know what the doctor told you fat could do to you at your age."

"Your last physical exam shows you are as sound as a dollar—but by that I mean a 1939 dollar."

"Here sir, take my seat on the bus. You look like you've had a hard day."

TO THE YOUNG

"I know it's in your bailiwick, Joe, but we decided to assign this particular job to one of the young men. It will be more of a challenge to him. But we would kind of like to have you keep an eye on him. Who knows? — you might even pick up a few new ideas yourself."

"Who was your last pinup girl, Joe—Mary Pickford?"

"He's learning his ABCs all over again, but this time they stand for aspirin, bicarbonate of soda and cholesterol."

"Why give the promotion to him? At his age he isn't likely to leave the firm."

"I don't care if your feet are killing you. This is a lovely party, and we're not going home until I am darn good and ready. So quit yawning, and for heaven's sake try to look alive."

STUDY HIGHWAY COURSES

OTTAWA (CP)—A conference on the standards of education students require before taking highway engineer training is to be held in Montreal Oct. 15-24, it was announced Monday. Taking part in the discussion will be representatives from the 19 Canadian universities that offer courses in highway engineering.

PROCLAMATION

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WEEK

WHEREAS this community can benefit from friendly relationships among business competitors, between our city and the surrounding area and other communities across Canada, between employer and employee.

WHEREAS this community can benefit from new industries, good business conditions, more tourists, civic improvements, more jobs, better facilities for education, health and recreation.

WHEREAS the Belleville Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization of citizens enabling us all to work together to achieve the above goals and generally to improve business, to build a better community, and to develop better citizenship in our community, our province and our country.

I, by virtue of the powers vested in me, do hereby proclaim civic support for CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WEEK being observed April 12 to 18 and call on all citizens to lend their interest, support, and co-operation in making this observance successful in every way.

MISSILES RAISED — Two of the 28 Bomarc B missiles at the North Bay, Ont., missile base are raised in their launching pads. Each missile is housed in a flat-roofed concrete and steel shelter. (CP Photo)

North Bay Bomarc Missile Base Hard to Enter and Not Much Above Ground to See

By DAL WARRINGTON

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—A clearing in the forest on a wind-swept hill a few miles from North Bay . . . a steel-mesh fence with a locked gate . . . a sign saying you must leave your vehicle and walk through a checking station.

These are the outward signs of one of the most-armed-to-the-teeth units in Canada's defence system — a $50,000,000 nuclear-equipped Bomarc missile base.

Since January this base and its at Le Macaza, Que., have mounted the first nuclear missiles delivered to Canadian forces on Canadian soil.

Armed guards check the visitor's credentials, stamp and sign a pass to be fastened to his coat. Then, officially authorized, he is allowed to pass through a turnstile into the compound.

The cluster of low buildings he sees looks unimpressive, certainly not lethal. No missiles, no rocket - launchers in sight. It could be an industrial plant or a storage depot.

Twenty-eight flat-roofed concrete and steel shelters, lined up in four rows of seven each, have a mildly sinister look, probably because you know their contents. Each houses a Bomarc-B, a 45 - foot pointed tube with a nuclear warhead capable of demolishing an attacking bomber.

PUSH-BUTTON WAR

Sqdn. Ldr. Don MacGregor, the RCAF commander, said a NORAD combat director, pushing the proper switches, could put a Bomarc into the air within 30 seconds. Speeding at more than 1,400 miles an hour, it could intercept and destroy an enemy plane 400 miles away — say north of Cochrane, Ont.— within 20 minutes.

Could we look at a Bomarc ready for use? "No," said MacGregor, "we can't raise one and let you see it. The missiles are all on alert status.

"To raise one we would have to disconnect it for safety. Then the missile would be out of service and it would take several days to get it ready again. But we can show you one in the shop."

First he showed some color film of Bomarc test launchings in Florida. MacGregor explained that the job of his crew is mainly as caretakers and maintenance men. The actual firing of Bomarcs is controlled at the northern NORAD combat centre deep in Reservoir Hill some miles to the east.

MacGregor's men guard the site and keep the Bomarcs ready. This means continual checking. Every 30 days each missile has to be taken down for inspection. Nuclear warhead and ram-jet engine are given a close check in the maintenance shops.

Bomarc bases in Canada are manned jointly by Canadian and United States airmen. Security guards are RCAF but U.S. personnel control access to the warheads and do all maintenance work on them. MacGregor called the ordnance building where this takes place "a little bit of America in Canada."

LOOKS INNOCENT

Missiles, launchers and shelters are an RCAF or joint responsibility. "I can't take you into the shelter area," he said, "but we'll go into the shop and look at the spare."

Inside the shop a 29th missile sat on a mobile cradle. Minus its jets it looked as innocent as a new cruiser displayed at a boat show.

An RCAF information sheet said Bomarcs' great advantage over manned aircraft is speed in launching and attacking. Nevertheless, under the Canada-U.S. joint - control agreement actual firing against a surprise attacker would be less than instantaneous.

First, the U.S. president must authorize the release of the warheads for use by Canadian forces. The key word is "use." The Canadian prime minister must release the weapon-carriers—in other words, the missiles.

The NORAD commander-in-chief at Colorado Springs, Colo., must relay that authority to the NORAD direction centre at North Bay. There a USAF officer would take a key from around his neck and unlock a release switch in the complicated underground control circuits. An RCAF officer would produce another key from around his neck and unlock another switch.

Only then would the Bomarcs be available for firing, provided the NORAD sector commander decided to use them.

The present commander, Air Commodore Mike Pollard, said the Bomarc is the best weapon available against low - flying planes. It could speed direct to the target even "above 70,000 feet." It offered a greater guarantee of "kill" than a fighter aircraft and could destroy itself if it missed.

"The Bomarc is a controversial weapon with people who don't know about it," said Pollard, "but it's not controversial with me."

Engineering Project May Revolutionize Captain's Role Aboard Canadian Navy Ships

TORONTO (CP)—That busy little knot of men taking orders from the captain on the traditional ship's bridge may soon be automated out of the picture in the Royal Canadian Navy.

A pair of irreverent landlubbers working at the Defence Medical Research Laboratories in the Toronto suburb of Downsview have completed a human engineering project that would revolutionize the captain's role.

Traditionally, the captain stands impassively behind the helmsman, advising him how to steer and issuing orders to a sailor for relay to the engine room.

In the bridge designed by scientists Ronald Lewis and A. V. Churchill, the captain will personally steer and handle the controls of the vessel at critical times — in close manoeuvring, docking and so on.

"Let's face it," Mr. Lewis says, "there are serious weaknesses in the traditional system.

"There have been many accidents and narrow misses due to delay in reaction to or relay of the captain's orders and also to sheer human error."

SKILLS NEEDED

Their research showed that a major improvement would be to give the old man direct control at critical times. "Surely this is the very time for the captain to bring all his skills and experience to bear in the most direct way possible," Mr. Lewis says.

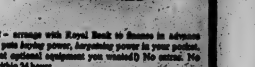
This basic change led to a complete redesigning of bridge and engine room. The new look has been approved by the navy for incorporation in future fighting ships.

A future captain will sit at a master console, by which all the necessary navigating and fighting data is funnelled. When the time comes for direct control, he will move a few steps to the driving seat opposite an instrument and communications panel like that in an aircraft.

In place of a conventional wheel, upright and spoked, there will be two small, angled wheels in tandem — one for helmsman and one for captain. The panel will probably include a small television screen, connected with a rotating camera on the mast and showing what's alongside and ahead.

REDUCE MANPOWER

The next family of Canadian navy ships will also have an engine room unmanned except for regular maintenance checks and repairs.



Probably one deck above, scientists say, will be a nerve centre that will control largely automated systems for propulsion, power generation, damage control and decontamination. Two or three men would monitor control panels and keep track of the ship's performance.

Both the researchers and the navy believe there will be substantial savings through increased efficiency. Fewer men will be needed and there will be fewer costly accidents.

Jack Wiggin, chief superintendent of the Downsview centre, says scientists Lewis and Churchill have produced the most advanced design ever in ship control and engine-room management.

Mr. Lewis, meanwhile, is going to Washington to speak with United States Navy officials. "We've taken some big strides in front and they're interested in what we've got."

Now persons employed in every walk of life are making application for a Social Insurance Number!

Your government is issuing Social Insurance Number Cards in place of the unemployment insurance numbers that most employed people have had until now. The new numbers will help government to use modern office methods for greater efficiency in handling unemployment insurance, and also other social benefits such as proposed pension plans.

For these reasons, you are invited to apply for a Social Insurance Number, even if you are not a contributor to the unemployment insurance plan. Here's what you do:—

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYEE: Your employer will give you an application form for a Social Insurance Number. You can help most by completing it promptly and accurately and returning the form to your employer. He will send it to the nearest office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

IF YOU ARE UNEMPLOYED: If you are receiving unemployment insurance benefit you will complete an application form for a Social Insurance Number when you report to the U.I.C. in person or by mail.

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYER: If you are an employer registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission—you will automatically receive application forms. You are asked to distribute them to your employees, have them completed and signed by each employee and returned promptly together, not individually, to the local office of the Commission.

If you are an employer who is not registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission—please get in touch with your local Unemployment Insurance Commission office and inform them how many employees you have. The Unemployment Insurance Commission office will then send you application forms for each of your employees to complete. When all forms have been completed, you will return them to the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Your employees' Social Insurance Number Cards will be sent to you for distribution to them.

Your government asks for your co-operation in introducing the new numbers as quickly as possible. Apply for your SOCIAL INSURANCE NUMBER NOW.

Picton Ints. Meet Lucan In Finals

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Intermediates learned today that Lucan will provide the opposition in the Ontario Hockey Association's Intermediate "B" championship series.

The finals, a best-of-five affair, will open here this Friday night at nine o'clock. Second game is also slated for Picton, on Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The series will move to Lucan for the third and possibly fourth games on the following Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25.

Lucan reached the finals by defeating Forest four games to one in the semi-finals. Picton earlier knocked off Delhi in three consecutive games in their semi-finals.

Lucan is situated 12 miles north of London.

Large crowds are expected for Friday and Saturday's games here and Picton playing coach Dave Jones hopes to have his full squad in tip-top shape for this thriller series.

Quebec Lawyer Speaks

French-Canadians in Quebec Taught to Detest English But Separatism Will Pass

PICTON (Staff) — French-Canadians in Quebec are taught to detest the English, Ivan Sabourin, Q.C., former leader of the Progressive-Conservative party in Quebec, told a joint meeting of four Picton clubs.

He added, however, that, by their education, the majority of people of Quebec are not, though given the "wrong slant" in his opinion, separatists in their sentiments.

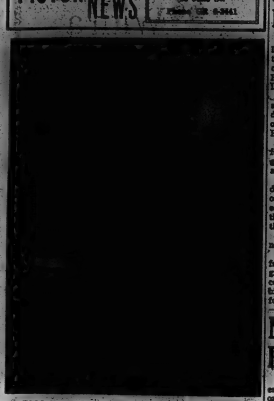
"I think it's a cycle or phase and they will grow out of it," he said, adding that he thought Liberal Premier Jean Lesage was doing "a very good job".

Bilingualism, in Mr. Sabourin's opinion, is not the remedy for the existing tension.

Mr. Sabourin addressed a dinner meeting arranged by the Picton Kiwanis Club, held at the O.E.S. Hall on Talbot Street last evening and attended by members of the Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Kinsmen Club and Business and Professional Women's Club.

Over 125 people sat down to a delicious turkey dinner prepared and served by members of the Eastern Star.

Mr. Sabourin, a Quebec lawyer, spoke on "An Intelligent Look at the Quebec Situation," after which a panel was formed to discuss and answer questions on the talk. Lt.-Col. H. W. Mulherin, Lewis Duncan and the guest speaker were Conservative party in Quebec and served by members of the Eastern Star.



Mr. Sabourin, a Quebec lawyer, spoke on "An Intelligent Look at the Quebec Situation," after which a panel was formed to discuss and answer questions on the talk. Lt.-Col. H. W. Mulherin, Lewis Duncan was the leader of the Progressive Conservative party in Quebec province from 1947-60. He was twice defeated in his own riding in federal elections.

As a child he gained considerable distinction.

He was the first French-speaking boy scout in the world.

Presidents of four Picton clubs, the guest speaker and the mayor are pictured above at a meeting in Picton. Standing, left to right, are Jim Brown, president of the Kinsmen Club; Gena Ostrander, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club; and Dan Keeler, Rotary Club president. Seated, left to right, are Ivan Sabourin; speakers Leroy Hall, Kiwanis president and Mayor Harvey J. McFarland.

Delivery

Mr. Moore "in a proffered act of goodwill in connection with the breaking up of the partnership." He did not pay for them.

Judge Carter said the firm of Moore and Carter acted as town solicitor but it was the partner who did virtually all the legal work. All he did for NONG was arrange one meeting with Orillia council and attempt to set up another.

Mr. McLean said he had sold his uncle, former Ontario minister Phillip Kelly, 100 of the 300 NONG shares he bought when NONG was formed in 1954.

He said he discussed the idea of a gas distribution project with his uncle but denied Mr. Kelly was a partner.

Mr. Kelly resigned from the Progressive Conservative cabinet in 1957. A government investigation later reported he had more than $300,000 from NONG.

Mr. McLean said he attempted to conceal his dealings with his uncle from Mr. Farris.

Mr. Cramp said he was not certain whether he had paid for the 150 shares he received in the mail but said to his knowledge Mr. Farris had nothing to do with the transaction.

He denied suggesting to an NONG official it would be necessary to bribe Orillia officials to get a NONG franchise through council.

Office Taken Away, Court Is Informed

TORONTO (CP) — A letter read to a supreme court jury here Monday stated that a former senior civil servant in the Ontario public works department was deprived of his office and then his work orders before his discharge in 1962.

The letter, complaining of mistreatment, was written by John Wesley Clarke, 56, to Deputy Minister John D. Millar.

Mr. Clarke is suing Mr. Millar and the department's chief architect, Douglas Glen Creba, for conspiring to have him discharged from his $12,500-a-year job as director of contracts and adjustments.

Mr. Clarke noted in the letter, written in July, 1962, that he had not been paid for the previous three months because of his reluctance to accept a job in a lower classification which would result in a $4,200 salary reduction.

He was dismissed when he refused to report to Kemptville, near Ottawa, as director of the eastern zone of the department. He had appealed to the grievance board which ruled that he was a "victim of discrimination."

Mr. Clarke has said he fell into disfavor when he protested payments authorized by Mr. Millar and Mr. Creba of about $200,000 extra in government funds to contractors.

Three Officers And 154 Men Join Guards

PICTON (Staff) — A total of 154 men and three officers of the Second Battalion Canadian Guards from Camp Petawawa were transferred to the First Battalion Canadian Guards at Camp Picton on Monday.

The Guardsmen were transferred to bring the First Battalion up to strength as they are now number one stand by unit, and as such are the next unit to be called for service anywhere in the world.

Both married and single personnel were in the transfer, about 25 of the total are married, and as there are no quarters available in the PMQ, these married men will be bedded down at Craig Barracks until suitable accommodations off camp limits can be found.

The men, many of whom served by private cars, were met by Captain Ed. Hayter, Adjutant at the camp. Two bus loads of soldiers arrived late, as they were forced to make a detour somewhere near Smiths Falls.

Two unnamed Guardsmen will remember their arrival at Camp Picton. They parked their car, and were walking toward the Mess Hall, one chewing gum and the other with his hat on crooked, and both with long uncombed hair protruding from their service caps.

They made two horrible errors as they passed the car in which the Commanding Officer was sitting, without saluting — and at the same time, they passed the red Regimental Sgt. Major without noticing him.

They received a "Royal Welcome" to the camp when they were "chewed out" by the senior non-commissioned officer, in a style they will remember as long as they live. It was a really classic "chewing out," to the obvious delight of some 30 members of the Corps of Drums, who, complete in their dress uniforms, heralded the arrival of the men with lively music.

Young Mother Dies, Three Others Missing

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — A young mother died Monday and her husband and two other men were missing after a motorboat was swamped in wind-rough-ened Lake Ontario.

Discovery of the body of Mrs. Peggy Garner Wheeler, 17, floating in a life jacket touched off a search. Other occupants of the outboard boat were believed to have been Mrs. Wheeler's husband, William, 18, James H. Powers, 23, and Thomas Baker, 18.

The search was suspended when darkness closed in.

Minor Hockey League Finals Played, Trophies Awarded

PICTON (Staff)—The players in the Prince Edward Minor Hockey Association, who have hung up their sticks for another season, and got out the baseball gloves and bats.

Last night at the Picton arena, the four leagues comprising the association played their final games, and the winners were awarded trophies.

Starting with the Atoms, who are progressing through the Peewees, the Bantams, and ending with the Midgets, the calibre of hockey improved as the players reached the older limits.

Dr. Lionel Dockrill, who has devoted an enormous amount of his time to coaching the Royals in the Atom League, was rewarded twice last night. His Royals dropped a determined Wampoos team by a close 2-0 score to win the Lion Bee Welch trophy. On top of this Coach Dockrill was awarded the Phil Newton trophy when he was named "Minor Hockey Coach of the Year."

The LeSieur Motors trophy was taken by Percy Stringer's Aces when they trounced the Bisons by a 6-1 score in the Peewee League final. David Wright, the goaltender for the Aces, received the Walt Fraser trophy for the most outstanding Peewee in the game.

In the game, Referee Bob Brown awarded the penalty shot when a Bison player fell on the puck in his own goal crease. The shot was taken by Larry Hogan, but David Wright outguessed him.

The Bantam game was a nip and tuck affair from start to finish, with the outcome in doubt until the final whistle. Jim McConnell's Rangers bowed out to a strong Canadiens team, coached by Morris Weeks, by a 4-3 score and were awarded the Kiwanis trophy, presented by Kiwanian Art Hamblin.

A THIRD GAME

The Midget League saw a third game between the Tigers and the Lions before the Lions cashe from behind to win the President's Trophy by a very close 4-3 score.

Some of the boys on the Midget teams, will be going into Juvenile next season, and from the way they played, the Juveniles should have some very close next season.

John Murphy opened the scoring for the Tigers, in the first of three 15 minute periods, only to have Ernie Sharpe tie it up three minutes later to create a one all tie at the end of the first period.

Robert Hoag fired a pair for while the Lions could not get one. In the last period, however Peter Lockyer, David Runnels and Ernie Sharpe each fired one to round out the scoring.

In the Atom game Wayne Robbin and John Mulridge each scored once for the Royals.

In the Peewee game Gary Jocko and Billy Carswell each fired the three goal hat trick. George Chapman added one. Ricky Baldwin fired the two Bison markers.

In the Bantam game George Ostrander and Glen Jones each fired a pair for the Canadiens, Alan Calver scored two and John McConnell fired a single for the Rangers.

We cannot write 30 to this season of minor hockey without a word of praise for Edgar Keep, president of the Prince Edward Minor Hockey Association. Edgar has put in a lot of time on Minor Hockey. True, some of the coaches get mad at him, but he takes this in stride and goes on quietly running the Association. The number of nights he has devoted to hockey this winter, would most certainly total at least five times the number of nights he has been able to sit home and enjoy T.V.
